It will be hoped that the courts will company fair earnings and the public that it is not being "soaked" out of all reason for the sleeping car service.

been bitterly disappointed by many failures to find a cure. A medicine in tablet unpleasant features of ointments, sup-surely worth trying, especially as the LOWER STATE NOTES.

ZEELAND—The Bercolu Independent Telephone company is gradually forging to the front. Already twenty subscribers have been secured and the work of constructing the lines will be begun soon.

HILLSDALE—Local officers are now investigating one of the crudest cases of robbery ever known in this county. In the last few months between $1,200 and $1,500 has been stolen from Mrs. Anna Skinner, who lives in Camden township.

CADILLAC—Mayor-elect Gaffney has called a special meeting of the city council to precede the regular meeting. At that meeting action will be taken relative to the amount of bonds to be demanded of saloonkeepers.

MUSKOGEE—Passages from Shakespeare were quoted by attorneys for the defense in a $10,000 damage suit in the district court here and so impressed the jury that it rendered a verdict declaring the plaintiff had no grounds for suit.

PONTIAC—That the Oakland Motor Car company intends to build extensive additions to its already big plant this year is evidenced by the announcement that three dwellings on Oakland avenue property which the company recently acquired will be sold at auction.

FLINT—The increase of two and three-quarters acres in floor space by erection of one new plant and three additions to existing plants, giving employment to 1,000 more men, was announced at the general office of the Buick Motor company.

JACKSON—Since Dr. George A. Fritch has been incarcerated in Jackson a mysterious "lady in black" has made repeated efforts to see him.

TRAVERS CITY—The police are looking for George Anderson, presumably from Indiana, and his son Charles, who, it is alleged, obtained $700 here by means of a fraudulent deal.

GOVERNMENT EXPERT TELLS OF WOLVES

NUMBER IN UPPER PENINSULA IS INCREASING IN SPITE OF HIGH BOUNTY PAID.

U.S. TRAPPERS TO WORK HERE

Will Locate in Wells Township During the Summer and Will Endeavor to Exterminate Young.

Charles E. Brewster of Washington, D. C., a wolf expert from the Bureau of Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture, spent yesterday in Marquette. Mr. Brewster is touring the upper peninsula of Michigan making a preliminary investigation of the extent of the destruction of deer by wolves, and while here discussed local conditions with County Clerk Jenks, and a number of hunters and trappers. Today, he will go to Delta county to view the havoc made in a deer yard by wolves the past winter. About only 1, Mr. Brewster states that a number of professional trappers in the employ of the government will come to the upper peninsula to kill as many wolves as they can. Their efforts will be directed especially toward killing the young, the government having come to the conclusion that this is the only effectual method of ridding the country of wolves.

"For several years," said Mr. Brewster last evening, "the Bureau of Biological Survey has been investigating the extent to which deer are being destroyed by wolves. Reports have been received from county clerks and others showing the number of deer killed by hunters and the number of wolf bounties paid each year. Statistics compiled these reports show that in the upper peninsula of Michigan at least as many, if not more deer are killed by wolves than by hunters. Last year there were 37 per cent less wolves killed by hunters than in the fall of 1908, while the amount paid for wolf bounties was larger than ever before. This is unmistakable evidence that wolves are increasing and that the deer are decreasing.

Bounty System a Failure.

"Government experts have come to the conclusion that the bounty system does not work to destroy the wolves. Michigan pays the highest wolf bounty of any state, yet the number of wolves is apparently constantly increasing. This is because the wolf hunters are not primarily for the money that is in it, and the extermination of the wolves is a secondary consideration. Wolf hunters make little effort to capture whelps, as it pays better to devote their efforts to killing the full grown animals. This is only by exterminating the young that the country can ever be rid of wolves.

