news will create a profound sensation tomorrow and unless later reports show that the officers are at liberty other vessels will probably be hurried to the seene. Knowing the condition of the Chinese at the present time and the way they are likely to deal with the prisoners there will be great anxiety until the safety of the party is assured and then a court martial will probably follow, as the policy of the United States is to require unusual three of their employes to work more deare in such cases. Following are the officers of the Concord: Commander, officers of the Concord: Commander, Joseph E. Craig; lieutenants, E. S. Prime, G. A. Merriam, William S. Hogg and W. A. Gill.

NOT GIVEN PROPER AUTHORITY.

HIROSHIMA, Japan, Feb. 3.- The enoys from China sent to negotiate peace will leave this city for Nagaski tomorrow. An examination of their creden-tials revealed the fact that the envoys did not have plenary power to treat for peace and they were thereupon told they had better return to their own country.

Paris. Feb. 3.—A dispatch from Tokio states that the Chinese envoys were ignorant of the trick played on them by the Chinese government. They supposed they had been given full powers to treat for peace but when the credentials were opened it was found they had no power either to conclude or sign a treaty of peace. Count Ito Hierobounmi, president of the council of ministers, told them Japan was willing to re-open negotiations with a properly empowered embassy.

WORK OF INCENDIARIES. Deaconestes' Home in Cleveland Was Not Burned Accidentally.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 3 .- Testimony of a most startling nature was given at the coroner's investigation of the Deaconesses' home holocaust in which four persons lost their lives. The police have taken charge of the burned building and a search is being made for three men who are supposed to know something about the origin of the fire.

Europeans walk out in the road with their wives, which we utterly refuse to, except at the festival of Hachiman. "The Japanese woman is treated by Columbus and the memorable voyage man as a servant, while the European of discovery which first placed the new lection of objects connected with world upon the map. But the collec-tion never reached the exhibition authorities, and it is not the least asest was never missed. All through the summer no one asked inconvenient questions about the missing curiosities, and in due time the world's fair closed. A fortnight ago a United States war-ship arrived at Cadiz to return the rest of the exhibits. Then the outcry arose: Where was the Columbus collection? No one knew anything about the matter on board the vessel, therefore warm expostulations were ad-dressed to the United States authorities at Washington by the Madrid foreign office. The affair of the missing antiquities was well on the way toward causing an international misunder-standing when, Eureka! the precious case of objects came to light in a bonded warehouse, where they had been carefully stowed away, not only from dust and damp, but also from the eyes of the millions who went to Chi-cago last year and to whom they would have proved one of the most interesting features of the show. That such a blunder could have been possible cast a blunder could have been possible cast a coul flood of light upon the chaos and disorder which reigned supreme by the shores of Lake Calumet during last

The change toward these "higher" colors are usually continuous, and require a series of varia-tions, while, on the other hand, instances of sudden reversion to "lower" colors are not common.

Red is regarded as a higher color, in this sense, than yellow. The yellow primrose sometimes varies to red, but the change is never sudden or discontin uous because it is a change in the di-rection of progression. But from red to yellow the change sometimes occurs by a jump, so to speak, because it is going backward. The same thing seems to apply in the case of birds. Red and green species of birds may vary to yellow, but the utmost efforts of breeders to produce red canaries from yellow ones have only resulted in

Many visitors to West Point have wondered what was represented by a handsome monument of Italian marble, inscribed "Dade and His Command. The story is not told, or only casually referred to, in the popular histories, and the shaft tells nothing of the gallant deeds of those whom it commemo-rates. It is a fluted column of artistic design, surmounted by an eagle, from whose beak descends a wreath which gracefully entwines it. The base is square, the slabs bearing the names and inscription being separated by miniature cannon, over which numerous stars are placed at appropriate in-tervals. The names of the officers who

The annals of "things that go astray" contain no parallel to the case which, appropriately enough, reaches us from the United States.

The long-forgotten tragedy is commemorated by the graceful shaft on the banks of the Hudson, inscribed simply to "Dade and His Command." It was erected in 1845.

Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being, at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bac," and "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago today I commensed using your preparation, and today I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect heatth, end the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely let me. I consider your "Baco-Curo." Simply wonderful, and can recommend it.

