SILVER FIGHT IS ENDED.

Impossible to Secure a Vote in the Senate on the Jones Bill.

SILVER MEN GIVE UP THE FIGHT FOR THIS SESSION.

Will Content Themselves With Voting on Resolution Declaring in Favor of Unlimited Coinage.

GAVE WAY FOR OTHER BILLS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The silver fight in the senate is finished. The one day devoted to the Jones bill showed conclusively that no amount of pressure would bring about a vote and if the silver bill was kept before the senate it would result in defeating appropriation bills and force an extra session. The silver men feel that they have shown their strength and believe they have gained a substantial victory in securing the promise of a vote upon the resolution presented by Wolcott declaring the sense of the senate. Although the agreement was not entered into in the senate all the senators present who were opposing the resolution agreed privately that a vote should be had on the resolution tomorrow. The opponents of the Jones bill present said they were willing there should be a vote on the declaratory resolution presented by Wolcott and it is believed this private agreement will be adhered to in the senate. This ends the silver fight for this session and the appropriation bills will monopolize the remainder of the session, with perhaps some time devoted to the bankruptcy bill and pooling bill.

HELD LONG SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—In the senate today days and nays were called on the Jones motion to take up the silver bill. It was carried by a vote of 36 to 27. Jones tried to get the time fixed for a vote on the bill but several senators objected. Jones gave notice that he would ask the senate to sit tonight until a vote was reached. Vilas took the floor. He spoke of the president's several messages to congress and his constant appeals with words solemn and almost pathetic in their earnestness to deal with the financial conditions, but there had been absolute impotency in congress to meet the perils of the country. Vilas then took up the events leading to the recent bond contract. He said action was necessary to avert the calamity of gold suspension. After reviewing the run on the treasury prior to the execution of the contract for the sale of bonds and the consequent importation of gold from Europe Vilas took up the present condition of the treasury and showed how great a crisis had been averted.

"If the drain had not been checked by the announcement of the contract," he said, "we should have been thrown onto a silver basis or to a suspension of specie payments" and he declared that the president had been doubtful whether he would be able to hold on for another day. Few persons had been aware of the peril but there were some who appreciated it and he read the following telegram from Buenos Aires, United States minister to Argentina, to show that the English bankers understood the situation: BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 4.—GRESHAM, Washington.—The London & River bank, the largest in South America, is under orders from London today to raise all classes of American exchange. Are you acquainted with this fact?

Commenting on the telegram he asserted that the condition of affairs which had cropped out in far off Argentina would have made itself felt in all European capitals. A sharp collision occurred between Aldrich and Vilas. Aldrich said the recent bonds could have been sold at 10 per cent. above what they brought.

"If the senator had stood at one end of a cable as the secretary of the treasury stood," said Vilas, "and had for days solicited all the great money centers of the world for their terms on our bonds, he would not make such a statement. So imminent was the danger to the treasury that from the black thunder-cloud lightning was almost ready to descend. Was the secretary to delay for a fraction of a cent? There are times in the history of nations—when great consequences depend on quick action, and whose arm is palsied or whose foot falters is not worthy of the trust."

Vilas took up the personal charges that had been made against the administration. He repelled the statement of Lodge that the bond contract was the "blackest page" in our financial history. At most it was but a matter of unwisdom and in no sense was it a crime. Vilas closed at 3:15 p. m. with a brilliant peroration for sustaining the national honor and credit. He spoke nearly four hours.

Platt said the pending silver bill was the most indefensible bill of the kind ever presented here. It sought to double the value of silver by delivering it to the treasury department. At 6 o'clock Platt was still speaking and there was no indication of an adjournment or break in the silver or anti-silver ranks. The galleries were nearly empty and the floor of the senate was strewn with papers and presented a most disorderly appearance. A number of senators had gone home but left word as to how they could be hastily summoned. At 6:30 Aldrich moved to adjourn. Jones called for the yeas and nays with apparent confidence in having enough votes to defeat adjournment. The motion was defeated—yeas, 15; nays, 32, two more than the necessary quorum.

