MARQUETTE, MICH., OCT. 21.

Entered as mail matter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

Dr. Cook's announced intention to give up money-making for a time and set about getting in his proofs has met with general endorsement.

Mr. Bannard has so far escaped the mud batteries in New York. Inspection of his record since he left the cradle must have failed to furnish any ammunition.

Justice Gaynor is not Murphy's right bower. He says he isn't; so does Murphy. Certainly it would be unreasonable for the New York voters to ask for more satisfactory assurances.

However, most men would be willing to take on President Navin's troubles if they could also take on the money he has made out of that Detroit baseball team during the past three seasons.

Rasmussen, after interviewing thirty-five Eskimo, is said to be more certain than ever that Dr. Cook reached the pole. To be sure he hadn't seen it, took a shoe and Ap-pe-lah, but maybe he will call upon these distinguished gentlemen before he returns home.

The city of Marquette bought its water power on the open market before the government went into the conservation business. If more cities had been similarly logheaded at the same time their rates for electric service would now compare more favorably with those that are charged here.

The wrecking of the Mineral Point Wis. bank by its vice president, Phil Allen, Jr., with its consequent train of death and ruin, has not yet been opened up enough to make it possible to be certain whether it was a case of directors who didn't direct, or inspectors who failed to inspect. Not unlikely it was a combination of both.

Governor Warner opened the big dairy show at Milwaukee this week, and talked dairy matters with the best of the experts. As the governor modestly put it, he is "something of a dairymen himself." In fact it has been one of the stock charges of his enemies that he is a better dairymen than governor, but his friends have not agreed to this estimate.

Mr. Jeffries' manager assures us that we will have the answer to the puzzle, "Can Jeffries lick the big bla k?" within four months, and Jeffries backs him up. Impressario Corbett informs us that the one time champion is as fit as the traditional fiddle, and Mr. Johnson has lately demonstrated that his health is also good enough to stand any amount of roughing it. So let the promoters step up.

Congressman Bennett, who is conducting the Republican campaign, says that a systematic canvass has shown a drift from Gaynor to Bannard in certain parts of New York and a drift from Gaynor to Hearst in other parts, and predicts Bannard's election. But to be on a safe side the Republicans propose to hold 1,500 meetings daily in the last two weeks of the campaign. They want to make the result as hard as possible on Tammany and its Justice Gaynor.

Marquette university is putting in overtime this week getting its football team in condition for the Michigan game, which is to be played at Milwaukee Saturday. Last year the Marquette team gave Yost's proteges a hard fight, and they were fortunate to get away with the big end of the score. Consequently Yost is not underrating what he has to accomplish Saturday. The Marquette team isn't unduly hampered by restrictions as to eligibility. The players are sturdy fellows, and well schooled in football. Doubtless Coach Yost will give vent to a sigh of relief when Michigan has disposed of them by a satisfactory score.

The United States supreme court has granted a petition of the Northwestern Life Insurance company of Milwaukee for a review of the decision of the circuit court of appeal that the company must pay a $15,000 policy on the life of Mayor McCue, of Charlottesville, Va., who was hanged in February, 1905, for the murder of his wife. McCue had $65,000 of insurance policies, taken out the previous year, but the Northwestern company was the only one to fight collection, the other companies paying in full, largely because of a wave of sympathy for the children throughout the south. The Northwestern company takes the ground that it is not obligated to settle because McCue's life was taken by the state in explanation for a crime, a contingency not contemplated by the policy. The question is one that has never been passed on, and the decision in the pending case will therefore establish a precedent. It is regarded as one of the most interesting cases that has ever arisen in the course of insurance litigation.

Ty Cobb is another Detroit Tiger who will want a contract for the next season that will carry a considerably larger rate of pay than he has received the past year, and Mullin is still another. Ty will point to the fact that he was the "headliner" of the team the past season, and Mullin will direct President Navin's attention to the number of games he won, as a sufficient reason why he ought to get $1,500 or $2,000 more than his present contract calls for. Other players may also want a larger share of the money they have been earning for the Detroit club, but their demands will be comparatively modest. Take it all and all, however, the Detroit magnates will have to lay out considerably more money than ever before for their playing talent. It is possible that the agreement on terms will be attended by some difficulty. Navin, for instance, is reported to question Jennings' management of his pitchers in the Pittsburgh series, and may throw it up to him when he asks for a better contract.

In his annual report, Judge Advocate General George B. Davis reviews the controversy between the advocates and the opponents of the army canteen. The prohibition of the sale of beer and other drinks on the army reservations has, he says, "undoubtedly caused the location near the military reservations of resorts for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and which pander to the appetites and passions of those enlisted men who, by reason of the prohibition in question, frequent the same." General Davis says that these resorts have a most harmful effect on discipline, and, as they are beyond military jurisdiction, little can be done by the military authorities to keep them in check. A majority of the courts martial have their cause, directly or indirectly, in indulgence in liquor. State legislation prohibiting the saloon has resulted in improving the conditions existing at some of the posts, but at the others they were infinitely better when the canteen had a legal status than they have been since it was legislated out of existence.

There is no exaggeration in the statement of the president of the National Carriage Builders' association that this industry has been seriously injured by the rapid growth in popularity and use of the automobile. This was long ago borne in on carriage and vehicle manufacturers. Nor does the future hold out any hopes of better conditions for them. In fact, they are destined to see a still greater falling off in the call for their product, for we are by no means at the limit of the demand for automobiles. It is increasing rapidly, under the encouragement of the numerous excellent medium-cost machines that are now being marketed by several of the leading manufacturers. The invasion of the farming districts by automobile agents is another factor that promises further embarrassment to manufacturers of horse vehicles. The past two years have seen a marked development of the use of power vehicles in the rural districts, and this field has yet only been touched. Capital invested in carriage companies is none too well placed, in view of the rapid upgrowth of the newer and better means of communication. Its salvation must be found in directing activities along new lines, and it is an interesting fact that a number of the leading concerns have branched out as manufacturers of automobiles, seeking a future in the industry which has relegated the one in which they made their past successes.

TONNAGE TAX.
There is a well-defined belief that the tonnage tax for the iron and copper mines will have a place in the campaign to be waged for the office of governor next year. It is pointed out that with four candidates in the field for the Republican nomination the ground will be closely scanned for issues that will serve to differentiate one candidate from another, and it is remarked that in view of the possibility of arousing the ignominious vote in lower Michigan on this issue it will be strange if some one of the men who would be governor does not claim it as his own. The advent of an upper peninsula man in the field of candidates is regarded as making this outcome the more probable, for the reason that the rallying of the upper peninsula vote to Mr. Osborn will leave the others comparatively little to hope for in this region.

A lower Michigan correspondent, commenting on the matter, has said that the upper peninsula might as well meet this issue now as later, that there is a growing interest in it below the straits, and a disposition at this time to believe that a tonnage tax would be fair and equitable. To counteract it, he says, those who believe that the tax would be unjust and inequitable will have to prove their case. It will be mistaken policy to follow any ostrich-like policy, and to endeavor to try to dispose of the issue by ignoring it. What the situation demands, from the upper peninsula's view point, in his opinion, is an education, full and fair, of the voters to show the wrong that would be wrought by the proposed change.

This is a reasonable view of the situation. If the upper peninsula had its way the issue would never be raised.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Noah, Ky.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from headaches, nervous prostration, and hemorrhages. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, so that I can do all my household and manual work, and attend to the store and post-office, and I feel much younger than I really am."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most successful remedy for all kinds of female troubles, and I feel that I can never praise it enough.—Mrs. LIZZIE HOLLAND, Noah, Ky.
The Change of Life is the most mysterious period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.
For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst of female troubles—menstrual irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

It believes that justice requires that the basis of taxation for all its industries should be the same as for the remainder of the state, and that any special system, such as the tonnage tax, would be inequitable. But there is no way in which the upper peninsula can prevent the issue from being raised. It can be brought up by any candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, or if they all avoid it, it can be resorted to by the Democrats in the hope of creating a favorable diversion.

Upper Michigan's Last Moose—
Captain J. F. Fungam of Ontonagon writes as follows: "The last moose seen in northern Michigan was in March, 1867, and was shot by a half breed Indian between the village of Ely and Lake Umbagog. He had the moose brought to Houghton and sold it for twenty-five cents a pound. It was a full moose and weighed one thousand and twelve hundred pounds. A hunter bought the head for $8 and carried fifteen cents to see it. He made all kinds of money."

Snow Caved in the Roof—
Mullen Bros., furniture dealers at Ironwood, suffered a severe loss as a result of an unprecedented blizzard and heavy snowfall a few days since. The roof of their store building gave way from the weight of snow piled on it, and caved in. The plate glass front was broken and the interior of the store captured in lower Michigan and elsewhere. Among the famous scientists of America who for years have pointed out differences between the steelhead and rainbow trout was Professor David Starr Jordan, of Palo Alto University. Recently Professor Jordan visited the Soo fish hatchery of which H. H. Maris is superintendent, and while there was asked to explain why in the steelhead differed from the rainbow trout. Whereupon the eminent scientist declared he had changed his mind and is now convinced that the steelhead and rainbow trout so-called are one and the same.

Game Warden's Chosen—
Taking up the matter of the appointment of two game wardens, it was decided by the Delta county board to select one from Gladstone or Escanaba and the other from across the bay. Among the candidates from the latter district were Charles Olmsted, Frank Devet and Olson. The vote showed nine for Olson, fourteen for Devet and two for Olmsted. The wardenship of the Escanaba-Gladstone district there were two candidates nominated, J. W. Call of Gladstone and John E. Jackson. The vote resulted in Jackson's favor, fifteen to eleven. Mr. Call was not a candidate for the position until the day the supervisors brought his name up in the meeting. The board elected Mr. Spooner of Nahnua as school examiner, the other nominees being J. H. McDonald and C. V. Woodport. John P. Helm was reappointed supervisor of the poor without opposition.

