GOVERNMENT FILES

A BULKY BRIEF

Its Argument in the Standard Oil Case Fills Two Thick Volumes Comprising in the Neighborhood of 1,000 Pages.

"Either the Anti-Trust Law Should Be Repealed or It Should Be Enforced in a Manner to Make the People Respect It," Declares the Department of Justice as Its Guiding Principle in Asking the Dislocation of the Big Combination.

Washington, March 9.—"Either the Sherman act should be repealed or it should be enforced in a manner to make the people respect it." With this declaration of its guiding principle, the department of justice today filed with the supreme court of the United States a thousand-page brief in support of its petition that the "Standard Oil" be dissolved as in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The brief will be the foundation of the government's oral argument at the hearing of the case by the supreme court next Monday. It bears the names of Attorney General Weeks, Frank B. Kellogg, Charles B. Morrison and Corderio A. Severance, special assistants.

One of the two thick volumes of the brief is devoted to an analysis of the testimony taken in the circuit court of the United States for the Eastern district of Missouri, which decreed that the "Standard Oil" be dissolved. It represents years of governmental investigation of the big trust. The government declares that it shows that rebates and discriminatory rates were received by the Standard Oil combination, "whereby the Standard was enabled to bring a large part of the concerns into the combination and to crush out and eliminate from the field of competition the principal part of the balance."

It is claimed that it shows a "system of lowering prices where competitors are doing business, below the cost of production, while keeping up or raising the prices in other parts of the country, until the competitor either is eliminated or the business is brought within a compact so that the Standard Oil company can control it; of obtaining secret information to competitive business, largely through bribing railway employees, and using that secret information to procure countermanding orders and to facilitate the system of price cutting and oppression; of the use of so-called bogus independent companies whose operations are predatory and oppressive, principally used to drive out competitors; and various other means."

"In many districts," it is declared, "the Standard Oil company has an absolute monopoly. Practically this is the case throughout the Rocky mountain country and most of the Pacific coast states." In the second volume are a so-called summary of facts and the brief itself.

TARIFF TANGLE CONTINUES. Little Progress Being Made in the Negotiations With France.

Washington, March 9.—Little progress is being made in the tariff negotiations between the United States and France and the indications of a speedy settlement of the questions involved are not encouraging. The United States has insisted upon the French minimum rates for the minimum rates of the Payne-Albright act, and the proclamations issued by the president extending these rates to various other foreign countries have been based upon like concessions to the United States. The great obstruction in the negotiations with France is that the minimum rates of France range from 5 to 10 per cent ad valorem, while the average rates of our minimum tariff are approximately 45 per cent.

MONTGOMERY HEADS THE LIST.

President Taft Names the Judges of the New Customs Court.

Washington, March 9.—President Taft today sent to the senate the following nominations for the new customs court of appeals: Chief Justice Robert M. Montgomery, of the supreme court of Michigan, to be presiding judge; associate judges, Wm. H. Hunt, Montana; James W. Smith, of California; Orion M. Barber of Vermont and Marion Devries of California.

TELLS OF SHADY PRACTICES. Collector Loeb Asks Federal Supervision of Customs Brokers.

Washington, March 9.—Collector Loeb, of New York, advocated before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce today when by the vote of nine to seven the committee voted to substitute the interstate commerce commission for the proposed court of commerce as the tribunal designated to receive the petitions or applications of those desiring to acquire interests in other railroads. As this section provided one of the chief duties of the court of commerce, it is expected that the administration will use vigorous efforts to have today's action rescinded.

WANTS EXPLORER PEARY TO FURNISH PROOFS. Until He Has Done So, the House Naval Committee Decides, All Propositions to Bestow Rewards Will Be Vetoed.

Washington, March 9.—By practically a unanimous vote, the house naval committee today decided against bestowing any reward upon Commander Peary until he has furnished further proofs that he has discovered the pole.

PLATT STORY IS DENIED. Senator Was Not Offered a Place in Harrison's Cabinet.

