

CHINAMAN TELLS OF FOUL MURDER

In Custody at New York, Chung Sin, an Associate of the Much-Sought Leon Ling, Makes a Startling Confession.

Put Through the "Third Degree" by District Attorney Jerome, He Yields to the Terrific Pressure and Describes How Elsie Sigel Met Her Death While He, Standing in an Adjoining Room, Made No Effort to Prevent the Tragedy.

New York, June 22.—Baited and intimidated by detectives, threatened with prosecution and confessed with a rapid fire of questions, Chung Sin, a one-time room-mate of Leon Ling, told this afternoon of Elsie Sigel's murder.

Under the terrific pressure of the "third degree," the Chinaman admitted that he had seen the body in Leon's room, that he had touched it while it was still warm, that he had smelled the drugs and had watched Leon's preparations for placing the body in the trunk where it was found, horribly decomposed, last Friday night.

Jerome Draws Out the Story. Chung, in fact, if what was learned at the criminal courts building is correct, described almost everything concerning the murder of Major General Franz Sigel's granddaughter, except the actual commission of the crime. After the inquisition he was held in $10,000 bail in the house of detention, to await the inquest.

Chung was arrested yesterday at West Gateway, N. Y., near Amsterdam, and was brought to New York this morning. It was not until late today that he told the story of the death of the young missionary. He was surrounded at the time in the office of Assistant District Attorney Ward by detectives from the police headquarters. Mr. Ward and District Attorney Jerome also were present, and from what can be learned it was Mr. Jerome himself who finally drew the story from Chung's lips.

From the man's story it is apparent that Elsie Sigel first was drugged with chloroform, and then choked to death. She was killed apparently on the night of June 9. Chung says that early in the morning of June 10 he heard a strange noise in Leon's room, adjoining his, and, looking over the transom, saw the girl lying on the bed, with a bloody towel over her mouth. He passed through the room, he said, to go out to wash his hands, and as he did so he felt the body was not visible, having been bound with the rope and placed in the trunk.

At this point of the story, the Chinaman was asked savagely if he had not assisted in putting the body in the trunk. Chung started perceptibly, but said he had no hand in it.

COURT CLERK READS THE WRONG VERDICT

Cup of Freedom Is Held to a Prisoner's Lips, Only to Be Snatched from Him in a Way That Wins Him Pity.

Instead of Being Liberated, a Chicago Hold-Up Man Goes to Prison for Life—Another Unusual Incident Occurs When a Blackhand Trial Is Suddenly Halted When a Danger Signal Waved by a Strange Italian Seals Lips of the Star Witness.

Chicago, June 22.—The cup of freedom was held to the lips of a prisoner in Judge Brentano's court today, only to be snatched from him in a way that caused many a pity to spread among the spectators when it was discovered that the clerk of the court should have read the jury's verdict as "guilty," instead of "not guilty."

Danger Signal Halts Murder Trial. Chicago, June 22.—The trial of Joseph Bertucci, an alleged "blackhand" murderer, came to a sudden halt in Judge Winde's court here today when an Italian entered the court room and waved a handkerchief at Bruno Nardi, the star witness, who had just taken the stand to tell of the order. The unexpected incident was discovered and O'Donnell was brought back.

How the Young Woman Met Death. New York, June 22.—More of Chung's confession became known late tonight, giving an actual description of how the murder was committed. "Elsie Sigel, the girl, was on the bed," said the Chinaman, while his hearers drew closer, in horrified suspense, "and Leon was bending over her. A handkerchief was sticking out of her mouth, and I saw blood on it. She was fighting with him, but he only pressed the handkerchief into her mouth. Finally, she struggled no more and lay still, and Leon stood up and looked down at her."

Hints Girl Sought Out the Chinaman. Until Chung's complete account is made public, it will not be explained why he saw the dead girl and the preparations for the removal of the body with such apparent unconcern at the time. Also, despite repeated interrogations, he declined to say just what happened in the room when the girl was murdered. He admitted, however, having hurried from a seuffle in the room during the night, and told of Elsie having arrived on the previous afternoon, the day when she disappeared from her home. He insisted that she went to the room alone.

Suspect Seen in Johnstown, Pa. Johnstown, Pa., June 22.—An Americanized Chinaman who alighted in Johnstown from the westbound Pennsylvania railroad passenger train this evening is believed by the local officers to be Leon Ling, the alleged murderer of Elsie Sigel, the New York settlement worker. The Chinaman went to a laundry. His restlessness excited the suspicions of the owners of the laundry, who notified the authorities. The strange man disappeared, and tonight the police are searching for him. The description of the visitor tallies remarkably with that of Leon.

COMBAT THE CHARGES AGAINST MRS. GOULD.

Big Array of Witnesses Refute the Allegations of Intoxication and Misconduct—Meanwhile the Husband Scores When the Court Sets a Limit on the Wife's Counsel Fees.

New York, June 22.—While counsel for Katherine Gould brought up a rein force of witnesses in one part of the supreme court today, to combat the charges of intoxication and misconduct made by the defense in her suit for separation, from her husband, Howard Gould, the plaintiff, won a victory in another part of the court by the decision of Justice Geigerich. The jurist ruled that Mrs. Gould shall be allowed an additional counsel fee of $10,000, at the expense of her husband. An allowance of $5,000 was made to Mrs. Gould last fall for the prosecution of her suit.