Calumet Man's Prize—
A train dispatcher in the employ of the Mineral Point road at Calumet is a "prize" winner. A short time ago the M. & T. railroad put on a new flyer between St. Louis and points in Texas and opened a competition whereby a prize of $100 was given to the person who should choose the best name for the new train. The road already had one train, known as the "Katy Flyer." The Calumet man noticed the fact that a prize for a name was being offered and he suggested a list. A friend suggested one name to him, "Katy Limited" and the dispatcher agreed to share equally with the friend if the name he suggested should happen to be the one chosen. And so matters stand to this day, for the M. & T. people named their new flyer, the Texas train, "The Katy Limited." But there were 124 other persons in the contest for the $100 prize who likewise decided on "The Katy Limited" as a fine name for the new train. So the prize was divided equally, each of the 125 receiving a check for forty cents. The Calumet dispatcher divided equally, giving his friend twenty cents out of his own pocket before cashing the check. But

Fly Paper Diet Nearly Fatal—
Fly paper diet nearly proved fatal for the three-year-old daughter of John Schweisarka of Wells. During the absence of her parents, the child swallowed a portion of the deadly liquid and was quickly seized with cramps. The prompt arrival of a doctor saved the little one's life.

Grange Becoming a Power—
With a membership of more than 500, the grange is bound to be a power for good in this county, says the Manistiquie Pioneer-Tribune. When this body places its stamp of approval on an issue, or rejects it, it will behoove the remainder of the county to sit up and take notice.

Students Organize Association—
The students of the Manistiquie High school have organized an athletic association. The voters are President Patrick O'Hara, vice president, Bedd Highland; secretary, Joseph Weber; treasurer, Blanche Hivison. Glenn Thomas has been elected manager of the football team.

Epworth League Convention—
The convention of members of the various Epworth leagues in the south central part of the upper peninsula will be held at Gladstone Monday, Oct. 23. A large attendance is expected. The Epworth league is the young people's society of the Methodist church and it plays an important part in the church work.

Broker Brady Takes Partner—
Eugene G. Brady and Howard France have formed a partnership under the firm name of Brady & France, and have succeeded to the brokerage business conducted by Mr. Brady in the past office building at Ironwood the past five years. Direct private wires will be maintained with the New York stock exchanges, and to the trading centers of the country.

Bryan to Lecture at Ironwood—
William Jennings Bryan will lecture at Ironwood Saturday, Oct. 30, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church. With the exception of a fifteen minute address in the national campaign of 1896, the great orator has never been heard in the geographic range metropolis and there is a general desire there to hear his forthcoming lecture.

Menominee's Costly Blaze—
The fire at Menominee that resulted in the partial destruction of the plant of the J. W. Wells Lumber company is estimated to have caused a loss of $50,000, insured to the extent of half that amount. The fire started from a hot box and within fifteen minutes from the time the blaze was discovered, the mill was one mass of flames. The fire arrived shortly after the alarm was turned in and the lumber piles were kept from destruction by the efficient work of the crew. The burned portion of the mill, two band mills, a gang and edger and the smaller cut-off and trimming machinery. The company will build a new and modern mill to take the place of the destroyed structure and have it in operation before the first of the year. The destruction of the plant will in no way interfere with the plans for the hardwood factory which the company is preparing to build during the winter.

Bad Blow for Rockland—
Commenting on the decision to suspend operations at the Michigan mine, the Rockland Reporter says: "The prospects for the village of Rockland in the coming winter are certainly anything but bright. Superintendent Brady went elsewhere and the loss of the week and at once gave out the information that our only shaft, the Michigan mine would be shut down for the winter. This means that more than 300 men will be compelled to seek employment elsewhere and the loss of the pay roll of these men is disheartening to the business men and trades people. At the present price of copper the company was continually sinking money and the directors concluded that it was better to stop production for a time than to take out the rock at a loss. This, of course, is a business proposition and no one can be censured justly for the suspension. There is some work yet to be done before a complete shut-down can be made, but a few weeks will find the mine idle. The workings will be kept unwatered, and diamond drill work will be carried on in search of new lodges on the property."

Attempts to Butcher Mother—
Insanely terrified by the belief that the parent was a relentless enemy seeking her death, Nancy Napau, an Indian girl living at Ogontz, Delta county, attacked her aged mother with a keen-edged hatchet. The prompt interference of spectators prevented a shocking murder. It required five powerful Indians to hold the crazed young woman and several of them received painful cuts before they tore the hatchet from her grasp. Until several weeks ago, the young woman was in possession of her full senses. Then she began to harbor the belief that she had bitter enemies and the constant brooding developed the thought that they were seeking her life. The mother was walking along the side of the little home when the crazed girl seized the hatchet and dashed at her. The hatchet was poised for its fatal stroke when the insane woman was hurled to the ground by the spectators

Are Ore and the Same Fish—
Superintendent A. W. Maris of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's fish hatchery at Munising has insisted that as far as he knew only steelhead salmon and not rainbow trout had been planted in the Au Train river. Yet many successful and close observing fishermen have maintained that the steelheads which they caught in the Au Train were to all outward appearances identical with the rainbow trout they had captured in lower Michigan and elsewhere. Among the famous scientists of America who for years have pointed out differences between the steelhead and rainbow trout was Professor David Starr Jordan, of Palo Alto University. Recently Professor Jordan visited the Soo fish hatchery of which H. H. Maris is superintendent, and while there was asked to explain why in the steelhead differed from the rainbow trout. Whereupon the eminent scientist declared he had changed his mind and is now convinced that the steelhead and rainbow trout so-called are one and the same.

FACTS ABOUT MENOMINEE—
A new directory of Marinette and Menominee has been issued and is now being delivered. The cities both show a satisfactory gain in the number of names and consequently in population. The last directory was issued in 1907. There are 217 names of names of residents in the Marinette directory and 178 in Menominee. This is a gain of fifteen pages in Marinette and of sixteen in Menominee, or 325 names in Marinette and 500 in Menominee since the last book was issued. In the Marinette portion of the directory the total number of names, figuring an average of thirty-five to a page, is 7,500, and in Menominee 6,200 names, making a difference in Marinette of 1,305 names. The press of Marinette, in estimating the population from the directory, multiplies the number of names by two and four-tenths. This would give Marinette a population of 18,225 and Menominee 14,702, a difference in favor of Marinette of 3,523. The directory gives the following facts about Menominee: Area 2,798.4; assessment valuation, $5,343,180; net public debt, $67,500; miles of street, forty-eight; miles of pavement, sixteen; miles of cement sidewalk, twenty and one-half; miles of sewerage, fifteen and two-thirds; public parks, four; number of acres, eighty-two; police department, six men; one station; fire houses, two engines, one ladder truck; water works, daily average number of gallons pumped, 900,000; miles of water pipe, twenty-five; public schools, ten buildings, seventy-five teachers, 2,300 pupils, value of buildings and lots, $200,000; street railway, 17.9 miles; capital employed in manufacturing, $3,000,000; number of men employed in factories, 2,391; number of telephones in use, 900.

Copper Country

CONGRESSMAN TOWNSEND HERE.

Senatorial Aspirant Sees the Copper Country for a While.

Congressman Charles E. Townsend of Jackson visited the copper country yesterday. He arrived Tuesday evening from the iron country and was met at Houghton by T. H. Dawson, former school friend, of Concord, Mich. Mr. Townsend held an informal levee at the D. H. Jones Tuesday night and yesterday he was taken to Calumet by a number of Houghton people and shown the mines and other points of interest. The congressman said that he was here to get acquainted, he admitted that he wants to be United States senator, but he did not care to discuss issues at this time. The visitor left for Ironwood last night.

JUDGE STREETER VERY BUSY.

Circuit Court Jurist is Almost Continually on Duty at Court.

There is no office holder in the upper peninsula on whose time there is a more continuous demand than Hon. Albert T. Streeter, judge of the Twelfth judicial circuit. The business in his circuit has grown to such proportions that he is virtually holding court all the time either in Houghton, Keweenaw or Baraga county. Judge Streeter is in LaAnse this week, holding a term of the Baraga county circuit court. Immediately upon the conclusion of the term, if it can be finished this week, he will convene the Keweenaw term at Eagle River. He will then return to Houghton and take up again the September term of Houghton county's court, which he was compelled to temporarily adjourn in order to attend to other courts. He will probably be unable to complete all the business of the September term before Nov. 8, when the November term of the Houghton court will open. Next will come the Baraga and Keweenaw county terms again and it will probably be time then to open the January term of the Houghton county court.

HOUGHTON VS. IRONWOOD. Tie Game With Calumet Does Not Affect Houghton's Lead.

According to present arrangements the Houghton High school football team will leave Friday night for Ironwood, where it will play Saturday for the championship of the district. There was some doubt as to Houghton's right to this game because of the tie game with Calumet last Saturday. According to comparative percentages, Houghton still has the lead by a good margin, but it has always been the custom for copper country football champions to defeat opponents in the district before playing for the iron country or upper peninsula championships. On this account it was thought that Houghton might have to meet Calumet again and possibly Hancock to victory over Calumet three weeks ago. All this was cleared up when the Calumet High school called up Superintendent Kelley over the telephone and renounced its claim to another game, sending the Houghton boys its best wishes for success in the Ironwood and Escanaba contests.

ROWETT AND LETHO MATCH.

Cornish Champion and Finnish Aspirant May Go Gracoo-koman.

