BLOOMER GIRLS LOSE

Shut Out by Escanaba Team by a Score of 10 to 0.

In spite of the threatening weather a crowd of about 500 people witnessed the game between the "Bloomer Girls" and the Escanaba team last Sunday. The "Bloomer Girls" as a base ball team were out-classed by the local aggregation, the score at the end of nine innings being 10 to 0 in favor of Esca-naba. The primary cause of the "Bloomer Girls" inability to score was on account of their failure, to connect with the ball. But two hits were secured by them off Nolden, while St. Clair, the pitcher for the girls, allowed nine hits.

The game was not especially interest-ing, inequality of the teams being conpicuously apparent.

In the second inning the girls secured their only two hits and then came, their only chance for scoring. This chance was spoiled by the good pitching of Nolden.

The unusual spectacle of seeing a base ball team composed of girls, play was probably the most interesting feature of the game.

George Anderson, of the Richter Brewing Co.'s team, played center field for the "Bloomer Giris" owing to an injury to the regular players. The teams lined up as follows:

INTER-URBAN LINE

Work Will be Started Next Week Surveying Proposed Route.

That the Menominee-Escanaba Interurban line will be a reality, is now practically assured, by the announcement that a corps of men will comice next week on the work of surveying the route through the county. No information has been given out as to who are the backers and incorporators of the new line, but it is understood that there are no Escanaba men interested financially in the venture. W. S. Parker, of Detroit, who is a man of acknowledged skill as a railroad constructionist, will have charge of the surveying work. The route of the new line will probably lie along the Northwestern tracks and thus take in many small towns along the way. Many people welcome the arrival of this interurban line, for it will serve to connect the people of this section of Michigan in closer ties of commerce, and open new fields of business activity. To the farmers especially it will be a boon, for the agriculturalist can then have a good market in all three cities, Marinette, Menominee and Escanaba.

STRANGE INJURY CASE Man at Hospital Was First Thought

To be "Hobo Hero"

A man was found lying in a swamp near the "Soo" line track early Sunday morning by the crew of a freight train and was brought to the Delta County hospital for treatment. The man seemen to be in a dazed condition and his head badly bruised. He stated that his name was Mangus Blumberg and that he had been working on a farm near Pine Ridge. He said that he had arrived in Escanaba last Friday and had then had some money, but where he went or what happened to him was a blank. The belief of the local officials is that he had been drinking heavily and had been hurt while trying to climb into a barn. His wounds and clothes seemed to be full of hay, thus substantiating this theory.

When first found, the train crew thought they had found the "Hobo Hero" whose work at a town on the line last week has been recounted in the newspapers.

Blumberg did not turn out to be much of a hero, however.

Dishes were knocked from shelves, pictures fell from walls and buildings swayed perceptibly, in some cases chimneys toppling over. The quake; which at first was attributed to an air blast, caused intense excitement, and at the Calumet & Hecla mine the night shift men refused to go to work.

It is reported on what appears to be good authority that the principal promoters of the scheme to connect this city and Escanaba by an electric railway are Menominee Marinette and Escanaba men, that they mean business and will not hesitate to put sufficient money into the enterprise to complete the road. The report says John W. Wells of this city Isaac Stevenson of Marinette and John K. Stack of Escanaba are the godfathers of the project. It is said when Engineer Parker came here from Detroit to look over the grounds he was skeptical about a road ever being built, and that he expected to return home without doing anything but when the plan of the promoters were unfolded to him, and he found who was back of the scheme, he concluded at once that the plan would go through and that it was worth his time to un-

Man Brought to Town in Starving condition-Gave Name as Dave Young

Last Saturday night a man giving his name as Dave Young, was brought to town and confined in the county jail. His case is a peculiar one. It seems apparent that his mind is deranged, for he answered questions in an unnatural way and no information excepting his name coul i be elicited from him. It seems that he had been noticed by some farmers near Bark River, and was asked to go to their farms for food. He refused all aid and insisted upon hanging around the woods day and night without nourishment. When it was seen that he was growing weaker, Sheriff Perow was notified, and the man was taken in charge by the au-thorities. The man told some conflicting and incoherent stories, but no facts concerning his residence or friends could be learned.

