VOLLEY OF HOT SHOT BY GENERAL MILES.

Army Commander Gives Facts Which Show That to Him Is Due All Credit at Santiago.

TURNED DEFEAT EXPECTED BY SHAFTER INTO VICTORY.
Masterly Tactics in Porto Rico Which Mystified the Spaniards and Won the Island by a Conquest Practically Devoid of American Bloodshed

New York, Sept. 7.—The following statement, emanating from Major General Miles, was given today to the reporters who boarded the steamer Ogdam on its arrival from Porto Rico. It is in the form of a letter, in which General Miles is mentioned in the third person:
HE COUNSELLED DELAY.
While at Porto Rico, and during the voyage returning on the Ogdam, on which steamer were General Miles and staff and two battalions of the Second regiment of Wisconsin Volunteers, I learned the following facts concerning the Cuban and Porto Rican expeditions: Owing to the fact that the season suited for campaigning in Cuba had been exhausted in debates and delay in congress, and also in necessary preparations, General Miles was opposed to rushing an ill-prepared and undisciplined, untrained army in a movement against the capital of Cuba, defended by a hundred thousand trained Spanish troops, and in this position he stood practically alone for several weeks. Havana, Matanzas, Santiago and a few other points were drawn on his military map as hotbeds of disease, destructive to an army, and places to be avoided, especially during the sickly season.

HIS PLAN OF CAMPAIGN.
When finally called upon to submit a plan of campaign, he did so, and put it in writing. In substance, he took the stand, first, that every effort should be made to equip the Cubans, and thereby enable them to harass the Spanish forces. The cry of "On to Havana" should be encouraged, but when the transports loaded with the troops were out of sight of land, they should sail as straight as steam power could bear them to the gate of the Antilles and the key of the whole position—Porto Rico. Then, having seized and occupied that island, the movement to Cuba was to follow by means of a strong cavalry force, which was to be organized and equipped by August or September. He contemplated that 20,000 cavalry be thrown into the center of Cuba, cutting the Spanish forces in two and moving west to Havana. By that time the rainy season would be over, and it would be possible to maneuver the army we could move against that city, a well-organized, well-equipped and well-disciplined force, and complete the capture of the Spanish forces.

CONDITIONS SUDDENLY CHANGED
But the enclosure of Admiral Cervera's fleet in the harbor of Santiago changed the conditions, and it was necessary to move against that city, a well-organized force, while at Tampa organizing the expedition, felt the importance of the enterprise so greatly that he requested permission to accompany the expedition and to immediately organize another to join it. This permission was not granted, as far as accompanying that expedition was concerned, but authority was granted to equip a second one, for movement and operation against the enemy in Cuba and Porto Rico.
However, before this expedition was equipped, calls were made for additional forces to go to Santiago, and they were immediately forwarded. On the 3d of July, General Shafter telegraphed that his losses had been greatly underestimated; that he had met stronger resistance than he anticipated; that he was seriously considering the advisability of falling back to a position five miles to the rear, and that he had been unable to be up during the heat for four days.

MILES TO THE RESCUE.
Under such circumstances, General Miles telegraphed General Shafter that he would be with him in a week with strong re-inforcements, of course taking the troops prepared for the second expedition which had been prepared by the president to operate against the enemy in Cuba as well as in Porto Rico. These re-inforcements were pushed rapidly forward, and some of them arrived in advance of the commanding general and were put in position in the trenches around Santiago.
Under verbal instructions from the president, General Miles was directed to go wherever he deemed his presence was required, and should give such directions as in his opinion were best for the army and government. These were the circumstances under which General Miles left Washington. He arrived at Santiago, July 11, not as a private individual, nor as a visitor, but as a general, and he went there disrobed of authority or official capacity is too childish to be considered by sensible men. From the moment he arrived at Santiago he was responsible for what might occur.

SENDS NOTE TO GEN. TORAL.
General Miles arrived at Santiago with the Yale, Columbia and Rita, loaded with artillery, besides those already disembarked. He had designed to disembark the troops and artillery named on the west side of Santiago, as was understood surrender, with the approval of the captain general of Cuba, but it would require a little time to have the acts confirmed by the home government; that in the meantime he was prepared to appoint commissioners to arrange the clauses of the capitulation, and, not only this, but he offered to surrender the balance of his command, which had not been under fire during the campaign.

This remarkable offer was on his motion, and was a surprise to the American generals present. However, at the conference of the day previous General Miles had reminded him that he had been tendered the most liberal terms ever offered to an enemy; that his fleet was destroyed; that they were three thousand miles from home, and General Toral's offer could be accounted for in one of two ways—either that the troops were wanted at home to meet a threatened revolution, or wanted to get home and regarded this as the only means of doing so, at the expense of the United States. Whether General Blanco and the rest of the Spanish forces in Cuba would surrender on the same terms will not now, perhaps, ever be known.