"In view of that vote," said Frye, "I will ask the senator if he intends keeping us here all night." Jones responded that he expected to secure a vote to-night. He asked that 10 o'clock be fixed as the time to vote. Chandler objected. Jones suggested 10 o'clock tonight or 3 or 4 o'clock tomorrow for a vote, but Chandler and Aldrich objected. Aldrich moved to go into executive session. The vote stood, yeas, 7; nays, 32, seven short of a quorum. The senate was thus brought to a standstill for although a quorum was present a quorum could not be obtained for the vote. At 8:35, on the motion of Jones, a sergeant-at-arms was directed to request the presence of absent senators. In the meantime business was entirely suspended and the senators walked about and chatted. At 8:55 business was resumed, a quorum being secured. Aldrich thereupon withdrew his motion for an executive session. It was evident an understanding had been reached. Wolcott, one of the most active silver men, presented the following resolution: "That it is the sense of the senators of the United States requires the enactment of a law for free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 and that in view of the fact that this congress will expire March 4, and there are important appropriation bills requiring the attention of the senate, it is the sense of the senate that the consideration of such a law will not be entered upon at this session of congress." Jones asked that the resolution lie over. Then he added somewhat wearily: "I move that the senate now adjourn." This was the signal for the close of the contest. At 9:02 the senate adjourned.

HAVE MONEY ENOUGH

Treasury Department Able to Meet Current Expenses.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Secretary Carlisle today sent a reply to the senate resolution inquiring whether "it was necessary or desirable that legislation should be had authorizing the issue of bonds or other securities to realize monies for the purpose of paying current deficiencies in revenue." In his communication the secretary says: "The cash balance in the treasury at the close of business on the 18th inst., exclusive of the $55,101,704 gold reserve, was $99,875,234. It is my opinion that the secretary of the treasury ought to be permanently invested with the authority to issue and sell short-time bonds or other obligations of the government for the purpose of raising money to meet such deficiencies in the ordinary revenues as may occur from time to time; but I do not think that there is any necessity at the present time for the exercise of such authority, even if it existed. It is not probable such deficiencies will occur during the remainder of the current fiscal year as to exceed the available balance on hand." It is estimated that during the next fiscal year the receipts will exceed the expenditures.

NEWSPAPER CHANGES HANDS.

Controlling Interest in Chicago Herald Sold to James W. Scott.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—John R. Walsh, owner of the majority of the stock of the Chicago Herald and Chicago Evening Post, has disposed of his interest in both papers to James W. Scott, who has been connected with both papers since their inception. The formal transfer was made this afternoon. In a formal announcement of the purchase of the controlling interest, Scott says: "In addition to the business, printing plants, franchises and good will of the newspapers mentioned the transfer includes The Herald and The Evening Post buildings, both of them admirably adapted to newspaper publication. Under the new ownership The Herald will continue to be the leading exponent of the principles of the Democratic party pledged to the support of an honest government, honest money and honest taxation." Mr. Scott said tonight that the price paid for the two papers was approximately $2,000,000. There is a mortgage on The Herald building and fixtures for $600,000 and a mortgage on The Post building, secured by bonds, which were subscribed by Marshall Field and other friends of Mr. Scott.

SPLIT IN THE A. P. A.

Chronic Kickers Have a Falling Out Among Themselves.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 19.—The dissension existing in the ranks of the American Protective association in Illinois, growing out of the refusal to admit certain delegates in the last state convention at Chicago and of the subsequent action for damages against the state president, Clarence P. Johnson, for $25,000 by Professor Walter Sims, has resulted in the organization of an opposition society in the A. P. A. ranks known as the National Assembly of Patriotic League and the secretary of state today granted a charter of incorporation to the same. Its declared object is "to promote American patriotism and independence in politics, the reform of all municipal, state and national governments and to maintain non-sectarian public schools and other works." The incorporators are Walter Sims, Arthur E. Gammage, Joseph P. Elliott, Wm. E. Servis, James Keenor and Arthur W. Slaughter.

