SILVER MEN GATHERING.

Preliminary Meeting of White Metal Leaders in the Democracy Today.

IN THE INTEREST OF THE CAUSE AT THE CONVENTION.

Selection of Temporary Chairman and Contests for Seats Among Matters to Receive Attention—Conference Will Be Secret.

CHICAGO THE MECCA NOW.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The leaders of the Democratic silver forces in the various states are beginning to gather preparatory to their meeting which will be held at the Sherman House in this city tomorrow under auspices of the Bimetallic Democratic national committee. The meeting is not to be of a general character as has been supposed. It will be composed in a large measure of representatives of the bimetallic committee, which was organized at Washington in last August, and there will also be present other leading silver Democrats, to whom invitations have been especially extended.

Commencing tomorrow, meetings will probably be held daily until the beginning of the convention and possibly while the convention continues, if there appears to be occasion for them. The general purpose of the meetings is to exercise a supervisory care over the interests of the silver cause in the Democratic convention. Among the matters to which the silver men propose to give their attention are the contests for seats in the convention made by the silver men and the selection of temporary chairman of the convention, and possible later to the preparation of the platform and, if necessary, the selection of candidates.

Major T. O. Towles of Missouri, who is secretary of the National Bimetallic Democratic committee, was among the arrivals today. He thinks that when the test comes the silver men will be found to have the necessary two-thirds to nominate the presidential candidate. The bimetallic committee has from the first studiously eliminated the question of candidates from its consideration, but they will take the matter in hand later if it appears necessary to secure the nomination of a desirable man.

NOT OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.

Senator Harris, who by virtue of his position as chairman of the national Democratic committee will preside over the conference, arrived tonight. The initial meeting of the series will be called to order by him at noon tomorrow. The meetings will not be open to the public.

Senator Jones of Arkansas, who will be a prominent figure at these meetings, confirmed the statement of Secretary Towles that the first work of the conference will be to confer with the sub-committee of the national Democratic committee as to the selection of temporary chairman and as to contests, if necessary. He said there was no apprehension that the national committee would not be disposed to deal fairly with the silver majority, but that it had been thought best in the interest of effectiveness and security to have an understanding. He says that so far as he has heard from the silver delegates they have practically agreed upon the main features of the platform. The idea is to give first place to the financial plank and to make all other questions, including tariff, subservient to this.

Asked what influence he expected Whitney's coming to Chicago to have upon the convention, the senator replied: "None whatever. The people have made up their minds as to what they want and the delegates they have sent here will be here to do their bidding and no amount of influence will change their purpose or turn the course of events."

"I see," continued the senator, "that it is suggested business influence can be brought to bear to change the votes of southern delegates. Never was there a greater mistake. We of the south feel we have already been ground to powder, and no amount of pulverizing will affect us. Whitney will be treated courteously, but this is not going to be Whitney's convention."

BLAND BOOM STRIKES TOWN.

The Bland boom is the first of the several booms to arrive. George W. Allen, secretary of the St. Louis Bland executive committee, came in as the advance agent of the boom today and opened up what are to be the Bland headquarters at the Auditorium Annex. He says Governor Stone and Colonel Rickey, with other Missouri friends of Bland, will reach the city tomorrow, and that other friends of the Missouri man will continue to come until Monday, by which time there will be an army on hand. Monday night they expect to have a parade which will open the eyes of the country to the magnitude of the movement in the interest of the Missouri statesman. Mr. Allen counts confidently upon Bland being the leading candidate for the opening of the convention. He places the strength of his candidate on the first ballot at not fewer than 200 votes, and says it may reach as high as 275.

Senator Cockrell of Missouri was also among today's arrivals. The senator thinks the financial question will be made the paramount issue of the platform, and that there will be a square declaration for the mintage of silver on terms of equality with gold at the ratio of 16 to 1 and without awaiting the co-operation of other nations. He laughs at Whitney's suggestion of a compromise, and says it will not be entertained. He does not believe an unequivocal silver plank will drive many eastern men out of the party, and argues that on the contrary it will bring many votes to the party that cannot be gotten in any other way.

THE ADMINISTRATION REPRESENTED.

Controller Eckels, the first prominent opponent of the silver idea who will attempt to influence the approaching Democratic convention, arrived from Washington today and took up quarters at the Palmer. Mr. Eckels says he does not consider the gold cause as beaten by any means, for the reason that he cannot believe the delegates will refuse to listen to reason. He thinks the southern delegates do not yet fully realize the magnitude of the position they are about to assume or how it will affect the business of the country if they persist in a declaration for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. This, he is of the opinion, can and will be made so clear to them by the business men of the country that they will hesitate and a sufficient number of them change their minds to alter the result.

Senators Dubois of Idaho and Pettigrew of South Dakota arrived here today. They are supposed to be here for the purpose of promoting Senator Teller's interests in the Democratic convention, though they do not openly avow such is their purpose. Mr. Dubois declined to say more than that he was hopeful the Democrats would nominate a man for president upon whom the silver forces, whether Democratic, Republican or Populist, could combine, and insure his election.

Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota leaves here tomorrow for his home in Sioux Falls, where he is to be accorded a general reception upon his arrival Wednesday. The reception is the result of Mr. Pettigrew's action in leaving the St. Louis Republican convention, and will be participated in by a score of all parties from various parts of the state. He will return to Chicago after the reception to remain until after the close of the Democratic convention.

WHITNEY ANSWERED.

Gov. Boies Takes Exception to Portions of the Secretary's Interview.

OMAHA, June 29.—The Bee will tomorrow publish the following letter from ex-Governor Boies of Iowa, replying to a message to a New York paper concerning the Whitney declaration:

"Mr. Whitney is entirely right in his conclusion that there is no disposition on the part of those who will represent the silver sentiment of the south and west in the Chicago convention to further discuss the matter at issue with men whose views are diametrically opposite to their own on the currency question.

"He is entirely correct in his conclusion that it is now too late to accomplish any practical results by a discussion of that character. Throughout the south and west that discussion has been extended, and the judgment of the overwhelming majority of the party in these sections is evidenced by the class of delegates who have been chosen to represent it at the Chicago convention.

"Mr. Whitney is entirely wrong in assuming that free silver Democrats are forsaking the fundamental principles of Democracy or that what he terms sound money Democrats are endeavoring to commit their party to gold monometallism. Over and over again the Democratic party in national convention assembled has put itself on record in the clearest and most comprehensive language possible in favor of the restoration of silver to its rightful place in our financial system as standard money.

"It is useless to claim that the tender of the good offices of the party to secure an international agreement for the free coinage of silver is a fulfillment of its pledges so often made in this respect. When Mr. Whitney says the maintenance of our present gold standard is essential to the preservation of our national credit and the redemption of our public pledges, he ignores the great truth of which he cannot be ignorant. He knows there is not a single obligation of the government outstanding today that by its terms is payable in gold alone; he knows that right upon the face of the great bulk of the bonds of the government it is written in substance that they are payable in coin of the United States, of the standard weight and fineness of its coin before silver was demonetized, and that therefore in their own express terms they are payable in our present silver dollars if the government elects to pay them.

"The majority of the party threatens no one, and if those who compose that majority can avoid it, the people may be assured they will submit to no wrong such as the permanent establishment of a single gold standard would impose upon the great mass of the people of this nation."

IS FORMALLY NOTIFIED.

Presidential Nominee Receives Official Visit from the Convention Committee.

CHAIRMAN THURSTON'S BLOQUENT ADDRESS.

Gov. McKinley Acknowledges in Grateful Terms the Honor Bestowed and Declares the Platform Meets His Unqualified Approval.

A JUBILEE DAY AT CANTON.

CANTON, O., June 29.—Members of the commission appointed by the St. Louis convention to notify ex-Governor McKinley of his nomination for president arrived here from Cleveland this morning. They were met by the reception committee, who escorted them to carriages, which formed part of a parade to the McKinley home. A large crowd had assembled about the residence, but an open space had been reserved for the committee and party. As the crowd quieted down, Major McKinley stepped forward on the porch. He was greeted with an ovation. Then Senator Thurston, in his fiery eloquence, delivered his address as chairman of the convention committee, as follows:

THE OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION.

We are here to perform the pleasant duty assigned us by the Republican national convention, recently assembled in St. Louis, that of formally notifying you of your nomination as the candidate of the Republican party for president of the United States.

We respectfully request your acceptance of this nomination and your approval of the declaration of principles adopted by the convention.

We assure you that you are the unanimous choice of a united party, and your candidacy will be immediately accepted by the country as an absolute guaranty of Republican success.