While this financial feature was being decided, Justice Dowling continued to hear the case proper. A hotel proprietor and hotel manager, who denied knowledge of any undue intimacy between Mrs. Gould and Justin Darmstadter, the actor, as the defense alleged, and employees of Castle Gould, members of the crew of the Gould yacht Niagara, hotel clerks, hair dressers and seamstresses, who testified to Mrs. Gould's sobriety on all occasions that they could recall, constituted the bulk of the testimony on the reserve forces which were called today. There are thirty or more such witnesses to be heard.

CORPORATION TAX IS AGREED UPON

Details Are Arranged at the Most Important Conference Held at the White House Since Mr. Taft Assumed the Presidency. Members of the Cabinet and Leaders of Both Branches of Congress Are Present, and for Two Hours the Proposed Measure Is Reviewed from Every Angle—Revenue to Be Realized Is Estimated at From Twenty-Five to Thirty Millions Annually.

Washington, June 22.—The details of the proposed measure for the taxation of the net earnings of corporation were arranged tonight at the most important conference that has been held at the White House since Mr. Taft assumed the presidency. There were present as the president's guests at dinner Attorney General Wickham and Senator Root, who are charged with the task of drafting the measure; Secretary of State Knox; Senators Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, Hale, Cullom, Flint, Smoot, McCumber and Lodge, constituting the Republican membership of the senate finance committee; Speaker Cannon, Representative Payne, chairman of the house committee on ways and means, and Representative John Dwight, of New York, the Republican whip of the house.

For two hours the corporation tax measure was reviewed from every angle. The senate committee's version of the measure was placed before the conference to make the form of the amendment public until it is ready to be introduced in the senate as a finance committee amendment to the tariff bill. However it is learned the plan provides that all corporations having a capital stock and organized for profit shall pay a tax of two per cent on net earnings. The corporations coming within that designation will be compelled to make returns to specially named agents of the bureau of internal revenue, giving the amount of their gross receipts, interest, stock, bonded indebtedness and all other visible debts. Separate from these returns, the corporations will be compelled to report the amount of their net receipts, after deducting their general and ordinary running expenses, interest on bonds up to the amount of the capital stock of the corporation, interest on notes and other forms of tangible indebtedness, and any actual loss that may have been incurred in the business, which loss is not made up by insurance, salvage or other form of earnings. These losses will include the bad accounts of mercantile corporations, losses upon securities held by banks, uncollectible notes and all other forms of bad debts which are usually charged to profit and loss accounts.

HIDES ARE PUT ON THE DUTIABLE LIST

Disagreeing With the Action of the House, the Senate Upholds Its Own Committee by the Decisive Vote of 46 to 30. Tariff Is Fixed at 15 per Cent Advancement, Which Is the Provision of the Present Law—That the Assessment on Sawed Lumber Be $1.50 per Thousand Is the Recommendation of Chairman Aldrich, This an Increase of 50 Cents Over the House Rate.

Washington, June 22.—Late today the senate reached the voting stage on the hide schedule, and after several amendments had been defeated, the amendment of the finance committee fixing a duty of 15 per cent ad valorem on hides was agreed to, forty-six to thirty. This is the rate of the present law, but under the rulings of the treasury department is applicable only on hides weighing more than twenty-five pounds. The house placed all hides on the free list, but the senate committee restored the Dingley policy of adding them to the dutiable list. The senate sustained its committee. Senator McLaren undertook to have the provision amended so as to make the duty applicable to hides weighing less than twenty-five pounds, but failed, his amendment being voted down, thirty-one to forty-eight. An amendment by Senator Stone, placing not only hides, but many of their products, on the free list, was lost.

Lumber Schedule Introduced. Just before adjournment for the day at 7 o'clock, Senator Aldrich, on behalf of the finance committee, presented the committee's new lumber schedule and also a number of amendments relating to ironware and oil cloth. The committee proposed a duty of $1.50 a thousand on sawed lumber, which is a fifty-cent increase over the house rate. Neither the lumber nor the ironware schedules were acted upon.

Previous to the balloting more than six hides were devoted to speech-making, beginning at 10 o'clock with an argument by Senator McCumber for a duty on hides, in which he was sustained by Senators Gamble and Heyburn. They took the position that the effort to make hide policy was solely in the interest of the manufacturers, and Senator McCumber contended that this was a monstrous injustice growing out of the protection system. Senator Burton and, incidentally, Senator Page supported the free hide policy, the former in a speech of some length. He declared that the beef trust obtained all the benefit to be derived from a duty on hides.

One of the features of the day was a speech by Senator "Bob" Taylor, of Tennessee, which attracted much favorable attention and established good nature. Mr. Taylor pleaded for a tariff for revenue and took a decided position against few raw material. The finance committee's amendment increasing the duty on lumber to $1.50 per thousand carries with it an additional rate of from thirty-seven and a half to fifty cents, according to the number of sides upon which it is planned. These rates, Mr. Aldrich explained, are a reduction of 25 per cent on rough and finished lumber below the Dingley rates, except lumber graded good and better, which retains the duty of the present law. An amendment increasing the duty on shingles from thirty to fifty cents a thousand was also proposed.

A bird in the hand may be worth two in the bush, but Justice Montgomery is willing to give it up for only one in the bush. This indicates that the justice is not afraid to take a chance. Well, gameness is a prime requisite for a good candidate.

The irony of Howard Gould's position in regard to the pending divorce proceedings lies in the fact that he not only has to stand the expense of fighting his side of the case, but also the expense of fighting the plaintiff's side. The case has already cost $500,000, in round numbers, and the bills are still piling up.

