State Highway Commissioner Earle held a good hand, but Governor Warner's was at least a shade better.

The Democrats want an income tax. There are some Democrats, and Republicans, too, who also badly want an income.

Horatio S. Earle, late highway commissioner, says he can have his choice of several $5,000 jobs.

It would, of course, be unwise to base any championship visions on the fact that Detroit won its first series in straight games, but at the same time it was infinitely better, from Detroit's viewpoint, to have the Tigers take those games than to have them go to the enemy.

Uneasy lies the head of a wheat king. Mr. Patten has found it expedient to employ a bodyguard and to take numerous other precautions to protect his personal safety.

If the senate gets around to confirming Townsend A. Ely, Governor Warner's appointee to be highway commissioner, it is announced that Chief Deputy Rogers, who has served under Mr. Earle, will be retained.

Frank E. Doeburg, of Holland, has been appointed confidential clerk to the postmaster general, Frank H. Hitchcock.

to conditions surrounding the dairy business in Marquette. As a matter of fact, the committee took up the matter and decided, after discussing the various things in the connection that have come to light of late, that there is need for a searching inquiry into the manner in which the public milk supply is produced and handled.

More than the ordinary amount of interest attaches to the bill for which Governor Warner is sponsor proposing important amendments to the existing liquor law, for the reason that it has of late been the popular topic to predict that the present session of the legislature would come to an end without any changes being made in the present statute.

Governor Warner's bill again brings it to the fore. This measure is not, as was the Ormsbee bill, a complete new statute, but simply proposes amendments to the existing law along the lines of regulation.

The governor's bill is a comparatively simple measure. The points it takes up are few in number, and the manner in which they would work out can be easily anticipated.

Mayor Winter has been proved to be a man of his word. When he says that the lid must go on in Negaunee we believe that he means it, and that aforesaid lid will be put and kept on during the whole of his ensuing year's administration.

In an editorial paragraph printed last week The Mining Journal did the health committee of the old council an injustice. It was stated that the committee had failed to act on a resolution introduced some weeks ago by Alderman Downey, calling for an investigation into conditions surrounding the dairy business in Marquette. As a matter of fact, the committee took up the matter and decided, after discussing the various things in the connection that have come to light of late, that there is need for a searching inquiry into the manner in which the public milk supply is produced and handled.

tion, always endeavoring, however, to instill other text books of its own at prices that will allow it to recoup itself. Nor are the independent companies themselves free from the stigma of adopting the same methods, while it is notoriously customary for all dealers in school text books to endeavor to control and influence school authorities, and in this manner secure in return favor that is of intrinsic value.

Such a system is wrong and harmful in many ways. For one thing it breeds dishonesty and corruption on the part of the public school officials, and evidence of this dishonesty is frequently brought to light. It also encourages the school book companies to engage in politics, for the purpose of having school officials selected who will be friendly to the interests of the book companies, and although it is hard to secure evidence of such interference the fact that it is undertaken is generally known and frequently commented on.

ISHPEMING BOY CARRIED 500 FEET THROUGH FLUME. ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD LAD WASHED FROM THE SHORE YORK CREEK NEAR OLD NEW YORK STORE AND CARRIED DOWN TO THE SITE OF THE OLD GAS PLANT.

Russell Mowick, aged about eleven years, had a thrilling experience yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. He and a companion, John Hawke, were sailing a toy boat in the creek south of the old New York store building, when young Mowick was suddenly taken off his feet by the current and carried into the flume, disappearing almost instantly from the view of his companion.

The flume runs parallel with and between the Northwestern and South Shore main lines nearly all of the distance between the creek and the opening near the gas house. The flume is four feet square and was about three-quarters filled with water. The boy was carried through, it taking nearly five minutes for him to make the journey.

At the opposite end of the flume, where young Mowick was rescued, there is a large tile pipe, which carries the water under the Northwestern tracks, meeting the creek in the Consolidated Fuel & Lumber company's yards.

Washington, April 16.—With a hole in the revenues estimated at $45,000,000 yet to fill, the Aldrich tariff bill is anything but a finished measure. The special interests which depend for extra profits on the tariff have the assurance that rates will go no lower and to that extent the business tension may be said to be eased, for practical purposes.

FACTS ABOUT PRECIOUS GEMS.

The best pearls are found on the Ceylon coast and in the Persian gulf.

The play of color in the opal is due to minute fissures in the stone.

The pearl is only carbonate of lime, is readily affected by acids and burns into lime.

The diamond has been found on all the continents and in almost every country on the globe.

Artificial agates are now made by so many effective processes that the stone has lost most of its value as a gem.

The habit of burying gems with the owners we owe the preservation of the most antique jewels.

The perfectly round pearls are the most valuable; next in order comes the pear-shaped, and lastly the chape-shaped.

Pearls are sometimes found whose outer layer is discolored. These stones may be skinned and thus improved.

