What the success of CIO in the Hanna mines portends only the passage of time can show. Announcement was made this week of the contractual relation between employers and men is now beyond dispute. There can be no dispute, either, over hours or work, or pay for overtime. These are covered by the law and precedents established by the NLRB. The mining companies, without regard to their contractual relations with the men, conform.

As the law and NLRB regulations now have taken from the field of dispute hours and overtime pay rates, there are left as possible issues, except prevailing rates of pay, only minor differences that usually can be disposed of by negotiation.

Little Steel has agreed to a 44 cents a day wage increase. The stage, therefore, from, seems to be set for demand from the unions for rises for the men in the mines.

Steel Is Short

Mr. Higgins has returned to New Orleans convinced that the maritime commission's order stopping work on the shipyards that in 1943 would have been operating to produce 200 ships will be revoked. As there is reason to believe that Mr. Higgins would have done a good job, there may well be regret that conditions not foreseen when the contract for the yards was entered into required that this step be taken.

But there is no reason to believe that the commission's order represents a result of phenagling by companies now working on shipping contracts to preempt all the business they can possibly get their hands on, or their fear that the Higgins company would impeach Admiral Land's testimony that it was motivated solely by the fact that if the steel that would have to go into the Higgins yards is used for the production of ships in existing yards the country will have much more tonnage at the close of the year than it would otherwise have.

London's industrial czars have proposed several different arrangements for centralized manufacture. including permanent mergers and elimination of unnecessary or uneconomic units and payment of royalties to closed firms by those which continue operation. The design officially favored provides that surviving factories ship finished materlals to their restricted competitors for distribution. In most instances brand names will be preserved so that those temporarily liquidated may reenter the field after the conflict. Although the WPB scouts are making only an exploratory inquiry, it is probable that their recommendations will hew closely to the Brittish pattern.

MIRACLE-Confidential surveys by Government statisticians disclose that the much advertised "conversion" of peacetime plants to war work has lagged seriously. Whereas the word suggests an overnight shift, a more apt way of describing the change-over is to call it "transformation" or "metamorphosis." It is a slow and difficuit task involving many human and economic problems not anticipated by Washington planners.

The automobile industry, for instance, was cited as one group whch would encounter little delay cars for planes and tanks. It was suggested that only a comparatively slight revision of assembly line is that 55 per cent of its emergency output comes from new and hurriedly constructed factories, while the balance rolls out of prewar centers. Five of the eight leading companies are making aircraft, two are fashioning trucks and combat vehicles, one is engaged in munitions. ## Women Are Being Realistic About Their War Duty

(By MANTHEI HOWE)

For two decades or more many women have received professional training which they frankly acknowledged was taken to serve them as a means of gaining a living until they married.

Honest women have always conceded that if, and when, they met the right man they'd prefer marriage to anything else. So year after year girls entered offices, places of business, began the practice of their professions, and then presently left their work to be

service examinations. Are Being Realistic

In many instances women who tractive, but who always enjoyed working with their hands are going in for mechanical training. A lot of them with husbands, brothers and sweethearts in the service have deserted their former work, and have re-arranged their household schedules and by the thousands have gone into industry. There they are doing varied work, practically all of it a far cry from any previous experience.

So many women have gone in for occupations previously held by men, work that gets them begrimed and disheveled, that special beauty technics have been worked out. The women have no intention of sacrificing appearance and femininity even though they may be riveters. What is more the women for the most part are giving an excellent account of themselves in some instances doing more creditable work than the men formerly responsible for similar jobs.

Some women, who by reason of family responsibilities, care of young children, are unable to participate in war effort that takes them away from home, are not going to be left out of active work. They are taking lessons in sewing, cooking, household management.

These Work on Home Front

They are starting in giving their children a training in self-confidence and ability. Boys, who previously did little in helping about home, are being given jobs that dad does ordinarily. A considerable number of households are, and will be, organized on a more effective basis than ever before.

Housewives with a knack for sewing, mending and making over clothes are planning a small home industry of such work for women who do not have such skills or cannot find time to do such work.

In some of the larger towns housewives are combining forces. so that one does all the cooking. canning, and such work for the two families, while the other woman is responsible for ironing, cleaning or gardening. They have found that such arrangements make it possible for both women to have more leisure time for community efforts and war work, The important thing is that women are becoming alive to the implications of this all-out-for-war situation and are bestirring themselves to bring into action skills and talents that in the days of

Robert Melvins Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

About 100 friends attended the reception held Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Melvin, 301 West Kaye avenue, in celebration of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of the couple, who were married in Bishopmill Elgin, Morayshire, Scotland, by the Rev. Robert Cowan, of the United Free church.

The rooms were decorated with flowers, the gifts of friends. A large ship of golden flowers, arranged by Mrs. Eugene Phaneuf, formed the centerpiece of the table There was, of course, a three-tiered wedding cake with its trim of golden leaves.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Martha Dompiere, Mrs. Eliza-beth Bengston, Mrs. Clara Beng-ston, Mrs. Ann Antezak and Mrs. Andrew Piawecki.