Justice Montgomery's announcement that he will seek the nomination for governor blasts the last hope that Senator Smith might be spared the necessity of choosing between Montgomery and Musselman, or adopting the unsatisfactory course of being a neutral.

WHITE BRONZE

Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides, it is very expensive. WHITE BRONZE is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. They who do not investigate it. It has been adopted for over one hundred public monuments, and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. It has been on the market over 25 years and is an established success. Many granite dealers have bought White Bronze for their own burial plots. I have hundreds of beautiful designs of all grades of work, and want to have you see them if you are interested in a monument, headstone, marker or grave cover. On receipt of a postal card will be pleased to call with designs and samples of White Bronze.

Incubated in Strange Manner—Six little chickens that were incubated in a most unusual manner first saw the light of day yesterday. A little more than three weeks ago Henry Grant set twelve eggs under a hen, only to find a day later that the hen lacked the motherly instinct and had eaten three of the eggs. Accordingly, the nine remaining eggs were placed in a nursery pile, where they remained covered until yesterday. When taken out of their strange resting place, six of the nine were found to have broken shells, and with a little assistance, a half dozen as healthy and lively chicks as one could wish to see were brought forth into the world.

Road Work Delayed—Work on the county road to be built this summer from Harvey to Greenegen is practically at a standstill, owing to the non-arrival of the motors, which will furnish the power for operating the quarry and crusher. The road from Harvey to the crushing plant has been graded and some bridge work is now being done along the line of the proposed macadam highway. As soon as the motors arrive and can be installed, the work of road building will begin in real earnest. The International Harvester company's auto buggy, recently purchased by the commission, is running smoothly and is proving entirely satisfactory.

Bad Fire at Roscoe—A forest fire that has been burning near Roscoe, seven miles east of Stillman, on the east branch of the Munising railway, since Sunday, fanned by a high wind, assumed dangerous proportions Monday evening and got into the Cleveland-Chiefs large wood yard, with just how great loss had not been learned last evening at the Marquette offices of the company. The fire started about a mile south of the railroad track, but later crossed the track and Monday evening was burning the wood corded up on both sides of the roadbed. The company had about 100,000 cords of wood awaiting shipment from Roscoe, but how much of it had been destroyed could not be learned. The fire was reported to be under control yesterday afternoon.

Popular Young Couple Wed—Arthur Riopelle and Miss Nettie Giesegen, popular young people of the city, were united in marriage yesterday. The ceremony took place at the rectory of St. John's church late in the afternoon, the Rev. Father Jodely officiating. Theo. Savard was the groomsmen, and Miss May Haslett the bridesmaid. The wedding party had supper at the home of the bride, on West Park street, after which the company, augmented by a large number of the friends of the couple, repaired to the home of the groom, on West Washington street, where the remainder of the evening was devoted to a celebration of the nuptial event. A musical program was given, there was dancing, and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Riopelle will make their home on West Ohio street.

More Wireless Companies—If reports be true, Marquette is soon to have a multiplicity of rival wireless telegraph stations in operation. A few days ago the proposition of the United Wireless Telegraph company for installing a station in this city was outlined in these columns. Since then a letter has come to light from the Clark Wireless Telegraph and Telephone company, of Detroit, who offer a similar opportunity for the installation of a station in this city. This company claims to have stations at Detroit, Port Arthur, on the D. & C. boats and at many lake ports. Representatives of the Deforest Wireless Telephone company, now in the copper country, have stated that their company, which is in use in the United States navy, is to install a station in this city as soon as possible. It would appear that at least one of the proposals may become a reality.

INSURE WITH PETER WHITE & CO. ALUMNI BANQUET.

Held at Hotel Marquette Last Evening for Normal Students.

The Normal commencement this year was a departure from previous commencements in that the exercises were held in the evening, instead of in the morning, and the Alumni banquet, held at the Hotel Marquette last evening, following the program, was also the first Normal banquet that has occurred in the evening. It was attended by members of the Class of 1909, alumni of the Normal, the faculty and a few guests.

The banquet was served at tables seating groups of eight guests, and the dining room of the hotel was a pretty picture when the company was seated. The decorations of the walls were Normal and society banners, and additional banners were suspended from the ceiling. The musical numbers were the singing of the various class songs of the school. An excellent five-course menu was served.

J. H. Kaye, the principal, presided as toastmaster, and there were a number of responses. H. T. Johnston responded to a toast for the Ygdrasil society and Miss Mayer for Ostris. Miss Markham toasted the faculty and Miss Middle-dorf, a member of the faculty, spoke on "The Sequel." Dr. Downing concluded the program of toasts by a response on "The Alps." The responses evoked much enthusiasm, and abounded with references to school affairs. The entertainment broke up after the singing of a final class song.

HEAVIER SHIPMENTS EXPECTED.

Greatly Increased Movement of Ore Anticipated During July.

Without any particular reason for it, there is a persistent rumor abroad in local iron circles that there will be a decidedly increased activity in the ore shipping business with the advent of the coming month. Thus far the season has been a comparatively quiet one, although much better than at this time a year ago. To date the Cleveland-Cliffs interests have shipped from Marquette something over 140,000 tons of ore, while at this time a year ago but 51,300 tons had been shipped from this port. In a normal year, however, the company would have shipped something like 400,000 tons by this time.

It is stated that by July 1 all of the Cleveland-Cliffs fleet of vessels will be in commission, which is a pretty good indication that plans are being made for increased shipping. It is reported from the lower lakes that the demand for ore during the last few weeks has been more active than at any time since the panic, and the belief is expressed that the iron industry is gradually regaining its normal activity.