Indianapolis, March 9.—Following the publication of a statement by the late Senator Platt that former President Benjamin Harrison had indirectly offered him the position of secretary of treasury, W. H. Miller, attorney general under President Harrison, said that the former president's law partner, today gave out a statement denying that Platt had been promised a position in the cabinet. Mr. Miller quotes from a letter from Harrison, which says: "It seems a little hard that a man who has made so many sacrifices for the subject of promises, while a candidate and while in office, should be subjected to imputations that I promised a cabinet office to Thomas C. Platt. I promptly negatived the suggestion from New York that I should make him a promise. I told him what he really came to me after my election that I never had a suspicion that he wanted a cabinet office, nor had I any thought at any time of giving him one."

TIM WOODRUFF ON THE GROUND

Warfare Between the Republican Factions in New York Assumes a Still More Interesting Phase at the State Capital.

Aroused at the Efforts of the National Administration to Make Governor Hughes' Man Leader of the Senate, the State Chairman Hastens to Albany and Shies His Castor Into the Ring—Will Fight for Selection of His Own Candidate.

Albany, N. Y., March 9.—Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the Republican state committee, arrived here tonight and took charge of the fight against the efforts of United States Senator Root to whip the Republicans into line in connection with the election of the temporary president of the state senate. Judging from the chairman's attitude, those who stand ready to support Senator Root and Governor Hughes will have difficulty in electing Senator Henry D. Hinman, of Binghamton, at the party caucus tomorrow night.

NET DECLINES THE RULE. Trading in Wall Street is Centered in a Handful of Stocks.

New York, March 9.—The semblance at times today of strength and animation in the stock market is not borne out by an analysis of the movement, which resulted in net declines for the session. The speculative sentiment was cheerless, and the confidence in values was well maintained, which doubtless fulfilled the purposes of the supporters. The operations centered markedly in a few stocks, of which Union Pacific, New York Central and United States Steel were conspicuous examples.

MERGER WITH THE GUGGENHEIMS. Alaskan Coal Land Claimant Admits That That Was the Scheme.

Cleveland, March 9.—That a combination with the Guggenheim interests was considered by thirty-three claimants to Alaskan coal lands was admitted today before United States Commissioner McGee by W. H. Watner, one of the entrants. Watner declared that at a meeting of the claimants at Spokane in 1907, to which he sent a proxy, there had been a discussion as to the advisability of a combination with the Guggenheims, but he had understood that the matter was dropped. The evidence was given at the opening of the inquiry into the claims of the four of the original thirty-three claimants to patents to Alaskan land.

THE WEATHER

Washington, March 9.—The following is the weather bureau's forecast for Upper Michigan: Generally fair, Thursday and Friday.

TOBACCO BUSINESS YIELDS BIG PROFITS. Big Trust Which Uncle Sam is Trying to Wipe Out Reports Net Earnings of More Than $30,000,000 for Last Year.

New York, March 9.—The American Tobacco company, now fighting a federal suit for its dissolution before the United States supreme court made public today its annual report for 1909. This showed that the so-called trust earned 50 1/2 per cent on its $40,000,000 common stock. The net earnings were $20,448,384, an increase of $1,433,979 over last year. The report shows that the company now has a total surplus of $42,499,140.

GARVEN'S OFFER IS ACCEPTED. Government Will Make Use of New Jersey Prosecutor's Beef Trust Evidence.

Washington, March 9.—The department of justice will accept the offer made by Pierre Garven, prosecutor of Hudson county, N. J., to furnish the government evidence he has on hand in the beef trust case, and has asked him to forward to Washington copies of the indictments recently found there.

LABOR LEADERS GAIN NEW HOPE. Committee of Ten in Charge of the Philadelphia Fight is Much Encouraged as a Result of the Day's Developments.

Philadelphia, March 9.—A promise of help from without and the development of strength in its own field which appeared to take even its most confident leader by surprise injected new life into Philadelphia's general sympathetic strike movement today.

OPERATORS REFUSE MINERS' DEMANDS. Cincinnati, March 9.—The refusal of the operators to grant the demands of the men has started the re-organizing of the operators and miners of the soft coal competitive field, consisting of TRACTION OFFICIALS STAND FIRM. To the threat of a country-wide strike if the local traction heads do not agree to arbitration with their men, the officials of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company made a curt response, announcing that they had said their last word on arbitration and that if a widespread strike demanded their yielding to the arbitration demand, the strike would have to come.

PAPER MILLS ARE CLOSING. Strike at Plants of the International Company is Spreading.