Jack Rowett of Bessemer, world's champion Cornish wrestler, has challenged Letho, the big Finnish wrestler of South Range, to a match at the Gracoo-koman style, the contest to take place at any date and any place in Houghton county. Letho has intimated through friends that he will be prepared to take on Rowett immediately after the Letho-Schulz match, now being arranged. He is willing to wrestle in the Gracoo-koman style, at which he is very expert. A match between the South Range man and Rowett should prove a big attraction, for both men are large and powerful and expert. Letho and Schulz have posted their forfeits and will meet on the mat Nov. 7.

The committee which has charge of the catch-as-catch-can wrestling tournament planned for the Keredge theater, at Hancock, Nov. 5 and 6, has decided upon the prizes. The first prize will be $250; second, $100; third, $50, and fourth, $25. Among those already entered are Karl Letho, G. Grinnell, K. Virtanen and John Hill of Ontonagon. The presence of "Germany" Schulz of Montana has brought forth the suggestion that he be prevailed upon to enter the tournament. At the Amphidrome last Monday evening Schulz challenged any 175-pound man in the world at catch-as-catch-can wrestling, and the coming tournament will furnish an excellent opportunity for him to step in and show what he can do.

REPAIR THE BREAKWATER.

Sup't. Banks Finds Storm Did Much Damage to Harbor Protection.

Superintendent Banks of the Portage lake waterway went to the canal yesterday in the tug Circle to begin preparations for repairs to the breakwater by last week's big storm. He examined the structure early in the week and found that two large steel face plates on the Lake side had been torn off and that the coping had been blown into it. He estimates that thirty cords of rock were washed out by the waves. It is too late this fall to make repairs, but Mr. Banks will take steps to prevent an increase in the opening and will be ready early in the spring to make permanent repairs.

ALL PYTHIANS INVITED.

The Hancock Knights of Pythias have arranged for a big social meeting on their hall in the Knott building, tonight on evening. Invitations have been sent to the members of all the other Pythian lodges of the county—Columbia of Houghton, Charity of Calumet, Laurium of Laurium and Chaseville of Chaseville. The Hancock members have been entertained by the other lodges and they will reciprocate. An excellent program of musical and literary numbers has been arranged. Mayor W. Frank James will preside. The speeches will be followed by luncheon and a smoker.

Mr. F. G. Fritz, Ontonaga, N. Y., writes: "My little girl was greatly benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative, and I think it is the best remedy for constipation and liver trouble." Foley's Orino Laxative is mild, pleasant and effective, and cures habitual constipation. Sold by all druggists.

According to a law passed by the last legislature the circuit courts of the state are always in session. This law is hardly a necessity in this circuit, the business of the courts making for that result anyway. The new law makes it possible for a circuit judge to reopen court at any time after the business of the term is apparently finished. This is for the convenience of the bar and the public, but it is probably inconjunctive for the judges as it virtually keeps them on duty all the time.

ARE NEARLY COMPLETED.

Three Calumet Churches Will Have Beautiful New Rectories Soon.

The three rectories being erected at Calumet for St. Anne's, St. Joseph's and the Polish church are nearly completed and will be ready for occupancy within a few weeks. St. Anne's rectory, located near the church on Scott street, is being rushed to completion. All the outside work, with the exception of laying the concrete walks, has been completed and the carpenters are at work on the interior. The furnishings for this house, which will be one of the finest and most costly in Calumet, are now being selected. The cement block rectory being erected for Rev. Father Wolke, of the Polish church, will be occupied before the end of next month. The old Grillo home, which has been moved to the vacant property adjoining St. Joseph's church on Eighth street, is being remodelled.

FUND IS STARTED.

Calumet Sportsmen's Club Wants to Promote Game and Fish.

A "sportsmen's fund" has been opened with a donation of $10 from the Calumet and Hecla Rod and Gun club, which is favoring the proposition of propagating game and fish in the woods and streams and lakes of the two copper country counties of Keweenaw and Houghton. The Calumet & Hecla club is having printed notices which will be circulated among the sportsmen and others interested. These notices tell of the plans of the organized sportsmen of the two counties and appeal for co-operation in making the region a better hunting ground. It appears, also, for funds, which are absolutely necessary if the proposed work is to be carried on. Donations of any amount are welcomed. Edmund State bank is the treasurer of the fund.

SOC FIRE TOURNAMENT.

Houghton Department Makes Early Discussion of Its Plans.

The Houghton fire department is beginning early to discuss plans for attending the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association tournament at the Soo next September. The department held a meeting Tuesday night at which it was virtually decided that a running team would be organized.

The Houghton firemen have always been exceedingly friendly to the Soo and its department. On two previous occasions the tournament has been held in the Lock City and large delegations went from Houghton. The Houghton department has not been represented by a running team since 1898, the time of Marquette's first tournament. Just what material is available is not known, but a good team could probably be organized if taken hold of in the right way.

DORAKYS WILL GET TOGETHER.

Will Meet at Red Jacket Municipal Building to Talk Temple.

The copper country members of the Order of the Knights of Khorassan, the "Dokays," will meet Sunday afternoon at the Red Jacket town hall for the purpose of talking over matters regarding the temple about to be instituted at Calumet. Every Dokay in the copper country is asked to be present. Among other matters to be talked over will be that of organizing a large class of Pythians to be given the Dokay degree on the occasion of the visit next January of the degree team of Al Sirat temple, Duluth, with which most of the Dokays of the copper country are now affiliated. Last June when the Al Sirat degree team visited Calumet it gave the copper country Dokays its promise to come again to put through a second class. The Duluth Dokays, who have among them officers of the supreme temple, have also agreed to assist the Calumet Dokays in securing the charter for the proposed temple.

TAX RATE IS HIGH.

Houghton County Taxpayers Will Have to Dig Deep This Year.

The taxpayers of Houghton county this year will pay a somewhat higher rate per dollar of assessed valuation than they did last year. It is difficult to tell just what the increase will be in the county as a whole, because each township raises a different sum of money. But the county rate is one and three-quarters mills and the state rate just now double this, so that the taxpayers will pay in state and county taxes five and three-quarters mills on every dollar of valuation not including the amount to be paid for township purposes. This variation in the two mills is seen by comparing Portage township, in which is situated the village of Houghton, and Ojibwa township. The latter raises for 1909 only $260 for township purposes. Portage township, on the other hand, raises $2,600 for school, $240 for township purposes, $7,000 for highway purposes, $1,000 for township purposes and a one-half mill school tax of $8,675.78. Its county tax is $15,181.91 and its state tax $2,585.27. Portage township, on the other hand, raises $127,214.11 for all purposes on its valuation of $8,675,389.

GREENE-CANANEA.

A Boston brokerage interest prominent in the recent buying movement in Greene says: "The buying in Greene which had been in evidence for past three weeks has been largely for investment, and the purchases have been entirely for those who are usually in a position to know the actual condition of the metal market as well as the physical condition of the property and its capacity in the way of copper production. During the past three years the market and above surface equipment of this property has been overhauled, improved and made more modern in every respect, so that the company can produce copper at a rate lower than at any time in its history. Extensive outlays have been made for equipment to make this possible. Of course the capitalization of Greene is so large that there must be a material advance in the metal before it reflects in large way this market value of the shares, but the fact remains that Greene is capable of producing heavily. The September record of close to 4,000,000 pounds is an indication of what may be expected in the future when the metal warrant."

ARIZONA MINING NOTES.

The Arizona Mining Journal says: The Denn shaft is now 1,335 feet deep and when the 1,600 foot level is reached drilling will be commenced in a westerly direction in an effort to ascertain the size of the ore body which was encountered on the 1,250 level. It is believed that this will prove to be quite large in extent.

AN ELEPHANT'S SAGACITY.

An incident which demonstrated the sagacity with which elephants are endowed, the other day, on the occasion of a circus in the town. At the conclusion of a children's performance an elephant proceeded along a narrow road with a pile in its trunk for the purpose of conveying water from a pump. A little girl wanted to get in the animal's way and the road being only wide enough to accommodate his substantial body the elephant hid down the pile, picked up the child with his trunk and gently lifted her to a place of safety, after which resuming his journey to the pump for the water.—Westminster Gazette.

Jerry Outwitted Jee.

Jerry Simpson loved to work off jokes on prominent men who "got after him." He and Joe Cannon, now speaker, had many lively fits. One day Jerry made a rip snorting anti-expansion speech in the house, just the kind that a popularist like Jerry could make.

"Had you made that speech in Manila," said Cannon, getting the floor and leveling his finger at the Kansas congressman, "you would have been tried by a drum-head court-martial and shot."

"Well," replied Jerry, "I would just as have been shot in Manila for making a speech of that kind as to be shot in Congress by an old scandal-hunter brass cannon from Illinois."

"That reply tickled Tom Reed so much that he came up to Jerry and said: "That was all right, Jerry; I forgive you a lot of things for that!"

Failure.

Among Mr. Carnegie's innumerable Scotch stories is one about a caddis of St. Andrews.

This caddis's wife—so Mr. Carnegie's story runs—was much troubled by her husband's loose way of life. He could never have a good day on the links, but he must end it with a wet night at the tavern. So, to cure him the woman lay in wait on the road one evening dressed in a white sheet.

When her husband appeared she recognized him as a judge, an awful white figure, with outspread arms.

"Who the devil are you?" asked the intemperate caddis.

"An Auld Nickie," said the figure, in a hollow voice.

"What's a shake o' yer hand, then?" said the caddis, who was in a pretty state of mind.

"It's a shake o' yer hand, then," said the wife's voice, which he had never heard before.

"What's the matter with you?" asked the intemperate caddis.

"It's a shake o' yer hand, then," said the wife's voice, which he had never heard before.

A Youthful Admirer.

Miss Ethel Barrymore's marriage has not affected her popularity. The proof of this lies in a pretty story.

