Stranded Imperials Helped Out of Their Bad Plight by Citizens of Houghton.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCES LIBERALLY PATRONIZED.

Opening Session of Teachers' Institute at Houghton This Morning—Miscellaneous Items of Interest.

[All communications intended for this department should be addressed to Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Mich. Telephone connection.]

HOUGHTON.

The forlorn condition of the members of the Imperial Opera company appealed to the warm hearts of several Houghton people Thursday evening. The company was "dead broke," the treasurer had gone to Chicago and the hotel men, draymen, printers, bill-posters and others with whom the operatic artist must reckon were decidedly vociferous in their demands for the one thing which the company possessed not, and apparently had little chance of ever getting—cash. A voluntary committee was appointed, the Armory secured for Friday and Saturday evenings and enough tickets sold to give a large house Friday and a fair one Saturday night, helping the unfortunate singers out of their bad plight. In thanking by name the people who had helped them out the manager of the company, who himself was just as dead broke as the others, displayed some emotion.

This morning at the Rock school house will begin a session of the State Teacher's institute, in charge of Prof. S. B. Tobey of Norway, assisted by Miss Ada Van Stene Harris of Duluth. The institute will hold daily sessions until Friday. The Mineral Range and Hancock & Calumet lines will make a special rate of seventy-five cents for round trip tickets from terminal points to Houghton on Aug. 26th to 30th inclusive, tickets good to return until the 31st.

James Fleming of Sidway is in the county jail, charged with horse-stealing. James admits that he had the horse in his care—the evidence would hardly permit him to say otherwise—but asserts that he was simply taking the beast home to its owner when the minions of the law came along and pounced on him because he was poor and friendless.

Alexander Koskula, thirteen years of age, is at present staying with Sheriff Dun on the other side of the lake and will be sent to the Reform school. The complaint made against him was larceny, and was preferred by his parents, who have lost all control over the lad.

James Burt is building two fourteen-ton boilers for the Atlantic. Mr. Burt has long made a specialty of heavy boiler and stack work and enjoys a big trade.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Aug. 24, 1895. TO THE MINING JOURNAL: Undeserved praise is as unpalatable as undeserved censure is unpleasant; and I cannot refrain from correcting any erroneous impressions that may be formed from the communication in your issue of Saturday under the heading, "The Rescuer of the Idler's Crew." I disclaim for myself and the crew of the Sylvia any credit whatever relative to their rescue. Mr. George Wallace and Mr. Louis Voetsch of Houghton, who put out from the shore in a row boat and reached the crew of the Idler and placed them in a position of safety before the Sylvia could reach them, are entitled to all the credit there is, and should receive all the praise for their prompt and efficient action on the occasion. FATALITIES AT SEA.

Large Increase Shown by the Report of the Inspector General. The records of the United States steamboat inspection service, which during the last thirteen years has been under the direction of Gen. Dumont as inspector general, show that during the last fiscal year the number of lives lost on steam vessels was approximately 508. This, says the Washington Post, was an increase over the average of the preceding eighteen years of 128. This great increase was caused by the large loss of life by the foundering of the steamship Colima recently off the Pacific coast. This makes the average for the last nineteen years 247. The highest previous annual loss was 586, in 1874. The lowest was 133, in 1886.

Notwithstanding the great increase in the number of vessels since 1870—over 100 per cent.—there have been but 759 disasters to steam vessels, with a loss of but 5,057 lives, the number of passengers carried per annum having increased from 122,550,133, carried in 1870, to not less than 650,000,000, carried in 1892.

The average loss of life under the law of 1852 was one person to every 250,181 passengers carried, while under the act of 1871, which greatly improved the efficiency of the service, there was only one life lost in each 2,708,333 passengers carried, or a reduction in the number of lives lost of nearly 1 to 1 in proportion to the number of passengers carried. The service consists of about 175 officers and clerks, one supervising inspector general, ten supervising inspectors, divided among the various customs collection districts of the United States. One of the most striking instances of the benefits derived from the powers conferred upon inspectors under the law is the almost entire absence of intemperance at the present time upon the part of licensed officers.