When first taken from the mines opals are so tender and friable that they may be picked to pieces with the finger nails.

The sapphire which adorns the summit of the British crown is the same that Edward the Confessor wore in his ring.

Opals are so sensitive that exposure to moisture or heat, or even sudden atmospheric change, sometimes ruins them.

After the conquest of Mexico and Peru emeralds were so abundant that one Spanish nobleman took home three bushels of them.

The emerald improves in color on exposure to the light. Pearls kept in the dark lose their luster, but regain it on exposure to the sun.

The diamond, though hard, is one of the most brittle of stones. A fall on a wooden floor will sometimes crack and ruin a fine specimen.

FIRES IN MOVING PICTURE THEATRES

AUDIENCE OF CHILDREN GIVEN A SCARE AT THE BIJOU SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

GRAND HAS FIRE IN EVENING

In Both Places Flames Were Caused by Moving Picture Films Coming in Contact With Hot Rheostats.

Three fires, two of them in moving picture theaters, in less than twenty-four hours, and all within one block of each other in the principal business district of the city, created much excitement in Ishpeming. The first fire was in the Walker bakery, in the Pascoe block, corner Main and Pearl streets, shortly before 11 o'clock Friday night. The second was in the Bijou vaudeville and moving picture theater in the Voelker block, corner of Main street and Cleveland avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, and the third was in the Grand moving picture house in the Kennedy block on Main street Saturday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

The Bijou Fire.

The fire in the Bijou theater for a time threatened to do much damage, as the flames had a good start before the alarm was sounded. There were over 100 people, most of them children, assembled for the matinee when fire broke out in the coup for the picture machine immediately above the front entrance and between the two doors leading to the theater proper. The flames burst from the open door of the coup immediately after Clarence Slyger, the operator, jumped to the floor below. Many of the women and children became greatly excited. Some started for the front entrance, others for the exit to the rear of the north side of the room. Manager J. A. Gorman, who was standing on the sidewalk in front of the house, knew nothing of the fire until the operator ran out. The young man's hair was singed and he had sprained his knee in the jump from the coup.

Gorman entered the house and within a few seconds had the rear doors open. He then turned in to help the children and women to get out. The comedians, Fitzpatrick and Kearney, who had finished making up and were ready to go on the stage for their turn, aided Mr. Gorman and in less than two minutes all the audience was in the street. Men on the sidewalks nearby came to the rescue of the children, some of whom had fallen down as they came out the doors, but none were injured. Several of the youngsters lost their hats in the mix-up. After all had left the house Mr. Korman re-entered and removed the cash from the box office, directly under the coup. By this time the flames had spread along the ceiling to the stage and the entire house was filled with smoke, with the flames spreading rapidly. The comedians took their trunks through a side door leading from the dressing rooms to Wane's billiard hall. One little girl, who seemed to be quite unconscious of the danger she was in, remained on the stage, where Mr. Korman had placed her, until the latter came along and carried her out.

How the Fire Started.

The fire was started by the burning of a film, which causes about 90 per cent of the fires in theaters of this class. One of the films, which had been used many times, was in bad condition. It broke at a joint where it had been patched, as it passed below the point where the light from the machine strikes it. The loose end of the film fell upon the floor, near the rheostat. Slyger did not notice that the film had broken and he supposed that the lower end was winding around the receiving reel. He heard the film sizzling, but thought the trouble was in the machine. In a moment all of the film on the floor, as well as a reel that had been used and set aside, was burning. Slyger had no time to loose, and jumped, leaving the coup door open behind him. The coup was lined with asbestos paper but the flames worked through and soon caught on the board frame work. The fire was a hot one while it lasted, though the flames did not reach the floor or seats. The paper was burned from the walls in many places and much plaster came down. All of the scenery was destroyed and the chairs and piano were damaged by water.

House to Be Repaired.

C. A. Crinnian, proprietor of the Bijou, plans to reopen the theater as soon as the place can be repaired. He estimates his loss at a little less than $400, and Mr. Voelker's loss will be in that neighborhood. There was no insurance either on Mr. Crinnian's outfit or the building. Mr. Crinnian had planned to remove the glass front of the building this week, in order to provide a double entrance from the lobby. All of the plate glass was destroyed by the fire. The repair work will be started today and Mr. Crinnian said yesterday that he will make a number of changes to insure greater safety for the patrons. All the doors will be made to open outward, and inclines will be placed at the front entrance instead of steps. The rear doors were changed some time ago, at the suggestion of Peter Fitzpatrick, the state building inspector. Mr. Crinnian will build a larger coup and line it either with solid asbestos a quarter of an inch in thickness, or construct it with a door that will be closed by a spring.

Fitzpatrick Examining Theaters.