HIS CONQUEST OF PORTO RICO.
The place for landing the Porto Rico expedition had been so thoroughly advertised in communications sent over the French cable, and in the newspapers of our own country, and telegraphed to Madrid and from there to San Juan, that, not having received the necessary appliances with which to disembark, General Miles decided after leaving the Windward passage, to change his course and land on the south side of Porto Rico, where the Spaniards were least prepared and were least expecting to receive him and where he knew the disembarkation of his troops and supplies would be the most easily effected.

From the time of that disembarkation and during the following nineteen days of the campaign, he kept the Spaniards guessing what the next move would be. When they withdrew along the line of the great military road between Ponce and San Juan, they destroyed the bridges, obstructed the roads and fortified strong positions in the mountain passes, and then were surprised that one column of his army was sweeping around the west end of the island capturing the principal cities and towns, while another had passed over the mountains over a trail which the Spaniards supposed was impassable and therefore had not fortified or guarded; and the first they knew of the march of the American army was the appearance of a strong brigade within twenty miles of the northern coast, at the terminus of the railroad connecting San Juan with Arecibo.

YANKEES HAILED WITH JOY.
The island of Porto Rico has rightly been won by right of conquest and has become part of the United States. The sentiment of the people was in no sense outraged by the invaders, but, on the contrary, was successfully propitiated. The people, who had endured the severity of Spanish rule for four centuries, hailed with delight the protection of our great republic. One of the richest sections of country over which our flag now floats was then added, and will be of lasting value to our nation—politically, commercially and from a military or strategic point of view.

The possession of the island has also rendered any further resistance of the Spanish forces in Cuba hopeless, and General Miles firmly believes that, by fair and just treatment, the people of Cuba can be easily controlled, either as a friendly ally and neighbor or to become part of our own country, as the people of Porto Rico.

General Miles remained in Porto Rico as long as he deemed his presence necessary for carrying out the wishes of the president and now returns to the United States, bringing with him nearly 5,000 men who are no longer required, there being 12,000 still remaining, amply sufficient for all purposes.
ORDERED HEALTH PRECAUTIONS
In an order issued to the army at an early date, General Miles directed that: "Every officer, of whatsoever grade, will, as far as in his power, guard and preserve the health and welfare of those under his charge. He must labor diligently and zealously to perfect himself and subordinates in military drill, instruction and discipline, and, above all, to constantly endeavor by precept example to maintain the highest character, to further stimulate that true soldierly spirit and patriotic devotion to duty which must characterize an effective army." The principles thus announced have been zealously observed from the first.

The general returns here once to Washington, where he believes he can be most useful, as he considers the most important need of the hour now to be the immediate reduction of war expenses and the return of as large a portion of those in the military service as possible to their former occupations, where they are most needed.

THE CONVENTION TODAY.

The Republican congressional convention for this district, which will meet today at Ishpeming, promises to be one of the most interesting ever held in the district—and this district has had its share of lively congressional conventions.

As is pretty generally known, there are but two candidates for the nomination, these being the sitting member, Mr. Sheldon, and ex-Congressman Stephenson of Menominee. All the counties in the district have now chosen their delegations, and from all but one of these, Marquette county, the delegations are uncontested.

There are two sets of delegates from this county, each of which claims to be the one entitled to seats in the convention. The action taken by the convention on the issue raised by these delegations will determine where the nomination will go. If the Sheldon delegation should be seated he will have fifty-six out of the eighty-seven votes in the convention, or twelve more than the number required to nominate him.

From this analysis of the make-up of the convention, it is apparent that Mr. Sheldon has a decided advantage, and that only by bad generalship of his forces in that body can he be defeated.

This presentation of the situation, as it appears on the assumption that the delegates chosen for Sheldon are loyal to him. There have been whispers of treachery, but we regard them as unworthy of being taken into account. It is not likely that men chosen for Sheldon after a hot fight in each of the counties carried for him will be open to propositions from the Stephenson managers, no matter how alluring these may be.

A NEW UNITED STATES. The new United States of Central America is reported to have been formed at last. A federal president and congress will be elected in December.

The new league includes Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador. Guatemala, at the northwestern end, and Costa Rica, at the southeastern end, refused to join in the alliance and will remain outside the fold.

public will have an area of 99,425 square miles, a territory rather greater than that of Illinois and Indiana combined, or less than that of Colorado. The population of the new republic will be 1,597,578, more than that of New Jersey or Kansas.

The soil of these republics, now welded into one, is about the most fertile in the world. It rivals that of Porto Rico and Cuba. Each nation has a national banking system, schools, colleges and telegraphs and railways, the latter owing their development chiefly to an influx of North American and British capital.

It is not regarded as very likely that the new republic will make much of a stir in the world, at least until Guatemala and Costa Rica are persuaded to join it. Those republics will have to be "persuaded" to join, as they cannot be forced in.

A NATIONAL MILITIA. Judging from press and public comment, we shall see at an early date a movement for the reorganization of the militia which will make it a national force and one affiliated in practice, as well as in theory, with the regular army.

The opposition to the creation of a national militia will be likely to work along the lines of state rights, and to be mingled with that cheap militarism which inspires men to wear uniforms in peace which they shirk putting on in war.

Some such arrangement must be made in this country if a national militia is to be created, for the great weakness of our present organization is in the officers. The elective principle is unimpaired and works great injustice to the taxpayer.