An alleged defect in the laws, and one which has caused much criticism, is in the local inspectors' power to investigate the cause of boiler explosions and casualties to steam vessels, thus giving the inspectors the right to pass judgment upon their own acts. The present head of the inspection service, Gen. Dumont, shares in the opinion of the opponents of such power, and has, unsuccessfully however, endeavored to have the laws amended to correct the evil. As long ago as 1889 he called attention in his annual report to the matter, and suggested a remedy in the form of a bill, which, however, never became a law. The bill provided for a court of inquiry to be appointed by the secretary of the treasury to investigate acts of local inspectors in granting licenses, etc., such court to consist of three supervising inspectors of other districts than the one in which the inspector belongs. It is very likely that this matter will again be brought before congress at the next session.

"GEN." COXEY IS CONFIDENT.

Tells Large Assemblage of Chicago Populists He Will Be Next Governor of Ohio.

A REMARKABLE LETTER FROM DEBS IS READ.

A. R. U. President Bitterly Denounces Old Parties—Both Controlled by the Money Power.

SEVERAL "SENSATIONS" SPRUNG.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—"General" Coxe, Populist candidate for governor of Ohio, addressed a large assemblage at a Populist picnic in the northwestern section of the city this afternoon. He told those present that he would be the next governor of Ohio and would probably be the Populist candidate for president in 1896.

A letter was read from Eugene V. Debs, president of the American Railway union, who is now confined in jail at Woodstock, Ill. It is a remarkable document in that it attacks in the most vicious manner all the doings of the old political parties the present national administration, etc.

Debs says that to expect any change from the old parties is idiotic. "Both are controlled by the money power and both are equally debauched by its influence." Debs then refers to the present national administration as "probably the most infamous that has ever cursed the country." He says that the "Democratic party is incapable and corrupt."

He then states that in one regard the Republican party is superior to the Democratic, because it does not hesitate to "boldly champion every measure calculated to enlarge the power of plutocracy, while the Democratic party makes a profession of loyalty to the people, to which it turns traitor in the supreme hour of trial."

STUDENTS WERE BEATEN.

Outrage at Tarsus More Serious Than First Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—The state department is in receipt of information from the minister at Constantinople concerning the recent attack on the premises of Mr. Christie at Tarsus, a brief report in regard to which had previously been communicated by the Turkish minister at this capital. Mr. Terrell's report and that of the consul at Beyrout puts a different aspect on the affair, which was more serious than it was at first believed to be. Mr. Christie's students and servants having been severely beaten and their lives threatened. Mr. Terrell's prompt action in obtaining from the Porte instructions to the wali Beyrout to investigate and prosecute those found guilty will secure immediate and full justice as promised by Marroyal Bey's communication.

TURKEY RELEASES AN ARMENIAN.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 25.—The representations which the United States minister, Mr. Terrell, has made to the Turkish government have resulted in the release of the Armenian Arakalian, a naturalized American citizen, who had been in prison at Marsovan for several weeks past under suspicion of belonging to a revolutionary society.

MORE BANNOCKS KILLED.

Rumor Has It That Fifteen Were Murdered by Cattlemen.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 25.—No further news has been received concerning the reported massacre of fifteen Bannock Indians in Diamond valley by cattlemen. At Ontario, the nearest telegraph office to the scene of the reported trouble, it is believed there is some truth in the rumor but no further information can be secured until the arrival of the stage tonight.

WILL RACE AS USUAL.

But No Gambling Will Be Allowed on the Harlem Track.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Judge Gibbons has decided that he would not dissolve the injunction issued against the Chicago Fair Grounds association upon the application of the Civic federation through Attorney General Moloney. The court held that as the corporation is an artificial being, a court of chancery has jurisdiction to enjoin and prevent the commission of public nuisance. The opinion practically results in a perpetual injunction against the Harlem race track. The Harlem officials declared that they will open the track tomorrow, and race as usual. The injunction they say refers only to gambling and will have no effect, as they will allow no gambling on the grounds.

DIDN'T BREAK HER RECORD.