$100,000,000 FOR SUBWAYS.

A Gigantic Plan Proposed for New York Presented by Bradley-Gaffney-Steers Combination.

New York, June 21.—The most comprehensive and costly plan ever outlined for New York city was presented to the public service commission yesterday by the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers company. It includes the construction with private capital of the Broadway-Lexington avenue route from the Battery to the Bronx, a two-track connecting subway in Canal street, the Lafayette avenue-Broadway route in Brooklyn and two spurs of the Broadway-Lexington avenue route along Jerome avenue and 138th street in Bronx. The estimated cost of this work is $83,000,000.

The company stipulates as part of its offer that the city complete the construction of the bridge loop subway and build with its own money the first section of the Fourth avenue subway to Broadway, and eventually complete the Fourth avenue route to 42nd street, as already planned. The company offers to equip, maintain and operate the various routes named as one system, charging a five-cent fare and yielding transfers at interesting points. The cost of the routes to be built by the city under the offer would be $100,000,444, so the entire proposition is a $100,000,000 plan.

The company states in its offer that it will complete the Lafayette avenue-Broadway line and have trains running over it and the bridge loop subways within eighteen months, provided the city finish the loop lines within that time. For the construction and equipment of the Broadway-Lexington avenue route it figures that three years will be needed, and it will take a year longer to build and equip the two branches in the Bronx.

It will be noted that the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers company asks for only two of the four tracks in the bridge loop subway, thus leaving two tracks to another operator. According to its offer, it would end its system proper at Ashland place, Brooklyn, the end of the first section of the Fourth avenue subway route, but if the city builds this line through to 42nd street or to 138th street, the company offers to enter into a contract for the equipment and operation of the entire Fourth avenue route "upon a car mileage basis or such other equitable plan as may be devised." Not only does the company offer to build the entire part of the proposed system with its own money, but it also says it will take the city in as a partner and divide the profits after deducting operating expenses, maintenance charges, amortization payments, rentals, interest and cost of construction and equipment.

The company also suggests that the city be represented in the management of the operating company by the mayor, the controller and the chairman of the public service commission. The company offers to give whatever bond may be required, and, in case its proposal is not accepted, it offers to pay the cost of the construction and equipment of the system.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF PAROCHIAL SCHOOL.

PROGRAM GIVEN AT ISHPEMING THEATRE CONSISTED OF MUSICAL NUMBERS, DRILLS, A PLAY, AND AN ESSAY BY THE LONE GRADUATE, MISS MEEHAN.

The annual closing exercises of the parochial school, held yesterday afternoon at Ishpeming theatre, under direction of the sisters, was attended by a full house.

The program was a most pleasing one. It was opened with a "March Triumphant" by the Misses Bernadette Butler, Azaline Gunville and Louise Jackson, followed by a chorus, "This Is Our Holiday." The next number was a recitation, "Joan Of Arc in Rheims," by the junior class; then a play, "The Wild Duck," by the boys sang "The Wild Duck." The next number was "What Is In The Basket," by about forty little children made a tremendous hit. Each one approached the basket in turn, with an expression as to what it contained. The basket was finally overturned and out tumbled a pretty little girl, "The Girl Next Door," which was followed by a piano solo, "Souvenir," by little Miss Katharine Butler; next were living pictures of the Civil war in five scenes—"The Drill of the Recruits," "Marching Through Georgia," "The Round of the Flag," "Tenting Tonight" and the "Goddess of Liberty." During the poses, "Really Round the Flag" was sung with excellent effect by Robert Cronin, and Jerome Russell gave an appropriate recitation. This was followed by a piano trio, by the Misses N. Collins, L. Murphy and N. Coffey. Then there was "The Dance of the Seasons," by the girls. The costumes of the dancers were unusually attractive, and the lighting and scenic effects were beautiful. Little Miss Mary Lynch played a piano solo, "Folie of the Fairies," in a pleasing manner.

At the conclusion of the first part of the program a historical drama, "Zuma" or "Conquest of Peru," was presented. The cast of characters was as follows:

Zuma, an Inca Princess..... Miss Anna Ryan
Itza, Sister of Zuma..... Miss Nora O'Neill
Haravaca, an Inca Chieftain, Cousin of Zuma..... Miss Catherine Vogtlin
Count Henriquez de Castro, Viceroy of Peru, Benenice Cleason
Countess Isaura de Castro..... Miss Violet Cleary
Lady Beatrice, Friend of the Countess..... Miss Laura LaBrecht
Dona Marina, Intendant of the Viceroy's Household..... Miss Teresa Hickey
Celeste, Lady of Honor..... Miss Catherine Hennessey

Between acts two and three Miss Mary Nolan gave a recitation, "How Ruby Played the Piano." Between acts three and four there was a piano duet, "Dancing Over the Meadows," and between acts four and five there was an instrumental trio, "The Heather."

"The End Crowns the Work."

Miss Agnes M. Meehan, the only member of the senior class, presented it. The closing exercise, "The End Crowns the Work," was given by the girls. It was a bright and happy play that places the crown upon their scholastic labors and bids them go forth into the world's battlefield.

"What more appropriate quotation could be selected than this from Bishop Spalding's 'Education and the Higher Life':

"Some persons are not willing to take up the burden that they need to carry, in order to acquire learning. The great elements, which are essential to each and every one in pursuing his course through school are self-reliance, fidelity to duty and perseverance. We may consider the years long when we look to the end; but in the retrospect they are brief and precious. It is in youth that our characters are moulded, which if properly shaped will bring us the palms of victory.