Yours very truly.

WERE NO SIGNS OF LIFE ABOARD.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.-The rumor that the lost steamer Chicora had been sighted off South Chicago caused the greatest excitement in this city today. Tugs were sent in pursuit of what a number of observers declared was the floating hull and when darkness came on this evening the lake was being searched in the hope that the story would prove true.

The report was first telephoned to Chief Swenie of the fire department from South Chicago at 11 o'clock by Captain Powers of an engine company located there. Captain Powers believes that the object was the hull of a vessel but does not think that it was the Chicora. He could distinguish dark forms on it but peculiar mark of an Englishman, were could see no sign of life and no indication that the dark objects were human beings. If they were, and were alive, they were making no signals and doing nothing to attract attention from the shore. There was great excitement in South Chicago the entire afternoon, the shores being crowded with hundreds of people auxious to get a glimpse of the mysterious object supposed to be the hull of the missing steamer.

Captain Jenkins of the Vessel Owners' Towing company at 10 p. m. reported the tug Perfection just returned from the search and quoting the words of her captain said : "We found nothing at all. Saw nothing but sea gulls and drift ice."

FASHION IN FACE HAIR.

There Was a Time When It Took Courage to Wear Beard or Mustache.

The beard and mustache came into fashion among Englishmen so recently that middle-aged folks can easily recollay the razor aside and still more to face the world during the initial stage's of the result, says the London Standard. Toward the close of the last Before they reached century the second Lord Rokeby ensouthern end of the lake, slightly the Gordon riots, who, when he turned toward the east.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon a special the almost sacred custom of his Jew, allowed his beard to grow after the almost sacred custom of his co-religionists. Lord Rokeby, therefore, endured to no purpose the scoffs of his contemporaries at what one of them described as "the most conspicu-ous trait of his person." All England either shaved, or compromised by permitting a scanty hint of a whisker to Pritons. As for mustaches, only military men wore them, and, indeed, cavalry officers had almost a monopoly of this warlike appendage. The infantry Even Napoleon remained throughout direction of government paternalism or life smooth-faced, and generally plied the razor himself. "One born to be a king," Talleyrand explained to Rogers, "has some one to shave him, but they also explained to and simple. but they who acquire kingdoms shave themselves." First-Class Cars Upholstered Better Than

The standard English passenger carriage is considerably shorter than our car, has three axles, no end platforms and is entered by side doors, says Scribner. The first-class car contains four compartments, each with six places, three with backs to the engine and three facing. The seats are separated by broad and comfortable arm rests, and there are arm rests on the sides of the carriage also. These rests are low enough, broad enough and soft enough to be comfortable. The compartment is about seven feet square in-side, giving ample room for the six seats, which are deep, wide, padded to made over to her all his interest in the the height of the head and unholstered better than anything that I know of in America. There are ample racks for hand luggage, a rug on the floor and third-class carriages have five compartments, making the seats less deep fore and aft and giving less room for the knees than in the first-class. The second-class compartments seat eight per-sons, and the bench across the car is divided by but one arm rest, so that if the places are all full you and your neighbor are separated only by an imaginary line. The third-class compartments seat only ten persons and the benches are not divided at all, the five persons on a side being in pretty close contact. These are not nearly as well upholstered as the first-class, but are good enough in that respect. WRIGHT FATHERS THE BILL Washington, Feb. 3 .- The amended labor arbitration bill has been reported by the honse labor committee accompanied by letters from Labor Commissioner Wright and others from labor representatives approving the bill.

Wright says the bill contains all the vital principles in the bill presented by strike "It is a bill," he says, "which seeks Man-ning, one of the crack pool players of zations an opportunity for really perfeeting their work and cooperating with the managers of railroads in prevent ing strikes and violence, gives employes an opportunity to be heard when receivers are in control of railroads upon the conditions of their employ ment. The bill provides for a board of lect when it required some courage to arbitration the awards of which may be final if the parties coming before it agree they shall be. While it will not solve the labor problem nor prevent strikes entirely it will, in my opinion, do much to steady the forces involved and afford an effective balance wheel in interstate controversies."

