STREET TRANSIT IN EUROPE.

Trolley Almost Unknown and No Elevated Roads.

An American living in a city, and who has never been abroad, does not begin to appreciate the enormous advantages he has in the way of rapid transit by street railways over his European brother similarly situated.

Across the ocean all this is changed; there the trolley is almost, and with one exception the elevated road wholly unknown, and the residents of even London have to depend almost entirely on the primitive bus.

Let us therefore glance at the different methods of public conveyance in this, the largest city in the world. In London the principal means of getting around is by buses, and it is estimated that there are nearly a thousand of them in use every day.

Omibuses first came into use in 1829. Before that time people had to get around as best they could. They ran daily from 8 a. m. to 12 at night, and the fares vary, according to the distance, from 1 penny to 6 pence in English money, or from 2 cents to 12 cents in ours.

The London bus is a huge lumbering vehicle drawn by two or three horses and plastered over with advertising signs. They are all double-deckers—that is, they have seats both inside and on top, the inside seats running lengthwise, and those on top crosswise, with an aisle down the center.

As soon as a passenger mounts a bus he takes a seat inside or on top, as he may prefer and there is room, both being the same price, and the conductor immediately comes to him, inquires his destination and charges him accordingly, and gives him a ticket which he is required to show in case of dispute, and which contains the principal stations of that line, the one nearest his stopping-place being punched.

Undoubtedly the best method of transportation in London is the underground railway. This, however, only serves a certain portion of the city, and its stations are quite widely separated. Its fares are a trifle more than those of the omnibus company.

In summer a great deal of travel for points near the Thames is by river steamboats. This traffic is all in the hands of the Victoria Steamboat association, whose boats run every few minutes from London bridge to Chelsea, calling at 15 intermediate piers. The fares are from one penny to sixpence on week days, and double that on Sundays and holidays.

For those who can afford it nothing can beat a cab as a means of getting around. There are two kinds of these, the four-wheeler and the two-wheeler or hansom. The hansom is by far the easier riding of the two, and as the driver is perched up behind there is nothing to obstruct the view.

Properly Named. The White Man's Grave is a ghastly name, well deserved by the Sierra Leone coast, but, according to Lieut. Col. Trotter, who has been settling the Anglo-French boundary in that region, the Hinterland of Sierra Leone is more like the white man's paradise.

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

Thousands of Tourists Thronging the English Capital.

What an American Sees in His Trips About the Great City—It Is Easy to Distinguish the People from This Side.

The world will surely turn upside down if the English begin to change their ways. It looks as if this were going to happen. They are showing an intelligent acquaintance with our geography and our public men, for one unheard-of thing.

This change makes it bothersome for me to pick out the Americans in the streets. For weeks I have been riding about on the tops of buses.

There are about 50,000 of us here, and part of this huge burgh has become almost homelike in consequence.

Some of the American men who come here are a terror to their countrymen. They seem to have had enough money to get here with, and, once here, they borrow to get back.

The visitor began to tell him how much he admired the novelist's work, how he had read every line he had ever written and—there the novelist stopped him.

There is another way of telling Americans without looking at their hats. It is by their quick, alert, nervous movements, their bright, wide-awake faces, and their conscious independence and pride.

There is a certain something about the English which we get from the English. Down in Cornwall and up in Yorkshire they have the same sharp "a" that we use.

Weidhart and Johnson Win in the School Election by Big Majorities.

MANY WOMEN CAUSE A HEAVY VOTE POLLED.

Big Time Labor Day—How the Union Men Celebrated—Finals in Sines Yet to be Played—Brotherhood Formed.

CHANGES IN THE BOARD.

The school election held Monday resulted in the defeat of Trustees Moore and Spear who were running for reelection and the election by large majorities of Weidhart and Johnson, the outside candidates.

Never before has Marquette seen such an exciting school election, and never till yesterday had the vote on a school issue run so high. As it was it was very close to the vote cast at the gubernatorial elections, with the marked difference, however, that women who had certain qualifications had the rights of electors. They exercised their franchise freely, polling 457 votes out of 1,568. The total vote was almost a hundred greater than it was at the school election last year.

Some of the people voted early, but over half of the ballots were deposited in the box after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There was quite a jam the last few minutes before the polls closed and one party was stopped just at the moment of voting, after it had been rushed up by an enthusiastic worker for the winning ticket. Workers for both sides were numerous and persistent. They swarmed the steps of the city hall, where the election was held, and importuned every voter to cast a ballot for the candidate they represented. Carriages were kept busy all day long bringing men and women to the polls who would otherwise have stayed at home or at their business. The fashionable turnouts of the ladies of the hill drove up side by side with the livery carriages used to bring the less fortunate residents of other parts of the city, and stood in democratic confusion in front of the hall.

The voting was conducted in the large room on the main floor of the building. Here every voter, if not already provided with a ballot, could secure the tickets, or if he desired to do any slipping there were pasters at hand for the purpose. Contrary to general expectation there were no slip candidates. There was very little slipping, and what was done was among the four men on the regular tickets. Niedhart and Spear were the losers by the slipping, the majority of the scratching being for the benefit of Johnson and Moore. The first named of these two ran ahead of the ticket twenty-two votes, while Moore got fifty-one votes the better of his running mate.