Your nomination has been made in obedience to a popular demand, whose universality and spontaneity attest the affection and confidence of the plain people of the United States. By common consent you are their champion. Their mighty uprising in your behalf emphasizes the sincerity of their conversion to the cardinal principles of protection and reciprocity as best exemplified in that splendid congressional act which justly bears your name. Under it this nation advanced to the very culmination of prosperity far surpassing that of all other peoples and all other times; a prosperity shared in by all sections, all interests, and all classes; by capital and labor; by producer and consumer; a prosperity so happily in harmony with the genius of popular government that the choicest blessings were most widely distributed among the lowliest toilers and the humblest homes.

In 1892, your countrymen, unmindful of your solemn warnings, returned that party to power which reiterated its everlasting opposition to a protective tariff and demanded the repeal of the McKinley act. They sawed the wind. They reaped the whirlwind. The sufferings and losses and disasters that American people from four years of Democratic tariff are vastly greater than those which came to them from four years of civil war.

Out of it all one great good remains. Those who scorned your counsels speedily witnessed the fulfillment of your prophecies and even as the scourged and repentant Israelites abjured their stupid idols and resumed unquestioning allegiance to Moses and to Moses' God, so now your countrymen, shamed of their errors, turn to you and to those glorious principles for which you stand in the full belief that your candidacy and the Republican platform means that the end of the wilderness has come and the promised land of American prosperity is again to them an insured inheritance.

But your nomination means more than the endorsement of a protective tariff, of reciprocity, of sound money and of honest finance—for all of which you have so steadfastly stood. It means an endorsement of your heroic youth; your fruitful years of arduous public service; your sterling patriotism; your stalwart Americanism; your Christian character, and the purity, fidelity and simplicity of your private life. In all these things you are the typical American; for all these things you are the chosen leader of the people. God give you strength to so bear the honors and meet the duties of that great office for which you are now nominated and to which you will be elected, that your administration will enhance the dignity and power and glory of this Republic and secure the safety, welfare and happiness of its liberty-loving people.

PLEASUED WITH THE PLATFORM.

Senator Thurston was frequently interrupted with cheers. At 12:20 Governor McKinley arose to respond, and the cheering was renewed. He acknowledged the honor the convention had bestowed upon him and asked the generous support of the people to enable him to bear the responsibilities of the position. He spoke of the issues of the coming campaign, and declared the Republicans would win. Governor McKinley said the platform of the St. Louis convention met his unqualified approval. He said its clear and emphatic declaration of principles was a source of much gratification to him.

When the applause after Governor McKinley's response to Senator Thurston's address had subsided, Harry B. Smith, for many years clerk in the national house of representatives at Washington and parliamentary secretary of the four last Republican national conventions, said:

The various gavelts presented to the St. Louis convention I need not enumerate. The one presented to it for the nominee of the convention for president, which I now hold in my hand, possesses a far greater history of interest than any of the gavelts presented at previous conventions. This gavel was presented by W. H. Bartells of Carthage, Ill., and was made from a log taken from the cabin occupied by Abraham Lincoln in 1832, at New Salem, Ill. On one end head of the gavel is inscribed on a silver plate the name of the donor and the MARQUETTE, MICH., JUNE 30. Entered as mailmatter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

A WEEK from today the gold and silver factions in the Democratic party will come together, but not in a peaceful way, in the Chicago convention. They will enter the convention by the same door, but who can tell how they will make their exit?

THE man who first mentioned McKinley as a presidential possibility and the author of the gold plank in the St. Louis platform are not yet located positively. Platt sought to walk off with the distinction attaching to authorship of the plank mentioned, but Hanna cried "stop thief" with vigor and promptitude, and the question of where the credit for formulating it and forcing its adoption really belongs is still a matter of doubt.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW is going to Europe to refresh himself by a course of hobnobbing with his princes and nobles after his arduous exertions to fasten the gold standard on the people of this country. He ought to be royally entertained by the nabobs across the water when he visits them, for he has rendered them valuable service in aiding to commit one of the great political parties of this country to the monetary system that works very much to their advantage.

It is significant that although Sam Stephenson first announced his intention to seek a fifth term in congress in a letter addressed to a Manistique gentleman, and which was first published in a Manistique paper, Schoolcraft county has no further use for Sam as a candidate, and will send a delegation pledged to his "Soo" competitor to the congressional convention. Luce county has also gone back on Sam, in spite of the friendship for him of the party organ in that county, the Newberry News. These are "straws" of some significance.

ALL the orthodox g. o. p. organs are brimming with advice to Republicans who don't like the gold standard plank of the St. Louis platform. They are quite sure that the financial plank ought to satisfy "honest bimetalists," for doesn't it pledge the party to adopt free coinage as soon as England consents to it? This is only their "chaff," to be sure, but they seem to think that the voters whom they are endeavoring to keep in line will be caught by it. Some of them may be, but others won't. The silverites in all the parties are terribly "sot" in their ways this year.

WHILE taking his summer outing the German emperor will make a study of the monetary question, on which he is in considerable doubt. If a number of the public men in this country would emulate his ambition, and post themselves on that question, it would be putting their leisure to a good use, for they certainly stand in great need of information on the financial problem. Emperor William sees that the movement for restoration of silver coinage is steadily gaining ground, and it is much to his credit that he seeks to inform himself as to its merits by a course of study of what the best authorities have to say on the subject of finance and the laws governing it.

TAKING the completion of his twenty-fifth year of service in that capacity as its next, the Boston Herald pays President Angell of the state university a very handsome compliment. During the quarter of a century covering his connection with that now famous institution of learning it has grown, that paper says, from one conducted by a small number of educators to one employing a faculty of nearly two hundred members, and "has made its influence felt as one of the great institutions of the country." President Angell is now in his sixty-eighth year, and may justly look with pride on the remarkable growth and high rank of the university which owes so much to his talent and energy as an educator. The state university is an institution which does much credit to Michigan, in addition to furnishing so large a number of its young men and women with all the advantages of an academic education of the highest grade.

HON. WM. C. WHITNEY's interview on the probable result of the Chicago convention and its effect on the Democratic party, given to the press Saturday, was doubtless designed to serve notice on the silver Democrats that if they use their power in the convention to adopt a platform in accordance with their views the eastern Democrats will bolt. The threat is veiled, but it is there none the less. Mr. Whitney is a man of high standing, both as a citizen and as a Democratic leader, but his desperate attempt to influence the action of the silver majority in the Democratic national convention will fail of its purpose. The fact is, the believers in silver coinage in all the parties are ready, if not anxious, to sever the political ties by which they have been bound hitherto, since the leadership of the older political parties appears to be entirely in the hands of men committed to the gold standard, and desire to enroll themselves in a party that can be trusted to enact remedial financial laws should it obtain power. The silver Democrats expect the gold standard voters of the party to bolt if the Chicago convention declares for free coinage of the white metal, hence the threat conveyed in the Whitney interview does not disturb them in the least.

OUTLOOK FOR LAKE FREIGHTS. The Marine Review of Cleveland finds the prospect for lake carriers discouraging. Discussing the outlook for the balance of the season, the Review says: Ore rates have declined to a basis of 75 cents from the head of Lake Superior and the condition of docks is probably as crowded as it has ever been at this time of year. It has been evident for some time past that a very heavy grain movement would be needed to maintain rates, and now that the demand for vessels to move grain has fallen off almost entirely the depressed condition of the iron industry is showing itself plainly in the lake freight market. It is quite certain that not more than 6,000,000 tons of iron ore of all kinds, Bessemer and non-Bessemer, has been sold up to this time, and this includes the ores of furnace companies that consume the product of mines which they control. This statement in itself is enough to account for the falling off in freights.

These companies show no disposition, however, to reduce prices, as it is admitted on all hands that such a course would do no good. It is really surprising that the lake freight market has been upheld thus far, in view of the depression in iron and in other lines of trade. Of course the iron and steel that is now being sold at very low prices has not been made from high priced ore and coke, and a change in the situation with renewed buying of raw materials must come later on, but how soon one can tell. There is, therefore, nothing to cause an early change for the better in lake freights. In fact the outlook is very discouraging, unless a renewal of grain shipments occurs shortly.

