

Source: The Mining Journal
Marquette, Mi.
September 14, 1889

Ishpeming.- The DSS&A has put up "whistling posts" at all places along the line, where the engineers are required to give whistle signals. The posts are red with a white top, and with them alongside the track there is no excuse for an engineer to forget to whistle for a crossing.