Cleveland, March 9.—A run upon the Society for Savings, a mutual savings association, with deposits of more than $49,000,000, startled the seventy thousand depositors of the society today.

DEPOSITORS STARTLED. Run is Started on a Big Bank at Cleveland, Ohio.

Cincinnati, March 9.—Nine armed strike breakers brought here by the International Paper company were arrested tonight by the village police, charged with carrying concealed weapons. They were locked up. There is general belief that an attempt to import strike breakers on a large scale will be bitterly resented. Twice this afternoon dynamite cartridges were exploded under the railroad bridge over which the strike breakers must pass. The damage was slight. The bridge is now under guard by militia. Four hundred men at the Fort Edward plant of the company voted at a mass meeting tonight to strike tomorrow. Nearly twelve hundred men are now out in this vicinity.

Love gave himself up. The girl died this afternoon. In 1903 Love shot Nora Miller, a waitress with whom he was in love. The girl recovered, and Love was acquitted on a plea of insanity.

Lawton T. Hemans' campaign to be elected governor of Michigan appears to have been opened.

Each of the remaining three candidates has now proved to his satisfaction that he will be the principal beneficiary if Judge Montgomery drops out of the race.

If, as is frequently asserted, county option is the opening wedge for state wide prohibition the big show should soon be due in Michigan.

Unless the G. O. P. leaders in New York state demonstrate more capacity for wise political management, it may become necessary to appoint a permanent Washington commission for looking after their business for them.

If nothing else was needed to show that their harmony program still remains to be arranged, we have the manner in which Senator Smith and Senator Burrows have worked at cross purposes over that customs court judgeship.

It may be put down, too, that Mr. Hemans will be a candidate for governor worthy of the steel of the best man who can be pitted against Mr. Osborn's friends.

by his espousal of the county option principle. It is pointed out that county option is nothing more or less than a stepping stone to statewide prohibition, and influential newspapers are laying emphasis on the fallacy of this latter policy.

A large contingent of newspaper men, including a number of Americans, are in the advance guard that is waiting to welcome Colonel Roosevelt at Khartoum.

What is desired, of course, is that Colonel Roosevelt shall make a series of speeches in which he shall give his endorsement to the administration's work, as far as it has been carried along, and urge the Republican voters to forget their factional differences and unite in the support of the party candidates.

The question of electing a successor to Senator Allis, as president pro tem of the New York senate, has precipitated another situation which has demonstrated the inadequacy of State Chairman Tim Woodruff, in the eyes of President Taft and other men prominent in national party councils.

There can be no quarrel with the way our Michigan senators look after the interests of our judicial fields. It is only a few weeks since President Taft appointed Judge Knappen to succeed Judge Lorton, on the higher bench, and now one of our Michigan jurists is in line for promotion to the customs court.

It's an open question where the mix-up between the senators in regard to the place on the customs court leaves the Marquette collectorship. Answering a query whether he had yet endorsed Senator Smith's candidate, Mr. Byrns, Senator Burrows said he had not.

Mayor Busse has appointed a committee of thirty prominent Chicagoans to report on the vice problem and to determine, if possible, the best manner of handling it.

Andrew Carnegie, one of the homecoming reception committee, does not expect that the Ballinger-Pinchot episode, nor anything else that has happened during the past year, will result in any straining of relations between President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt.

Captain Lewis, candidate for governor in Wisconsin, has brought much aggressive opposition down on his head

TOUR FOR ROOSEVELT.

While Colonel Roosevelt is on the home trail it is reported from Washington that Chairman McKinley, head of the congressional campaign committee, and other Republican leaders, are mapping out for him a speaking tour of the west which shall have as its purpose strengthening the hands of the men who will conduct the fight for another Republican majority in the house of representatives.

What is desired, of course, is that Colonel Roosevelt shall make a series of speeches in which he shall give his endorsement to the administration's work, as far as it has been carried along, and urge the Republican voters to forget their factional differences and unite in the support of the party candidates.

There is another contingency to be reckoned with. It is possible, of course, that Colonel Roosevelt may not approve of all that has been done. He may not believe that the tariff bill is all that it should be; he may believe that the insurgency measure proposed by the majority is not wise.

Pity the Poor Cowboy. Dr. Harvey W. DYNAMITE—ABLE FRIEND.