STATE ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

Witness Swears That the State Had Endeavored to Corrupt His Testimony.

HAYWARD'S COUNSEL MAKING A HARD FIGHT.

Today Will Be Taken Up With Evidence Regarding Hereditary Insanity in the Hayward Family.

WILL TRY TO PROVE AN ALIBI.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 19.—In the Hayward trial this afternoon George Grinbell testified that efforts had been made to corrupt his testimony by Charles Ebert. Ebert, he says, described what he must say on the stand, trying to have a short man substituted for a rather tall man. Ebert had been representing himself as one of Erwin's men. Witness said he did not find out until last Saturday that Ebert was working for the state's side of the case. Then, he declares, he allowed him to go on. Last night for the first time he informed Erwin of Ebert's operations.

Julia E. Walker of St. Paul testified to having seen Miss Gilling several times in St. Paul with a middle-aged man who wore iron gray moustache. Here is the third man again.

Lillian Burch and Gertrude Brown testified to hearing two shots at Lake Calhoun the night of the murder while skating. This closed the defense for the day.

Tomorrow the Hayward family will go on the stand to prove its alibi as to time on the night of the murder and then will come reading of the Illinois insane depositions. The state's representative at the hearing in Illinois is in the city and states that there is nothing to fear from those depositions. He says the whole country near where the depositions were taken is peopled with distant relatives of the Haywards. The antecedents of the family is traced back as far as 1736, covering hundreds of people, and only six cases of insanity could be found. In his opinion the family has a first class record. In all but one it was found that insanity was not hereditary but brought about by disease and accidents.

After adjournment tonight there was an immense crowd waiting outside the court room to see Hayward taken to jail. They waited until the prisoner was brought out in irons and then the cry went up from hundred of throats, "Hang him! Hang him!" The yell did not disturb Hayward and he went to his prison cell as gay as ever.

CREATED A SENSATION

Indiana Legislature Charged With Being Bribed With Whisky.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 19.—While the house of representatives was discussing the Nicholson temperance bill today a bomb shell was exploded by Jackson of Carroll county. Speaking to the galleries, which were filled with friends of the bill from all over the state, he exclaimed dramatically: "You say this house is not subsidized and you get angry when you are charged with it. No wonder you raise your hypocritical eyes in horror. Here you are talking unbecomingly temperance legislation to those good people in the galleries and all the time there is a barrel of whisky in the basement of this state house which is free to the members on this floor." Pandemonium reigned immediately and personal encounters were with difficulty averted. "There were cries of 'Prove it' and Jackson continued: 'I repeat what I said. And no wonder you want me to hush up. There is a barrel of whisky down there and it is furnished you by the whisky industry. You are shackled by it.' Jackson claimed he had been invited to partake of the whisky and when the uproar had subsided a committee was appointed to locate the barrel and report.

The proprietor tried to stop him and the robber fired a shot at the pawnbroker which narrowly missed. The thief had a horse waiting and escaped.

"IT WILL be observed," remarks the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "that Harrison and McKinley are not imitating Reed's talkativeness on the financial question."

EVER SINCE it convened, over a month ago, the legislature of Delaware has been trying to elect a senator of the United States and has not yet accomplished it.

HON. DAN H. BALL will go before the state convention of the Republican party with a solid delegation from this peninsula supporting him for the nomination which he seeks.

A CONVENTION to select the Republican candidate for representative in the Third district, to succeed Burrows, has been called to meet at Kalamazoo March 3.

CURTIS, the Chicago Record's Washington correspondent, furnishes this information regarding the recent bond sale in his letter of the 17th, published in that paper:

Those same bankers who have been working the government for over two years, under a financial system that gives them the power to force it to the wall when they will.

ble for the trouble caused and loss entailed on the country as if they had foreseen and intended the wide-spread disaster that attended on their plot to force the government to a sale of bonds. Even the leading papers of New York have felt called on to reproach the bankers of that city for their sordid disregard of the government's necessities and unpatriotic disposition to take advantage of them.