STORIES OF BISMARCK.

Notes on the Old Chancellor by One Who Knew Him.

Prince Bismarck has been called a king's man, which is certainly a misnomer. He was essentially a Fatherland man. His devotion to his sovereign meant a devotion in earlier years to the head of the Prussian government, and in later life to the German emperor as the head of Bismarck's own great work, united Germany.

Independence and self-sufficiency were marked characteristics of Bismarck's, and often showed themselves in small matters. He read English well, but spoke it with some hesitancy, occasionally pausing for a word, but if it was suggested by another the pause was usually prolonged, and the prince sought a synonymous expression rather than accept the one offered to him.

At the time of his resignation in 1890 Berlin was full of mysterious tales in regard to his difficulties with the emperor. Some said that the emperor had requested him to have no private discussions with Windthorst, the Ultramontane leader, unless the emperor himself were present at the interview, but that the chancellor paid no attention to this royal wish or command.

Another more dramatic story relates to a dinner given by the chancellor at which the emperor was present. It took place shortly after the summoning by imperial order of an international congress to discuss labor questions. The guests, as is customary when royalty is to be present at their entertainment, were all assembled at the chancellor's palace.

A German of high rank and official position whose life was intimately connected with the court, and who was also a great friend of the chancellor's family, is authority for a plausible theory in regard to the early estrangement between Bismarck and the emperor.

VERY LIGHT ATTENDANCE AND NOT MUCH INTEREST A MARKED FEATURE—WHAT WAS DONE AT THE GATHERINGS AT HANCOCK AND HOUGHTON.

The attendance at the school board meetings does not really show a proper interest. Seldom if ever was there a smaller attendance at the annual meeting of the board of Hancock than that held Monday evening.

The question of free text books offered much room for discussion. The law reads that in order to establish such a system a majority of the legal voters of the school district would have to vote favorably upon the proposition.

externally or internally, brings peace in a moment. Try it for sunburn, chafing, sore eyes, sore feet, mosquito bites, stings of insects, bruises and all pains.

In and About Negaunee.

MAULIFFE DOWN WITH FEVER.

BUT WITH PROPER ATTENTION HE WILL UNDOUBTEDLY PULL THROUGH.

John McAuliffe, who got home from Cuba a few days ago, is down with a return of typhoid fever and will be confined to his home for some time.

McAuliffe has not felt any too well since his arrival home, though he did not complain. He walked around nearly every day, but it is now very evident that he did not get the rest he needed.

At times his home was besieged with visitors, who were anxious to see him and to talk about the war. He entertained all who called as well as possible and never complained of feeling badly.

John is a pretty sick man, though he is not in danger, but he will need attention for the next few weeks at least.

the congressional fight, nor to his having had the support of the Stephenson men. In justice to Mr. Jackson it can be said that he did not take a hand in the congressional fight one way or the other.

The compositor made an error in recording Mr. Jackson's vote. He received 252 votes, instead of 202.

SAYS KLONDIKE IS NO GOOD.

Gust Johnson, a former resident of Negaunee, who has been in the Alaskan gold fields for the past five or six years, ever since he left this city, has been heard from.

TO DIG THE NICARAGUAN CANAL.

The war with Spain has demonstrated the importance of a short route between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. By digging a canal a few miles long at the Isthmus of Panama, thousands of miles of travel can be saved.

SCHOOLS ARE CROWDED.

IT MAY BE NECESSARY TO OPEN ANOTHER PRIMARY ROOM LATER.

Superintendent H. B. Krogman of the Negaunee public schools is easily the busiest man in the city this week. The organization of the different classes was considerable of a task, and the superintendent and teachers put in a very hard day Tuesday getting things in shape.

Dr. Heidle left yesterday on the Detroit excursion and will spend the next two weeks with friends in Ann Arbor and Detroit.

Mrs. Delorimer, who has been visiting here for some time past, took advantage of the excursion route to Detroit yesterday and left for her home in Canada.

Will Donithorn, who conducted a confectionery business on Iron street, has closed up shop and will leave here within the next few days for British Columbia.

GROWTH OF RUSSIA.

Center of Population in the Great Empire Shifting South and East. To the United States the growth and development of the empire of Russia are always interesting.

Some recent reports by American consuls are pertinent in this place. Two of the reports referred to consist entirely of translations. Consul General Holloway, writing from St. Petersburg, transmits a long extract from the Russian newspaper the Novoe Vremya.

The substance of a Russian civil engineer's recent lecture on the scarcity of grains and measures to avoid distress is stated by Consul General Smith from Moscow.

These matters are properly supplemented, though not formally inserted as a supplement, by a translation from the Journal des Debats of Paris, sent by Consul Morris from Ghent.

The nineteenth century has seen the colonization of southern Russia; the twentieth will see that of central Asia and Siberia.

The notices of facts and the more or less speculative inferences therefrom do not seem to show that any famine whatever or any possible crowding of the vast tracts of Russia will avail within the limits of a conceivable future to stay the progress of that remarkable nation.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.—A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradual growing weaker day by day.