To any prospective Pole-hunter who imagines he need simply charter a ship and sail pleasantly away to 90 degrees North latitude we advise a reading of Peary's article in the forthcoming March Hamilton's Magazine wherein for over a dozen pages he describes the terrible nerve-straining, sleep-prohibiting light of the stout little Roosevelt against a sea packed with maverick bergs and ice floes run amuck.

The ship was not quite at the mercy of the ice, and with the pressure from the outer pack, the Roosevelt again careened to starboard. I knew that if she were driven any higher onto the shore we would have to discharge a large part of the coal in order to lighten her sufficiently to get her off again.

"I told Bartlett to let out his batteries and dynamite, and to smash the ice between the Roosevelt and the heavy floes outside, making a soft cushion for the ship to rest on. The batteries were brought up from the lazaret, one of the dynamite boxes lifted out with caution, and Bartlett and I looked for the best places in the ice for the charges.

The audience was good throughout the exhibit, both in the afternoon and evening. About 100 members were added to the league during the exhibition, swelling the total membership to 300. Many not members took great interest in the paintings and the general interest in art promises great success for the league in the future. Members of the league feel especially grateful to W. Scott Thurler of Chicago, who assembled and supplied the excellent collection of pictures shown here, and sent Mr. Engles to assist in their care while at the Guild Hall. Copy country visitors to the exhibition were so delighted with the paintings that arrangements were made for taking the collection to Houghton, where it is now being displayed.

QUESTIONS ROSE'S STATISTICS.

In his address at the Marquette Opera House the other night Hon. Mayor Rose said he was opposed to prohibition because it had invariably met with failure wherever and whenever tried. He undertook to prove his position by citing statistics for the three states that have longest tried prohibition, Maine, Kansas and North Dakota. He quoted statistics of the United States census bureau and department of commerce and tried to show that certain cities of these prohibition states had a larger number of arrests for drunkenness, and also that a notoriously wet town, Milwaukee, I take no exception to his data but do say that it is unfair to select such facts only as will prove his point. Let us illustrate what is meant by proving the reverse of his assertion with figures from the same source: Number of arrests for drunkenness per 10,000 population; Portland, Me., 2,800; Topoka, Kan., 1,885; Lynn, Mass., 3,712; Dallas, Tex., 3,804; Norfolk, Va., 4,385; East St. Louis, Ills., (also noted for its beer) 4,435. That is, typical cities in wet territory show a much larger number of arrests than cities of corresponding size in prohibition states. Neither deduction is correct for the data are too incomplete. The conclusion which the United States Brewers' association reaches from the study of these statistics and publishes in its 1909 Year Book is much more just. It is that "the statistics of arrest must remain an imperfect test of the state of sobriety in a community." (p. 82).

Then the speaker referred to tried to show from the pauper population that the prohibition states were worse off than their license neighbors. And he did but he carefully selected the neighbors for comparison. Thus he contrasted Maine with Vermont and New York, Kansas with Nebraska and North Dakota with South Dakota. Contrast Maine with the other New England states except Vermont and the other states of the north. The population in almshouses per 100,000 population in the state is as follows: Maine, 163; Vermont, 119; New Hampshire, 209; Massachusetts, 197; Rhode Island, 171; Connecticut, 214. If Mayor Rose had "happened" to select either Missouri or the east or Colorado, the statistics would have shown a different picture. There were also produced in 1908 fourteen million, six hundred and one thousand, nine hundred and seventy-five gallons of wine that was later fortified with brandy, passing under the supervision of the internal revenue department. This would require the use of more than one hundred and thirty thousand acres of land, bringing the total up to one million, three hundred and forty-one thousand, five hundred and ninety-five acres.

We have not considered in the above the over sixteen hundred brewers in the United States nor the farm products used by them. They produced fifty-eight million, seven hundred and forty-seven thousand, six hundred and eighty-two barrels of liquor in 1908, and used in that production thirty million bushels of corn, ninety million bushels of barley and sixty-two million pounds of hops. To raise thirty million bushels of corn requires over six hundred thousand acres of land; to raise ninety million bushels of barley requires four million, five hundred thousand acres of land, and to raise sixty-two million pounds of hops requires one hundred and twenty-four thousand acres of land. This does not include the millions of pounds of rice used by the brewers.