Steamer Paris Failed by Five Hours of Equalling Her Best Time.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The American line steamer Paris, which sailed from Southampton Sunday, Aug. 18, was sighted off Fire Island at 9 a. m. yesterday. Her captain was under orders to make the trip a trial of speed. The Paris left Southampton at 12:25 a. m. The record from Southampton to New York is held by her sister ship, the New York, and is 6 days, 7 hours and 14 minutes. The Paris' best time for the passage is 6 days, 9 hours and 37 minutes. Allowing the Paris an hour to reach Sandy Hook lightship, where her voyage ends so far as the record is concerned, her time was not within seven hours of the New York's best run and about five hours behind her own.

PLANNED THE CAVE-IN.

Ann Arbor Contractor Charged With Causing Death of Two Men.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 25.—An alleged startling revelation has just been made concerning a cave-in of a main sewer here Jan. 1, 1894. City Marshal Peterson has just been informed of a death-bed statement made by Mrs. Henry Oldmeier to the effect that she believed the cave-in was deliberately planned by her husband, so as to cause the death of Richard Sypller and George Henry, who were buried in the cave-in. The sewer in question was twenty feet deep and it is claimed that the bracing screws in use were purposely loosened to cause the collapse.

Gumry Hotel Engineer Fled Because He Feared Violence.

ANTONITO, Col., Aug. 25.—Elmer Loescher, engineer of the ill-fated Gumry Hotel at Denver, who was arrested here, says that the boiler explosion which killed twenty-two people was not due to any carelessness on his part. He claims that before leaving the hotel, he banked the fire and made sure that the boiler was two-thirds full of water. He left Denver, he says, because he feared personal violence.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY. John Chubb of Chicago is in the city visiting relatives and friends. W. M. Gibson and wife of Calumet were among yesterday's visitors. The trout fishers have only six days more this year in which to pursue their finny prey. The usual semi-weekly dancing party will be given at the Hotel Superior pavilion tomorrow evening. Charles M. Cist and wife of Cincinnati arrived here yesterday and will go up to the Huron Mountain club this morning. Hermann Stack, a member of the Marquette team some years ago, was in town yesterday and took in the ball game. Mr. Justice Shiras came into town yesterday after spending some weeks in camp near the mouth of the Yellow Dog river and will remain here with relatives for a few days.

The three A. A. Bigelows were all in town at the same time yesterday. One lives here, one is from Chicago and the third hails from New York and there is no relationship between them. The Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Davies, bishop of Michigan, will attend the convocation of Northern Michigan to be held in this city at St. Paul's church the first Wednesday in September. Postmaster T. F. Carroll of Grand Rapids is here on a visit to his brother, J. J. Carroll of this city, the well known ambassador of footwear. Mr. Carroll is accompanied by his wife and child. Will C. Brown and wife, J. H. Long and wife and James Wallace went from here with the Knights Templar party to Boston. F. M. Moore and F. H. Gooding will also attend the big gathering.

The Presbyterian Sunday school and other societies had a very enjoyable picnic at Presque Isle Saturday. The Boys' Brigade and the Sunday school played a game of baseball and the former won by a score of 11 to 10. The ideals went up to Neegaunee yesterday to play a game of baseball with the Originals of that place. A wrangle broke out in the last inning and the Neegaunee aggregation left the field. So Umpire Griffin awarded the Marquette lads the game, 9 to 0. "Millie, the Quadroon", which the Tuxedo club will present at the opera house Wednesday evening, is an interesting play of Southern life before and during the great civil struggle. The members of the club have worked hard on the play and hope for a liberal patronage from the public.

