VANDERBILT'S death didn't create much of a flurry in the stock market, notwithstanding the grip he held on it during his life. There was a momentary feeling of alarm after it became known that the great financier was no more, but it passed off quickly.

MORE iron is being made in this country now than at any previous time during the year, yet prices continue to stiffen. This denotes an enhanced demand, and that the product of our furnaces is absorbed as rapidly as it is turned out—a most encouraging sign.

In the last issue of the Hancock Mining Herald, the announcement of the retirement from that paper of Mr. Robert H. Shields, is published, the partnership between him and Mr. F. L. Prince having terminated. The publication of the Herald will be continued by Mr. Prince. Since it was started, the paper has been quite successful, as it will no doubt continue to be, though it loses a bright and capable young business man and writer through the withdrawal of Mr. Shields.

THE MINING JOURNAL will have something to say in a coming number about a new style of iron charcoal kiln, a set of which has been in trial operation for some time, with exceedingly satisfactory results. The kiln is the invention of Mr. Walter A. Lovelace, who has had forty years experience in the charcoal business. Mr. D. G. Stone, of Negaunee, is a joint owner with him in the letters patent granted on this kiln, and has promised us a descriptive paper thereon, which we hope to be able to present next week. It is said by those who have seen it work that this kiln possesses many valuable features, and will materially lessen the cost of making charcoal when it comes into general use.

AN American canning company has just booked an order for 2,000,000 pounds of canned meats, placed by the French government. The meats are intended to supply the French army. It will take three months to put up the goods, and 25,000 cattle will be required to fill the order. In the next Franco-Prussian war American sympathy will be wholly with the power whose soldiers is sustained in the struggle by American meats. True, the sympathy may not count for much, but the army that lives on juicy meats from the quarters and shoulders of cattle that American cowboys have herded can hardly fail to be a terror to the foe.

We are pained to see that the Detroit Evening News disapproves of president Cleveland's attitude regarding the tariff. In an editorial paragraph it declares that "Mr. Cleveland's flat-footed pronouncement for the policy of protective tariffs will have at least one good effect. It will convince the friends of commercial freedom that they have now nothing to hope for from the democratic party, and that as practical men their immediate duty is to organize at once once for separate and vigorous political action." Very good. It would greatly simplify the political problem if the free trade element in both parties would follow the example of the prohibitionists, i. e., draw out of the old parties and organize an independent little business-wrecking association of their own. The News is an organ right to hand for a party such as suggested, and as it wouldn't need to have many voters we see no reason why it shouldn't be formed at once.

Explaining the new rules requiring land grant railroads to make certain reports to the government, assistant secretary of the interior Jenks says: "Their object, broadly speaking, is to place in the possession of the department information in regard to these roads and their management which certainly the government, as a stockholder to the extent of $100,000,000, and as proprietor of the public lands of about the same value held by these roads, has a right to have, even if, as is the case, the law did not explicitly require the roads to furnish just such information. The new rules require the roads to give ten days' notice of a meeting of the directors, with a statement of all business to be brought up, in order that the government may have sufficient notice of what is in contemplation, or that a representative of the government may be present if deemed necessary. This rule does not prohibit the transaction of any other business, but it is to be supposed that if a meeting is called there is some object in calling it, and the government wants to know beforehand if it is anything of great importance. Then, again, the rules require that a copy of the minutes of the meetings shall be sent to the department, and the purpose is to afford the government, not the public, knowledge of how its interests are being subserved."