THE BESSEMER STEEL POOL. When the Bessemer steel pool was organized there was a good deal of doubt as to the possibility of rendering it effective for the purpose its organizers had in view, and it was freely predicted that the combination would soon go to pieces. But it seems to be holding together all right, according to the American Manufacturer, which makes this statement concerning it: Notwithstanding the many dire predictions, the pool has stood so far, and the truth is that it now seems to be firmly established. All along the brokers have had steel to sell, yet on a depressed market the price did not go below the rate fixed by the pool. In a short time, however, the pool will be called upon to show that it can do what it proposed. The stocks held by the brokers are about run out and they now have little more to offer. Consequently the steel makers will now take control. They will supply the demand from now on without the assistance of the brokers. If the present rate can be sustained under such circumstances the pool must be a decided success. Pool members are just as positive now as they were at the start that the compact will stand. They are firm in the belief that the rate can be sustained, and there is every reason to believe that it will be. If the pool continues effective it will be a good thing for the entire trade and will show that such arrangements can restrain undue cutting in prices and the reckless competition which seizes business at any cost.

There is a popular prejudice against pools of all kinds, but cases frequently arise which call for some understanding between producers to prevent reckless competition from affecting them ruinously. It is well known that in the steel industry the productive capacity has far outrun the market requirements, and regulation of some kind was an absolute necessity. That is all the pool has in view, as we understand its objects, and we fail to see wherein its aims are inconsistent with sound public policy, or contemplate an invasion of the rights of consumers.

Electric Bitters. Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison, Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at E. THE LAST OF THE TEN. BY BOHEMIAN. The old granny sat on the door step spinning; the mother and daughter were down at the river washing; little Paola was in the field watching the single peacock, all that remained of the gallant and strutting ten that had once been his especial charge. The grand-ma's heart was sad, for it was eight years since her son had been outlawed and had gone to hide in the mountains that overlooked the blue Mediterranean. The mother was pensive because she knew not when she would hear the cry: "He is taken! he is taken." The little daughter was sorrowful because she had to kneel there by the river on Christmas, for they were too poor to remain idle even on a holiday. Paola was discontented; his beautiful flock of proud peacocks had been stolen; only one had been left by the brigands when they made their last descent from the mountains. Their goat, too, had disappeared. In the solitude of the lovely sea the lad reclined in the sunshine with his one peacock ambling haughtily around him like some princely dame with a profound disbelief in the saying about fine feathers. How grand she was, this splendid creature, with her feathers like rainbows in color and her tread that of an overconscious queen! The boy bent in adoration before her. "How splendid you are!" he said.

Yes; it was true. Little Paola adored this, the last of his pets. The loss of the others had made it more dear to him. They had once had two or three goats and he had a little but all to himself overlooking the sea. Here he slept in storm and sunshine. A peacock may seem an odd sort of pet, but it is none the less true that a species of devotion existed between the disdainful bird and the peasant lad. The latter was the admirer; the former looked upon him with superior condescension. When it rained the boy took the last of the flock to his hut, where there was barely room for both of them within. The lad, it should be said, had once been devoted to a little, lazy, unfortunate donkey, but it was nothing compared to this affection. A donkey, he told himself, was well enough in its way, with its red tassels and bright harness, but it was not to be mentioned in the same category with this gorgeous and overwhelming creature whose attire was so bright and glowing that no princess in the world would compare with it. He guarded it as the apple of his eye, and granny said he had rather live with his gay and disdainful friend than with them, which probably was true. Granny was a very discerning old lady, but she was a mournful companion, for she often rocked to and fro and lamented their hard lot. Such bewailings were not cheering, and Paola preferred the mountain side, the shade of the olive trees, the beach running down to the caressing sea, the blue sky that changed at sunset and—above all—the last of the ten.

But on that day when granny sat spinning and the mother and daughter were washing, a misfortune befell Paola. A priest who passed him called out: "Paola, are you not coming to church?" "I cannot," was the reply. "It would run away." "It" was the last of the flock. "I wonder why peacocks don't go to church?" thought the lad. "Such magnificent beings must have a soul, if I have, who am ugly, ragged, dirty and—sland—hungry."

This problem occupied his attention for some time and he glanced with commiseration at his gorgeous companion whose feathers just then had assumed their most imposing appearance. It was a new aspect of their relationship. Heretofore he had been the humble one, mutely adoring; now a sense of superiority swept over him and he heftily surveyed his feathered friend. But the latter was as disdainful as ever. It seemed a hardened danager who cared not whether or no it flaunted its gaudy feathers through the golden gates. "Don't pity me; I'll have a good time while I'm here," it seemed to say. "Just watch me strut around and admire myself." And the boy grieved greatly. But its exultation was of brief endurance. A shadow fell upon them and a harsh voice was heard: "Hello, boy!"

The lad looked up and saw a fierce bewhiskered man whose aspect would have terrified almost anyone. "How do you do, sir," said Paola, politely. "You're a brigand, aren't you?" "You've guessed it. Now don't cry out, youngster. If you do, I'll bring your neck. Besides, it would do you no good for this is a lone spot." "What do you want?"

For answer the man seized the peacock, killed it and strode off with it, leaving the lad weeping as if his heart would break. He was alone in the world, for after all his home was no home, and he preferred the house of rushes to the tiny, stuffy house of stone, where grandam was always grumbling. Sadly the sea moaned at his feet. It seemed to say: "You have lost your last friend, little boy; first they took your donkey, then your goat and now the last of your beautiful pets." The little lad knows how the heart of a lad may be bound up in a pet. When he grows up a stronger passion may consume him, but not truer or sweeter than this devotion for a dumb creature. It is, often, the ideal Platonic devotion. He shields and protects; he is a father before he is a man; a grand protector. His heart is unselfish; the wants of the other are sometimes more than his wants. He is a veritable Hindoo in his regard for some animal and, like the Brahmin, he is kind, gentle and lovable. When he had wept until he could weep no more Paola arose sorrowfully and because his hut was now distasteful to him made his way toward their home. The sun was sinking; the sky had taken a pensive dove color. Afar was a distant sail or two and Paola wished he were aboard one of those boats so distant. The rested motionless on the bosom of the sea. The boy's heart arose in rebellion. "I would like to be a Corsair; to rob and steal; others rob me; they take all I have; I will be a Corsair when I grow up. No; not a brigand, for I hate brigands; they rob children. I would take great vessels and be a grand corsair and I would never steal from women and children." When he reached the house he heard a sound of merriment within and he hesitated to enter. Finally he summoned up courage and passed through the door. Then he stood still in surprise.

Around the table was a gay party. Grandam had donned her finest gilded bonnet which she had worn in her girlhood; the mother was dressed in her best and his little sister was seated in a high chair with her hair all braided. The table was set and there was a stranger at the board. Paola gave a great cry when he recognized in him the brigand who had robbed him and would have fled through the door. But grandam seized him by the arm, holding him.

"Where are you going, little fool?" she asked. "Are you afraid of your father?" "My father; he's a brigand! He robbed me! He stole from me! He is a thief!" "Hush!" said grandam, sternly, shaking his arm; "it is your father."

The man at the table turned boisterously to the boy: "So it's you, my lad. I did not know you. Curse the laws of a land that separate a father from his son! He meets him and does not recognize his own offspring. So that was your bird I took. Well, well; I but robbed my own, after all, then. Behold it, all stuffed and roasted. I had determined to take dinner this day with my family, in spite of the hounds that are after me. It's six years now since I've seen you all; eh, grandam?" "Six years," croaked the old lady, "six long years since you were an honest man."

"Yes, six years that I've lived in a hole like a fox. But they haven't taken me yet. At any rate, we have a royal feast now. Peacocks were only for kings and barons in the old days. It is cheering to be seated at my own board once more. Come and embrace me, my Paola."

The boy looked at the table. The sight there caused his heart to harden and his mind became filled with bitterness. His grief was greater than that of the Italian noble who sacrificed his splendid falcon when he asked his lady to dine with him. "I won't come near you," said the boy, sturdily. "Eh? Why not?" asked the other in surprise.

"You are a thief; you are not my father," he replied, clenching his hands. "This is a nice welcome, grandam," roared the brigand, laughing heartily. "I had no father. I loved but one thing; you stole that; you killed it; you are a wicked man. I tell you so and you can kill me, if you like."

"The boy speaks truly," said a calm voice. The brigand sprang up in alarm and was confronted by the priest who had spoken to the boy earlier in the day. A stately, majestic man, beloved, venerated, almost feared because of those glittering eyes that seemed to pierce the soul!

"Who are you?" cried the brigand, confronting the intruder fiercely. "You know me—a priest," was the cold response in a voice that showed no fear, only tranquil authority. "It was I who married you; I who christened your children. And now I say your child has spoken well. Words of wisdom often fall from the lips of children. For years you have lived like a beast, an animal. You have now even robbed your own. For shame! Coward!"

"I did not know it, you meddlesome fellow!" retorted the brigand, almost mad with rage. "The crime was none the less. I could give you up and your life would answer for your misgivings. Perhaps I should do so."