Miss Gaffney's farewell concert at the Presbyterian church this evening should be attended to the capacity of the house. The entertainment will be one of high merit and Miss Gaffney has always been so ready in all good causes that she deserves the very best kind of a send-off Marquette can give her. JAIL LIFE IN NEW YORK. Now a Wealthy Prisoner Eases in the Ludlow Street Jail. A man well known in Wall street who is at the head of a new insurance company not long since spent fifty-nine days in Ludlow street jail, a civil prisoner at the instance of a dry goods firm. He was well supplied with spending money, says the New York World, and lacked no creature comforts during his retirement. He described the nature of the prisoner who can pay his way as follows: "You register as you do in a hotel, and then you are a boarder, and you are allowed all the privileges of the place, and for a five or ten to the keeper off duty you can take an evening promenade. You are supposed to retire to your room at nine o'clock, but for a consideration you can stay up by fixing the keeper downstairs. You can play poker and other games, in which the keeper always takes a hand. "After the game is over downstairs you are allowed, for a consideration, to retire to the warden's dining-room, have a cold lunch, and if you happen to be an epicure you can retire to the kitchen, make a Welsh rabbit or any other dish you have a mind to. Then when supper is over you go to your room and if you desire to continue the game left off downstairs, for a consideration paid to the keeper upstairs you can play poker all night. "The two keepers on watch will always supply you with all the liquor, cigars, etc., for a consideration, as they have an arrangement with a saloon over the way, which by signs is easily called. The poor devil who is not a boarder suffers for all the attention the boarders have. Money can buy anything in Ludlow, including liberty, and it is my opinion that there is only one man in the whole layout that couldn't be bought, and that man is 'Jack' McCabe, who is an honest, fearless man, with a big, kind Irish heart. The others are all out for the stuff—and it reigns supreme in Ludlow. A Useful Waterfall. The street cars of Sacramento City, in California, are now run by electricity generated by the falls of the American river at Folsom, twenty-four miles away. The river has been dammed, creating a reservoir three miles long, with a flow of eighty-five thousand cubic feet a minute. After turning the turbine wheels at the dam the water is not allowed to escape further service, but is used for irrigation. Sacramento City expects soon to be warmed and lighted by the river. SLABS FOR SALE. Sixteen inch slabs $2.50 per cord delivered. Telephone F. W. Read & Co., lumber yard, Washington street. Telephone 41. (7-15-17)

THIS IS LIFE. "I have planned much work for my life," she said. A girlish creature with golden hair, and bright and winsome as she was fair. "The days are full, till he comes to wed; The clothes to buy, and the home to make The very Eden, for his dear sake." But cars soon come to the wedded wife; She shares his duties and hopes and fears, Which lessen not with the waning years. For every struggle at best is life; If we know the burdens along the line We would shrink to receive this gift divine. Sometimes, in the hush of the evening hour, She thinks of the leisure she meant to gain, And the work she would do with hand and brain. "I'm tired to-night; I am lacking power To think," she says; "I must wait until My brain is rested, and pulse is still." O woman and man, there is never rest! Dream not of a leisure that will not come Till age shall make you both blind and dumb. You must live each day at your very best; The work of the world is done by few; God asks that a part be done by you. Say oft, of the years as they pass from sight: "This is life with its golden store; I shall have it once, but it comes no more." Have a purpose, and do with your utmost might; You will finish your work on the other side, When you wake in His likeness, satisfied. —Sarah K. Bolton, in Christian Work.