In the age in which we live education is so universal that it is not to be acquired by great sacrifices on our part, to procure it, for we know that the neglect of proper education does harm not only to the individual but also to the state.

"Some fail to persevere in their education on the ground that the methods are being continually changed. But there is no basis for such complaints, although novel systems are being gradually introduced the foundation remains unaltered.

The dominant reason why so many persons neglect education is that they fail to realize the benefits derived therefrom, and again many assert that their environment is the principal hindrance; these people know in their hearts that such is not the case in this grand, free country in which we are so fortunate, as to reside. It is and always has been the desire of the leaders of our country that every man, woman and child, who is a resident of the 'Grand Republic' should be educated and they have labored unceasingly for that purpose and will should it be possible to any couple who will be married on the stage at the close of the performance tomorrow or Saturday night.

Following our usual custom to carry no goods from the theatre to another we have assembled and marked down the prices on all lines that have accumulated during the past six months. Special sales daily.

FROM MORGAN'S CURB LETTER.

"Trading in both the New York and Boston markets was irregular at the opening and after the first hour became comparatively quiet. Amalgamated showed a gain of $1, but after noon, pressure was noticeable, and the price declined to 77%, a new low level on this movement. The rest of the copper shares held very well. North Butte was an exception to the general rule, and gained 1/2% from opening sales at 55. National Mining was again weak, and sold under thirty cents. The talk is that the company needs funds, and that some difficulties have been met with in their banking operations. Cactus was quiet around 3 and 3 1/2%. Chief Consolidated traded at 1 1/2% and San Antonio at 10 1/4%. At 7 1/2 we find some inquiry for Live Oak, with very little stock coming out. Copper metal in the London market lost an additional 10 shillings and our market is quoted 1/2 lower all around in the bid price. It is not so much the offerings of copper shares as the fact that buyers are not so plentiful, and it looks as though we were running into usual summer dullness. We adhere to our belief, that conditions warrant materially higher prices for the metal, and that copper shares should around the present level will show handsome profits. Amalgamated improved a full point in the last ten minutes of trading, closing at 78 1/2, % over yesterday's final price. The steel shares were also firmer, and the Rails are well. STRONG DRINK IN HAWAII.

The natives of Hawaii are addicted to the use of alcoholic beverages, and manufacture a number of different kinds of intoxicants, but it was not until after the discovery of the islands by Captain Cook, in 1778, that spirituous liquors became known to the Hawaiians. Since the early part of the nineteenth century American missionaries have been struggling to crush out this evil, but have only reaped temporary successes at times. When they have been able to influence the reigning monarch and have his sanction their efforts.

For centuries, the plant possessing strong narcotic properties, and whose effect when drunk habitually is to injure the eyesight and cause other serious troubles. The root is either steeped in water or it is first macerated and water, then poured over it, and the liquid finally distilled off. The territory government levied a tax of from $50 to $100 annually on the sale of this drug, according to the size of the community. Honolulu, of course, paying the maximum figure. At the present time (ons of this "awa" root are used in this territory for the manufacture of a certain proprietary medicine. Another beverage which our revenue officers are endeavoring to suppress is distilled from a number of starchy and saccharine roots, chief among which is the "ti." This drink, called "olohala," is nearly pure alcohol, and its effects may easily be imagined. "Swipes," another fermented mixture of anything that will yield alcohol, is also made in small quantities, but it is becoming exceedingly difficult to detect the officers of the law, and these vicious drinks are gradually being stamped out.—Harper's Weekly.

INCOME TAX MEN ROUTED.

Result of President Taft's Message to Congress.

Some Doubt Whether the President or Aldrich Is Responsible for the Plan; but Without It the Income Tax Probably Would Have Been Passed by the Senate—Some Weak Points in the Corporation Tax Plan; Millionaires Hold Largely Bonds and Would Not Be Affected—People Anxious to Reach Big Fortunes.

Washington, June 22.—Having finished picking the hand of the Sugar Trust, and agreed to an emasculated Philippine tariff concession, the United States senate is now whittling about in the case of an income tax. Opinions differ as to whether President Taft or Senator Aldrich is responsible for the peculiar turn the issue of special taxation has taken. Mr. Aldrich started on the revision of the tariff opposed to any form of special taxation. President Taft is charged with shifting his position on this question. He first favored an inheritance tax, and it was upon his request that an inheritance feature was inserted in the Payne bill. He was known to favor the income tax only as the last resort of a hard pressed government, and neither he nor Mr. Aldrich, who dislikes the income tax as a stated proposition, gave any encouragement whatever to the many Republican senators who are insistent upon an income tax amendment. The income tax idea gained such support, however, that it would have passed the senate had not some decisive move been made by the administration to head it off; and then it was that the President came out into the open for a tax of two per cent on the net earnings of corporations and an income tax amendment to the constitution. Opinions differ as to whether Senator Aldrich, with whom the president appeared to have a complete understanding, led the president into sending a message to congress which routed the income taxers—horse, foot and dragons. The point, however, is not material. They are routed.

It is an anomaly that a senate which has been stubbornly refusing to reduce customs duties below the Dingley level should have lined up so strongly for the only proposition that would have permitted a reduction of duties without causing a treasury deficit. The senators who are insistent on the tariff and the senators who favor an income tax are not the same group at all. It is true that Cummins of Iowa is both reductionist and income taxer, but that is only a coincidence. Cummins could command seventeen Republican votes for the income tax where he could muster only eight for tariff reductions.