"You will not do that! I—" threateningly. "I give you your choice," was the stern interruption; to meet your desires now or to live a new life. Listen: in the harbor is a large sailing boat; it goes to Spain to-night; from Spain you can sail to America. I will give you the funds. Once in that land, redeem the past and when you have done so send for your family. I will recommend you to the captain of the sailing vessel. Will you do this, miserable fellow, or do you prefer living in the mountains?"

The man fell on his knees; he could not resist the glittering eyes; such merciful words he had never heard before. He put his hands over his eyes. "Absolve me, father," he sobbed.

The priest lifted his ivory crucifix impressively. "Your sins are many. Not I, but Christ can forgive them. Go!"

The brigand turned to obey. "Father," cried Paola, springing forward. The embrace withheld was given and the father disappeared. In his joy Paola forgot the sacrifice of his pet.

It is many years since these events transpired and it only remains to be told what the priest said to me not long ago: "I do not regret having given the man a chance. He has become an honest citizen. He has a farm in one of the western states in America and his family are with him. I think I performed a greater service for society than if I had turned him over to the authorities." Whether the end justified this conclusion is a matter upon which people may differ.—Detroit Free Press.

SEEMS sometimes as if the world were all wrong. Seems as if all the things we like disagree with us, and all the things we don't like, agree with us. Dyspepsia lurks in most of the good things we eat and indigestion follows the gratification of appetite. Of course, it isn't Nature's fault. Nature does the best she can, and if a man will only help her a little bit at the right time, he may eat what he likes and as much as he likes. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for people who are troubled with indigestion. Particularly for those in whom it manifests itself in the form of constipation. The "Pellets" are quick and easy in their action. They are in perfect harmony with Nature. They effect a permanent cure. You need take them regularly only a little while. After that, use them occasionally when you need them—when you have eaten something that disagrees with you. They are not violent in their effect, do not derange the system at all, and may be taken as freely as you would take water or any other necessity of life. Once used they are always in favor. You can get the "Pellets" at any drug store. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well.

A GREAT BOOK—ABSOLUTELY—GIVEN AWAY! Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is a book of 1008 large pages and contains over 300 illustrations—some of them in colors. It is a complete family doctor book. It is written simply and concisely, and is indexed so that reference to it is made easily and quickly. Over 680,000 copies have been sold at the regular price of $1.50. The profits on this enormous sale enable the publishers to distribute 100,000 copies absolutely FREE. A copy bound in strong paper covers, will therefore be sent FREE to any one who will send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only.

MEXICO'S GIANT FIREFLIES.

As Big as Chinese Lanterns, and Sometimes They Explode Like Bombs. Mr. Milo F. Dillman, of Denver, on his way home from southern Mexico recently said:

"I have been in Mexico a great many times, but the trip I have just completed convinces me that many wonderful and beautiful things in that republic are not known by Americans, and, indeed, by few Mexicans.

"The country from the beautiful city of Morelia to the Pacific coast, is a paradise land. Before reaching the coast we passed through every clime and vegetation. The mountains and forests are filled with eagles, parrots, toucans, humming birds, of which there are 50 different varieties in Mexico, enormous tigers, lions, bears, panthers, wildcats, monkeys, etc.

"In this torrid country are the giant fireflies (Lampyridae gigantes), resembling very little our common fireflies. The part of these giant flies in which the light glows is ordinarily the size of a baseball, but when angered or excited the part enlarges to the size of a toy balloon.

"Our party of six worked two days chopping a little way into the wood, and there we waited for the coming of night. I shall never forget the first sight I had of the giant Lampyridae. A pair of them flew directly above us—two fiery globes that glowed in the darkness like suns adrift.

No Hopes of Finding Entombed Miners in Twin Shaft Alive.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 29.—It is almost a settled fact tonight that of the small army of men which entered the ill-fated Twin shaft at Pittston, Saturday night, no one survives.

Both the Lackawanna and Susquehanna rivers run in close proximity to the shaft. From the surface to the point where the rock begins there was at least a river wash to a depth of four feet.

There appears to be but little, if any doubt, that the wage scales for tin plate will also be satisfactorily settled.

THURSTON ADDRESSES THE CROWD.

In reply to a call from the thousands of people assembled, Mr. Thurston appeared and said:

Four years ago the Democratic party said to the American people, "Give us free trade and the prosperity of this country will increase."

"Give us free trade and new industries and factories will open." But they closed.

"Give us free trade and there will be increased employment for Americans." But there was increased idleness instead.

"Give us free trade and wages will rise." But they failed to rise.

"Give us free trade and business will be booming." But it bustled.

Today in the light of their past experience it is absolutely necessary to abandon their old position, and they now say:

"Give us free silver and all these glorious results will follow." Don't you think that in the light of their past repudiation and bankruptcy, that you had better have a little collateral surety before you accept their new promise of American prosperity?

Mr. McKinley then introduced ex-Senator Frank Hiseock of New York, who said:

I come from the state of New York, representing that state as a member of the notification committee, to notify Governor McKinley of his nomination, and I say to you that he is as true to the hearts of the people of the state of New York as he is to yourselves.

I proclaim to you without fear of contradiction that he is as much approved by the Republicans of the state of New York and by their judgments and by one-half of the Democratic party of the state of New York as he is by you.

BIG MAJORITIES ARE PROMISED.

Senator Hiseock claimed that in proportion to population, as well as in fact, New York would give a larger majority for McKinley next fall than Ohio.

Chas. Townsend, the representative of Maine, replying to a call said:

I came from Maine, who had a favorite son that we thought this convention ought Lapping Boy Is Found Not Guilty of the Murder of Eva Lafreniere.

THE JURY OUT BUT TWENTY-FIVE MINUTES.

Attorney Flannigan's Closing Argument for the Defense a Masterly Effort and One That Greatly Strengthened His Case.

VERDICT CAME AS A SURPRISE.

MEMORINE, Mich., June 29.—The celebrated Wendel murder case was brought to a close at 5:50 this afternoon, at which time the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal after being out twenty-five minutes.

Attorney Flannigan, for the defense, and Colonel Atkinson, for the prosecution, were both heard today, the latter closing at 3:40.

In the course of his plea he made reference to a motive for the crime, intimating that the accused had first committed an assault and that the murder was committed to cover it up.

Mr. Flannigan, for the defense, objected to this, as the prosecution had not introduced any evidence tending to show that this had been the motive.

He was given ten minutes in which to answer the allegations, and did so, much to the detriment of the prosecution and greatly strengthening his case.

The verdict of the jury, however, was received with considerable surprise, as it was generally believed that the accused was guilty of the crime as charged.

The courtroom had been filled with ladies during the past three days of the trial and the interest generally has been unparalleled in the history of the circuit court of this county.

IS OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED.

above stated facts, while on the other on a gold plate appear the words:

"National Republican convention, held at St. Louis, Mo., June 16, 1896, nominating William McKinley for president."

This gavel stands as an emblem and type of sturdy Americanism, and American homes and industries. It gave me the profound pleasure to discharge my duty in handing you this gavel, and to say that I express the opinion of not alone the great mass of members of the Republican party, but many thousands of independent Democrats who stand for honest money, that in November next the work of the convention which nominated you will be crowned by a majority never received but by one other nominee of the Republican party; and that following in the path of the martyred Lincoln, whose memory is represented by this gavel, you, like him, will discharge the duties of the great office to which you will surely be elected in November next with unselfish patriotism and unswerving fidelity to the Constitution and the principles of American liberty as only represented by the Republican party.

GRATEFUL THANKS FROM MCKINLEY.

As the applause subsided Major McKinley stepped forward and said:

I thank you for this beautiful gift, and for the courteous terms in which you conveyed the opinion of the convention. I am glad to have so valuable a souvenir of the great national Republican convention, and especially am I grateful for the remembrance on account of the historic association which memory is represented by this gavel, you, like him, will discharge the duties of the great office to which you will surely be elected in November next with unselfish patriotism and unswerving fidelity to the Constitution and the principles of American liberty as only represented by the Republican party.

Before the notification party could get seated for lunch a representative delegation from Columbus, who had come 125 miles, called 325 in number, Governor McKinley, in responding to the presentation speech by ex-Attorney General Watson, said in part:

I highly appreciate the call you have made upon me today. I thank you, Congressman Watson, for the gracious words you have spoken personally to myself. I do believe in my country; I believe in its vast possibilities and I believe it rests entirely with us what shall be the possibilities of the future for the government of the United States; and I am sure that the people of this country, from ocean to ocean, will stand by those principles and those policies which secure to the people of the United States the greatest prosperity and highest destiny.