"Discovery of wolf dens and extermination of the young is the purpose of the government trappers. Experiments in this country, as well as elsewhere, have shown that wolf dens are not hard to find and that large numbers of whelps can be killed, especially in the spring of the year. When the trappers come to Marquette county, they will probably locate in Wells township, near the Dickinson county line which, it strikes me, is a most favorable location. They will set traps and put out a scent near those traps to draw the animals. A preparation has been concocted which the wolves will follow persistently, the formula for which can be had by any one on application.

"Our experience has shown that to increase the bounty does not help matters any, as far as the extermination of the animals is concerned. By the destruction of the young the increase of wolves may be prevented more effectually and economically than by any other way. The large size of the litters makes the method especially important, as wolves usually have six to ten pups. It is now positively known that wolves pair for the breeding season, and that the males stay with the females and help feed and care for the pups during the summer. Wolves do not breed until two years old, which accounts for the presence of roving bands during the breeding season. Trapping is the most satisfactory method of fighting them, poison having been found to be of little avail.

"In probably no department of government is more advice received from 'cranks' all of whom have some original scheme for ridding the country of wolves. The following signed communication, which has just been forwarded to me, is a sample of what we are getting in the way of advice all the time:

One Man's Bright Idea.

"Through the publications of the Bureau of Biological Survey the public has recently been made familiar with the enormous damage done each year by wolves. Occasionally an added horror is imparted by the tale of children, and even adults, falling to return home, whose fate is afterward revealed by bits of clothing scattered over the blood-stained snow and maybe an empty revolver or Winchester rifle.

"The writer has often wondered why the people interested in lessening these ravages do not take a hint from the porcupine or hedgehog. "The mail-clad knight, slashing his way unscathed through a pack of wolves vainly snapping at his armored limbs, is a familiar figure in stories of the Middle Ages. Why could not a modern knight repeat the experiment to much better purpose with revolver or magazine rifle? A suit of armor absolutely impenetrable to wolves' teeth would probably not weigh more than fifty pounds, a trifle to a vigorous man. "As a further discouragement, the armor might be studded, a la porcupine, with sharp spines of steel, just a trifle longer than the wolf's canines. Such an outfit would probably not cost much more than a good suit of clothes, and if the sport became fashionable, the manufacturers of sporting goods would soon eclipse the fame of the ancient armorers of Milan.

"A party of three or four men, thus accoutred cap-a-pie, with a pair of snow-shoes each, a muskeek with provisions, and a divisible tent, ought to be able in a country where this game is fairly abundant, to earn a handsome fortune each winter out of the counties which the afflicted states pay for wolfskins, not to mention the rare sport standing invulnerable, back to back, amid a pack of snarling, snapping beasts, panting after your blood, and shooting them down as fast as you can pull the trigger. No doubt the rascals would soon learn to give the knights a wide berth, but a light cloth suit worn over the armor might null their suspicions. Possibly the sword might afford better sport than firearms, besides being less apt to scare the game.

"In Russia, where the wolf plague is even more serious than in the United States, this method, if found practicable, would render even greater services. Possibly it might be applicable to other game, and in the management of captive beasts in zoological gardens. The deadly cobra, for example, might be handled with impunity by a mail-clad attendant."

FIRST REHEARSAL.

Details of Parade for Guild Hall Carnival Have Been Arranged.

The first of the final rehearsals for the grand carnival and circus at the Guild Hall was held last evening. The performers in the various numbers went through their paces before a critical but well pleased audience of committee-men. Some of the work was a little ragged, but by the time of the first performance it was remedied, and that no part of the program will need any apologies. The details of the parade were settled at a meeting of the parade committee held yesterday. The principal features will be as follows:

Marshal—Phil Hopkins on his Arabian steed. City band in uniform. Eight equestrian riders, ladies and gentlemen.

Three drags draped with bunting, the first containing Teddy Roosevelt and a South African lion; the second containing a polar bear and Peary and Cool, and the third the only genuine zebra west of the Allegheny mountains.

Graffe and Chantrel. Royal Bengal tiger. Mr. and Mrs. Rube from Chocoday. Brass hinged barker.