Recapitulation.

Acres.	Value.
Land required to raise corn used by the distillers	600,000
Land required to raise wheat used by the distillers	1,000
Land required to raise rye used by the distillers	312,000
Land required to raise oats used by the distillers	600
Land required to raise sugar corn and other molasses producing products	250,000
Land required for liquors made from fruits	270,000
Land required for corn used by breweries	600,000
Land required for barley used by breweries	4,500,000
Land required to produce hops used by breweries	124,000
Land required to produce sugar and syrups used by breweries	109,000
Land required to produce rice used by breweries (estimated)	25,000
Total	6,691,000

To feed the 200,000 head of horse-owned by the distillers, breweries and allied trades requires seventy-five thousand bushels of grain, five million pounds of hay and two million pounds of straw a day. This means twenty-nine million bushels of grain a year, nine hundred and twenty thousand bushels of hay and three hundred and sixty-five thousand tons of straw a year.

To produce this grain for horses employed in the liquor trade would require 966,666 Hay for horses used in the liquor trade 304,166 Straw for horses used in the liquor trade 182,500

Add these figures to the previous total of 6,691,000 acres, and you have a grand total of eight million, one hundred and forty-four thousand, nine hundred and thirty-two acres of land devoted to the production of grains, fruit and hay and straw used by the liquor trade.

Allowing one working man for every thirty acres of land (and it requires, for instance, one man for every four acres in producing hops) and the above figures show two hundred and seventy-three thousand, eight hundred and thirty-one men employed, and who will be out of a job when national prohibition is proclaimed. And this does not include farm owners, foremen, overseers or superintendents.

These figures cannot be disputed, and their vastness is almost appalling. Placing the average wage of the men employed in the industry at two dollars a day, and the total wage would reach two million dollars a day, or over six hundred million dollars a year. Who is there so foolish as to attempt to maintain that when these people have been deprived of this enormous wage it would not affect the commerce of the nation and the world? It would throw such an army of unemployed people onto the labor market as would threaten the per-

WINTER OUT OF RACE.
 Negaunee's Mayor Positively Declines to Accept Another Nomination.

J. H. Winter, who has been mayor of Negaunee for four years past, and who is being urged by many friends to accept the nomination again, yesterday said that he is not a candidate for the office for another year, and that he would not accept the nomination under any circumstances. He says that he has held the office long enough and thinks it is time that some other citizen take up the work. He declared that he would not run again, even if he was assured that he would have no opposition.

Since J. H. Sawbridge announced himself a candidate, there has been much speculation among the voters as to who will be his opponent, as it is generally understood that there will be two tickets in the field. The names of two or three prominent citizens have been mentioned. Alderman Dan Shea from the Second Ward, who has been a member of the council for a number of years, is not a candidate. He told The Mining Journal representative that he would not accept the nomination, and he has not made up his mind to make the run for alderman again. Mr. Shea's term expires this spring.

The names of two or three men have been mentioned for the office of treasurer, which for some years past has been given to candidates who are desirous of financial assistance. It is expected that the present treasurer will be a candidate. He has had the office but one year, while most of his predecessors have held it for a period of two years.

A RAILROAD WASHED OUT.

Line from Salt Lake to Los Angeles Has Run No Through Trains Since Dec. 31 and Will Run None Until Fall—Eighty Miles Entirely Washed Out and Millions of Equipment Lie in a Can.

Boston, Mass., March 9.—Some kinds of news travel slowly. A sentence or so in a private letter to Boston from Nevada seemed to indicate that a railroad 780 miles long had been for two months put out of business by a thaw and washout. The thing seemed incredible, yet investigation proves that one road from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles, Cal., is practically abandoned and no through trains are likely to run until next fall. The official name of the road is the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad, now known as the Salt Lake route and formerly called Senator Clark's road. It has abandoned all through trains and discharged hundreds of its employees, including many high in the traffic department. The road is operating only its local trains in Utah and in California with a mixed train from Los Angeles to Las Vegas, Nev., daily and a mixed train once a week from Las Vegas to Moapa, Nev.