Concluding, the governor said:

We have present with us, and it gives me the greatest pleasure to present to you, some of the notification committee from the national Republican convention. The gentlemen desire to present to you an illustrious citizen of Nebraska, United States Senator John M. Thurston.

THURSTON ADDRESSES THE CROWD.

In reply to a call from the thousands of people assembled, Mr. Thurston appeared and said:

Four years ago the Democratic party said to the American people, "Give us free trade and the prosperity of this country will increase."

"Give us free trade and new industries and factories will open." But they closed.

"Give us free trade and there will be increased employment for Americans." But there was increased idleness instead.

"Give us free trade and wages will rise." But they failed to rise.

"Give us free trade and business will be booming." But it bustled.

Today in the light of their past experience it is absolutely necessary to abandon their old position, and they now say:

"Give us free silver and all these glorious results will follow." Don't you think that in the light of their past repudiation and bankruptcy, that you had better have a little collateral surety before you accept their new promise of American prosperity?

Mr. McKinley then introduced ex-Senator Frank Hiseock of New York, who said:

I come from the state of New York, representing that state as a member of the notification committee, to notify Governor McKinley of his nomination, and I say to you that he is as true to the hearts of the people of the state of New York as he is to yourselves.

I proclaim to you without fear of contradiction that he is as much approved by the Republicans of the state of New York and by their judgments and by one-half of the Democratic party of the state of New York as he is by you.

BIG MAJORITIES ARE PROMISED.

Senator Hiseock claimed that in proportion to population, as well as in fact, New York would give a larger majority for McKinley next fall than Ohio.

Chas. Townsend, the representative of Maine, replying to a call said:

I came from Maine, who had a favorite son that we thought this convention ought

Working for the Fourth.

It takes lots of hustling to get up a first class Fourth of July celebration but Marquette has a committee that is equal to the occasion and the blow out here will simply extinguish every other candle in the peninsula. The parade will be a corker. More than a dozen societies have agreed to turn out, and besides these there will be bands and floats and the circus parade in connection. The arrangements committee has gone to great expense and secured the Duluth Union band, as fine an organization of its class as there is in the north. This, with the Marquette and circus bands, will make "music in the air" all day long. The copper country is blowing about its balloon race, but Marquette will have a race that will really be a race and not a bluff. At Houghton the "rival" balloonists belong to the same outfit, but at Marquette the racers are fierce business rivals and each will do his utmost to win. The fame of Professor William McEwen, hired by the arrangements committee, is only equalled by that of Chet Baldwin, the aeronaut of the circus, who has a national reputation as one of the most daring in his dangerous profession. Chet is a cousin of the famous Tom Baldwin, who originated the parachute jump. The bicycle committee has secured the store in the Nester block for the storage of wheels, and everything will be done for the convenience of visiting and local wheelmen.

Cinder Path for Cyclers.

At the meeting of the Kitchimikana club last night it was decided to go ahead and build a cinder path for bicycles between the fair grounds and Presque Isle. Three routes were discussed. One runs along the side of the lake, the other by the street car track and the third is by way of the Powder mills. The first is the best and most expensive, but at the rate money is now being donated it is the one most likely to be built. In either case the path will be six feet wide. The committee having its construction in hand is: John Mitchell, H. J. Payne, A. B. Bennett, E. B. Palmer, A. O. Jopling and Clarence Coleman.

Salisbury's Orchestra.

Music lovers in Marquette, and for that matter all the principal places of the upper peninsula, are to be awarded a rare treat this summer. Salisbury's orchestra said by the management, and supported by a hundred press notices, to be the finest organization of its class on the road will make its summer headquarters in Marquette at the Hotel Superior. The engagement, however, permits it to make local dates and to do a limited amount of playing in other cities of the peninsula. The troupe is under the direction of Len Salisbury and is made up of performers from Theodore Thomas' orchestra and the leading theaters of Chicago. Including Miss Abby Rose Wood, soprano soloist, it numbers twelve. Each member is a professional musician of the first order. The local season will be opened Friday night, when, under the engagement of the Masons, the orchestra will give a concert during the early part of the evening and later a dancing reception. Both concert and dance will be given in Masonic Hall.

MIDLAKE AND HARBOR GOSSIP. The schooner Theodore S. Fassett is lying at Pickands dock with a cargo of coal. The Peerless was up Sunday and the Japan up Monday night. Both had average passenger and freight lists.

The J. B. Ketchum has arrived from Cleveland and will take on her regular load of lumber for the Cleveland Sawmill Co.

The old schooner Manitow has been loaded with lumber and is lying in the harbor waiting a favorable opportunity to slip down the lake. While the towing records made by the Sitka and Aurora have been very good, it is stated that there is not a steamer on the lakes that has made the record the steamer Pathfinder, towing the big barge Sagamore, has this season. She started out May 1 and will, before July 1, have completed eight round trips from the head of Lake Superior.

As a result of the completion of the Wisconsin Central railway branch line into Manitowoc, the Northern Grain Co. of Minnesota, has perfected arrangements with the Terminal Co. to erect an elevator of 500,000 bushels grain capacity, to be completed within six months. Negotiations are said to be in progress to secure the Vulcan fleet, consisting of the steamers Forest City and R. J. Hackett and barges H. H. Brown and William McGregor, as a connecting water link between Manitowoc and Buffalo.

The politicians of the country seem to be divided on the money question, but the people of Marquette are voting unanimously for Vandenberg's fresh milk and Jersey creamery butter, hence its rapidly increasing demand. (6-30-3d)

CITY BREVITIES.

Weather forecast: Fair and warmer today; variable winds. Yesterday's temperature: 7 a. m., 32 degrees; 12 m., 62 degrees; 7 p. m., 58 degrees; maximum, 63 degrees; minimum, 45 degrees. Elmer E. Horner was in the city yesterday from Munising. George P. Brown made a short business trip to Ishpeming yesterday. Ex-Mayor Ed Anthony of Negaunee was in Marquette on business Monday. A strawberry social will be given Wednesday evening by the girls of St. Margaret's guild. E. G. Kingsford of Iron Mountain is in Marquette on business matters which require his attention. The funeral of Mary Vauchesteing was held Monday afternoon from the French Catholic church. The "ghost" will walk at the band meeting tonight, and consequently a full attendance is desired. Two vags and a drunk among the Sunday captures of the police were given hours to leave town. A. O. U. W. members held a special meeting last night to make further preparations for the big reunion. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Spear, who have been visiting in Marquette, have returned to their home in Houghton. Young ladies of the Presbyterian church announce an ice cream social Friday evening on the church lawn. Miss Della McBraie of East Chicago, Ind., arrived on the Peerless Sunday. She is the guest of Mrs. D. C. Forbes of Front street. A sure harbinger of the approach of the Fourth is the number of merchants who are trimming their windows in patriotic bunting. A call is made for a special meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America tonight in Fraternity hall. Important business is to be transacted. Professor V. E. David has given up his position as manager of the Postal telegraph office at this place and will go back to the musical profession. Conductor Staiger of the Northwestern was in town last evening and took supper with his friend Howard Hildebrand, of the Hotel Marquette. Grabrow has received a line of ladies' linen fronts and collars and cuffs, something quite new and much worn in the cities at the present time. H. J. Lobdell, the village clerk of Munising, spent a few hours in Marquette among his old friends yesterday. He returned on the afternoon train. A new sidewalk is being put down on Washington street between LaRochelle's and the corner. The one it replaces was so badly worn as to be dangerous. Oshinsky advertises some red hot bargains in this morning's issue. He is giving his patrons the benefit of the great bargains he made on his recent purchasing trip. The road roller began work on Washington street early Monday morning, getting the street in shape for the bicycle races on the Fourth. All the bad holes were filled with fine stone and rolled down. Several hundred ladies, the management of the local base ball team says, attended the Boston Bloomer game in Ishpeming yesterday and found nothing to offend their taste, but seemed to enjoy the fun immensely. Elmer Young has opened a bicycle livery at the corner of Third and Ridge. He will have a ten wheel outfit. Nine of them were purchased of the Marquette Hardware company yesterday, and the tenth, a tandem, has been ordered from away. William Andrews, mayor of Ishpeming, was yesterday appointed administrator of the estate of James Rowe. Mr. Andrews was required to give a $1,000 bond. In the estate of Andrew Aho of Ishpeming Judge Clifton appointed Adam Kangas administrator under a $1,000 bond. Tickets are out for the firemen's dance to be given Friday evening. As the purpose of the dance is to get money to send the team off to the tournament the boys hope the public will be liberal in its patronage. They want everyone to come and have a good time and help them in a financial way by doing so.