Taft Tax Threatens Party.

The President's message has been received by the income taxers with such passion that the merits of the president's position have been obscured. They see not only immediate defeat of the income tax amendment in the lightning flash from the White House, but they resent also a popular uprising against the so-called "Taft tax" upon corporations, which, they believe, threatens the serenity of the Republican party. The modern tendency in business is toward small capitalization and large bond

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance, the kidney poisons attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Klinger & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

ON LUGGAGE FOR USE.

What to Travel With During Summer "Vacationing."

"A garretful of trunks, and yet buying another trunk," exclaimed the friend. "Yes, Mother-in-law asked me if I were collecting trunks! Never before have I had the right kind. There are some inherited big ones—enough to break the backs of any two men in the lifting. There are two or three steamer trunks—always good, not large enough, but sometimes I take a couple of them. There is a huge covered trunk which went on my wedding journey, with all my fineries, but that always means charges for overweight, and nowadays it never is quite full.

"But at last I am satisfied," the hostess surveyed with complacency a new trunk, whose delivery while her friend was calling had aroused these reminiscences. "And how do you suppose I managed? Yesterday I started to town with trunk on my mind. At the station, catching sight of the baggage master and being a commuter in good standing, I asked his advice on the trunk question. "Get that kind, madam," he said, pointing to a plain looking trunk, perhaps thirty-four or thirty-six inches long and proportionately wide. "Doesn't matter much what it is made of—if it isn't too heavy—but be sure it has strong metal ends, good hinges and clasps. Most of all, look out to get a trunk with these straps, one on each end; these straps will save your trunk case the wear and make it last twice as long. If more trunks had straps there would be fewer broken locks and hinges."

"I wish somebody would advise me about suit cases," said the visiting friend. "I wish you had the right kind of hand luggage." "That is simply enough solved," declared the hostess. "Experience itself taught me. You know one can't always have a maid or a porter at one's command. For two or three years I almost wrenched my shoulder ball-and-socket joint by trying to carry, airily, a Gladstone bag which I bought in old Chester on a European trip. That bag is up in the garret now. Next, thinking to provide something lighter, I bought a conventional leather suitcase, but when it was laden ever so lightly it was very little better than the Gladstone bag, so I cast that aside. Then I went to one of those extreme-bought a straw matting covered suit case, light and inexpensive. It went on one evening, and I always felt like hiding it behind my skirts when I had to lift it—and on the second journey the sides broke; that was its finish. Finally I bought a most respectable, not to say good looking, straw suit case, stoutly woven, with leather corners, two straps, brass hinges and fastenings, and that has proved just the thing.

"Lightness and strength are what one wants to have in luggage, and luggage is a vital question just now, when everybody is packing to go somewhere," she added. "If you have a room and a deep tray for thin goods, and I shall always carry one of those plaid, English-like rolls for wraps and such incidentals in case my not over-large trunk isn't quite roomy enough."—New York Tribune.

GIRL SWINDLER IN PARIS.

The young woman who a few days ago got a good luncheon at an expensive hotel in Paris, a complete trousseau and a motor ride without paying a cent, and all within four hours, established a record in swindling.

She was charmingly dressed and seemed to be about twenty. She arrived at a fashionable hotel on the Avenue de l'Opera, said she was the wife of a French army officer, whose name she gave, and engaged the best suite of rooms. After an extensive luncheon, her apartments she called for a motor car—a car without a taxi, as it looked better. The car came with a resplendent chauffeur and she drove to a dressmaker's, where she ordered a quantity of clothes to be ready in a few hours.

From there she went to a lingerie shop and ordered a pile of garments. These were brought to her hotel, where she went through them, rejecting some. Having selected what she would keep she went downstairs "to get change from the porter." At the door her motor was still waiting and she placed the lingerie in it and drove back to the dressmaker's. There she put on one of the new gowns and had the others packed up. She offered the use of her car to the dressmaker's son, who drove off in it with the bill to present to her husband, who she said, would have arrived at the hotel and would pay it. She herself took a cab with one of the dressmaker's girl assistants to carry the parcels.

The dressmaker's son on reaching the hotel found only the lingerie shop messenger, who was growing moony. The two men hurried back to the dressmaker's establishment, where they breathed easily on learning that an assistant had accompanied the customer; but the girl came back alone and crestfallen.

She had been sent to buy a box of candy while the lady waited in the cab. When she came out the cab had gone with the distinguished young lady, who had thus swindled a dressmaker, a lingerie shop, a motor cab company and a hotel-keeper between luncheon and tea time.—London Letter, New York Sun.

INFANT SAVES FATHER FROM A DRUBBING

A NUMBER OF NEGAUNEE BUSINESS MEN ENDEAVORED TO COLLECT MONEY FROM A DEAD-BEAT BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE FOR FINLAND.

Oscar Jyhala, who, together with his family, left Negaunee Monday night for their former home in Finland, had many people at the train to see him off. They were not there, however, to wish him good luck on his journey, but all endeavoring to force him to settle accounts he was leaving unpaid, leaving behind a dead-beat before his departure for Finland.

Bishop Williams' Address.

Bishop Williams said in part: "I have taken for my subject on this occasion 'The Ministry of Teaching,' its motives, methods and aims. I have so worded it with intention. The purpose of this phrasing is to strike at once into the deepest and noblest motives that can inspire your chosen life work. A great preacher has said that our motive gives its character to the single act or the whole career; it inspires just as the dweller gives his character to the house he inhabits.