Another letter signed by the executive officers of railway conductors, fire men, engineers, trainmen and telegraphers' organizations, set forth that the railway employes represented are in hearty accord with the general senti-ment of the company and favor arbitration as a means of settling disputes and favor the enactment of laws by con-gress as preferable to the action by legislatures of different states. The writers have never been willing to subscribe to the idea of a permanent commission or of a fixed arbitrator named in advance but think it essential that ed in America until lately as the peculiar mark of an Englishman, were not generally adopted by the staider matter of settlement of disputes by considering the matter of sett conciliation or mediation and if this is successful to attempt to secure arbitra-tion before war is declared. A brave pastor of his flock was he who was born at Kentmere hall, in England Lake district, in the year 1517. This Barnard's Gilpin had no love of power and place, for he quietly refused a bishopric when it was offered him, an unusual proceeding for a village clergy-

His enemies would have dragged him to the stake at Durham for having adopted the principles of the reforma-tion, and as they could not succeed by -"Delighted; I always believed I would get back the money I lent you,"-Flieforce they tried guile and drew up thirty articles against him, which they laid before Bishop Bonner.
"The heretic shall be burned in less than a fortnight," said Bonner. Gilpin heard of the plot, and with the utmost composure resolved to suffer for the truths he had adopted. Indeed he even seemed glad of the opportunity to prove his fealty. He called William Airy, his almoner, to one side.

"At length," said he, laying his hand upon his steward's shoulder, "they have prevailed against me. I am accused to the bishop of London, from whom there is no escaping. God forgive their malice and give me strength to undergo

There appears to be a certain rate of vibration which the compound cannot resist. Only a few months ago an old chum of his, an officer on one of our ships of war now stationed in Japanese waters, went to call upon him at his house in Fagasaki. While waiting in the room which might correspond to the parlor in this country, he heard the prattle of a child in the adjoining apartment Said the youngster

"Who is the foreign devil that has come to see papa?"

"Hush!" said the nurse. "The gentleman might overhear you. He is a fellow-countryman of your father's."
"Well, papa is a foreign devil, too."

This incident would seem to show that certain colloquial phrases have survived the feeling of hated for foreigners which the Japanese abandoned so many years ago.

This was not exactly relevant to the subject under discussion, from any point of view, and I did not feel in the humor for abstract argument. I began to suspect that Aunt Rachel had been as observant as I had and did not care for me to discover the fact.

"Harry Perrin is going to propose to her before he leaves this place," I asserted as boldly as if I had the information from headquarters.

"He might go further and fare worse," was the not entirely original answer I got from this, though in this case I was ready to assent to the truth of the saying.

The interview was not as satisfactory as it might have been, and I lounged down toward the field where Joe was at work without a very definite idea of Aunt Rachel's opinion or information.

A few days after this abortive attempt to get a confirmation of my suspicions or some evidence to prove to myself that they were not well found-ed, I was compelled to go my way and leave fate to work out its designs without help or hindrance from me. As I said good-by to Aunt Rachel at the station at Garrettsville I said:

"I am afraid Margaret Kelley is going to make a fool of herself." 'So am I," answered Aunt Rachel, without making any sign to denote that she was at all surprised at my remark or that she did not fully understand my meaning.

OLD NEWSPAPERS.

BY GEORGE A. ROBERTSON.

There has been such a complete revolution in the manner of conducting ades that it is now almost impossible to understand the power that was exerted by Horace Greeley and other great editors in the days just preceding the great civil war and during that

The discovery of an ingenious German chemist that fairly good print paper can be made from wood pulp, the introduction of type-setting machines, and the improvements of the wonderful web presses of the present time, have completely transformed the mechanical departments of all the leading newspapers, and made

To-day the leading dailies receive, and twelve thousand words a day. They are members of one or the other great newsgathering associations that cover the entire globe, and he could for the whig party, and then, send over their special wires from fifty on the night of election, sent that fato eighty thousand words per day. The telegraph outstrips the sun, and often the people are reading in their afternoon papers of things that hap-pened in Europe at an hour earlier than that at which the paper went to