In five years the Salt Lake route attained a remarkable position in transcontinental travel. It had a line of low grades and light curvature 781 miles from Salt Lake to Los Angeles, over five hundred miles shorter than its competitor, the Southern Pacific. From the Utah-Nevada State line to Moapa the road was built through a deep dry wash known as the Meadow Valley wash, remarkable for its scenery and beautiful colorings. How the calamity occurred is soon told.

The winter fall of snow was very heavy, commencing Nov. 21, earlier than usual, and the hills on both sides were covered. The early snows froze on the mountains and all the later precipitation found a solid foundation on this coating of snow. The fall of snow continued up to the end of December and on the last day of the year came a disastrous thaw which brought the top coating of snow sliding easily from the ice foundation and into the canon where it formed a great wall of water, rushing down the canon, taking everything before it. The road, being insecurely built in the first place, offered little resistance to the deluge, and in consequence was practically wiped out between Bareilly and Moapa, Nev. Several lives were lost in the flood, and a carload of horses was caught in the rushing water and most of the animals drowned.

Train No. 4 a fast limited, was caught below Bareilly and its passengers had to be brought to Modena, Utah, by sleighs. The train is still flooded, with part of its equipment careening in the bottom of the canon. Two freight trains were also caught in the water and abandoned. The fruit and perishables in them were given up, but the merchandise was sold to nearby Nevada merchants, who emptied many box cars.

The road is practically washed out for eighty miles. From the end of the track near the Utah-Nevada line to Caliente, a railroad town, is nineteen miles, and this will probably be rebuilt so as to get out equipment to the amount of $2,000,000. However, as a branch runs from Pioche to Caliente, the rebuilding of the break would not be necessary should the line be built from Modena to Pioche. Much other equipment is marooned down the canon.

This is a transcontinental railroad, with a line almost as long as from Boston to Cleveland, is absolutely tied up and some go so far as to say that it will not be reopened for through traffic until late in the fall of the present year.

This is the worst washout ever known and is in some respects an unparalleled disaster.

Now the question arises, "Where shall the line be rebuilt?" As it has been washed out many times since it was opened in 1905 it would be merely suicidal to rebuild in the Meadow Valley wash, for it would mean more disasters. Owing to this fact, surveyors have gone over the ground and to date two routes have been talked of, one via St. George Utah and one via Pioche, Nev. Look at the map of Utah and Nevada showing the line of this road from Modena to Moapa. Then draw a line from those points through St. George, Utah, and another through Pioche, Nev., and the situation will be explained.

The St. George route would be an agricultural line through a Mormon valley, where semi-tropical fruits are raised and which was settled by Brigham Young sixty years ago. The other would take in the mines of Pioche, and it has been argued that the agricultural valley would produce far greater tonnage than the one mining camp. How it will be decided yet remains to be seen, but St. George seems to be favored owing to the physical characteristics of the route and its traffic possibilities.

The road was first built by Senator Clark, but its control soon passed to the Harriman syndicate, the Oregon Short Line owning 51 per cent of the stock.

Mind your own business and some day you will be minding a business of your own.

TO ENFORCE ORDINANCE.

Delinquent Light and Water Customers Must Pay Up Promptly.

The board of public works has decided to ask all patrons of the municipal lighting and water works promptly to pay up their accounts. The water accounts are payable every three months and the lighting bills are payable monthly. Al Willman, superintendent of the board, yesterday said that a number of the accounts are overdue, and the employees of the department are very unnecessary work in order to get in the money.

The patrons of both the water and lighting service will be given a reasonable time to make their payments, but after it expires the service will be cut off. Both the lighting and water rates are very reasonable and the members of the board believe that the consumers should be prompt in making payments.

ENGLISH BIRDS' CHRISTMAS.

The birds in Northamptonshire and Buckinghamshire spent a merry Christmas last year, owing to the kindly thought of 3,000 or 4,000 members of the Uncle Dick Society. This society is very popular among young folks who are interested in wild birds, and a suggestion made to them by an author, "Irene Osgood" (Mrs. R. H. Sherrard), was readily taken up. This was to the effect that on Christmas Day every member of the society should see that the birds in their respective neighborhoods should not be left to feed themselves but that the members should put out, in suitable spots, food and water. From hundreds of trees in these two counties meat bones, lumps of fat, and coconuts cut in two, were hung in prominent positions, so that all the birds should be attracted to the feast, and large quantities of seeds were scattered about on the ground. Water in shallow and easily reached dishes was also put out.