"Even so the humblest work is dignified and exalted by the high motives that claim it and make it their home and express themselves in its every function; while the noblest professions and callings are degraded by the low ends they are so frequently made to serve, by the hungry mercenary motives which take refuge in them.

"So it is with your chosen career. If I should call it the work of teaching, I should suggest at once to your minds a trade, whose chief if not supreme object was a livelihood, bread and butter and wages. If that be your purpose in life, for God's sake and for man's sake, stay out of the temple of education. Profane not this ark of God with unclean hands. Take something, anything else; with the same talents and industry you can make far more money at almost any other job than this. We bewail sometimes the meagre pay of preachers and teachers. I am not sure that I altogether share in that feeling. It wrings my heart often to see the pinched, starved lives of those who are rendering the noblest services to their fellow men. I wish they could have such support as would insure a more dignified, if not a more comfortable existence. Especially do I covet for them the means of a larger culture. But there is a compensation in this very meagerness of the average salary in these ministries of the church and the school. It tends to safeguard and protect these noblest callings from those who would profane them. It goes far to eliminate the mercenary motive and exclude those who are inspired thereby. The mercenary motive inevitably spoils everything it touches. In art it produces pot-boilers, cheap chromos, flaring posters, and the unspeakable caricatures of our so-called funny papers, than which there is nothing in the realm of so-called art more indecent or degenerate. In literature it gives us the 'pen-ny-a-line' and the writer of the dime novel and erotic drama, which undermine the foundations of character, individual and social. In politics it gives us either the demagogue or the grafter, that leech upon the plutocracy who earns the wages of prostitutes by sacrificing all public interests to the unjust and special privileges, instead of the statesman who stands bravely for the commonwealth. And we shall find some day that that same mercenary motive vitiated the commonest pursuits, ditch-digging, rail-roading, mining, to the most material needs of the community, even as it does the higher callings of art, literature, politics, preaching and teaching. There can be no honest work, nobly done, except it be inspired by honest and noble motives. And the only motives adequate to the inspiration of the best work are the glory of God and the service of men. May God keep alive these motives at least in the school and the church and protect them from hireling shepherds who devour the flock.

"Neither would I have you look upon your calling as a profession. A profession is something one professes. It concentrates attention upon one's own skill and proficiency. It is apt at least to give chief heed to the methods and modes of an art or science rather than to the human purpose and object, and the process, it becomes technical and professional rather than humane and human.

"Here is a teacher whose eyes are forever glued to the examination paper, the copy, the essay, the lesson book, but he never looks at the pupil. He measures the whole value of the process by the conformity of the intellectual product, the thing written or recited, to an established form or type of correctness. He forgets or ignores the child with his human mind and will, heart and soul. That is the professional teacher.

"Here is another who fastens his attention on the child he is teaching, searches with painstaking care for the real needs of the child nature, hails with eager joy every evidence of the right putting forth of the child's powers, values the intellectual product, the lesson recited, the examination paper written, the thing done, however crude and imperfect and far from the standard, in just the degree that it evidences the putting forth of those powers in right direction, the development and strengthening of the child mind and will and soul. That is the teacher who has caught a glimpse of the ministry of teaching.

"Here is your great opportunity and here is your tremendous responsibility. Into your keeping and training is placed this plastic nature of childhood, ready to fix the impressions you shall make most deeply upon it, sure to keep the shape which you so largely give it. You largely determine all the after life and character and your responsibility is the heavier because, by reason of the ignorance and neglect of the average home, the work that should be done by parents is left so largely nowadays to the teacher.

Old and New Methods.
"So much for the teacher's motive and opportunity. Now let us take up briefly the teacher's work. Permit me in passing to say a word of criticism upon some of our modern ideas and methods of education.

"We are all familiar with the contrast commonly made between the old and the new methods of education. The aim of the old method was chiefly the imparting of knowledge, the child was largely in pouring into the child's memory, rather than his mind, a mass of information, alleged facts, theories, the hypotheses and formulae of knowledge, and then running it all down like an asphalt pavement until neither trees, flowers, nor even grass could grow. It often made the mind impervious to all new ideas and effectually suppressed the development of all original powers and faculties. It repressed far more than it evoked or educed.

"The new method aims at a real education, that is, it seeks to educate, evoke, develop and train the original and inherent interests, tastes and faculties of the child's nature rather than simply to cram the memory with alleged knowledge.

"That contrast is in the main true enough and we have undoubtedly made a great advance in the art of true education. But yet we have lost something. In our haste to eliminate a drudgery leading to the child mind we have lost something of discipline, with its consequent capacity for stick-to-itiveness, patience and persistence. Life has much drudgery to be done that can be done only by grim determination and uninteresting application and we often miss those qualities in the child trained under our modern methods. The path of knowledge is too frequently made a broad, smooth level highway which requires no hard climbing or surmounting of obstacles and conquering of difficulties. Often it becomes a primrose path where the child is lured on from point to point of his progress by constantly changing and attractive interests. The method makes severe demands upon the teacher but little on the child. We coquet with his likes and dislikes but do not train his powers of application and endurance.

"Moreover there is often a sad lack of accuracy and grasp of details in the knowledge imparted. We are afraid to put too much stress upon the memory and other more mechanical faculties of the mind. And yet there is a period from about eight to twelve when those powers are in the ascendancy and they ought to be seized and developed. If we let this opportunity go, it will never come again.

Duty of the Teacher.