All these conditions of the present are so different from those that pre-vailed in 1833, when Horace Greeley and Francis Story started the penny Morning Post in Philadelphia, that there is almost nothing in commo between the two. In the first and most important particular the newspaper was not then a necessity of everyday life. It was simply called a news paper out of courtesy. It contained very little of what is now understood as news. It was more the reflection of the editor's opinions, and people then, as now, could live without opinions. If the editor was brilliant and could write interestingly the paper usually succeeded. If he was dull and stupid

It now seems almost unaccountable lighted at the result. He felt perfect-that the publication of that insignificant weekly sheet, the Log Cabin, in 1840, by Mr. Greeley, in New York, should have brought him into national there was a great deal said about there It now seems almost unaccountable prominence. But the brilliancy of the national matters were presented made in that day and generation a profound impression, and Mr. Greeley was almost immediately brought into national renown. His counsel was sought, and he was in several important matters able to adjust differences between the great whig leaders.

who was at the time of President Garfield's death marshal of the District of Columbia, knew Mr. Greeley well, and is an admirer of his genius. In a recent conversation with the captain he related numerous incidents and characteristics of the great editor that are entirely new or forgotten by those of the present day who read newspapers. These points give a good and satisfactory key to the character and power of the great editor.

Greeley had a way of meeting an opponent that was practically unasswerable," said the captain. "I remember that a certain editor in New eral times to talk with him. Knowing York for whom he had great contempt was continually pitching into him and trying to draw him into discussion. Greeley stood it until he thought it was about time to reply and finally printed the following editorial para-graph: 'If the editor who wears departed verzeity, will surprise his system with a bath, we will attempt a writing. Finally the man said: clean discussion with him.'

insinuations that had up till that time ing abou been very frequent in the opposition

One of the most remarkable in- script. stances of Greeley's repartee was in a contest with James Watson Webb, the colored neople." editor of the New York Courier and colored people.' Enquirer, a rival whig paper. Webb had been in the army and was quite face assuming a clouded expression flery in disposition. He had fought a duel with Thomas F. Marshall, of Ken- cating a coming storm. After waiting, tucky, in June, 1842, in which he was a few minutes longer the colored man severely wounded. When indicted for again spoke: dueling he pleaded guilty. having had an understanding that the offense would be considered a technical one, and that Gov. Seward would pardon him. He was, accordingly, found forth: guilty and pardoned.

Some years after, when in a discus. and go to raising potatoes!"- sion with Greeley, Webb, who was a fine dresser, had occasion to refer to Mr. Greeley's slovenly appearance and remarked that he attracted a deal of attention when walking on Broadway. Mr. Greely's reply was as follows:

"The 'Courier and Enquirer' says that the dress of the editor of this paper attracts a great deal of attention when he walks along Broadway. In reply we wish to say that had it not been for the executive elemency of Gov. Seward, the clothes worn by James Watson Webb would attract a great deal more attention if worn on Broadway."

There was no further discussion of the question of clothes for some time to come in the columns of the Courier and Enquirer.

The famous political partnership, consisting of Thurlow Weed, William H. Seward and Horace Greeley, dated from the time Greeley first came to New York, and Weed and Seward recognized that he was going to be a very important element in forming politieal sentiment. For a number of years this partnership controlled the polities of the Empire state, fixing the persons who were to hold office and formulating political platforms.

Greeley's editorial and political rival was Henry J. Raymond, who was nine years younger, and who came to New York thoroughly equipped to take a very important part in all that was going on. He was employed by Greeley as an assistant editor in 1841, but two years later went to the Courier and Enquirer and held an editorial posi-tion there till 1851, when he founded he Times, of which sheet he was editer till his death in 1868.

Greeley had often professed that he did not desire to hold office, and it Weed and Seward had come to repossible to issue papers of maximum gard these professions as sincere, size at a minimum of cost.