ADVERSITY AS AN EDUCATOR. It is a noteworthy circumstance that in the countries which originally decried the demonetization of silver the shrinkage of values and depression in business which have seemed to attend upon its degradation have begotten a strong popular movement for its rehabilitation as a coinage metal.

Whether the industrial stagnation that has followed the demonetization of silver was really caused by the degradation of that metal or not may be open to discussion, but that the masses, who feel the change most acutely, are coming to believe that it was indisputable. Entertaining that conviction, they are gradually getting into line for silver coinage in every one of the countries whose governments were instrumental in causing the discrimination against it.

LONDON'S BURGLARS. According to the annual report of the commissioner of police the statistics for the past year record 509 cases of burglary in the metropolis, as compared with 637 in 1892. Notwithstanding this marked decrease in the number of these offenses, the convictions obtained were 147, as against 145 in the previous year.

At Edinburgh, Scotland, there is on exhibition an ancient cannon, known as Mons Meg. It was constructed to order for James II. of long bars of iron, hooped together. The balls fired from it were of granite. Meg has seen much service. It was first used at the capture of Thrieve castle, when the Douglases surrendered at the second shot.

Those same bankers who have been working the government for over two years, under a financial system that gives them the power to force it to the wall when they will. DIPLOMATIC ETIQUETTE.

The Question of Rank as Settled in the Early Days of the Republic.

Thirty nations are represented at Washington by four ambassadors and twenty-six ministers, each of whom has anywhere from one to sixteen secretaries and attaches to carry on the necessary business. So far as work is concerned, the duties of the foreign representatives are not onerous, and are largely social.

The foreign representative makes the first call upon the members of the cabinet, but is called upon by the senators. The only members of congress officially recognized are the members of the house committee on foreign affairs, in whose good graces he naturally likes to keep.

Until two years ago, when Great Britain raised her representative to the rank of ambassador, and France, Italy and Germany quickly followed, the dean of the corps was always the minister who had seen the longest term of service here, and the dean now is the English ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote.

LONDON'S BURGLARS.

According to the annual report of the commissioner of police the statistics for the past year record 509 cases of burglary in the metropolis, as compared with 637 in 1892. Notwithstanding this marked decrease in the number of these offenses, the convictions obtained were 147, as against 145 in the previous year.

The cases of housebreaking numbered 1,343, being 23 more than in 1892. In none of these was any act of violence against the person reported. The net total loss was £13,398, as compared with £10,079 in the preceding year.

The 147 convictions for burglary were followed by sentences of penal servitude in only 37 cases, and of these there were but six instances in which the term awarded exceeded five years.

The Vengeance of Nature. The Boston Transcript says that of the one hundred and forty-six inhabitants of the little town of Chilmark, on the island of Martha's Vineyard, thirty-six, or almost exactly one-quarter, are congenitally deaf and dumb.

BIRTH OF A NEW LANGUAGE.

Influence of Indian Soldiers on the Inhabitants of Central Africa. In a recent issue of the British Central Africa Gazette a correspondent gives some interesting particulars of the progress made in the district at the northeastern end of Mount Manjo since its occupation by the administration and the building of Fort Lister, which H. H. Johnson planted in that region to command the route frequently taken by slave caravans from the interior to Quillimane.

Where formerly his wants in the matter of clothing were confined to sufficient calico to clothe his family and himself, he now requires boots, turbans, trousers and coats, and at a distance it is said to be now difficult to distinguish the half-naked savage of a year ago from the Sikh soldier in his ordinary dress.

Red Men of the Improved Order Have a Couple Engaged for Their Coming Concert.

BROAD HINT TO DELINQUENT WATER TAKERS

Off to the State Convention—Called to do Jury Service—A Nuptial Event and Celebration.

THE RED MEN'S CONCERT.