Every night during an engagement in Boston, a tiny bunch of violets was sent to her. She always laid the violets in her dressing room, but one night she placed the purple flowers to their bed and the following day, when the usual fresh bouquet came to her, this straw came with it:

"Dear friend Miss Barrymore, I see you wear my violets so I know you got them. Tonight look at me. I will be ministered to just like in my shirt sleeves and my legs hanging over the front of the gallery."

Miss Barrymore looked. Her admirer, a look-alike of eight or nine years, was in the place and attitude he had promised, and she rewarded him with a smile and a nod of recognition.

A Gentle Rebuke.

Bishop Sanford Olmsted, of Denver, as his poem shows, has a literary touch at once delicate and firm.

"This touch was admirably manifested in a remark that Bishop Olmsted addressed recently to an affected young clergyman in the east.

The clergyman in his correspondence with the bishop dated his letters "St. Faith's Day," "St. James Day," "The Assumption," "St. Veronica's Day," and "St. Peter's Day," and so on.

"He, however, abruptly ceased this affected practice on receiving a letter from Bishop Olmsted dated, "Washing Day."

Ruin for His.

Silney Coram, the well known advertising expert, said at a recent banquet of advertising men in St. Louis City:

"Debit in advertising results in ruin. It's like debit in telephoning.

"Thus, the other morning, a daughter said to her mother in alarm:

"Why, what's the matter, mamma? You're as red as a tomato and your eyes are more glittering than when you had the fever!"

"The going straight down town," the mother answered, as she clapped a hand on her head and jerked the strings into a loop loosely. "I just called you further up on the telephone and heard him yell at the boy to say he wasn't."

WHY MEN LIKE SHORT WOMEN.

Short women nowadays frequently claim against nature. They gaze with envy upon their tall sisters and sigh as they note their elegant, graceful contour.

"Tall women are the first consideration," they explain, and that is true, so far as Dame Fashion is concerned. For dressmakers and milliners vie with each other in creating modes which will accentuate the charms of a tall, willowy figure.

The poor little dumpy women like to follow the fashion, and they frequently appear grotesque in costumes not at all suited to their individuality. They realize this, and resent the prominence given to their tall rivals.

most important folk in the world of fashion, it is proverbial that short women reign supreme in the affection of men.

A man will openly speak of his preference for the little woman. There is something altogether alluring and fascinating about her that appeals to his nature. She is usually light and airy, and she stimulates the protective qualities of man. The latter is old-fashioned in his ideas concerning women. He understands the literal meaning of chivalry and he unconsciously reverses the little lady's personality, when he can take in his arms and realize that she really belongs to him.

The man's sense of power is inherent in every man, and love for a little woman invariably brings forth his most chivalrous instincts.

The character, too, of a little woman is unusually bewitching. She is full of life and energy, and her bright, happy nature is very pushing. She does not attempt to cultivate the languid pose which is so often distinctive of a tall woman. She loves life and she loves laughter. She is generally loyal and true. But it is in those of sterner and deeper nature that the little woman shows her real nature. She is resolute, gentle and enduring, and she will rise to heights of heroism which call forth the admiration of everybody.

"Truly the little woman has no need to envious. If nature has denied her gifts of figure, she has been prodigal in gifts that are infinitely more important. She captivates and bewitches mankind, and her tall sisters recognize this and covet her accordingly.

DO MOST PEOPLE LOVE SUNSHINE?

Ask that question of every one of your friends, after a winter of colds and influenza, and each will look at you with amazement. Yet, if further interrogated, almost all will admit that many of their actions do not agree with their explicit statement, that sunshine is life to them, that they revel in it, and so forth. We love sunshine but we are constantly shutting it out of our rooms, in spite of the fact that we are convinced that the glorious rays mean death to our tiny microbe enemies.

We commence with the "spring sun," just that very warm and light that restores our impaired vitality. As soon as its rays enter our rooms through the window panes down come our blinds.

In the first place, the rays of the sun in spring are so searching that they slip up the dust and the faded hangings and carpet in a way that makes us want to clean and renew with the utmost rapidity.

Then those penetrating gleams "take the color" out of everything. The wall paper, only just put on, so to say, loses its color, or tints, becoming old in appearance immediately. The furniture suffers in the same fashion and the carpets follow. We love the sunshine, truly, but think of the furniture! It may mean health, but it means a faded condition, so keep it out!

Down come the window blinds and up go the sunshades. The heat is too great, and as a rule, the only method of keeping the apartment cool is to shut out the sun.

We open the windows on the street, we keep our doors open to create some kind of a cooling draft, but we deprive ourselves of the sun and light. We are inclined to think more of the heat than of the fading of our hangings, but of course, the net, strong sun works have in the latter direction also.

"How can we help it?" we sigh. "We shall be scolded!" That is most probable. The pity of it is that we can not devise some plan for obtaining a current of fresh cool air without shutting out the magnificent light.

One of these days we shall be able to have electricity at some form of motive power cheaply enough to permit of running ventilating fans in our houses and so maintaining coolness without losing the benefit of the sun.

Yet, even then, we shall probably wish to shut it out, now and then, for, ardent-

SECRET OF A JAPANESE AERONAUT.

The thoroughness not to say the secrecy, with which the Japanese government conducts all its operations and investigations has just been singularly disclosed at Miami and it is possible that the much-disputed American aviator will, through Japanese ingenuity, be enabled to solve the most perplexing problems of aeronautics. For the past two years a bright, cultured and refined young man, giving the name of Pierre le Montaine, but bearing every evidence of Japanese lineage, has been a sojourner throughout the winter season at Biscayne Bay. He has made a study of the much-disputed seavenger, the buzzard. He has spent weeks at a time with his cameras, photographing buzzards at rest and in flight. He made numerous efforts to fishermen and boys of generous rewards if they would secure for him live specimens of the buzzard family.

The Japanese investigator always insisted that he had finally established the real principles of aeronautics. These principles were based on the most careful, exact and prolonged study of buzzards at Miami. The studies continued day after day when weather conditions permitted, during which thousands of photographs were taken by Pierre. These photographs indicate very clearly the various and peculiar movements of the buzzard while in flight. It was wonderful ability to remain stationary in mid-air, upheld by the current and apparently without the slightest movements of its wings, invariably attracts the attention of the observer. It has been asserted that the buzzard has the power of expanding its lungs so as to lighten its weight, as fishes do when they rise in the water by expanding an air bladder.

Pierre said that the four essentials of a successful flying machine were: First, lightness of construction; second, breadth of lateral extension; third, a longitudinal deflecting steering plane, like a tail, placed at right angles to the lateral and covering a much larger area than the aeroplane of flying machines as now constructed; fourth, he insisted that the extremities of the laterals and the steering aeroplanes must be constructed as the wings of the buzzard are, with lines of curves terminating in a spreading device with great mobility, so that they could be spread out or contracted so as to preserve the machine's balance when meeting wind waves of varying velocities.—Leslie's Weekly.

Mrs. M. J. Sherwood, 327 Spruce street, will receive donations of jelly and canned fruit any time Friday for distribution to the sick by the Visiting Nurse association.

The wedding of Miss Olive Blanchard, daughter of Captain and Mrs. C. D. Blanchard, to Harry Gray, of Lewiston, Idaho, will take place at St. Paul's cathedral Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

S. W. Shauld has purchased F. W. Thoney's residence on Pine street, also the latter's camp below Chocoyee, his boathouse and launch. Mr. Shauld will shortly move into the Pine street residence.

Messrs. Miller and Ingalls, of Muskegon, were in the city yesterday. These gentlemen are in touch with the Commercial club and for some time have been considering a proposition to establish a fruit crate factory in this city.

Salvation Army Meetings—Major Percy Morgan, Lake division editor, with headquarters in Milwaukee, will speak at Salvation Army Hall tonight and tomorrow night. Major Morgan is reported to be a fine speaker and has had twenty-four years' experience in Salvation Army work. There will be no charge for admission.

Many Building Purposers—If half the rumors of new buildings to be erected in Marquette next year materialize it will be a record year in the building industry. Among the rumors afloat may be mentioned a new hotel, several business blocks and a machine shop and a few factories. However, there is no certainty that any of these projects will get farther than the paper stage.

Can Fish Longer—Like fishermen will be able to continue their operations twenty days longer than heretofore, under the new law which extends the fishing season from Nov. 15 to Nov. 20. This extension is allowed with the proviso that the fishermen save all the spawn taken and deliver it to state or government officials or plant it on the ground where the fish are taken. Local fishermen were notified of this extension by the United States hatchery in Duluth.

Two Games Saturday—Lovers of football will be able to see two games for one admission at the fair grounds Saturday afternoon. The first contest will be between the Guild Hall and Ishpeming Y. M. C. A. eleven, and the second between the Normal school team and the Ferguson Business college team. The backers of the three teams last named claim that their players would of necessity be much lighter than those of the other three fives, and hesitate to join a league in which they state they would scarcely expect to make a good showing. Nevertheless, lovers of the sport hope that the several managers can get together and make the proposed league a reality.

A Pet Sea Gull—The common sea gull is gifted with more brains than he is usually credited with, according to H. O. Bell, manager of the Marquette bowling alleys. While living at Presque Isle during the summer Mr. Bell and family became greatly attached to one of the species, which was a regular visitor at mealtime and would come down out of the air when whistled to. The bird became quite tame and Mr. Bell's children could catch and handle him. He was very fond of fish and meat but did not like bread. One day Mr. Bell tried to call him down with a piece of bread in his hand, but the bird would not come. However, when Mr. Bell substituted a piece of meat a few moments later, the bird came down like a shot. The family miss the gull greatly, now that they have moved back into town.

INSURE WITH PETER WHITE & CO. PASTOR PAID $5 A WEEK.