Mr. Fitzpatrick called on the proprietors of the three moving picture theaters last week, and told them that rear exits would have to be put in. The rear exit in the Bijou was satisfactory, but the Majestic and Grand, both of which are smaller, had rear entrances that did not pass muster. Mr. Fitzpatrick also gave notice that he would inspect the machines Saturday afternoon, while they were in operation, with a view to ascertain just how they were run. He had just completed his inspection in the Majestic and was about to go into the Bijou when the fire broke out. Mr. Fitzpatrick considers himself fortunate in having spent several minutes longer in the Majestic than he had expected to remain there, as he might have had difficulty in getting out of the Bijou coup in a hurry, in case he had been in there when the film ignited.

Fire at the Grand.

The boys who conducted the Grand theater were fortunate in their fire. Like the one at the Bijou it was started by a film being placed too close to the rheostat after it had been removed from the machine. Booth Goodman, who was operating the machine, had removed the film that took fire and was running another one through. He had placed the film a safe distance from the rheostat, but another boy working in the house, who was helping Goodman, moved it. As soon as Goodman discovered that the film was burning he caught the reel in his hand and jumped to the floor, intending to throw it into the street. When he reached the floor he found that the exit door on the south side of the front was bolted. The reel was hot and he dropped it to the floor, where it blazed up. There were about fifty people in the house at the time. All left through the other door without injury. George White, who was singing in the house, caught up two overcoats, hanging beneath the coup, and with them extinguished the blaze. Goodman showed great presence of mind in trying to get the burning film out of the house. His face and one hand were slightly burned. The boys are satisfied with their experience and have quit the business.

Inspector Cannot Close Houses.

The law does not give the building inspector the power to close moving picture theaters which he finds are not properly equipped for the safety of the public but he can cause them a lot of trouble if they do not obey his instructions. The circuit judge can enjoin the proprietors from continuing the business if it is proven that the houses are not being conducted in accordance with the laws, or a city council can place restrictions on them.

Mr. Fitzpatrick says there are many moving picture theaters in the upper peninsula that are not nearly as safe as the ones here. The coup in the Grand is one of the best that he has seen, and he has inspected practically all of the houses in this territory. There is a vast difference in moving picture films. Some of the better grade cannot be set on fire with a match, and others will ignite as soon as the flames touch them. There are films that will stand the heat from the machine for from two to three minutes, while other films under the same test would ignite in from ten to twenty seconds.

Lyman H. Howe, whose western company plays Ishpeming theaters twice each season, invites inspection of his films, giving the inspectors an opportunity to burn them. During his nearly twenty years in the business, all the while running four companies, he has never had a fire. He is the only man in that business in the country who can get insurance.

To Look Over Buildings.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, who inspected practically all the public buildings, including theaters, halls, churches, schools, also factories, etc., in the upper peninsula, some months ago, intends to look them all over again, starting in this county. The fires in the moving picture theaters caused much comment here Saturday. Mr. Fitzpatrick said that he had found few if any public buildings in the upper peninsula as well provided with exits as Ishpeming theater. Besides the two double doors in the main entrance the lobby is provided with single doors on either side, one leading to the manager's office, the other to the store. There are two unusually large doors on the stage, each leading to the alley; two large fire escape doors, one from the main floor, and the other from the second floor; double doors leading from the gallery; an entrance from the auditorium to the street through the manager's office. There are two doors leading from the stage to the auditorium and one from the basement, or dressing department. There is also a passage, provided with lights, leading from the dressing rooms to the front basement, with exit in the alley. At the suggestion of Mr. Fitzpatrick red lights have been placed above the fire escape doors.

Wires Not Responsible.

Electric wires were in no way responsible for the fire in the Walker bakery Friday night, as firemen and others who visited the place that night believed was the case. W. J. McCorkindale, manager of the Marquette County Gas & Electric company, and Mr. Walker looked the place over thoroughly and they found nothing to indicate that the blaze was started by the wires. Mr. McCorkindale said:

"I have gone over the building carefully. Mr. Walker was unable to show me any place where electric wires could possibly have started the fire. Not a single rafter in the building is burned on the top or side, and all evidences show that the fire was started between the floor and ceiling. There was no fire whatever in the attic. Not a single roof board is scorched, and as the wires are in the attic it is evident that they had nothing whatever to do with the fire.

"It is a common thing to attribute all mysterious fires to electric wires. Electricity is a safe illuminant and I cannot understand why people are so prompt to assume that fires, where the origin is a mystery, are caused by electric wires. It isn't fair to us, or to anyone else in our line of business, especially where we are doing our best to guard against fires or other accidents."

Walker Had No Insurance.

The fire in the Walker store started in the frame warehouse at the rear of the brick structure. The oven is in the frame building. The door between the two was open and the smoke and flames entered the bakery proper, as well as the store room in front. A large batch of goods had been made up for the Saturday and Sunday trade, and all, with the exception of the articles in the show cases, was destroyed. The wall decorations were ruined, and some of the windows in the store room and rear were broken. Mr. Walker had no insurance on his stock or fixtures, but Mr. Pascoe carried insurance on the building.