They, therefore, usually made up their They, therefore, usually made up their slates without giving any place upon

In 1854, however, Mr. Greeley had, to ten words per day by telegraph. not made his desires known to Weed.
The remainder of his report was sent and Seward, and they accordingly proceeded to make up their ticket, and sepaper and its readers being perfectly lected Raymond for this office. This content to wait a day or two for their was driving the iron into Greeley's news. The price of telegraphing at soul. He would not have cared so that time between Washington and much to have been turned down himself it some one besides his hated young rival, Raymond, had been see during the sessions of congress, ten leeted. He was too good a party man, however, to make any public outery or to bolt the ticket. He went on till the close of the campaign doing the best mous historic letter to Gov. Seward, which read as follows:

"At this hour (infidight) sufficient returns are in to show that the entire state ticket is elected. I take this occasion to serve notice that the partnership hitherto existing of Seward, Weet and Greeley is hereby dissolved by the withdrawal of the junior member there-

During the next ten years Greeley did not hold any political office and did his most effective newspaper work. He was very active in opposing all the schemes and ambitions of his former political partners. In 1860 he went to the republican national convention, and while the New York delegation was a unit for Seward for the presidency, he was the most effective single factor in defeating Seward and in se curing the nomination of Lincoln. His familiar old white coat was seen moving about everywhere among the dele gates working to undo his former political partner.

The members of the New York delethe paper was short-lived. The attempt of Story and Greeley to publish the Morning Post at one cent per disposed to assault him. His face was covered with smiles and he was delighted at the result. He felt perfectbeing a certain letter that explained a editorials and the unique way in which great deal of Mr. Greeley's political animus. Finally, when enough had been said to create a high degree of interest in the contents of the letter, Mr. Greeley himself printed it and so stopped the discussion and made a ten stroke thereby.

Mr. Greeley was very generous if approached in the proper way and when Capt. C. E. Henry, who figured prominently in politics for many years, and great interest in bettering the condition of those whom he could and with this end in view was greatly interested in securing emigration to the west.

It was well understood by those connected with him that when Mr. Greeley was in the midst of his write ing he was not to be disturbed by anyone, and that if he was interrupted he became very irritable. Few would risk disturbing him, therefore, while he was in the midst of his thought.

A certain very stylish colored man where Mr. Greeley's private office was, he walked in one day without announcing himself. Mr. Greeley was busily engaged in writing, and with his face cidse to his desk did not look up. The visitor took his place close to the great editor's elbow and waited nourning under his finger nails for his several minutes for him to look up and

An Extensive Thaw Observed Which Indicated a Summer Season in the Southern Hemisphere of Our Neighboring World.

Among the most interesting observa a tions of Mars during the recent opposi tion were those relating to the gradual disappearance of the snow cap surrounding its southern pole. The disappearance was due, of course, to the fact that it was summer in the south The county officers of the Presby. although the reason was plain, and because it was plain, one could not watch the process without experiencing a the invitation and were in line, and there were also quite a number of firemen from Negaunee and Marquette in the procession. The funeral was one of the largest seen here in some time, there being friends of the deceased from various parts of the upper peninsula in attendance. The services at the church were conducted by Rev. J. Langan, the pastor, and were very impressive. The remains were placed in the vault at the Isapeming cemetery, where they will be kept for a few days.

The floral tributes were many and entific American, to think dispassion would, in the northern hemisphere, extend as far south as St. Petersburg, the southern point of Greenland and Mount St. Elias in Alaska. By July 1 the diameter of the snowy area had dimin-

The wound was dressed daily: Mars corresponds in color and general appearance with what are believed to be the water areas of that planet, while what remains of the snow cap in such circumstances rests apparently upon a mass of land, perhaps no more than an island rising out of the polar ocean. Owing to the larger eccentricity of its orbit, the extremes of temperature on Mars are greater than upon the earth. although the total amount of the solar heat received by the planet is less than half as much as we get. But more important than these differences is the rarity of Mars' atmosphere, which has been so clearly demonstrated by the recent spectroscopic observations of Prof. Campbell. It may not be scientific, but it is certainly human to ask whether it is probable that human beings resembling ourselves were included in the field of view of our telescopes last autumn, while we watched the southern snows of Mars sparkling to the sun and melting away at his ardent touch. If such beings are there they must exist in an atmosphere less than one-quarter as extensive as the earth's.

House Unearthed Near Pompeil.