The lodge of the Improved Order of Red Men, under whose direction a concert will be given at the A. O. U. W. hall next Friday evening, is preparing to make it an unusually interesting affair. Miss Francis Pangborn of Me-nominee yesterday notified the members of the arrangement committee here that she would bring along her young brother, who will also take part in the entertainment. The boy is said to be a very fine vocalist and the committee has been trying to secure him for some time past. He has been ill for the past two or three weeks and his sister was in doubt as to whether or not he would be able to come. Besides giving Miss Pangborn almost a column notice on a concert she gave at Marinette recently the Eagle of that place had this to say of her proposed engagement here:

Miss Mamie Pangborn of this city will sing at a concert at Ishpeming on Feb. 22 to be given by the improved Order of Red Men. Her musical numbers will be a rich treat to all who are so fortunate as to be present.

The Eagle spoke of Master Pangborn in referring to his part in the program as follows:

Master Leo Pangborn captivated the audience at the concert on Wednesday evening with his vocal number. He has wonderful natural musical abilities for one of his age and with training and culture cannot fail to rank high among young vocalists.

Following is the program:

- Piano solo..... Miss Collins.
- Address..... Mayor Johnston.
- Vocal solo..... Miss Pangborn.
- Instrumental..... Sextette.
- Piano duet..... Misses Tislay and Thompson.
- Vocal solo..... Master Leo Pangborn.
- Violin solo..... Professor Louis Voelker.
- Vocal solo..... Miss Pangborn.
- Recitation..... Miss Allen.
- Duet..... Miss Pangborn and Mr. Tucker.
- Clay pipe solo..... Mr. Loecher.

To the State Convention.

The Ishpeming members of the Marquette county delegation to the state convention, to be held at Detroit tomorrow, will be in that city before the convention is called to order. They are George A. Newett, Thomas Walters, H. O. Young and William Peters, the latter being now at Lansing. Mr. Young left for Detroit last evening, going via Chicago. He was accompanied by Alexander Maitland of Negaunee, who is also one of the delegates. Messrs. Newett and Walters will leave for Detroit today noon. J. Q. Adams and C. G. Griffey of Negaunee will also be at the convention, the former having left for there Sunday and the latter yesterday.

The Jurors.

The following Ishpeming men have been drawn to serve as jurors at the next term of the circuit court, which convenes at Marquette next Monday: Hamilton Stewart, John H. Quinn, Nelson J. Robbins, Charles Holmgren and Randall P. Bronson. John M. Mullins will serve from Ishpeming township and John James is the juror from Tilden township.

Took a Drive.

Pierre Gaudson and Miss Dalima Robert, both of this city, were united in marriage at St. Joseph's church yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Housenault officiating. The happy couple and about thirty or forty of their young friends drove to Negaunee, and also took a spin around the city after the nuptial reception and tied. In the evening a reception and dance was held at Frenchtown, where the young couple will reside, in honor of their union.

Must Pay Up.

The board of public works has caused the following notice, taken from section 4 of the "rules and instructions for the government of water takers," to be posted about town:

Water rates must be paid at the office of the board on the first days of January and July of each year. Ten per cent. will be added if not paid in thirty days thereafter and the water shut off without notice and not turned on except on payment of arrearages, and in addition thereto $2 for closing and opening street stop cock.

The clerk of the water board says: "Delinquents in certain cases now call for action under the rule cited and orders have been given to have the rule enforced without discrimination. Water rates, like postage stamps, call for prompt and uniform payments. To enforce the rule upon one and permit another to escape would be unjust. Pay at the clerk's office and avoid trouble."