TEXIS OIL PLANT BURWINI CONFLAGRATION RAGES TOWN OF HUMBLE.

Vast Tanks Explode-Lors Is Estimated at Over $600,000-Twelve Persons Are Dead.

Houston, Tex., July 25 .- The fire in the Humble oil fields, which started Sunday night is still burning fiercely, but it remains confined to the tanks of the Texas company. While no names are ascertainable, it is believed that 12 persons lost their lives. So far as can be learned, these were all negroes who were employed in trying to prevent the spread of the flames. Fortythree mules are known to have per-ished. The managers of the Texas company state that the tanks contained approximately 2,500,000 barrels of oil. which was valued at about 25 cents per barrel, and that none of the oil will be saved. In addition they say the big pumping plant at the tanks was entirely destroyed, making a total loss of more than $600,000. The efforts of the fire fighters have been confined to throwing up earthen embankments between the burning tanks, of which there are 11, and those in which 4,000,-000 barrels of oil belonging to other companies are stored. These tanks are 3,000 and 4,000 feet away from the fire, but the water which covers the field, as a result of the rain of Sunday, has floated the burning oil to the first level and a sudden "boil over" may send the burning fluid to the second embankment, which would place the other tanks in greater danger. The fire is not spreading toward the producing field, and it is not expected that it will. Hundreds of men are engaged in strengthening the levees, building them higher and in throwing up additional ridges.

Josiah Has the "Lay Grippe."

Marletta Holley ("Jostab Allen's Wife"), Author of "My Wayward Pardner," "My Opinions and Betay Bobbett's," "Sa-mantha at Saratoga," "Samantha at the St. Louis Exposition," Etc., Tells How She Humored Her Haif-Sick Pard-

(Copyright, 1906, by Joneph B. Bowles.) There has been considerable sickness in Jonesville this spring. Squire Pendegrass, Sime Yerden's wife, Burden Simmonses wife's sister wuz all down at one time with what Josiah called the lay grippes

I hearn Josiah explainin' it to the grandchildren when he got a little better. Sez he: "It is called the lay grippe, children, because you have to lay abed so long with it."

I see the children takin' it all in, and as soon as I got 'em out of the room I sot 'em right.

I dassent dispute Josiah in no way, shape or manner whilst he wuz in such a condition, nervous and hypowy as he could be. And cross! Why cross is no name for it. He most took my head off if I said a thing the least way contrary to his idees or complained of his doin's the least bit. Why, if he had took it into his head to call the old mare a zebra I'd had to stood it and conversed with him about her stripes.

Why, some of the time when his fever wuz the highest and his bones ached

HE VOWED THERE WUZ A CONSPIR-ACY AGIN HIM.

the worst, he vowed there wuz a conspiracy agin him, and I wuz in it to keep him down where we could browbeat him and impose upon him. Onreasonable? Why, of course it wuz, but what's the use of tryin' to git blood from, a turnip? When a pardner gits pure reason out of a sick man, 'specially sick with the grip, then I'll tap a turnip and have it run most anything you call for. So held in, jinin' in with most everything he said, which seemed to soothe him more than catnip or fetty, though day after he wur up, and he proposed to go over a visitin' to Squiré Pende-

But I sez: "It will be too much for ou, Josiah." Of course it wuzn't fur, ut I knowed his weakness of nerves and body. Sez he: "The doctor wanted me to walk round all I could, and be out doors." "He didn't want you to go a-visitin'.

and," sez I, anxiously, "you and the squire never agreed when you was well, and I d'no how you would git along, both on you half sick and cross and hipowy as you can be, I don't hardly dast to let you face each other till you git stronger."

"You never hearn Squire Pendegrass and I say a word to each other tha wuzn't brotherly and kind; we always had beautiful visits together, and I in my pocket. would love to talk with him about the lay grippe." Sez I: "Hain't you never quarreled about religion, Josiah Allen? You never could abide a Universalist." "No, mom, I always said, and say to believe what he is a minter in politics and religion. The squire and I always believed in 'live and let live.' We always loved each other like brothers, and if wimmen could use a little of our good horse sense and self control, there would be fewer neighborhood quarrels and back yard jangles. And what do you take me for, anyway, Samantha, a pirate or a buckaneer, or what do you think I am?"