Bridgeport, Ohio, Oct. 20.—The synod of the Free Methodist church has returned Rev. William Long to the Free Methodist church here, with a recommendation that the congregation increase his salary, which for two years has been $5 a week.

Rev. Long asked to be transferred from the church to a charge which could pay him a larger salary. He told the synod that he had managed to support his wife and nine children on the salary which he was getting. It was the expectation of the sending of a tenth child which led him to request more pay.

The synod decided that Rev. Long was peculiarly adapted to care for the field of the Bridgeport congregation, but that he needed more money to properly provide for his family, and advised his parishioners to make an earnest effort to give him an increase.

IS MISSING HUBBY.

Deserted Wife Recognized His Voice While He Was Singing in the Street.

THEN SHE ACTED PROMPTLY.

Twenty Relatives Aided Her in an Attack Which Led to the Police Station.

New York, Oct. 20.—As Mrs. Sophia Friedman, a hard working woman with six children, was crossing Tenth street at avenue A, a rich mellifluous voice of the variety known as basso profundo reached her ears. She paused, startled. There was something singularly familiar about the voice.

It came from a group of Salvation Army soldiers and basses who were conducting services on the corner. Mrs. Friedman crossed over, and peered closely at the muscular soldier who was singing the hymn with such fervor.

Yes, it was indeed he, her husband, whom she had not seen for some time in 1905, according to her own story. Mrs. Friedman did not rush forward and rapturously throw her arms around her long lost spouse. Instead she made a quick survey of the field of vision and departed for reinforcements.

To the number of nearly twenty she gathered them, first cousins, second cousins and other kinsmen not so nearly related who lived in the neighborhood. With this impressive bodyguard Mrs. Friedman returned to the attack.

The basso was again engaged in caroling the praises of salvation when the little woman, backed by her twenty relatives, confronted him and in an ominously calm voice bade him come along.

Then ensued what gave promise of being an interesting situation. Friedman's fellow Salvationists, thinking an attempt was being made to disrupt their meeting, made preparations to resist, while Mrs. Friedman's twenty relatives got up their loins and made ready to stick to Friedman through whatever developments might follow.

While things were at this stage the police arrived. The Salvationists said that persons had been breaking up their meetings lately and that Mrs. Friedman was attempting to do the same thing. Mrs. Friedman, strongly confirmed by her twenty relatives, averred that Friedman was her husband and that he had abandoned her four years ago, since which time she had been compelled to support six children by her own efforts.

Both were taken to the Fifth street police station, accompanied by the twenty relatives and the Salvationists whose barracks are near by.

When the police lieutenant heard both sides of the story he released Mrs. Friedman, but held the Salvation Army man on a charge of abandonment preferred by her.

Upon being searched a marriage certificate was found in Friedman's pocket which purported to show that he had been married by Judge Curtis in 1908 to one Annie Feldman.

Every Family Has Half a Dozen Children, More or Less.

Maple Shade, N. J., Oct. 20.—This little town in Burlington county, New Jersey, known as Maple Shade, has more children to the square yard than any part of the state.

Maple Shade is two miles east of Moorestown and is situated in a beautiful farming country. Its houses are far apart, with cultivated fields and snug little gardens between them; therefore the children don't often get together outside of school time, but when they meet in the big pasture surrounding the red brick schoolhouse their name is legion.

Every family in Maple Shade is blessed with half a dozen youngsters, more or less, and the axiom of the whole town is "the more the merrier and the better." The children seem to thrive in this little settlement. They are all chubby and rose-cheeked and the jolliest lot that ever hunted chestnuts on a frosty morning or robbed birds' nests in spring.

DEATH AIDED PRIDE.

Aristocratic Mother's Efforts to Stop Love Match Helped by Fate.

Elmira, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The love match that the proud and aristocratic mother of Professor Ross G. Marvin was unable to break off, was shattered by fate in the guise of an Arctic death. Even in the face of their mutual bereavement there has been no word of sympathy or kindness passed between the mother and the son.

But the proud mother had laid plans for a brilliant marriage, and Miss Marshall is the child of a family in humble circumstances. When just before leaving to join Peary, the young Cornell professor told his mother of his engagement, her wrath knew no bounds. She refused to listen to him. At the moment of farewell she utterly rejected his request that she write to his waiting sweetheart, and informed him that she never would sanction a match with a social nobody.

But the young lover's heart was true, and despite the parental opposition he would have married the wife of his choice immediately upon his return. Now the young woman mourns alone in the little vine-embowered cottage in Edgewater, with no word of kindness or cheer from the stern mother in the big mansion in Elmira.

TENDERFOOT "SHOWS" FARMERS.

College Man Bought Sandhills and Made Them Worth Fortune.

Hutchinson, Kan., Oct. 20.—By the average farmer the experience of Charles E. Durand, whose farm is five miles from Hutchinson, will probably be looked upon as exaggerated as to its truthfulness. And yet here was a city bred young man, totally without previous agricultural knowledge or experience, who came into western Kansas, and made a fortune in spite of the fact that all his neighbors and town-folk looked upon him as a tenderfoot, who had fallen into the meshes of shrewd land dealers. Now he is looked upon as one of the most successful farmers in Reno county. Seven years ago this same land was supposed to be practically worthless, except for grazing. Now it is worth $300,000.

Seventeen years ago young Durand was at Andover academy. He was the captain of his football team. His great ambition was to go to Yale and make the team there. In his senior Andover year he injured his knee so seriously that he went to his home in Chicago, gave up his college career and went into business with his father. For nearly ten years he stuck to inside mercantile work. All the time, however, there was the call of the land within him. One day he told his father that he was going west to become a farmer. The elder Durand smiled indulgently. The young man insisted that he now had money of his own, and that he was going. It began to be serious to Durand senior, and he asked a perfectly natural question: "What do you know about farming?" "Not a thing," was the answer, "but I'm going to learn."

And so seven years ago young Durand came to Hutchinson looking for a farm. East of town there were 640 acres, known as the "sandy hills." He had just about $16,000, and he paid it for the place. The farmers in the neighborhood smiled behind their hands as he passed by. "Poor fellow," they said, "the city chap is the easiest thing on earth, anyhow."

The townpeople chuckled and asked each other if they had heard about the tenderfoot from Chicago.

"I expect I was looked upon as a sucker," said Durand in discussing the trial, "and I don't know just exactly yet why I bought the place, but for some reason or another I had a hunch that things would prove there. Honest there never was any one quite so green. I didn't know the difference between kaffir, broom, cane and Indian corn."

HOW THE DUEL ENDED.

A duel was arranged between John Egan, a county judge, and Roger Barrett, master of the roils. Both men were hit, and the meeting, upon the fair ground of Donnybrook, was characteristic. Upon the combatants taking their ground, Barrett, who was the challenger, promptly fired without waiting for the signal to be given and then walked coolly away, uttering only: "Now Egan, my honor is satisfied." The judge, however, was by no means content, and shouted: "Hallo! Stop, Roger, till I take a shot at your honor!" Barrett thereupon came back and planting himself in his former station said, composedly: "All right, then; fire away." Egan presented his pistol and taking most deliberate aim first at one part of the master of the roils' anatomy and then at another, seemed determined to finish him outright. At last, however, he cried out: "I won't honor you! I won't be bothered shooting you! So now run away with you or come and shake hands with me, whichever you like best."

THE DUEL ENDED.

Barrett chose to shake hands and amid the cheering of the crowd the antagonists departed from the field in much good humor, the best of friends.—Blackwood Magazine.

TITLED HUSBAND ANXIOUS TO WORK

Views of Count Jack Albert Alexander Dudley Von Bourke De Beaufort.

HE WARNS OF LATINIS

Discourses Sagely of American Girls Marrying Foreigners and the Errors They Make.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Chicago's newest international romance, culminating in the "secret" marriage in London of Count Jack Albert Alexander Dudley Von Bourke de Beaufort and Miss Irma Eleanor Tracy Kilgallen of this city, has departed from the ways of other "titled marriages," for the count has arrived with his bride announcing his desire to become an American and "go into business."

Count de Beaufort, who hails from Luxembourg, where there are said to be ancestral estates, bears the appearance of a modest but ambitious youth of twenty-seven. Miss Kilgallen, daughter of M. H. Kilgallen, general manager of the Chicago Heights Land association, is twenty-three and comely.

Together they arrived on the Twentieth Century limited. Shortly afterward in the reception room of Mr. Kilgallen's home, Miss Kilgallen, Count de Beaufort spoke naively of his plans and frankly of his thoughts about romance that link America and the continent.

Would Work Like American.

"My plans still are very new and unformed," said the count, frowning Bob, a polished bull pup which the couple brought from London. "You see, I don't know yet what talent I have for business, but it is my wish to stay in America and work as all Americans do. I have been a soldier—that's all, I have been with the Dutch army in Java, with the French in Algiers, and with the British in the Congo. But that is all business. In London the man who goes down to the city on business is thought strange."

"The English have reduced idleness to a science," sagely interposed Countess de Beaufort—Miss Kilgallen that was—from a neighboring may chair, at a lady continued the count. "When I was in New York two years ago I met Mr. Harriman and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in a business way, but I cannot tell yet whether I have an aptitude for finance. I am not sure but I would like the newspaper business."

About International Marriages.

Then, turning to the question of marriages between nations, he had this to say:

"The marriage of American girls to titled foreigners of the Latin race is a mistake. Their natures are too unlike. Their tastes are too different. The Frenchmen, the Spaniards, the Italians, look upon marriages differently from ourselves—they think differently of women. I say it is a mistake for American girls to marry them."

And when the opinion of Countess de Beaufort was sought on the burning question of international marriages, her dark blue eyes flashed a challenge at her husband as she replied:

"I don't know yet what my opinion is. Ask me five years from now."