The first count that was made showed Niedhart and Johnson to have won hands down, but it did not tally with the polling list. The second correct count resulted as follows:

Johnson.....	639
Niedhart.....	967
Moore.....	610
Spear.....	559

In an election where so many inexperienced voters exercised the franchise it was natural that some funny things should occur. The most amusing instance, perhaps, was that of a girl who had no vote herself, but who came down to drop in a ballot for her mother-in-law!

How It was Celebrated.

Labor Day received the most enthusiastic celebration ever before accorded it in Marquette. The weather was good and the crowd was large, especially so considering that there was a celebration of the day in all the larger towns of the peninsula, and consequently no excursions to bring people in from outside.

As soon as they had finished breakfast the union men could be seen on the street marked with the badges of their locals on the way to their various halls. At 9 o'clock the unions began to show up on the place appointed for forming the line, on Superior street, and about half an hour later Marshal Edward O'Brien had his forces in order, and was at the head of the line directly in front of the band. All the unions announced turned out in good force and made a parade full three blocks long. A feature of the line was the Morse Hose company in full uniform. The band, unions, hose company and the carriage with the speakers made up the parade. Crowds of people thronged the sidewalks all along the march and watched the paraders with interest.

About 10:30 the marchers arrived at the grove and found awaiting them a goodly concourse of their friends. Speaking was the first thing on the program. The speakers were the seam as originally announced, with the exception of Mayor Jacobs, who, being called out of the city, designated Alderman Sherman, president of the council, to fulfill his duties. All of the orators were listened to with attention and apparent interest. The talking was enlivened by a small controversy between E. D. Cox and Alderman Sherman, growing out of the assertion that it was not wise to send lawyers to the legislature.

At the conclusion of the speaking the crowd was ready for refreshments, and turned its attention to both dry and wet varieties with great avidity. During the noon hour, and up to the late middle of the afternoon new accessions were constantly made to the throng in the grove. It is probable that the greatest number in the inclosure at any one time was not short of a thousand.

All the sports listed for the afternoon were brought off. The event of greatest interest was the ball game between the trimmers and shovers. This furnished four innings of hilarious sport and resulted in a victory for the lumber shovers, the score standing 4 to 3. Partisans of each side swarmed the base lines, and greeted each play with howls of delight or condemnation as they considered it deserved.

The tug of war between the trimmers and the coal heavers was an exciting contest, and friends of the contestants not only encouraged them with voice and gesture, but seized a hold of the rope and pulled with might and main. The coal heavers were given the best of the bouts so making a second and defeat for the trimmers. This union, however, being host for the day, took its defeat good naturedly and shared in the Home Industries that were given as prizes to the winners. Tim Downs won the 100-yard dash from five contestants and secured the $3 cash prize. Little Mart Dunnebacher captured the sack race and the dollar that went with it.

Quite a part of the crowd stayed out to the grounds in the evening and spent the time in dancing. Fairly good order was preserved both day and evening.

Prof. Nap. Filion.

At the athletic contest billed for tonight in Casino rink the star feature will be the sparring match between Professor Nap. Filion and Professor Harry Lemon.

Professor Filion is a boxer who is well known in most of the towns in the peninsula, though he has never appeared in Marquette before. He is a scientific fighter of considerable reputation, and the go between he and the colored fighter is sure to be interesting. Filion is a good boxer and a clever tactician in the ring. He has met some good men in his time, and despite the fact that he has the use of only one eye, he is no mean antagonist.

Last fall he sparred Jack Keating ten rounds in the opera house at Sault Ste. Marie, and a local paper says that the audience that witnessed the match received the worth of its money and was well satisfied. Neither man scoring a knockout, the match was declared a draw. In the Canadian Sault the Professor fought John Hayes to a finish, knocking him out in the nineteenth round. Hayes received heavy punishment, while Filion came out without a mark.

The little Frenchman had a match in the copper country with Caldwell of Hancock. Caldwell was punished badly and knocked out in the third round. One of his press notices speaks of a contest with Jim Doyle, and says: During the contest Filion pounded his man all over the ring, hitting him when and where he chose. Doyle did very little but clinch to escape punishment the last three or four rounds. Filion is a clever boxer, and has always given satisfaction in contests here in which he has entered, and the event of Saturday night shows that he clearly outclasses Doyle.

Handicap Tennis Tourney.

The tennis players were favored with good weather for the handicap tournament yesterday; and succeeded in disposing of all the matches except the finals in singles, which will be contested later on by Dr. W. H. Van Iderstine and A. E. Miller. The handicaps in singles proved to be about right and resulted in some hard fought sets; but in the doubles they proved rather too deadly and enabled Messrs. Phelps and Davis, coupled with excellent playing, to defeat their more experienced opponents.

The club has had a very successful season. The two tournaments have kept alive the interest in the game, and the members look forward to a still more successful season next year, and are thinking of having club tournaments as often as once a month, besides an open tournament.

The scores of the matches yesterday were as follows:

In singles, in the preliminary round, Dr. Drake (handicap 15) defeated P. W. Phelps (30) 4-6, 7-5, 6-0. W. H. Van Iderstine (half 15) defeated J. E. Ball by default. W. J. Stevens (15) defeated A. F.