It was not many minutes after the feast was spread that the guests began to arrive, not in pairs or singly, but in flocks. The alert speckled startlings strutted about the "tables" chattering and fluttering and greedily trying to drive off all other species. Sparrows darted down from trees and chimney and flew off with as much as they could carry to less congested districts to eat in peace, bits of several kinds climbed, hung, sprang, and pecked away at the dangling bones and suets, and pugnacious robins watching their opportunity darted perkily forward to scramble up a few morsels while the startlings were quarreling with the sparrows over the possession of a crust.

Children and grown-ups watched from windows and from short distances out of doors, while the blood-thirsty domestic cat was persuaded (by force) to

THE TUG THAT STOOD BY.

Two vessels collided just outside the cape. One was a powerful liner on her way to port, the other a wooden freighter, bound Heaven knows where.

The steel bow of the liner tore a great hole in the other's side, and there was no chance of saving her. The commander of the liner, in immaculate uniform and brass buttons, very gallant and brave, gave orders that the crew of the miserable freighter should be transferred at once to his own vessel, to be taken to port in safety.

Only the captain of the little tramp freighter remained with the doomed craft. That grim tradition of the sea which demands that the captain shall remain until the ship is about to go down held him there, stern-faced and immovable.

"Come now," shouted the commander of the liner, "No use staying there, man. It's only a matter of an hour or two. Come aboard quick if you're coming at all."

The captain of the freighter turned back a second toward the other. "Go to thunder!" he shouted back.

The commander of the liner, grinning good naturedly, told the ship-repairers of the incident, when he reached the dock next day. "Had his nerve with him," he said. "Knew he couldn't save the boat, but he stayed any way. He's the right sort. I'd be sorry he'd been lost out. But he's safe, I guess. We had to get into port, but when we left him a tug stood by ready to take him off before his boat went down."

In the great life-tragedy of the universal sea, while the night lasts, and later, when the first gray streaks of dawn appear, disclosing with terrible exactness the wreck that the night has wrought, I want to be the captain of the tug that stood by, writes John Trevor Custis in Lippincott's.

Perhaps my vigil shall be wasted. Perhaps some great ocean liner, sweeping majestically after her mate to port, will stop her giant screw and take off the captain of the tramp freighter.

Perhaps when he reaches the deck he will turn and wave me farewell. More likely he will swoon with weariness and relief, and will not even see the face of the man on the tug that stood by. It matters not.

I do not want to be the commander of either of those great liners. Nor do I crave the pitiful glory of the man who was willing to go down with his ship. I want only to cast anchor again and disappear from the scene of the wreck, where no man knows and no man cares.

For I shall know, and none else need know—that through the night, his back to the mast and his burning eyes turned to the stars, the devil-knave I was there. Consciously or subconsciously, he knew I was waiting in the darkness for his call.

He did not call. He never learned my name. But when the sunlight of another day shall dispel the fearsome shadows of his night, he will remember. He will give thanks to the Master of the Waters for the tug that stood by.

MUNISING BOWLERS COMING.

A five-men bowling team, representing the Young Men's Christian association of Munising, will meet a Negaunee team at DeFrance's alleys next Tuesday evening. There are a number of strong bowlers at Munising and it is expected that the team will be the best that can be organized there. It will be a three-game match, the total number of pins to be counted. The Negaunee team will likely give the Munising boys a return match on their alleys before the close of the season.

UPPER PENINSULA MERCHANT DECLARES THAT JUDICIOUS ADVERTISING OVERCOMES MAIL ORDER COMPETITION.

"Local merchants never can expect to defeat the mail order houses until they fight them with their own weapons," declares a prominent and progressive upper peninsula merchant.

"I remember an instance that occurred when I was on the road. There was an old German clothing merchant in one of the small towns I made who had a good stock and who undersold that other section of the state.

"The mail order houses as a rule handle an inferior class of goods. After freight and express charges are added the purchaser pays more in nine cases out of ten than he would if he had bought the same stuff at home.

"There's a funny thing about this mail order business, too. The man who gets stuck very seldom says anything. He's ashamed to acknowledge that he had the worst of it, but this same man if he bought a piece of goods at home that wasn't right up to the mark would tell the merchant know about it in a hustle.