"It is the imperative and paramount duty of every teacher and educator, instead of every one interested in true culture and morals, to set himself firmly against this over-stressed emphasis on the so-called practical side of our popular education and to labor earnestly to restore to it a due proportion between the instrumental and the formative elements. We must stand stoutly for a true culture. We must re-emphasize our education. We must see to it that our children are as familiar with the best that has been thought and said, with all the great literatures, as they are apt now to be with masses of machinery and bits of jelly fish. And we cap not begin too early to develop and train the nascent tastes and fill the mind and memory with the noble and the beautiful. We must open to our pupils those immunities which are the refuge and solace of life, which dignify and ennoble existence, which give it richness and interest, meaning and content. And without which it becomes a mere treadmill of purposeless drudgery, a closed circle, making a living in order to live and living in order to make a living.

"And then beyond the purely cultural rises the moral and ethical. And here we reach the climax and apex of all true education. Without the moral and ethical both education and life become a mere torso, a headless monstrosity. Instrumental knowledge and training may sharpen the tools of life. Culture may polish them. But ethical and moral education can alone train the will that handles them. Without that training these tools may be used as implements of destruction instead of construction, weapons of slaughter instead of implements of service. Some of our best trained and most cultured men are simply our cleverest rascals and most efficient knaves.

"And yet this is the element that is most commonly neglected, if it be not left entirely left out, in our modern educational system.

Indirect Methods Best.
"A child is rarely analytical and he is generally and fortunately impervious to scientific ethics. If any of it does soak in, it frequently spoils him. It brings on the disease called the New England conscience. It makes him morbid and introspective, it paralyzes action and decision.

"Well, then, if we cannot teach religion, the Bible or the science of morality and ethics, can we do nothing? Nay, we can do much, vastly much, but it must be by indirect methods chiefly. The shortest way into a child's heart and will and soul is not the straight line of direct instruction but the roundabout way of indirect suggestion and influence. All you can do for him is to motivate him right and then let him 'gang his own gait.' And that can be done in thousand ways.

"It can be done in the discipline and atmosphere of the school room. When the child enters the school, he is a pure individualist, acting out instinctively and thoughtlessly every impulse that comes to him. The first thing he has to do at school is to subordinate himself, his desires, instincts, impulses, to the general welfare. He must not talk aloud, make noises whisper or do anything that will disturb others in their study. That is a first fundamental principle of ethics, the subordination of self to the general good. And he absorbs it unconsciously from the atmosphere of the school.

"It can be done still better on the play ground. There is no more effective school method of moral and ethical culture than in play ground, and no better text book than the game, psychologically studied and applied. The team game, for instance, merges the individual into the social and general service. The self must be sacrificed for the sake of the team and the bonds of fellowship are cemented and the spirit of patriotism and social service is born. It can be done still better by that culture which familiarizes the child with the noblest and best that has been thought and said in all the ages. Every great bit of literature learned leaves a deposit from the unseen, a crystallizing and determining element in the flux of forming character. A child ought to be saturated with such literature, carefully chosen and adapted to his age according to psychological principles. The great legends and hero tales which insidiously inculcate the grand virtues of courage, bravery, endurance, etc., belong to the younger ages. The romances and poetry that teach with the finest sentiments and more altruistic and social motives belong to adolescence. And every true teacher should know such literature widely and deeply, also to know how to create an enthusiasm for it in the minds of his pupils.

Personal Influence Important.
"And lastly and chiefly, it can be done through personal influence. I mean not direct and conscious influence, that always fails. The child senses and resents it as much as he does the moral to the fable. He is a shrewd observer. He knows perfectly well when you put it on and he sees through the mask. He scents the bait and he shuts himself tight against all your approaches. He sets you down as a Pecksniff and your usefulness as a moral trainer for that child is at an end. There is no keener discernment of the heart than a normal child.

"But there emanates from every one of us an atmosphere, the efflux of his personality, the unconscious influence of his character. And if the soul be true, it carries healing with it like Peter's shadow. It carries inspiration in it like Pippin's song. And others feel it and by it take knowledge of us of what sort we are, and are blessed accordingly. None are so open and susceptible to that influence as are young children. They absorb like sponges, they reflect like mirrors, they imitate instinctively everything they admire, even defects. The mightiest human force is personality and the medium through which that force acts is fellowship, friendship.

"Therefore should you prepare yourself for your calling as the knight of old did for his vocation, as the minister of the word and sacraments should prepare for his today.

"But I would not end with the awfulness of your responsibility, great as that is. That might be a note of depression and of fear. And indeed you ought to enter upon your great work with fear and trembling. But I would give you last a note of gladness and inspiration. Keep ever before you the greatness of your opportunity and the joy of your high calling. In the reach of its influence, in the beneficence of its service, in its potentialities alike for blessing and blessedness, there is no vocation higher, nobler, more glorious than the ministry of teaching."

Marquette Steam Laundry and Dye Works

WE OPENED a new department this spring to relieve the woman of that dread day, "Wash Day," and it is greatly appreciated by those who have tried it.

At present we call it "Wet-wash," it should be called "Damp-wash," as after washing the clothes we extract the water, sending them home damp, the white work just dry enough to iron and the underwear to be dried.

The entire washing, if it does not weigh over thirty pounds, will cost you only fifty cents, over that weight, ten cents for each five pounds.

If you are now having your work done the Rough-dry system (with all the flat pieces ironed) you will not like the new method, but if you are having it done at home, you would enjoy the Damp idea—it makes a great saving.

Remember our regular wagons do not handle the Wet-wash work. If you want to try the Damp idea, phone and the "Wet-wash" wagon will call.