A valuable discovery has been made at Pianella-Setteimini, near Pompeii, on the property of a certain M. Vincent de Prosco. A house has been un-earthed which was covered at the time the city was buried, and it is said to be in a more perfect condition than any building yet discovered. It contains several large apartments, and three bathrooms with the basins in sculptured marble, and with leaden pipes ornamented with bronze faucets. The three rooms correspond, says a writer, in describing the discovery, to the calidarium, tepidarium, and darium, which were always to be found in ancient houses of the first class. In consequence of the cruption of Vesuvius, A. D. 79, the Pompeilan houses brought to light heretofore have been almost without exception. Fortunately, however, that on the property of M. de Presco is perfect, and archæologists are happy over that fact. The roof measures almost forty-four

To The Mining Journal.—In your edition of Feb. 1 in Negaunce items you stated that a petition was circulated among business men and citizens of Negaunce, and was pretty generally signed, asking that the common council favor an amendment to the city charter providing for the election of marshal and assessor by a vote of the people instead of by appointment of the council as herefore. The article states that none of the members of the council have been asked to sign the petition "but it is said that some of them do not favor the change, In view of the fact, however, that at least nine-tenths of the business men and a large majority of the taxpayers will sign the petition, it is quite probable that it will meet with the epproval of the council." On Thursday, which was by far the coldest day of the winter, the American Express company sent several cases of eggs and other perishable goods over the pony route between Negaunce and Marquette. When they arrived at Marquette it was found that the frost had not touched the eggs. Mr. Houle, local agent of the company, thinks that when such goods are carried safely over when such goods are carried safely over the route with the temperature as low as it was last Thursday it is entirely safe to ship perishable goods between here and Marquette, no matter how cold the weather might be. All perish-able articles are wrapped in buffalo robes and blankets.

Many of them are artists, who handle a car beautifully, calculating with the utmost nicety, not only the power at command, the weight carried, and the operation of the brake and grip of the particular car, but also the movements particular car, but also the movements of neighboring teams and their effect blue and green garters are worn in the upon the truck immediately in front, and the characteristics of the driver of the truck ahead. With all these elements they compute the measure of speed needed. There is in the town, perhaps, no set of men more alert, physichaps, no set of men more afert, physically and mentally, than the high-grade gripmen. They pilot their ears fearlessly, dashingly, and safely, often with but a hair's breadth to spare.

It would be hard to say which are the better gripmen, those of Third avenue or Broadway; but it is certain that to see the Broadway gripman at his best he should be watched as he shoots the Fourteenth street curve-The men are all watchful and ready for any emergency, but, while some are apparently under a strain, others stand erect and trim and square to the front, and there are some nowadays whose first motion to set the brake before the crossing is not a right-hand pull upon the brake wheel, but a left-hand thrust, and that takes muscle.

To be sure, people occasionally ride with a gripman not yet accustomed to his work, who starts a car as if it were a shell out of a gun, and who stops it as ahead. Then people fall over one another and smile vacantly, just as they did at the start when cable cars were new.-N. Y. Sun.

IS MAN LOPSIDED?

The Subject Discussed from a Variety of Interesting Standpoints

Man at best is an ungainly animal. His head is an irregular spheroid, his eyes are not alike or of equal efficiency; one shoulder is higher than its neighbor, one hand and one foot is larger than its corresponding organ. Despite the fact that the shape, size and color viduals than any other organ of the human body, says the Albany Times-Union, they are probably more alike on the same head than any other of the twin organs. If one car is delicate in shade, the other will be the same; if one looks like a dried fig or a conch shell, the other is likewise so. With the eyes, however, matters are different. One eye is nearly always more open than its friend over the bridge, while in many cases people, while ap-parently looking with both eyes, only one, and makers of firearms, in making guns to order, carefully allow for the right or left sightedness of the sportsman for whom they cater. Broadly speaking, women are more often left sighted than men, and, when they do happen to be right sighted they are so in less degree than the sterner sex.