Sez 1: "I think you are both on you weak, pugicky old men, and as long as you always disputed and browbeat each other when you wuz well, whether you'll own it or not, I d'no what you will do when you're half sick." Josiah didn't answer these kind and well meant remarks, but got up and went into the bedroom and took down his second best suit of clothes, and sez: Well, I'm goin' over to Squire Pendegrasses this afternoon; you can do as you're a minter."

Well, of course I couldn't let him go alone. So I put on my new chocklate and white gingham, and a clean white apron, and we sot out about half past 12, I havin' got a early dinner at his request, so we could git there in time. It is only a little ways, but Josiah got dretful tired, and I told him to lean on me.

"Lean on my grandmother!" sez he, all out of breath, usin' his last mite of wind, seemin'ly, to sass his pardner.

"Well," sez 1, "I would be willin' to have you lean on her if she wuz here. but bein' she is in another spear, I guess I'll answer." And I took holt of his arm and kinder stiddled him along. Oh, how patient and long sufferin' a woman duz have to be when she's got a half sick man to deal with. I'd ruther any day git along with a hull sick one.

Well, he seemed willin' enough up and tottled along alone, wantin' to that they wuz gittin' pretty close to the

> Miss Gowdey and I had gone up into her kitchen chamber to look at her basket of carpet rags she'd got ready to take to the weaver's, and I wuz jest a-sayin' to her: "I believe, Polly, that butnut color is the richest lookin' color you've got, for it don't cost as much as dimon dyes." . And she sez: "Don't you remember, Samantha, you gin me the reseet." And est then we hearn the sound of voylent language, and we hurried down, jest in time to ketch their last words, and she led off the squire tremblin' like a leaf. into the kitchen bedroom, and gin him a drink of sassprilla and spignut. And I rubbed Josiah's temples and gin him some sweet flag to chaw on; I had some

Well, we kep' 'em apart for quite a spen till they both acted kinder 'shamed, and then we let 'em in together agin, Josiah a-sayin: "The lay grippe all onhinges anybody." And the squire jined in with him, and for a time peace rained now, that a man has a perfect right down, and Polly and I had got to visitin' real good agin, and I had gradually walked in, a-knittin' as I went, into the buttery, where she wuz mouldin' out some riz biscuit for supper, and she wuz jest a-tellin' me about the queer doin's over to Simon Slimpsey's, and I wuz jest about beginnin' to tell her what I had hearn about the minister's brother's wife from them that had seen with their own eyes, when we hearn such a loud noise from the settin'-room, and not knowin' but they wuz committin' salt and buttery on each other, though it did seem as if they hadn't either on 'em strength enough, we rushed out. And sure enough, our worst fears wuz realized, the squire had throwed a him book at Josiah, and wuz a-screamin' out as we went in:

"Paul sez, that all men shall be saved, and come to the knowledge of the truth. and Paul won't lie, I swear, you cussed old Allen!"

Josiah wuz poundin' the table by the side on him with his fist, and luggin' in Paul and Moses and Job to bear witness to his words, draggin' in them good old Bible characters into these shameful doin's.

Sez Polly to the squire: "I'd be ashamed to lug Paul into such a disgraceful seen, actin' so to a visitor." And I sez: "I'd never bring in Moses and Job to witness such a seen as this. a afternoon visitor a actin' in such a way! You wouldn't ketch Mr. Moses or Mr. Job makin' a afternoon visit to a neighbor, and actin' in this way." And I led Josiah out onto the back stoop a-pantin'. And I sot him down in a chair on the stoop and went in and told Polly I guessed I had better take Josiah home before supper, for we shouldn't take any comfort with 'em. But she wouldn't hear to it, and said she'd take care of the squire, if I'd take care of Josiah. And so we didn't either be helped along by me till we got in on us dast to leave 'em agin a minute front of the house, then he straightened that afternoon. And when we see