In spite of the somewhat precipitous climax of the love affairs of the Chicago girl and the Luxembourg nobleman—a climax which at first displeased Miss Kilgallen, and then delighted him—the acquaintance of the two, they explained it as four years' standing.

Met First in Switzerland.

"I saw her first in Switzerland, four years ago," confessed the young man. "It was by accident and she was on horseback. She rode exceedingly well. I caught all my American friends in

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as confidential. Many sensitive modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally unnecessary, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of the worst cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

ISHPEMING MAN HAS NEW DEVICE

INVENTION OF JOHN M. JOHNSON, UPON WHICH HE HAS LAPORED FOR FOUR YEARS, RECORDS MINING OPERATIONS.

John M. Johnson, who has been in the employ of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company in this city for the past eight years, has invented a recording mechanism of much interest to the mining world. Mr. Johnson has just received his patent. Mining men who have examined his device declare it is the best thing of its kind they have ever seen. Mr. Johnson is employed as a brakeman at the Salisbury engine house. He is a son of John A. Johnson, a pioneer business man of Michigan, and was born at that place.

"The thought of perfecting a device that would be of assistance to the men employed in the engine department, as well as to the company, first occurred to me four years ago, while I was attending to my work," said Mr. Johnson yesterday. "I at once outlined a plan, and it has taken practically every hour of my spare time since then, to perfect it. I have experimented a good deal and I am satisfied that my device will fill a long felt want. It is designed, essentially for making records of mining operations, but features in connection with it will be found useful in the operation of skips or cages. It is my intention to dispose of my patent right to some mining company or manufacturing firm, if possible, or a stock company may be formed to engage in its manufacture."

When Mr. Johnson secured the patent he was granted patent right on sixty-nine different parts of the mechanism, so that it can be seen that it required a great deal of work and study on his part to complete the different models. His patent book contains several pages descriptive of the device, showing in detail the various features, including the dials of the clock used in recording the time of the movement of the skips.

The device will record various movements in the operation of hoisting machinery, showing the time taken by the skip or cage, the loads hoisted, the places from which such loads are taken, together with all stops, delays, etc. The device is drum-shaped, not more than a foot or fifteen inches in length and from ten to twelve inches in diameter, and is arranged to be connected to the main shaft of the hoisting machinery. Every movement of the hoisting drum will be recorded automatically and all records will be registered on a sheet of paper placed inside the drum. If the skip or cage is delayed in the mine, at the pump, or other place, the actual seconds or minutes that it is out of commission are recorded. By use of an electric bell attachment operated by a push button, the man attending the skip in the mine will record the kinds of ore or other material and the number of skips of each quantity hoisted.

Another feature is a signaling system, which combines with the time-recording apparatus in informing the man in charge of the brakes as to just where the skip is located in the shaft. The device is so arranged that the record of the grades of material handled acts as a record against the engineer or brakeman in charge of the machinery. A mark made with a hammer by the man below will indicate by a mark made by a pen connected with the device whether or not there was a delay in answering the signal from the top of the shaft. It is also a visual signal for the engineer, comprising a rotary pointer that operates over a dial. It sometimes may happen that the engineer is not present when the signal is given or for some other reason may desire to have the signal repeated and the mechanism is so arranged that a repetition of the signal will not operate the recording mechanism. Mr. Johnson stated that the device can be successfully used regardless of the depth of the shaft.

CAT TOOL OF FIREBUGS.

Arrest Solves the Mystery of a Series of Costly Blazes.

Liverpool, Oct. 20.—The mystery of the long series of cotton warehouse fires in Liverpool has at last been solved. Weeks ago the police had made up their minds that the fires, which all occurred in one small area, and in which there were many elements of similarity, were not accidental. A reward of $2,500 was offered for the discovery of the incendiary, but though special patrols watched the affected area, and the debris left after each fire was carefully searched, no tangible clue was discovered, and the tale of damage continued to increase by tens of thousands.

In the complete deadlock which investigators were brought the mystery resembled that of the murders in the Rue Morgue. In that case the criminal was a monkey; in this case the incendiary is a cat. It is an innocent-looking tabby, a little more than a kitten.

The fire which led to the discovery was a comparatively small one, at a out-story warehouse in Linton street, which that day had been late removed, leaving an aperture through which a man's arm could be easily introduced.

Crouching close by in a dark recess, one of them found a cat.

The animal was in a very scared and excited state, but at length one of the men managed to draw it out from its place of sanctuary. It was then found that that dangling from the tail was about a yard of thick string, at the end of which was tied a bundle of paper, very much charred. It is believed that this tail attachment was soaked with oil and lighted, the cat then being introduced through the hole in the wall.

It is considered highly possible that the other fires were caused in a similar manner.

For the first time in the history of steel making in this country, the production of open-hearth steel passed that of Bessemer steel. The tonnage of steel during the forty years' period. Figuring two hours daily for street parades it is estimated that he has made two circuits of the world on the streets of the different cities and towns he has visited in the United States.

A novelty in "The Girl Question," the musical play by Hough and Adams, which comes to the Ishpeming theatre Saturday evening, is the musical typewriter number, which opens the third act. DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; and cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is not but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Sent for free.

DREYFUS IN RETREAT.

Captain Dreyfus is also sojourning in the Engleberg Valley. He has by no means completely recovered from his terrible trials and perhaps never will, for such experiences would leave a mark on the very soul of anyone, but he is looking better since his arrival and the quiet life and stimulating climate of Engleberg seems to be exerting a beneficial effect. Switzerland has a particular attraction for Dreyfus, for during his detention on the Devil's Island after his first trial for treason, his family chose Switzerland as a place of refuge, and immediately upon his release he turned to Switzerland for that peace and rest necessary for his body and soul.

It is a peculiar fact that the little mountain republic of Switzerland seems to offer rest and peace to all who have passed through great trials, the last notable case being that of General Stuessel, the defender of Port Arthur, who, immediately after his military trial, journeyed to lovely Lugano, endeavoring amid the charm of Southern Switzerland to forget the strenuous days of his life at the fortress.

Some men are born hard and some are compelled to acquire "the grip."

RUBBER FOOTWEAR ADVANCING.

Until new areas where rubber can be successfully cultivated are brought into use, the public will have to pay more for its waterproof footwear. On Sept. 20 and advance of 6 1/2 per cent, net, was made by the manufacturers in the price of rubbers and overboots. This followed a similar advance on May 1, making a 12 1/2 per cent increase since the last rubber shoe wearing season closed. And unless some break in the crude rubber market comes in the meantime, wholesalers say that another advance will be necessary by January 1st. The retailers, as these increased prices distribute themselves through the trade, are likely to make the change felt by the so-called "ultimate consumer." He may be consoled, however, by the reflection that the advances are moderate in view of the changed prices of articles of rubber. It is now quoted at $2.10 a pound, whereas its normal value in very recent years has been less than half of that. This is the tail end of the season and that quotation marks something of an emergency value. The manufacturer who goes out after any crude rubber virtually has to hunt for it.

While the automobile tire chiefly accounts for the present scarcity of rubber, it is doubtful if the increase in retail prices there will be so marked as in the simpler goods of which rubber is the main ingredient. Prices of articles of apparel and mechanics, of which rubber is the main ingredient, if sold on a competitive basis, must refer all advances in raw material to the consumer. The rubber problem is one of the most serious with which the industrial world has to deal. Scores of substitutes have been proposed. Experiments in this line have been almost numberless. The Patent Office is loaded with projects; and yet for certain uses nothing seems to take the place of the real article. The greatest encouragement in the situation comes from the cultivated rubber of Ceylon, which is refined with an extremely small percentage of loss, and is decidedly promising so far as it goes.

Experiments in other quarters of the world, as many investors of this locality found reason to know, have proved less successful. Some people have believed the search for cultivated rubber impracticable, but the Ceylon experiment factually discredits that view, and the widening area of successful rubber cultivated promises in time to break the deadlock which the extraordinary demand for this commodity has produced.

So recently as 1904, government statistics showed that half of America's immense volume of rubber used in manufacture went into footwear. The rest was distributed among articles too diverse to be readily classified. Since then the use of rubber in tires, not only for automobiles and bicycles, but for carriages, has increased so rapidly as to change materially these proportions. But the whole use of rubber is comparatively new. The mothers of antique bannocks rubbed the leather boots of their boys in tallow as each snow-storm arrived. In 1862 the United States imported little more than two per cent of the amount of rubber which it today consumes. Europe, as well as our own backyards, is now searching for substitutes to be readily classified. Since then the use of rubber in tires, not only for automobiles and bicycles, but for carriages, has increased so rapidly as to change materially these proportions.

Few articles seem more strangely named than "India-rubber." It gets the "rubber" from the first use to which it was put, that of erasing pencil marks by rubbing. Nor is the "India" much more exact. The tree was first mentioned by an explorer among the Mexican Indians three centuries ago. The first account of the substance appears in the narrative of Columbus's visit to Hayti on his second voyage. Supposing the land he had discovered to be India he called this "India-rubber," a title which serves to perpetuate his mistake. The modern colloquial verb "to rubber," and "rubberneck," and Speaker Cannon's "rubber currency" are all strange linguistic developments of this original application of the old verb.

LIVES IN PALATIAL CAVE.

Electric Lights, Hot and Cold Water in Arkansas Farmer's Home.

One of the most prominent and successful farmers in the vicinity of Prairie Grove, Ark., who is an active member of the National Farmers' union, has dwelt in a cave for years. It is probably the most palatial cave in the world, and is fitted up with all modern conveniences, including hot and cold water, electric fans, electric lights and steam heat. He discovered the cave at the top of a mountain 1,500 feet high.