LETTER FROM ARMENIA.

Miss Clara Barton Writes from Armenia to Rev. T. Cory-Thomas. Perhaps the most reliable and interesting of letters was received yesterday in the city by the Rev. T. Cory-Thomas, rector of Grace Episcopal church, who is just about to again visit Europe for the summer.

It is only just known that the worthy rector of Grace church some two months since offered his services to Miss Barton in Armenia for six months of offering to be no expense to the Red Cross association while doing service in the relief work among the suffering ones.

The following letter will explain itself, and although private, when asked about it, Mr. Cory-Thomas thought it would possibly do more good than harm to publish it:

5 RUE MEZERLAK, CONSTANTINOPLE (June 14, 1896) Rev. T. Cory-Thomas, Rector Grace Church, Ishpeming, Mich., U. S. A. My dear Sir: Your letter, which was forwarded to me by one of my secretaries in New York, and although I understand your letter has been answered, I feel I would like to write you in answer, at the same time, to your kind letter to me personally received on my arrival here in Constantinople a few days since.

We have left most of the daily feeding of the people to the heroic missionaries, the consuls and local relief committees, all of whom are in the most splendidly organized and are doing efficient work, especially the missionaries who have done much wonderful work, handicapped as they have been in every way.

It is built similar to the scenery used in the metropolitan theatres. Included in the list are set waters, set rocks, set houses, fancy tormentors, draperies, rustics, grass plots, baize, and in fact everything necessary to fit out almost any kind of setting desired.

Alumni Officers. At a special meeting of the Ishpeming Alumni association held Saturday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Ursula Ropes, class of 1890; vice president, Miss Salome Dyson, class of 1893; secretary, Douglass Anderson, class of 1896; treasurer, Miss Emma Nankervis, class of 1893; executive committee, Sarah Wright, 1890; Ella Martyn, 1884; Rhoda Grabowsky, 1893; Lyla Wadsworth, 1894; Anna Lacey, 1889; Anna Haslam, 1896; John Graham, 1896, and George Sheldon, 1896.

The association has now a membership of about sixty-five, the majority of whom are still in the city. Its financial condition is better than any previous time in its history.

"Little Trixie" on the Fourth. The play that goes by the above caption is a sparkling musical comedy that has met with success wherever it has been given. Praises of its entertaining features are sounded everywhere.

The management has decided to not begin the performance Saturday evening until 9:30 o'clock, by which time the display of fireworks will be over. The prices will be twenty-five, thirty-five and fifty cents, the latter for reserved seats. Tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow morning at Sinclair's drug store.

ISHPERING IN BRIEF. Manager Baker of the Bell Telephone company was up from Marquette yesterday.

Cliffin & Field arrived in the city yesterday with a number of fine driving and road horses.

F. M. Sackmeister came up from Sault Ste. Marie Sunday to spend a day with his Ishpeming friends.

Thomas, manager of the Michigan division of the Chicago & Northwestern line, arrived yesterday in Ishpeming.

The changes being made at the main entrance of the Union House improve the appearance of the place not a little.

The improvements being made on the main entrance of the Union House will be completed with the exception of the dressing of the gravel, before the Fourth.

Professor Morrison arrived in the city yesterday. He will spend a week or so here, and will occasionally lecture to his friends with his slight-of-hand tricks.

The regular meetings of the Knights and Ladies of Security will be held Tuesday evening, instead of Thursday evening, as was at first intended. The first meeting will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Red Men's hall.

An X-ray exhibition was given yesterday morning at the Court hall. The attendance was large and all were amazed at the showing made of the power of the rays. The lecture given by one of the doctors was very interesting.

Mr. William Chesney Edwards of Philadelphia, Pa., will be in charge of Grace Episcopal church, this city, during the absence of the rector, the Rev. T. Cory-Thomas, in Europe. Mr. Edwards comes with very high recommendations from his bishop. He is a senior student in the General Theological Seminary at New York city.

Marvelous Results. From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersen of Grand Rapids, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at River Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last for hours with little intermission and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in its results. Trial bottles free at E. Farnham's Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

TWO BICYCLES GIVEN AWAY. L. W. Atkins & Co. will give away two more majestic bicycles, one on July 1st and the other Aug. 15. The chances on the wheel will be given away under the same conditions as the one given away recently and the drawing will be conducted in a similar manner. The bicycles are strictly high-grade and will be a credit to any wheelman. (5-24-96)

OLD-FASHIONED CAKE WALKS.

They Were a Never-Fading Amusement in the Days of Slavery.

Away back in the silken days of Dixie land, when cotton was king and slavery the colossal sin of the new world, cake walks occupied a peculiar place in the relations between master and slave. After the weary toils of a long day in the fields the negro forgot his wrongs and dreamed of liberty in practicing with his partner intricate steps for the sake walk that usually took place every Saturday night. The sensible planters encouraged this amusement, for such simple diversion often softened the stubborn spirits. But the grand cake walk, the one that aroused the most intense rivalry, and was looked forward to by the darkeys with the same feeling that children wait for Christmas, was the function that took place after "massa's" return from his annual trip north, where he went to sell his cotton and buy new machinery and implements for the coming season. The confection that graced the walks on Saturday nights was nothing more than a corn pone, enriched with a few eggs and butter. On this occasion the cake was a massive structure, covered with icing, so delectable that a look at it widened every slave's eyes and unlipied his shining teeth. The master and all the ladies of the household attended the contest that every participant had been preparing for in the months past.

To-day the cake walk is as omnipresent as in the 50's, and many a man who in the old days witnessed them with a heartache, knowing what was to follow so soon, now looks upon them with infinite amusement, and goes home contrasting the two different conditions that a law of progress has made. Nowhere has the cake walk been reproduced with such close fidelity and natural effect as in Nate Salisbury's "Black America." Not less interesting than the cake walk is the effect it has upon certain of the spectators. In Convention hall the other night, seated in one of the first rows, were three southern men, who passed service in the best and worst days of the gray cause. Near them was an old negro couple of the most pronounced "uncle" and "mammy" type. Time had aged their heads with a covering whiter than the cotton they picked in their youth. The southerners showed as much fervor as this humble pair in the programme rendered. When the magnificent chorus sang the old-time melodies the gentlemen kept time with their feet, and "uncle" and "mammy" nodded their heads in unison with the voices.

But the pinnacle of ecstasy was reached when the soprano of the aggregation, Bessie Lee, sang the "Suwanee River." As the sweet notes of that song sounded through the big hall, so silent with its great concourse of people, down the shining black cheeks of the old colored couple the tear drops splashed until their ebony faces looked like whitewashed ebony. Hardly less affected were the gentlemen. One of them leaned back in his seat and closed his eyes while he softly beat time on his knee with one hand.

What retrospect did he see behind those closed eyelids? Youth's golden hours, wealth, affluence, the turmoil of war, the sting of defeat, then peace, new fortunes and—then Bessie stopped singing, while the applause surged over the hall, led by the southerners and the old colored couple. Distant in environment as the two poles, yet brought together by the reminiscence music.—Washington Star.

THEY MARRIED FOR MONEY. French Count of Twenty-Three Wedded a Duchess of Seventy.

That European society is becoming callous and that its sentiments of delicacy and honor are becoming blunted is shown by its cynical indifference to unions between very old women and very young men. Such a case is that of Viscount de Sombreuil, who has just obtained possession of a third of the fortune left by his exceedingly mature wife, born a Princess de la Moskowa, and who figured at the court of the Tuileries as the Duchess de Persigny. She was in those days the wife of Napoleon's powerful minister of foreign affairs. When Viscount Sombreuil married her some years ago he was barely 23 years of age. His bride was over 70.

So great was the contrast between the fresh complexion and juvenile appearance of the bridegroom and the painted cheeks, dyed hairs and obese figure of the bride that when the bridal party left the church of St. Roch, Paris, they were hoisted and hissed by the crowd which had gathered around the porch.

London society shows no lack of respect for young Harry Milner, who at the age of 25 married the old duchess of Montrose, portrayed on the New York stage in a recent production. She, too, was over 75 years of age at the time of her third marriage and Mr. Milner stipulated before he consented to marry her that she should settle upon him for life an income of $15,000. The duchess yielded to this situation, but forgot to mention that her sole income was derived from the jointures which she received from the estates of her first two husbands, the duke of Montrose and Mr. Sterling Crawford. Consequently when she died these jointures lapsed and there was nothing left with which to pay Milner's annuity.

He immediately laid claim to her jewels, pictures, horses and personal effects. After prolonged and acrimonious negotiations with her son, the present duke of Montrose, a compromise was finally effected whereby Milner received a lump sum in final settlement of all his claim.—N. Y. World.