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF

Mayor Johnston has been at Appleton, Wis., the past few days. J. B. Tibor has been in Chicago on a business mission the past couple of days. Dr. Jones of Houghton spent Monday night in the city. He left for home yesterday morning. A man's beaver skin glove was picked up on the street recently. The owner can find it at L. A. Proulx's grocery store. The dancing party given last evening at the Knights of Pythias hall in honor of Hugh Tilson was attended by about thirty couples. Charles J. Byrns went to Marquette, where he will do some work in the interest of the Modern Woodmen of America, yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jaedecke will entertain about fifty of their friends at their home, corner of Lake and Barnum streets, this evening. The Red Men will present each person attending their concert and hop Friday evening at the A. O. U. W. hall with a neat souvenir program. Joseph Prince, who has been cooking at the Commercial Hotel, Iron Mountain, for some time past, was yesterday transferred to the Nelson House in this city. A gas pipe opposite the Outhwaite residence which sprung a leak several weeks ago has annoyed the gas company considerably. The pipe for quite a distance was dug up before the break was located. The ladies of the "Chancel society" of Grace Methodist church will prepare a nice spread for their supper, to be given at the A. O. U. W. hall tomorrow evening. Only twenty-five cents a plate will be charged. Miss Ceilina Charbonneau came down from Champion Monday evening and attended the meeting of the E. O. W. club, the members of which were entertained by Miss Millie Page. The meeting was a most happy one. Miss Mamie Manley, daughter of Roadmaster Manley of the peninsula division of the Chicago & Northwestern line, came up from Escanaba yesterday and took part in the entertainment given last evening under auspices of the local lodge, A. O. H., at the convent hall. Judge Nels Clifton was called up from Marquette Monday evening on account of the serious illness of his mother, who is seventy-seven years of age. The old lady was feeling a little better yesterday than she did the previous day and night. Mr. Clifton returned to Marquette yesterday. J. B. Wilber is desirous of renting his business block at 219 South Main street, now occupied by Grabarsky, who will remove to the Midco block on or about the 15th of next month. Persons interested will do well to consult Mr. Wilber. His address appears in his advertisement in this issue. Don't miss the removal sale at Gradow-sky's. Goods are sold cheap. Everything at reduced prices. Millinery, cloaks and capes at half price. (2-20-tf)

TRAINING NATURE.

How the Japanese Make Marvels for the Market. At Jamrach's, in London, the other day, some one asked the great animal-catcher and importer "if he had run out of mermaids?" "We used to keep them," he answered, "when they fetched four pounds apiece, but now we can't get more than one pound for them. Frank Buckland burst up the trade when he exposed the method of their manufacture by the Japanese from a fish and a monkey skin cleverly united; so we no longer make them a 'leading article,'" he smilingly added. "The Japanese are remarkably ingenious." "Not only that, but they possess infinite patience. The telescope fish is a case in point. It is a fish of immense length, with a double, fanlike tail, and produced by breeding on the principle of artificial selection. However, they are quite common in Germany now." "And you know how they get white Java sparrows?" "They select a pair of grayish birds and keep them in a white cage in a white room, and they are attended by a person dressed in white. The mental effect on a series of generations of birds results in completely white birds. They breed the domestic cock with enormously long tails after the same principle. They first select a bird with a good tail, giving him a very high perch to stand on; then with weights they drag the tail downward, carrying on the same system with the finest specimens of his descendants till a tail almost as long as a peacock's is produced at last. And how marvelous they are in the fertilization of plants! Did you ever see one of their dwarf trees, perhaps fifty years old, and yet not more than an inch or two high?"

STEVENSON'S ADVENTURE.

How the Novelist Came Near Being Put Off a Train for Smoking. During the last visit to this country Robert Louis Stevenson escaped a very unpleasant experience and never knew it, according to a story told in Harpers' Weekly. A journalist, who knew Stevenson by his published portraits, entered a railway car at Long Branch, and saw the famous author seated in a corner, with a black square box on the opposite seat and a rubber tube dangling from it. The conductor knew the journalist, and said to him, pointing to Mr. Stevenson: "I'm going to put that man with the long hair off the train. He is smoking. I asked him not to, but he's been at it again while I've been out of the car." "He is not smoking," said the journalist; "that is some device for carrying medicine, in the form of a vapor, which he inhales in his lungs. He is an invalid. That is Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist." The conductor seemed interested, but only for a minute. "I don't care," said he. "It doesn't matter who he is. I call it smoking, and he's been at it ever since I told him not to." The journalist tried another tack. "Did you ever read 'Kidnaped?'" he asked. "Now," said the conductor. "I don't care what he is; he's got to obey the rules." The journalist persisted: "Did you ever read 'Treasure Island?'" "Now," said the conductor. "I don't care what he is; they are all trash anyhow." "Hold on," said the journalist. "Did you ever read 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?'" He wrote that also. "What?" said the conductor. "Did I read 'Jekkle by Hyde?'" Well, I guess I did. Couldn't sleep the night I finished. I seen it played in the theater, too. It's great, ain't it? Well, that man is a dandy, ain't he? He can smoke—he can't ain't he? He can smoke—is it? Sick, is he? He does look sick. I'd like to see any object to a man like that taking his medicine."