It is seventy-eight feet long by twenty-five feet wide, and thirty-two feet high. The walls are of granite, which has been handsomely polished. The ceiling is forty feet thick. The front of the cave is of glass, which the owner and occupant, H. S. Mobley, put in, together with hardwood floors. The floor for the cooking range pass out through the mouth of the cave and extend outward a distance of nearly forty feet. Movable screens permit the increase and reduction of rooms at the pleasure of the occupants. A fine spring at the top of the mountain furnishes water through a system of water mains.

The novel dwelling was completed about two years ago. It is approached by a beautiful road ascending the west side of the mountain by easy stages, and the grounds about the cave are kept in perfect condition. The occupants declare that it is the coolest dwelling in summer and the most comfortable in winter, and they have no fear of cedonous, which are frequent in that region. Neither heat nor cold penetrates the solid protection of yards of granite. Mr. Mobley says he will live in the cave for the rest of his life. The cave is in easy driving distance of Prairie Grove.

UNCLE SAM'S NEW STRONG BOX.

When the emergency act was passed by congress last May which called for the printing of emergency currency to the value of one-half the amount of government bonds which were owned by the national banks, it became a question of where to put the currency, for room had to be found at the treasury for nearly $500,000,000 in bills. A new vault in the treasury has now been completed, and wagoned after wagonload of bills has been deposited in it. This vault is a triumph of the safe-maker's art and ingenuity. It is considered to be proof against fire, earthquake and thieves. It cost $45,000. It is two stories high, with interior wall of harveylized steel, half an inch thick, all encased in masonry and cement which is more than two feet thick. The chief protection to the vault lies between the cement and the steel wall. This is a network of wires so connected with electric links that even if robbers could get to the vault, as soon as any instrument whatsoever cut through the walls to the wires there would be an alarm given in the watchman's room; just a short distance away. The electric apparatus is under constant surveillance. There is a "buzzer" attached to it which is put in operation automatically every fifteen minutes, day and night. If the signal wires were to get out of gear in any way the buzzer would not work and the watchman would immediately report the fact.—Pathfinder.

WORKMEN AND BOSSES CLASH AT THE REGENT

OLIVER IRON MINING COMPANY'S DISCHARGED EMPLOYEES TRY TO PREVENT OTHER MEN FROM GOING UNDER GROUND.

About thirty of the former workmen of the Regent mines, who were discharged Monday night for quitting Saturday noon without the consent of their bosses, started a row Tuesday noon that might have had serious results. They went to the mines with the purpose of preventing the underground lands from working during the afternoon. Captain E. E. Keese, the Oliver company's general mining superintendent, happened to be on hand, and it was largely through his efforts that a riot was prevented.

As soon as the men showed up it was evident that they intended to try to prevent the day shift crew from going into the mine after the dinner hour, as they scolded themselves with bars, pieces of pipe, shovels, picks and pieces of lagging. When all the men had come up they put lagging across the shaft, to prevent the cage from descending again. This was done without the knowledge of the men in charge of the property. About a dozen of the unwelcome visitors took an active part in the fight that ensued while the others looked on. When the men assembled to go into the mine the disturbers had congregated about the shaft, and threatened violence on any of the men who dared to step upon the cage. Captain Keese tried to persuade the men to leave, but they refused to do so. Finally one of them lunged at the captain, in an effort to fell him with a piece of pipe, about four feet in length. At about the same time another man headed for Captain William Haggaton with a piece of lagging. Both warded off the blows and the fight was on. Captain Keese caught up a canthook handle and waded into his lurch. In a few minutes he had them pretty well subdued. One fellow, who wielded a sharp pick, came near injuring Captain Haggaton. He aimed the pick at his head. The captain dodged the blow, but the point struck his shoulder, passing through his clothing and almost completely tearing the shoulder and sleeve out of his coat and shirt.

About 125 men employed on the day shift witnessed the row, but none of them took any hand in it. Several stones were hurled at Captains Keese and Haggaton and Anton Hanson, the surface boss. One of the stones, larger than a man's hand struck one of the workmen standing at the shaft in the knee, and injured him so badly that he had to be taken home in a rig. A short time before the rumpus started, when it seemed certain that trouble could not be averted, Marshal Rough was telephoned for, and he and two or three other officers arrived after the row was over. The mine officials decided not to have any of the men arrested. Several men were deputized as officers, and were on duty at the mine all night. Other deputies were employed yesterday.

In view of the decisive stand taken by the officials of the company, it is not anticipated that there will be any further trouble over the movement on the part of some of the workmen to force a halt to play on Saturday, nor is it thought that any of the men will quit next Saturday afternoon. The mine has been working a single shift since Monday, but it is expected that a sufficient number of new hands to again resume night work will soon be secured.

MONEY COMES IN BUNCHES.

TO ATTEND MEETING.

Italian Societies of Negaunee Will Be Represented at Convention.

Felix Chiabotti and Emanuel Cavallo will represent the Italian societies of Negaunee at the convention to be held next Sunday and Monday at Iron Mountain for the purpose of organizing a grand lodge, to include all of the independent Italian societies of the upper peninsula. It is expected that a delegation of about fifty will be present from the copper country, representing all of the lodges in that section.

The past year has been completed, and it is expected that the by-laws, already prepared, will be adopted. It is understood that the grand lodge will pay a death benefit, but no sick benefits will be allowed, as this feature is to be maintained by the subordinate lodges. The members of the Negaunee lodges pay $2 each at the death of a brother, and $1 per day is paid out of the sick benefit fund in case of sickness or accident. A clause in the by-laws prohibits the payment of money to members who are injured in any way other than when following their regular occupation. The older society here has for some years past maintained a reserve fund of not less than $2,000 for sick benefits. Last year the lodge paid out over $3,000 from the death and sick benefits funds.

Iron Mountain has in neighborhood of 2,000 members in its five societies and in one there are over 400 members, all natives of Southern Italy.

The Iron Mountain lodges have named sixteen delegates to attend the convention and a band has been engaged to furnish music. Messrs. Chiabotti and Cavallo will go to Iron Mountain Saturday evening.

MAKING GOOD HEADWAY.

Local Option Petitions Will Be Ready by First of December.

Rev. C. H. Rutledge was in the city yesterday conferring with Negaunee men who are circulating the local option petitions. He says that satisfactory progress is being made in the three cities of the county, as well as in some of the townships. The committees working in Ishpeming have already secured 900 signatures and they expect to get at least 100 more before December, when the petitions will be presented to the board of supervisors. Mr. Rutledge said that the men in charge of the work here expect to secure 500 signatures, and the committees in Marquette figure on getting 600.

More signatures in proportion to population will probably be secured in the townships than in the cities. In a few of the townships that have been canvassed more than 50 per cent of the voters have signed, and in one, ninety-eight out of the total number of 117 have placed their signatures on the petitions. The temperance advocates expect to get at least 3,000 signatures in the county. This will be nearly 500 more than was necessary to have the question submitted.

Typewritten copies of the names of all who signed the lists will be prepared and will be posted in the required number of places in the several voting precincts as soon as the work is completed. The petitions containing the signatures of the signers will have to go to the board of supervisors.

FUEL CONCERNS BUSY.

The fuel dealers of the city have been doing an exceptionally good business since the cold weather set in. Several extra men and teams have been employed for a few weeks past filling orders.

Up to this time there has been a shortage of wood, but it has been arriving more plentifully the past few days than at any previous time in a month. Some of the stocks have, in consequence, been completely exhausted, and the dealers have a large supply on hand. Sixteen-inch hardwood is selling at $6 per cord. The dealers claim that the margin of profit is small, and it is possible that there will be an advance in the price. Hard coal is selling at $7.25 per ton, the same price that was charged last year.

LOCAL LAONICS.

Charles Simons has purchased a driving horse. Dr. R. E. Drake went to Chicago Monday night on a business mission. The employees of the Mary Charlotte mine were paid yesterday.

Alexander Mattland and wife left Monday night for Chicago, to be absent a few days.

Mrs. Michael Holley, a well known resident of Little Lake, visited friends in Negaunee yesterday.

Andrew Lindquist, the contractor, has completed putting a new tar roof on the Shea block, occupied by Peter Rasmussen.

Joseph Marshall submitted to an operation for appendicitis Monday at the Negaunee hospital. He is reported as getting along very satisfactorily.

The ladies of the Alpena society expect to entertain a large number of their friends at their hop tonight in Shea's hall. Dancing will start at 9 o'clock, continuing until 12 or later.

Louis Corbett, who has not been in his usual health lately, left Monday night for Chicago, to enter a hospital for treatment. He was accompanied by Dr. H. W. Sheldon, of the Negaunee hospital staff.

The members of the Negaunee Light Infantry, who have given two very successful dancing parties during the past few weeks, are already making arrangements for another, to be given next month.

A large number of Negaunee theatre-goers have placed orders for seats for "The Girl Question," the big musical comedy attraction billed for Saturday evening at the Ishpeming theatre. This attraction had a run of over 300 nights at the LaSalle theatre in Chicago, where it was originally produced.

HIGH SCHOOL ROOM IS OVERCROWDED

NEARLY FORTY MORE STUDENTS THAN SEATS IN THE ASSEMBLY HALL THIS YEAR.

BIG GAIN IN ENROLLMENT

Further Increase Is Expected Next Fall and More Commodious Quarters Are an Imminent Necessity.

It is high time that the people of Marquette began to think about providing additional public school facilities, especially for high school pupils, judging from the reported crowded condition of all the school buildings. The enrollment at the high school is now 285, which is an increase of forty-three over last year. There are but 247 seats in the assembly room and the remainder are seated on chairs, two in one seat or in any other way that they can be squeezed into the room. It is expected that the high school attendance next year will be still larger, as about ninety will enter the high school from the eighth grade, while only thirty or thirty-five will be graduated in the spring.