The parade will also be interspersed with transparencies, searchlights and shows who will perform amusing antics. It will start from the Guild Hall at 7 p. m. and will traverse the downtown district, returning in time for the beginning of the regular performance. It has been decided to close the different departments of the Guild Hall for the balance of this week, except to those who are to take part in the carnival and circus.

FORTY-TWO DEALERS APPLY FOR LICENSES

MEETING OF COUNCIL LAST EVENING PROVED VERY TAME AFFAIR—RUMORED THAT AN ATTEMPT TO ABOLISH WATER BOARD WOULD BE MADE.

Though the council room gallery was well filled last evening in anticipation of a lively aldermanic session, the meeting passed off without even a ripple of excitement, and adjournment was taken five minutes after the session had been called to order. The only business transacted was to receive the applications for renewal of licenses from forty-one saloon keepers and one wholesale warehouse. These applications were referred to the committee on licenses and trade regulations and will be acted upon at a meeting to be held next Monday evening. Eighteen of the applicants filed surety company bonds with their applications, and these bonds were also referred to the same committee. The following are the liquor dealers who have asked for a license to do business another year: August Anderson, Elias Akkala, Peter Boyer, Ernest H. Bush, Charles L. Christian, Dummer Bros., Thomas Fennessy, Timothy J. Foley, D. P. Fontaine, Joseph Forwick, Frank Labonte, John Larson, Maurice Lavasseur, Charles H. Leckhart, John Lamson, John H. McMillan, Kust Jatonson, Emil Merio, Duhphis Paris, Noah R. Pellissier, John Platenburg, William Rice, William Rivers, Jr., Louis Reubens, John W. Rustenovsky, Martin Savelle, Joseph Simola, Selma S. Steenback, Frank Suszek, Dan Sullivan, Philip Trombley, Fred W. Thoney, Louis Vierling, Leander Winkka, The F. Bending company, E. J. Bernard and The Keeley Brewing company (warehouse).

Interest in last night's meeting had been heightened by the report circulated yesterday afternoon that an ordinance had been prepared under the direction of Alderman Hennessy, the purpose of which was to amend the city charter that the park, cemetery and street commission would be abolished, and the duties of that commission devolve on the common council. Such an ordinance was drawn up by the city attorney yesterday, but for some reason it was not presented at the meeting last night. To abolish the commission, or to amend the city charter in any other way, the same procedure is necessary as was gone through with in amending the water board act. The council must first pass an ordinance to that effect, after which the proposed amendment must be approved by the governor of the state, and after such approval must be put to a vote of the electors of the city.

Alderman Hennessy has long been known to be opposed to the board system and it is thought quite generally that this proposed amendment is only the first step in an attempt to abolish all the boards. Just why the proposed ordinance was not introduced last night could not be ascertained, but it is supposed that a canvass of the aldermen did not require the required number of votes could be secured to get it through the council.

CRYSTAL FALLS HEARD FROM. Agent the baseball situation the Crystal Falls Diamond Drill speaks as follows: "Crystal Falls has been offered a berth in the Marquette county baseball league and the deal ones are coming to life again. Baseball has been dead in the Falls since the days of our big team when we could get no games and had to disband after going in the hole financially. It came to life again for a brief breathing spell last fall but again the inability to get games on the local grounds killed the sport and it is deadlier than ever.

"The offer of Marquette may resurrect the game again. The proposition is to have Crystal Falls enter the league, each city to keep all of the money taken in on its own grounds. While this arrangement isn't hardly fair to the small cities of the league who must have good teams in order to draw crowds in the larger towns, yet it seems to be looked upon with favor by those who wish baseball and don't want independent ball. For our part we would prefer to see a league made up of Iron River, Crystal Falls, Iron Mountain and Norway. Such an organization would be compact, pretty well balanced and furnish good hot rivalry. A meeting will be held Tuesday to talk over this baseball matter."