Mercantile Item. "How do you sell these peaches?" asked Gilhooly of a colored woman who had them for sale.

"Six for a dime, boss."

Letter from a Hancock Man.
HANCOCK, Mich., June 21, 1896.
Gem Treatment Co., Marquette:
GENTLEMEN—This is to certify that I, James Stephens, was troubled with piles for fifteen years and could not find any cure until I tried the Gem Treatment. After using three boxes I became a well man. I have no piles now. My age is fifty-two years. I work in the Quincy mine as a miner. Before I took the Gem Treatment I was not able to work one quarter of the time. I would like to have everyone who is troubled with piles to know what the Gem Treatment has done for me. It cost me three dollars and it did me more than five hundred dollars worth of good.
Yours Respectfully,
JAS. STEPHENS,

A BLOOMIN' BALL GAME.
And the Bloomers Won It, but Not by Strong Playin'.

The Boston Bloomers baseball team draw well, but when it comes down to real baseball playing the girls are not in it. The twirler, Maud Nelson, and two other members of the team put up a fine exhibition, considering their sex. Maud Nelson's work in the box is alone worth the price of admission. She handles herself like a professional pitcher—throws well, gives the catcher curve signs and can stop or catch a ball with either hand. Her base running was also a feature in yesterday's games. She made a decided hit in her sliding and coaching.

After testing the strength of the visitors in the first two innings of the contest yesterday morning the Negaunee boys began to throw the game to the Bloomers. The latter had a male catcher but the remainder of the team was made up of girls. The Negaunee players knocked out three or four home runs and could have made more had they desired to. The girls fielded the ball fairly well but they could not throw it any distance. There are only three or four in the team who can throw the sphere across the diamond. The girls stopped several ground hits and fielded the ball to the bases and they had one double play to their credit. The score at the end of the game was 28 to 18 in favor of the Bloomers.

The girls are thoroughly posted on the points of the game. The umpire allowed a Negaunee man to cross the plate on a block ball in the second inning. The girls immediately entered a protest and this was another instance of where the spectators got the worth of their money. A couple of the Bloomers appeared very much displeased at the umpire's decision and one of them made the young man blush by telling him that he was not on to his job. After this the umpire gave the girls the preference in all close decisions. One of the local players who struck out three times during the game would willingly have given his place to a substitute. He was given the laugh by the spectators every time he went to bat and he tried his best to hit the ball. The Bloomers had the good will of the spectators all through the game.

ELFRANDT SELLS OUT.
Will Return to Finland to Engage in the Drug Business.
Henry Elfrandt, who has conducted a drug business in Negaunee for nearly seven years past, has disposed of his interests to Verner Nikander of Red Jacket. The change will go into effect July 10, when Mr. Nikander will have closed out his business in the copper country. He has disposed of his stock there to John Climo, his clerk, and Dr. Mackenzie, who has been practicing in that region for some time past.

Mr. Elfrandt proposes returning to his native place in Finland, where he will engage in a similar line of business. The drug business is not conducted in Finland as it is here. Only a certain number of stores are allowed in each city or town. A druggist must have his second papers not less than ten years before he can engage in business on his own account. He must also make application to the government for the privilege and each application is taken up and acted on in turn. Mr. Elfrandt applied for an opening several years ago and but a short time since received notice that his turn had come. As soon as he closed the deal for the sale of his business here he notified the proper authorities in Finland that he would accept the call and that he expected to be there within two or three months. Mr. Elfrandt's many Negaunee friends will wish him success across the water. While he did a fine business here he expects to do much better in Finland.

Started to Explore.
Captain Samuel Mitchell, who a short time ago purchased the Rolling Mill property, has put a few men at work there. Some of the old pits in which ore was found some years ago will be sunk to a greater depth. A number of new pits will also be put down. It is Mr. Mitchell's intention to explore the property quite thoroughly before starting mining work. It is likely that the present force will be increased in the near future.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it becomes swollen, and imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

LAWYERS WHO FLEE FROM FATE.

Efforts to Avoid Cases with No Money in Them.
One of the amusing incidents to be seen in the courts of law is the race against time and fate run every day by the lawyers who practice in the court of special sessions. Since the justices began enforcing the rule that any lawyer in the courtroom may be pressed into the service of an undefended prisoner upon the declaration of the latter that he has no means to pay for counsel the legal lights have been somewhat overworked. It is necessary for them to be there if they have any case on the calendar, lest their cases should be called and they be found missing; and as long as they remain they are likely at any moment to be called to the unremunerative defense of some Italian ragpicker charged with violation of the corporation ordinances, or a bedraggled woman up for larceny from the person, or any other of the many prisoners charged with petty crimes.

To escape as much of this work as possible is the object of the lawyer's existence. No sooner does a lawyer finish the last of his regular cases for the day than he seizes his hat and coat and makes for the door. Regard for the dignity of the court deters him from too hurried a pace, while, on the other hand eagerness to get on the further side of the big door, where safety lies, impels him to make what haste he may. The result is a sneaking, wistful sort of progress that wakes a chord of sympathy in the breast of any man who has ever tried to "hook out" of the schoolhouse while the teacher was busy at the blackboard.

First the lawyer catches up his hat and coat, and with noiseless steps glides through the first gate as if expecting it to shut him in. Outside of that he increases his speed materially. Commonly he can't resist the temptation when half way to the door to look around and see if the presiding justice's eyes are on him. If they are he straightens up, assuming a dignified and stately walk; if not, he speeds forward and is at the very door when—
"Mr. Blank! One moment if you please."
The unfortunate fugitive gives one involuntary convulsive movement like a man struck with a bullet.
"Yes, your honor," he says meekly, turning around.
"You will kindly defend the prisoner at the bar, who is without counsel."
And the lawyer does it with what grace he can command. To one of the youngsters among the legal representatives belongs the honor of having escaped a call. An old hand had just concluded a case and was doing his prettiest to reach the door, with the young lawyer a yard or two behind making for the same goal. Just as the older man disappeared Justice Jerome called his name, but of course got no answer. The other had his hand on the door knob, when the justice called to him, intending that he should take the case.
"Mr. Jones, will you—" he began.
"Yes, your honor, I will," interrupted young Jones. "I'll call him back; he's just outside," and before the court could interfere he darted out the door.
"Joe, the judge wants you there in court," he said, catching up to his fellow lawyer, who, with a wry face, retraced his steps.
"Did you send for me, your honor?" he asked Justice Jerome, and court, lawyers and spectators caught on to the joke, and there was a great laugh.
"I did not, Mr. Smith," said the justice, "but now that you're here, will you kindly act as substitute in this case for your departed colleague, Mr. Jones."
Young Jones kept out of special sessions for the remainder of the week.—N. Y. Sun.

HEROINE WHO HAD MANY BELTS.
Her Waist Gear Saved Her in a Moment of Extremity.
Like a hunted deer, as the hero appropriately remarked in the following act, the leading lady crouched in the corner of her room. Without the door, but in plain view of the audience, stood the villain smoking a five-cent cigar and achieving a smile of evil satisfaction.
"I have her now," he muttered, in a low tone.
At the sound of his voice the leading lady half sprang to her feet.
"I am on the fourth floor," she cried, "and the bed clothes are in the wash."
Clearly it was out of the question for her to escape in the usual way. Suddenly her face brightened. She opened a bureau drawer, and for a moment she busied herself with its contents. With trembling hands she buckled together her green leather harness belt, her Persian belt, her silk belt, her real silver belt, her imitation gold belt, her link girdle, her blue leather belt, her red leather belt, her last year's tan-colored belt, and a number of others. Hurriedly she fastened one end of the improvised rope to the hook prepared for it by the stage carpenter, and just as the villain finished his cigar and bethought himself of opening the door, she lowered herself from the window, amid the wild cheers of the gallery gods.—Chicago Tribune.

EGG GEMS.
Chop together equal quantities of stale bread and fragments of cold meat or fish, season with pepper, salt and a very little minced onion, moisten with cream or milk and a little butter. Grease gem pans very thoroughly, fill two-thirds full with the mixture, break an egg on each, sprinkle with bread or cracker crumbs, and bake ten minutes.—Albany Journal.
—Jerusalem has been partly or wholly burned 17 times, each great conflagration being kindled when the city was taken by a besieging force.