In addition to the crowded condition of the high school assembly room, it is said that the classes in general are larger than recommended by the state inspectors, and that a few of them contain over thirty pupils, thirty being the maximum allowed by the inspectors. In order to make even this good a showing, it has been necessary to divide the high school day into seven recitation periods, instead of six, as last year.

No Room in Building.
All the rooms in the high school building are said to be utilized, either by the high school or are occupied by lower grades, and there is no room in any of the other buildings, by taking advantage of which the congestion at the high school building might be relieved. At any rate, to vacate any of the rooms in the building would not improve the situation in the high school assembly room, which is declared to be too small for present and future needs. The enrollment of the high school has steadily increased for the last five years, but the increase this year is nearly as great as during the four years previous, as is shown by the following figures for that period:

School-year	Enrollment
1904-5	191
1905-6	217
1906-7	233
1907-8	246

The substantial increase in the high school enrollment this year is probably largely due to the efforts of Superintendent Gehrand and his teachers, directed toward holding in school those who complete the eighth grade work. Heretofore, a large percentage of those in the upper grades have not entered the high school, but this fall less than five of the eighth grade graduates have failed to enroll in the high school, and the Freshman class numbers an even hundred.

To Fail Means "Quit School."
Superintendent Gehrand is firmly of the opinion that upper grade pupils should be induced to continue their studies if they can be brought through the eighth grade without having failed in one or more studies. To prevent failures, the work of the pupil is closely watched throughout the year, and those who are weak are given special help, especially with a view to showing them the practical value of an education and thus instilling inspiration for redoubled effort. The superintendent states that arithmetic and grammar are the most common stumbling blocks among grade pupils. A failure of a pupil in the seventh or eighth grades ordinarily means that he quits school, and every possible effort is made to prevent such an occurrence and at the same time not to lower the standard required for passing. It is usually the inclination rather than the ability that is lacking during the adolescent age, and once safely through that period and in the high school, the indifferent pupil often becomes a faithful student.

Larger and Fewer Buildings.
The superintendent also states that the efficiency of the school system is hampered by the large number of small school buildings scattered all over the city. Several of the buildings are large enough to accommodate but two or three grades, necessitating the maintenance of a large number of buildings, whereas a large building located near the Fisher street school and another near the present Third or Fourth street schools would accommodate practically all the pupils in the city. With large buildings the pupils could be given the advantages of better school rooms and equipment, and it would be possible to advance the bright pupils more rapidly, as they could do work in more than one grade if both were located in the same building.

From all this it would appear that the question of better equipped and more commodious school buildings is a matter to which the citizens may well give their thoughtful attention.

MANY HEARD JUDGE STONE.

Talked to Members of Commercial Club Last Evening.

The smoker given under the auspices of the Queen City Commercial club at the assembly room of the city hall last evening attracted a good sized attendance. Judge J. W. Stone was the speaker. He was introduced by S. W. Shaul, and talked informally, as he said he had not been able to get the time to prepare a formal address. He discussed the aims and objects of the club, what he conceived should be done to permit it to realize its greatest possible usefulness, the advantages of Marquette's location for industrial growth and abstract questions of municipal government.

Judge Stone said one thing was essential for success in the line the Commercial club would like to follow out, and that is a strong treasury, to be drawn on to further its work of encouraging industrial development. He said the Commercial club here should have anywhere from $3,000 to $10,000 available for use in locating industries in the city. Incidentally, he remarked that the supreme court has repeatedly held that it is unconstitutional to levy taxes for furthering the material growth of a community, and advised against the practice. On the other hand, he said, the court has held that any community can properly encourage an industry to locate within its limits by promising to remit taxes for a period of years.

For the city government of Marquette Judge Stone had the highest praise. He said he had confidence in the men who have had charge of its affairs, in the council, the mayor and the boards, and that he believed that Marquette is and has been among the cleanest governed towns in Michigan. He particularly commended the boards and the work they have been doing, and warned his auditors to think seriously before they consider any plan that calls for interference with them.

Judge Stone was given an attentive hearing through all of his interesting talk, and on its conclusion was extended a vote of thanks by those who heard him.

SCHOOL OFFICERS MEETING.

L. L. Wright and Fred L. Keeler Will Speak at Court House Nov. 2.

In accordance with a law passed at the last session of the legislature, providing that the county school commissioner of each county shall hold a meeting of the school officers of his county once a year, County Superintendent A. E. Sterne has issued a call for such a meeting to be held in the court house Tuesday, Nov. 2, both forenoon and afternoon sessions will be held.

L. L. Wright, superintendent of public instruction, and Fred L. Keeler, deputy state superintendent, will be present at this meeting. Mr. Wright will talk on school hygiene, the township unit system and other points of school law. Mr. Keeler will talk on the new school legislation.

The county superintendent desires all members of school boards and school officers in the county to attend. The law provides that the secretary of each school board must be present, and one member of each board is allowed $2 and his expenses for his attendance.

THEATRICAL.

"The Girl Question."

H. H. Frazee's presentation of "The Girl Question," one of the La Salle theater successes, at the opera house last evening, was greeted by a good sized audience. With plenty of dashing, rollicking action, some catchy songs and unique dances, and an original plot that carried one from the ridiculous to the pathetic and back again, all in an instant, "The Girl Question" is the last edition of the series of musical comedies which have made the La Salle playhouse famous.

The production was splendidly staged, and the action taking place in the interior of a Chicago restaurant, the setting was striking. Through the dances and songs were much the same as we have seen many times before, to have them executed around and about restaurant tables was a decided novelty. In the last act, the restaurant is changed into a business office and the dancing is done to the accompanying clatter of typewriters.

The cast includes several clever musical comedians and a chorus of bewitchingly costumed singers and dancers, who give the piece plenty of "go" and ginger. Genevieve Victoria, as the stage-struck restaurant cashier, is a handsome little mite, and a graceful dancer with a sweet voice. The role of "Joe" Forster, which requires much good acting to make it effective, was well handled by Lillian Logan. Louise Amber, as the stenographer, who had married a multi-millionaire, and several good singing and dancing numbers. Harry Short was good as the head waiter, infatuated with the cashier but really in love with "Joe, the best pal a fellow ever had." Alex B. Francis, as a German comedian, was strong and gave a new turn to that type of humor. W. H. Thompson, as the millionaire's sports son, appeared to advantage, and Frederic Bernard, as the father, fulfilled the requirements of the part.

The feature of the production which received the most enthusiastic applause was the dancing specialty of Jack Fox and Joe Evans, burnt cork artists.

COMING BACK AFTER FIVE YEARS' ABSENCE

ASA TEFT, WHO ESCAPED FROM MARQUETTE PRISON IN 1904, TAKEN UP BY THE CHICAGO POLICE.

Asa Teft, one of the three men who gained their liberty in a daring delivery at the Marquette prison June 8, 1904, will, before the end of the week, be returned to the institution after a five years' vacation, and will take up the task of serving a thirty years' sentence. The prison officials were notified yesterday that he had been retained by the Chicago police, and last evening James Deagon, one of the officers, left for that city to bring him back.

Teft was sent up from Barry county, and was received at the prison June 14, 1895. He was sentenced to serve thirty years for murder in the second degree. At the time of his escape he was employed as assistant librarian. The men who got away with him were George Wilson and George Taylor, both of whom were sent up from Kent county. At the time they escaped the prison was in confusion because of the destruction, a short time previous, by fire of the main shop building, and the three men sneaked into the gallery from the chapel, where a large force was then working, and cut a hole through the boards of the ceiling. They then found their way through the attic over the well block in the west wing and broke a hole through the roof over the structure built for a dining room, but never used for that purpose. They reached the ground by using an improvised rope of insulated electric wire that they had torn up in one of the attics. They made a clean getaway and in spite of a vigilant search no trace of them was obtained.

Teft was seen twice after his escape. Rev. Rogers, the prison chaplain, caught a glimpse of him in Seattle, but before he could have him apprehended he had made himself scarce. One of the prison officers also ran across him in Chicago, but failed to recognize him at the moment, and did not realize until some hours later that the man was Teft. Teft will lose all the good time he had gained, and so has nearly twenty years to serve on his original sentence.

Another Lifer Received.

James Kelley, a lifer sent up from Muskegon county, was received at the prison this week. He was convicted of assault with intent to murder. He was caught redhanded in a burglary and shot twice at Deputy Sheriff Steuffer, one of the bullets causing a flesh wound in the deputy's arm. Kelley is fifty-eight years of age, and though little is known of him and he professes never to have been in serious trouble before, his suspicion that he is an old criminal.

SAW STRANGE BIG FISH.

Captain Ross of the steamer Dakotah, which arrived at San Francisco recently from Manila, enjoyed a brief but stirring flirtation with a strange fish on the voyage. On the Dakotah's log the funny fish is described as being forty feet long and ten feet wide with a cavernous mouth and very large eyes. Captain Ross was on the bridge when his mate called attention to what he thought was a whale on the port bow. When within about 100 feet of the monster they saw that while very like a whale at a distance an intimate view showed no resemblance. "As we came along," said Captain Ross, "the creature turned its head to enter the water. It was the fiercest face I ever saw. The mouth was like the entrance to a railroad tunnel, and the eyes big as locomotive headlights. For all the ferocity of the face the eyes had a kind look in them.

"We watched the brute intently, just as we came along alongside he gave these eyes a regular go-go and sank out of sight. A whale would have gone down headfirst and waved goodbye with his tail. We never saw the tail or the tail, and whether he said 'Goodby' or 'come along, boys,' with his eyes is more than I can tell. I have been to sea for many years, but never saw another fish like that one.