A RUN OF LUCK. BY ED MOTT. "I don't know what sort of luck Dan Haymaker struck when he died," said the man from over Sinnermahoning way, "but his dying turned the blamed streak of luck on me that anybody ever heard of. Queer how that happened—tremendous queer. At least it would have been if it had happened anywhere else; but as it happened over on the Sinnermahone I don't know as it was so queer after all. Anything is liable to happen over on the Sinnermahone. Everybody is lucky over there. Lucky because they live there. Lord! what a country that is!" "I wonder you don't stay in it more!" growled the man in the red, blue, pink, yellow, green and purple mackinaw jacket. "Ye see, when Dan Haymaker died," continued the Sinnermahoning man, nodding at the man in the mackinaw, "he left a widow, a bob-tailed dog and a sorrel mare. Her friends advised the widow to add to the value of her estate by shooting the bob-tailed dog, but she said she didn't feel like doing it, because if there were two deaths in the family there was sure to be a third, and as she would be the only one left in the family if the dog was dead, of course the third death would be hers. "An' I ain't just ready yet to follow Dan! the dog," said she. "But she said she was going to raffle off the sorrel mare, and that she'd give the dog to whoever won the mare, 'an' he kin shoot it," she said, "or 'pison it, or do what he darn pleases with it, 'cause then it'll be out of the family" "won't make no difference." And perhaps the widow wasn't cute in throwing out that inducement. I can't tell you how many of the widow's neighbors were just aching to shoot that bob-tailed dog. They didn't dare do it while Dan was living, and they weren't mean enough to do it after he died, but they were so anxious to do it that they got up a purse to buy the dog of the widow so they could dispose of him, but each man was so bound to have the pleasure of shooting the dog that they got in a dispute over it and that busted up the scheme. The widow knew this individual yearning on the part of her neighbors to shoot the dog, and so she was cute enough to say that she'd give the dog to whoever won the sorrel mare in the raffle. So people around there almost tumbled over one another to buy chances on the mare. I had no grudge against the bob-tailed dog, but there was the making of a good horse out of the sorrel, so I took a chance in the raffle myself. "Of course, you all think you see that the luck I struck was the winning of Dan Haymaker's sorrel mare, but that was only the beginning of it. I won the mare and the dog went with her. I didn't want the dog, but I didn't dare to give him to any particular neighbor because all the others would get mad. So I took him home with me. He killed three of my best chickens before he had been there an hour, and chased my wife down cellar when she went to interfere, and I could see plain enough that he was getting ready for a few of my sheep as soon as night came on. So I made up my mind that I'd shoot the blamed critter myself. He was lying along the fence pretending to be asleep when I went in to get my gun, and when I came out with it he was nowhere to be seen. "I had on hand just then a few orders for some natural products of the Sinnermahoning wilds, and I was worried like Sam Hill over how I was going to be able to fill 'em on time. Joe Sibley wanted two live coons in a hurry. Phil Butts had an order in for a wildcat skin, and didn't know how to wait till he got it. Jim Parker, of the West Branch, said if I'd send him a nice fat bear with a good coat on it he'd give me thirty dollars, but he'd have to have it inside of forty-eight hours. Young Bill Lanson, of Hefty's Corners, wanted a live fox to send to a friend over on the Toga if he could get it right away, for which he said he wouldn't consider ten dollars any too much to pay. I knew I could fill every one of these orders if they'd only give me time enough, but here they were, every one of them to be filled on the spot. So I said I guessed I'd let them all go but the bear and go out next day and get that—and maybe the wildcat. "Anyhow," said I, "now that I've got a horse, I've got to have a hitching post, and I'll plant that first thing." "This was the afternoon my bob-tailed dog had disappeared. I started in to dig the post hole for my hitching post, and was digging away, when I heard a noise behind me. I looked around. There stood the bob-tailed dog, looking as innocent and unconcerned as if he hadn't just come in from killing one of my sheep, which I found out after a while. The good thing that I had taken my gun into the house, or I'd have spoiled all my luck right there and then. I put down my shovel and walked into the house and got my gun again. When I came out I saw the dog going toward the woods, all bristled up, and going pretty fast. He got into the woods, and in less than two seconds I heard the sounds of a fight between him and something else. I wasn't long in getting over there, and came onto the dog and a big red fox in the liveliest kind of a tussle. It was a short one. The fox licked the dog as no dog was ever licked before, and when the fox let him go he went out of the woods like a bush fire, and I could hear him yell for half a mile. The fox scouted for some rocks near by and dropped out of sight in a hole. I looked the ground over and saw that I had that fox all right. I cut a long, forked stick, shoved it down in the hole, twisted it good and strong into the fox's hide, and with a long pull and