The couple received numerous cards of felicitation and many gifts. After the reception the children of the couple, Albert ("Scotty", Melvin; Mrs. Turman Peterson, o Chicago; and Mrs. Leo J. Thibodeau, entertained at a chicken dinner for their parents and relatives in the Northwoods club. Out-oftown guests at the reception and dinner were Truman Peterson and son, Richard; and Mr. and Mrs Raymond Peterson and children, Darlene and Raymond, Chicago.

At the conclusion of dinner, the uests returned to the Melvin nome where cards were played and there was group singing of Scot-society of "Figger Filberts" held its first meeting of the season in its padded-cell clubrooms today and decided that, barring a catastrophe like the loss of Leo Durocher's voice, the Brooklyn Dodgers are pretty close to a cinch to hang onto their National league pennant.

Since they disposed of the secondplace St. Louis Cardinals two out Today's Games of three in their just-concluded set, the Gowanus bums are now sitting in a spot where, if they play only .500 ball the rest of the way home, the Cards would have to win 38 of their remaining 58 games to beat them out. This is a .655 percentage, and since the Cardinals have turned in only a .625 mark so far this season, you can plainly see it looks like a bad case of St. Louis

What's more, of the 56 games the Brooklyns still have to play, 21 of them are with the bewildered Braves and futile Phillies. And since the Flatbush follies already have knocked off these two clubs 19 times against four losses, you don't need a crystal ball to see that the doctor couldn't have prescribed a better treatment for the bums. At the same time, the Cards still have 23 to go with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, a pair of clubs that have whipped St. Louis 10 times this year while losing only 11 to the

The way things stand now, Brooklyn has a record of 69 wins and 29 losses through Wednesday's games. St. Louis, eight games back, has 60 and 36. Thus if the Dodgers win only half their remaining games-28-they'll wind up with 97 victories for the season. The Cards then would have to win an incendiary bomb with a gentle spray or to dash it out boldly with a jet of water apparently was settled tonight in a demonstration which showed the latter method to be most effective.

Jet of Water Better To Fight Fire Bombs

Members of the New York City fire department and Army technicians tested the two methods before 1,200 city civil service employes and Army representatives.

Four-pound magnesium thermite bombs, the type-used by Brig.-Gen. James Doolittle in the American air raid on Japan, were used.

Tonight's demonstration showed that the jet extinguished the bombs in less than half the time of the

Shortage Of Beef Looms In This Area

NEGAUNEE, July 30-Negaunee housewives who like to put a beef roast before the "man of the house" on a Sunday noon were wondering today what they would do to cater to the lord and master's wishes, what with meat salesmen reporting a beef shortage that shows signs of becoming acute.

There was a shortage in the eastern states last week and now these districts are, being served, leaving a shortage for the midwestern territory, a salesman explained here toda;

Local merchants admitted the situation is "different" and many were wondering what Friday's meat car from the packers would Contain. However, invoices reveal-ed that most of the orders will be sharply reduced in the filling. A few who have space for cooler accommodations will be able to meet all demands, but it was reliably reported this afternoon that many stores will not have much beef after the weekend.

Front Extends 300 Miles

The fury of battle was concentrated in the Kletskaya area of the great elbow of the Don river, about 70 miles northwest of industrial Stalingrad; at Bataisk, 15 miles below Rostov on the railway to the Baku oil fields, and around Tsimlyansk, 120 miles upstream from Rostov, where the Germans have spent thousands of lives from crossing of DETROITER DROWNS

It was a 300-mile front of smoke and flames, of thousands of clanking tanks and death-spitting planes, of terrain littered with enoromus casualties and rubble of destroyed tanks and other machines of death.

In all these sections, the Germans appeared to be moving slowly and painfully at reduced speed over the treeler plains, with the Russians still strong enough to execute vigorous counter-attacks. Both sides were employing enormous forces, hurling fresh reserves constantly into the battle which is Hitler's supreme bld to knock Russia out of the war and reach the rich oil deposits.

The Russian mid-day communique tersely summed up the main front thus:

Bataisk: "Heavy fighting is going on. The enemy has lauched several attacks and advanced in separate sectors."

Stalingrad: "South of Kletskaya, fierce battles continued against enemy tanks and infantry. All atmpts by the enemy to wedge our defenses failed." Kletskaya is 75 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

Tsimlyansk: "Soviet planes attacked enemy groups crossing to the south bank of the Don and Soviet tank and infantry units made successful counter-attacks." Kerch Strait Crossed

(There was no confirmation of a Vichy broadcast that the Germans had crossed the seven-mile Kerch strait to the Taman peninsula of the Caucasus. However, the forces of Marshal Fritz Erich von Mannstein have had sufficient time since the capture of Sevastopol to rest and regroup.

The successful Russian forces at Voronezh, 300 miles north of Rostov, continued to hold the initiative and advance, "overcoming stubborn enemy resistance," Thursday's communique said. Local skirmishes took place on other sections of the 2.000-mile front.

Though the momentum of the German steamroller seemed slowed, there was no tendency among the Russians to minimize the grave peril to the Russian military posi-

THE STORY: Christie Colton has flown a badly injured young man to a hospital. The young man seems to think he knows her. On her return home Christie discovers he is Stephen Marston, with whom her twin sister Jan is in love. In the ensuing months Christie's fiance, Bart Sanderson, joins the Air Force. On the eve of a party in Jan's honor comes news of the bombing of Pearl Harbor.