The reason why the left shoulder is frequently further from mother earth than the right lies in the fact that while writing most men rest the left ellow on the table, while in the case of porters loads are carried on the right shoulder. With an able-bodied man there is very little difference in the length of the limbs, but the hands and feet are usually widely different in the matter of size. The right hand is the bigger, while, curiously enough, the left foot covers the greater amount of Ladies have a certain unreasoning sense of satisfaction when they say that they wear fives in gloves, because, if this is a fact, then the human hand has grown smaller within the last twenty or thirty years, which state of affairs, however, may be questioned when the glovemakers tell their story. Gloves are all marked half a size smaller than they really ought to be, which is the fatal result of the habit in which the ladies indulge of almost invariably asking for gloves a size smaller than they can comfortably wear. The left leg is better developed than the other male carrier, on account of the fact that we stand habitually on the left foot, and mount a bieycle or a horse and kick a man while balancing on the left leg. Most men jump chiefly off the left leg. Lateral enrvature of the spine occurs more frequently to the left than to the right, indicating that the body in sitting is thrown more to the left than to right. the prisileges of the earth and that This leads to the remark that nothing man had stolen her birthright. That is more injurious, for the young especially, than to sit for any length of time in one position.

WEARING QUEUES IN CHINA.

It Is Merely the Provailing Style, and Is Not Demanded by Law. "It is to the Tartars who conquered China several centuries ago that we are indebted for this much-discussed queue," said Wing Lock, a prominent Chinamau, to a writer for the Pittsburgh Dispatch. "You hear a great deal about the laws of China relating to the wearing of queues; how a Chinaman cannot return to his country without his queue, and all that. Well, it is all bosh. The wearing of a queue is no more required by law than your gentlemen wearing whiskers. It is a custom and a style, and a Chinaman realizes some truth in the saying that you might as well be out of the earth as out of style. A Chinaman retains his queue nation with the advent of a mouse in the sacred precincts of this eastle of to his native land he would not care to feminity was not because it was a go about among his friends and make mouse, but because that mouse was of the opprobrious sex which this estimates the opposition of the opprobrious sex which this estimates the opposition of the opprobrious sex which the opposition of the oppo common council) had refused to do so; that the tax-payers generally were in favor of the change and that nine-tenths of the signatures of the tax-payers would be procured before the petition was submitted to the common council for approval. Since then it appears, from the alderman's communication, that the circulator of the petition ceased circulating it after having secured 103 signatures.

"But how do you know it was a man mouse?" inquired one of the more courageous of the council. "Because he had whiskers?"

"No," replied the learned president.

"I knew it must be a male mouse because it was proved here that in his game with woman it only takes a little poker to put him in a hole."

There was a dead silence for the plaited hair without being plaited hair without being the comman should to his queue with such tenacity when it was originally imposed upon him as a mark of subjection. Marquette was then in the flush of her early prosperity and the four-story Burt block, the largest and most imposing structure in the city, stood on the ground now occupied by the Bertha block and Rothschild & Bending's building. The First National bank then occupied a room in the Bart block just where Rothschild & Bend-ing's store now is and the same building also contained the principal public hall in those days. The Burt block went with the rest of the business section of the city but the bank officers, though they had confidence in their vaults, removed all the cash on hand and more logical summary for the month of Janvaluable books and papers, placed uary, compiled from the records of this them on a tug and steamed out into the station for the past twenty-three years, lake. As a result of their forethought the First National, like The MINING JOURNAL under similar circumstances never missed a day but opened for business at the usual hour the next morn-pork barrels. Soon after the little building on Spring street was erected by Hon. Peter White for the use of the bank and was occupied by it for some years, in fact until the three-story building, which was burned in 1885, was erected at the corner of Front street. For a mean of 7 degrees and the warmest. at the corner of Front street. For a time after the bank quitted the little building it had a variety of tenants. Then it housed the school district and Peter White libraries for a time. At this period the city offices were in the upper floor of the old Coles building on Front street, now used by the Maccabees and other societies. It is related, how correctly it cannot be said, that with the wind in certain directions the roof of the council room used to leak and the council would adjourn to the other corner to get out of the wet. Then Mr. White gave the city the old bank building and the ground on which it stood and the council and recorder moved over there, the libraries continheld at Crary's office at 8 o'clock next uing to occupy the upper floor. And it was the old building's fortune to escape was the old building's fortune to escape vention will name delegates to the made the First National bank home-