TIRED MOTHERS find help in Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives them pure blood, a good appetite and new and needed STRENGTH.
A Word or Two to those suffering from catarrh or the thousands subject to severe attacks of cold in the head, will not be amiss if a sure remedy can be offered. Ely's Cream Balm has become a favorite in all sections of the United States because of its effectiveness. Your cold in the head will be quickly relieved by it, and the severest attack of catarrh will yield to, and be perfectly relieved by a thorough treatment. Catarrh is not a blood disease, but an inflammation of the passages of the nose and throat, due to climatic changes.
If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents, that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before a medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of the remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by the Stafford Drug Co.

EGG AS A MATRIMONIAL MEDIUM
The Favored Boarder Got What He Wanted and Also a Line from Etta Forler.
A bashful young man, but with good looking, asked his landlady at breakfast one morning to boil him a couple of eggs.
"With pleasure," she said, happy to serve her boarder an extra dish, for he always paid his bills promptly. This morning was not an egg morning.
"Thank you," he answered, simply. He blushed even more than usual. The other boarders looked on, with nervous faces.
"Ha," called out a man bitten with envy as the eggs were brought in. "James' eggs are billet-doux."
James gazed at one of the eggs. He read these words penciled on the shell: "I want a nice young man for a sweetheart. Please write to me at Sacramento, Ky. Etta Forler, Asst. P. Mrs."
"I'll confine myself to the regular bill of fare hereafter," James mumbled to himself as he left the table.
The less favored ones laughed aloud.—N. Y. Sun.

For Summer Wear.
White toilets will be the rage all summer. They will be in high vogue both for informal and for the most elaborate dress occasions, ceremonious dinners, fetes, receptions, weddings and the like. Light-weight and heavy-weight satins, frou-froush taffeta silks, soft clinging Chinas, surahs and Indias, grenadines, etamines, organdies and a host of semi-transparent white wools will all be in great use, the models from over the sea formed of this hueless hue being most chaste and exquisite in effect. The white chiffon mousseline de soie and lace toilets made up over soft accordeon-plaited India silks are the most fascinating of all the white toilets yet prepared, and the lace and chiffon gowns made up over crisp white watered silk give the skirts a more distended appearance on the lower portion, and are very elegant and lovely, the moire showing through the transparent textiles with charming effect.—N. Y. Post.

Names of School Pupils Who Have Been Neither Absent Nor Tardy.

CANADA'S NEW PREMIER HAS TWO BROTHERS HERE.

Exciting Runaway on Business Streets. Huckleberry Crop Will Be Good. Baseball Girls in Bloomers. High School Festivity.

THEY HAVE BEEN FAITHFUL.

Success has crowned the efforts of the superintendent and faculty of the public schools in a marked degree during the last year. Excellent progress was made in all grades, and the High school graduated the largest class ever known in its history.

The total enrollment of the public schools for the year just past was 1858. Of these 150 were enrolled in the High school; twenty graduated making room for an even larger class of seniors to be, while there were 36 promoted from the eighth grade to take the places of the freshmen.

Good attendance has been a signal virtue in the schools during the year. Members of the High school who were neither absent nor tardy during this length of time are:

Brothers of the Premier.

Wilfrid Laurier, the new liberal premier who captured Canada by such handsome majorities in the last election, has two brothers who are residents of Marquette. One of these is Charles Laurier the cigar dealer, and the other is Dr. Laurier, now in California for his health.

Charles Laurier takes a keen delight in the success of his now famous brother Wilfrid. He said to a MINING JOURNAL reporter:

"It would have been a great disappointment to me if Wilfrid had not secured the election this time. I had a telegram from him the day after election but have received no letters from him since. We are in regular correspondence, but I have not seen him since I was in Canada the last time, six years ago."

Mr. Laurier was shown a paper containing a sketch of the life of his brother. "His age is given right," he said. "He was born the 20th of November 1841. He is eighteen years older than I am. His birthplace though I see is not given correctly. He was born in St. Lin, in Quebec, not Linn, as it says here."

"This incident that tells about his running away from school to listen to speeches in the courthouse is true. I was only a small boy when he went to school but I remember of hearing my father tell about it over and over again."

Mr. Laurier produced for the inspection of the reporter a paper sent him by a brother in Canada, and showing a large illustration of the dominion's first French premier. The picture shows a fine looking intelligent gentleman whose looks seem to belie the fifty-five years he claims. There is a family resemblance between the premier and his brother Charles, but no marked facial similarity.

Front Street Runaway.

There was a lively runaway on the streets yesterday. A horse belonging to a farmer named Boester, who lives between here and Chocoley, was tied on Front street right near the tunnel where the ore trains run through to the dock. A train which went through the tunnel scared the horse so that he mashed the wagon to which he was hitched against a telegraph pole and broke away and ran down Front street at a terrible pace. He took the sidewalk at Superior and turned west. Several children who were playing between Front and Third streets had narrow escapes from injury. One little boy was knocked down by a log which hit him as the horse ran by. The animal was finally captured, but there wasn't enough left of the wagon to bother hitching him to.

Huckleberry Season at Hand.

The toothsome huckleberry, of which Marquette ships hundreds of crates each season, is ripening rapidly and unless a frost comes along pretty shortly there will be a full crop all over this section of the peninsula.

Berries are already ripe in the vicinity of the Powder Mill, and one woman is reported to have gone out Sunday and picked five quarts. It will be a week or ten days yet, though, before berries are plentiful enough for shipment.

George Drolet says he has a good many applications to pick already and a good many more coming, as the berries bid fair to be plenty and the work remunerative. A number of Ishpeming and Negaunee miners are going out with their families.

Dramatic Attraction.

Rhea, the ever popular favorite of Marquette play goers, will appear at the opera house Thursday evening in Paul Kester's new romantic play, Nell Gwynne. This will be Rhea's last appearance in the peninsula for two years. Seats are on sale at the prices which prevailed during her previous engagement. The management will have a special officer in the gallery and see to it that good order is maintained.

The play tells a story of incidents in the life of a poor Orange girl, befriended by Charles II, who was impressed by her beauty and grace as no other woman had ever moved him before. She chose the stage as her profession and in later years became the idol of the English people and of her king by whom she was beloved until his death. This story is beautifully constructed and such a character is sublime when portrayed by the incomparable Rhea, who invests it with her charming grace and wonderful art. Her success this season has been remarkable. In "Nell Gwynne," she has one of the great plays of the century, which is now closing, and which has seen such remarkable advancement in all art. Her supporting company is most excellent and the costuming of the play is not only gorgeous but correct historically.

Hard Lines.

Nearly every night lately the police have had to run in a number of men who were guilty of violating the vagrancy ordinance and sleeping in box cars or sheds because they had no money to get a bed.

About half of these claim to come from Munising, where they have made unsuccessful efforts to get work. They are not criminals and they are not professional tramps. For the most part they are honest laboring men whose only crime is being out of a job. From Munising they naturally work their way to Marquette, either by walking or stealing a ride on a freight train, and after being in town a few hours lay down to sleep in an empty box car or shed and are caught in the police drag net and taken to the lock-up. Next morning, nine cases out of ten, the justice gives them hours to leave town in. The police agree that it is hard to arrest a man just because he is out of money and a stranger, but protection to property demands that all vagrants be taken up.

Bloomers vs. Marquettes.

This afternoon the female baseball aggregation known as the Boston Bloomers will cross bats at the Fair grounds with the Marquettes. There is sure to be a big crowd in attendance. Of the girls the Evening Wisconsin, Milwaukee, has this to say: "Yesterday about 900 persons witnessed a ball game between the Bloomer Baseball club and the James Morgans. The spectators expected to see a regular burlesque on the game, but they were disappointed. The young women can handle themselves in a surprisingly clever manner. Of course they did not make any very phenomenal plays, but considering the fact that their sex is not adapted to such violent work they did remarkably well. The score was 12 to 10 in favor of the Morgans."

Doing Time Now.

Henry Failing, alias Theodore Barrett and several other names, the man who did up Manhard-Jopling last winter on a $50 forged check, is doing time behind the bars at Fort Madison, Iowa.

Failing was taken up in Troy, N. Y., for an offense similar to the one he perpetrated here, but was turned over to Sheriff McCormack of Keokuk, Ia., who had evidence of more extensive operations in that vicinity. Last Tuesday Judge Baker gave him an eleven year sentence and he was taken to the Fort Madison penitentiary to begin his sentence.

Alumni Dance.

The third annual reception and dance of the High school alumni was given last evening in Fraternity Hall. In the early part of the evening the reception was held and the graduates embraced the opportunity to recement pleasant school friendships. At nine the dancing began to the exquisite strains of the Ideal orchestra. There were only forty couples present but this made it pleasanter on the floor for those who did attend, and all enjoyed themselves to the fullest degree. Heppner served supper in his dining rooms below the hall.