a strong pull dragged him out. "Ten dollars from young Bill Lanson, easy enough!" said I, and started home with the live fox. I hadn't gone ten yards before Zip! went a big fat coon past me so fast it made me dizzy, and then Zip! went another one past me. "What in nature is the matter with them coons?" said I, stopping to see 'em go. I soon found out. Bounding right on behind them was the biggest wildcat I ever saw. "Aye, aye!" said I. "Wildcat wants coon for supper, eh?" "Both coons plunked into the end of a hollow log that lay not far away. The wildcat when it saw me stopped, gave an ugly growl or two, and then ran up a chestnut tree ten rods or so further on, where it crouched on a limb and glared and growled at me. "Well, Jehiel Pettibone," said I, "if you ever doubted that the greatest boon to man was to be born on the Sinnermahone, doubt no more!" "Saying which, I took off my suspenders, tied the legs of the fox with 'em and laid him down at the root of a tree. Then I went over to the hollow log and stopped the end up with a big pine knot. The wildcat kept his fiery eyes on me all the while, and I s'pose wondered what under the blue canopy I was driving at. He found out pretty quick. As soon as I had shut the coons in the log I picked up my gun and sallied toward the tree where the wildcat was glaring and spitting and getting madder and madder. I think he made up his mind to jump on me once, just for luck, but he didn't do it. My bullet plinked him square between the eyes, and he was dead before he left the tree. "This is filling orders the way orders ought to be filled," said I. "I'll take the fox and the wildcat home now and come back and get the coons." "I picked up the wildcat, but hadn't taken three steps before I heard something smashing its way through the thick brush off to my right. "Can't be that one of my coons has got away and into the swamp," said I. "I put the wildcat down and rushed into the thicket. I hadn't gone a rod before I discovered that it wasn't any of my coons thrashing in there. It was a wholling big bear, with a heavy steel trap on one of his forepaws. The bear saw me as soon as I saw him, and made for me. He didn't get to me, though. Two bullets put him out of all the pain the trap gave him. "The fox," said I, "the coons, the wildcat, the bear. That comes pretty near filling the bill. I must get out of these woods right away, or I'll more than likely be gathering in a lot of stuff I ain't got any orders for." "I took the wildcat and the fox home. I went back to the woods with a feed bag. I punched the coons out of the log into the bag and took them home. Then I dragged the bear in on a stone drag. From the time I pulled the fox out of the rocks until I tumbled the bear in the thicket was just thirteen minutes. It took longer than it ought to. I might have known, the way things were running, that the bear would be along, too, and so I ought to have been ready and done it in ten minutes. But it wasn't bad. Sixty dollars in thirteen minutes, not counting the fun, wasn't bad. And I never saw the bob-tailed dog again. Queer run o' luck, wasn't it? If Dan Haymaker hadn't died his widow wouldn't have raffled off the sorrel mare with the dog for an inducement. If I hadn't won the mare I wouldn't have had the dog, nor I wouldn't have been digging a hole to set a hitching post. If I hadn't been digging the hole I wouldn't have seen the dog come back, and got bristling over toward the woods. And if the dog hadn't gone—but what's the use? There's the run o' luck, plain enough. What's the run o' saying any more?" "Sinnermahone!" exclaimed the man in the variegated mackinaw jacket. "Knowin' you as I do, of course I set here a wonderin' why Ananias and Saphiry should be took an' you be spared! But, fer all that I could believe all that yarn but the sixty dollars part of it. Sixty dollars fer a pair o' worthless coons, a red fox that'd be dear at six shillin', a wildcat that even the county don't pay bounty fer any more, an' a poor, onfortnit trapped bear, is the biggest lie I ever heard! You never got sixty dollars fer 'em!" "You're right, Mackinaw!" replied the man from over Sinnermahoning way. "I only got fifty dollars for 'em. But there was some luck in it that I didn't tell you about. When I went to town I saw a notice posted up that Cal Slicer had lost a bear trap and he offered ten dollars reward for its recovery. That was the trap that was on my bear. I returned it to Cal and got the ten dollars."—N. Y. Sun.

HOME TEAM WAS TIRED.

Ishpeming Went on Playing Best Her Players Know and Won the Game.

SUPPOSED "SNAP" PROVED QUITE THE REVERSE.

Batters Did Not Keep Everlastingly at It and Let the Game Slip by Them.

FOOLED THE GAME AWAY.

The Marquette team caught a surprise in the game with Ishpeming yesterday and was defeated 4 to 3. The local players made the mistake of supposing that they would not have to work hard to beat Ishpeming and dallied along for three or four innings when they ought to have been trying to hit the ball.

The contest opened with the visitors at the bat but with no results. The home players in their half scored one on errors by Tislow and Reed and Martin's hit.

McCarthy's error, enticed Rivers into trying to cut him off. Goodman was put out but while he was being run down both Lynn and Larson scored.

The Marquette team made the mistake of depending on the pitcher to win the game. Smith did his part up to the handle but the batting was lamentably slack and without batting runs cannot be made.