There were then only ten aldermen and the change was made in the spring of 1888. The libraries meanwhile had found more comodious quarters in the new First National bank building, the one

Then the Peter White Public library was incorporated by special act of the legislature and took over the collections of the school district and Peter White libraries. The school board transferred to the council the ground on Washington street where the City Hall now stands. Then Mr. White added to his other benefactions to the city by his splendid gift of the Thurber block on Washington street for the use of the library. The old recorder's office standing on a part of the original bank lot the bit of ground and old structure was conveyed back to him.

The contrast between the old council room and the splendid new City Hall which is the monument of Mayor Kaufman's administration is great and well illustrates the progress of a quarter of a century. When Marquette obtained her first charter and blossomed out as a city the old building was in its youth. city the old building was in its youth.

Now in its old age the walls which have heard so often the consultations of financiers, have seen the contests of politicians, have sheltered the growing soul of the city—its public library—and have rung with the eloquence of municipal legislators, are abandoned to dust and decay. That the progress of the next quarter century may make the new City Hall as much out of date in 1920 as the old council room is today is the hope and ambition of every true.

Agimosse Club Meet.

The Agimosse Snow Shoe club meet will be held at the wigwam of Minnehaha Markham, this Monday at sundown, Gitche Manitou, the mighty, will-

Get your mittens, Minjekahwun,
And your trusty snow shoes ready,
And at 4 o'clock assemble
Then to start out for the forest,
For the vast and vacant forest.
On your snow shoes surely start you.
Hungry get as Hiawatha,
And returning to the wigwam
Find prepared by Wahanowim
Beaver, Iynx or badger ready,
With potatoes or some salad,
Pie or pudding, creams or ices,
And at 6 plus thirty minutes,
Sit you down and fast no longer;
Keeping thus your famished body
From the islands of the blessed,
From the kingdom of Ponemah,
From the land of the hereafter.

NOTICE!

A Republican convention for the city of ground and old structure was conveyed back to him Nominally an exchange was made of the Spring street for the Washington street property but the values of the two are so disproportionate that the Thurber block was actually a downgright gift to the city. In addition the city was allowed the use of the old structure, rent free, until the projected City Hall should be completed. That day has arrived and the historic little edifice is finally abandoned.

What will become of the old building now is uncertain. It is badly worn with age and use and as if in premonition of its fate, a large portion of the plaster on the council chamber ceiling has fallen since the aldermen last met. A few years ago there was a project of foot for an enlargement of the bain building but the business depression made it inadvisable to proceed with it. The old structure's walls seem fairly good and perhaps it may be repaired.

HOW TO GET $100.00 AND PERHAPS MAKE A FORTUNE.

We secure patents, and, to induce people to keep track of their bright ideas, give away one hundred dollars on the first of every mouth to the person who submits the most meritorious invention during the preceding month. We will also advertise the winning invention free of charge in the "National Recorder," a weekly newspaper published in Washington, D. C., which has an extensive circulation throughout the United States, and is devoted to the interests of inventors.

NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

The idea of being able to invent something strikes most people as being very difficult; this delusion the Company will dispel. It desires to get into the head of the public the fact that the things which seem so absurdly trivial that the average citizen would feel ashamed to bring them to the attention of the Patent Office are the most valuable. It is the simple things and small inventions that make the greatest money, and the complex ones are seldom profitable. Almost everybody at some time or another conceives an idea which if patented would be worth a fortune. Unfortunately such ideas are usually dismissed without thought. The simple inventions like the car-window which could be easily slid up and down without breaking it e passenger's back, the sauce-pan, collar-button, nut-lock, bottle-stopper, suspender-button, hook, buckle, and snow-shovel are things that every one sees some way of improving upon, and it is such simple inventions that bring the greatest returns to the author.

The prize we offer will be paid whether the application has been acted upon by the Patent Office or not. Every competitor must apply for a patent on his invention through us, and whether he secures the prize or not, the inventor will have a valuable patent. Send for circulars.