WHERE LOVERS BOW.

The Shrine of a Japanese Goddess Who Smooths Love's Path.

A Famous Buddhist Establishment in the Sacred City of Kyoto—Once a Place of Punishment for the Faithless.

All the world loves a lover, and the Japanese are as romantic and susceptible to the tender passion as any other people, strangely as their customs and etiquette conceal and confound its manifestations, writes Elicia Ruhamah Sedmore in Harper's Bazar. They have their sentimental poems and romantic novels as well as western people, and the affecting tale of the baffled and unhappy love of Gompachi and Komurasaki parallels that of Heloise and Abelard in popular interest. The lovers' grave in the temple grounds at Meguro, south of Tokyo, is as much a place of sentimental pilgrimage as that white tomb in Pere la Chaise where lie the immortal priest and nun. The trees around this tomb flutter with paper poems and prayers, and instead of carrying away a leaf or a stone from the grave of the lovers, these Latins of the orient leave a souvenir. When the course of true love does not run smoothly, and only divine intervention can melt stern parents' hearts and clear away clouds and obstacles, the true lover must seek the aid of Kwammosube no Kama, the goddess who watches over the affairs of the heart. Her most famous shrine is at the Kionizudu temple in Kyoto, one of the oldest and most famous Buddhist establishments in that sacred city. In it is enshrined one of the thirty-three celebrated images of Kwannon, the goddess of mercy, and to it pilgrims flock by thousands every summer. The temple and pagoda roofs are outlined high against the foliage of Kyoto's eastern hillside, and the steep street climbing from the river to its ponderous gateway is the celebrated Teapot hill, a way lined on either side for a whole half-mile with an almost unbroken row of the most fascinating little china shops. The Hondou, or great hall of the temple, has a platform built at one side which overhangs the edge of a precipice falling sheer several hundred feet to the ravine below. In the old days suspected wives used to carry their them over the platform rail. If the victims survived the fall, they were innocent, and of course the results proved that no innocent women were ever dashed to pieces on the rocks below Kionizudu. No husband ever went away with a heavy conscience, and the divine Kwannon never interposed to save by miracle or parachute. Off in a remote corner of a similar platform, built out from the Amida or hall dedicated to Buddha himself, is Kwammosube no Kama's simple little shrine. A grating of unpainted wood hides the altar within, and the grating is covered with a thousand little strips of paper, each the prayer of some anxious pilgrim. To secure the aid of the benevolent goddess one buys a printed prayer from the priests in the Amida, folds it into a narrow ribbon, and, with the thumb and little finger only of the right hand, ties it to the grating. If any other fingers are used, or the bit of paper is even touched by them, the charm is broken, the goddess deaf, and the appeal vain. Anxious and perturbed as these unhappy ones must all have been, they have taken time to fasten these curl-paper petitions with some very elaborate knots and loops while they were imploring the goddess' aid. One may sit on the benches of the platform and consume tea and sugar flowers, and watch the men and women, youths and maidens, people in rustling silks, softest crapes, or commonest cotton garments, who seek that shrine. All classes buy and tie before the altar, and with earnest faces clap their hands to call the goddess's attention, bow their heads, and make their heart's sorrow known to Kwammosube no Kama.