(Wm. Ellery, Staff Correspondent.) Lansing Mich., July 24 .- The Congre gational assembly, Michigan's biggest annual gathering, will hold its yearly meeting at Frankfort from August 2 to August 23. This event is probably the largest to which any denomination can lay claim. Every section of the country is represented in the gatherings, which enjoy periods of rest at Frankfort. The organization represents about 20 states in its patronage. It is officered as follows: President, Rev. H. C. Herring, D. D., Omaha, Neb.; secretary, Rev. H. S Wannamaker, Elyria, O.; vice president and manager, Rev. J. H. Hull, Frankfort, Mich.;; treasurer, J. F. Hoffstetter, Frankfort, Mich. The advance copies of the programme are just being sent out, and the names of some of the very hest men in the country appear as lecturers and instructors. The aim of the association is "First Hand Bible Study." and the following are representative of the men who participate: President Henry Churchill King, D. D., Oberlin college; President J. H. George, D. D., Chicago theological seminary; President E. C. Lancaster, Ph. D., Olivet college; President J. Edward Kirbye, Drury college, Springfield, Mo.; Rev. Washington Gladden, D. Ernest Bourner Allen, Toledo, besides others who will speak at the round table talks and morning discussions. Every train and boat brings to Frankfort tourists and visitors who expect to attend and the outlook is very promising for a large crowd.

Warner Leads Strenuous Life.

President Roosevelt is not the only trenuous executive which the United States possesses. The nation's chief has a rival in the governor of Michigan, and aside from his routine duties Mr. Warner is at present doing a prodigious amount of work, which consists of meeting with several state boards, receiving delegations, listening to people who foster booms for bashful office seeleers and talking with bold but ambitious job hunters. The governor on August 1 will appoint a number of deputy oil inspectors, and the strife for the positions after be adopted, are made the sole basis of the contract between myself and the supreme tent, and I for myself and my ficiaries agree to conform and to be governed thereby. By this clause the supreme tent is carefully protected and the applicant assumes all responsibility when he attaches his signature. The certificate issued to Wineland provides for the payment to his beneficiary of one assessment on the membership, but not exceeding 2,000, upon proof of his death, together with the surrender of the certificate, "provided, he shall have in every particular complied with the laws, rules and regutations of the order governing members and their beneficlaries, which are now in force or may hereafter be adopted by the supreme tent to which he belongs."

Holmes as a Solon.

Absolute sincerity of purpose, which is accounted a rare jewel among state solons, is no more studiously illustrated anywhere than in the character of Mr. John Holmes, of Gratiot, and now that the legislative session has ended, the friends which that legislator made in Lansing are wont to tell of his characteristics: For three terms the old man has sat in his seat and voted as he talked

-straight from the shoulder. For three terms he has taken a prominent part in the after-session symposiums in which the members delight to air their views and try to turn a vote or two for to-morrow. It is a familiar sight toosee the thin, stooped form of the gray-haired man, the center of a group of men arguing out some point of law or right or politics, with his left hand in his trousers pocket, his right pointing a bony finger at the man he seeks to convince, his words enunciated slowly and clearly, and when he has finished, his lips set in a determined expression. John W. Holmes was born in New York state in 1840. In 1884 he came to Gratlot county and went into business in Alma. For two terms he has wielded the gavel in the little council chamber of Alma village as its president. He has been a member of the board of education and has always taken a live interest in school mat ters. He is a produce dealer and also sells wagons, buggles and farm implements. The name of Holmes will always be used in connection with Michigan's first general automobile law Holmes drafted it and fought for it. forced to the wall, and secured the pas-

I dealt them out liberally.

I knowed I could make it up when he got well; I could correct him then, and have my own way a little mite; so 1 let him tear round and act, though my conscience told me it wuz bad for his morals, and liable to make him more rambunxious and worrisome in the future.

The doctor was quite skairt about him one spell. And my heart wuz fairly in my mouth for several days when he wuz the worst, but finally he pulled through and began to git a little stronger. Well, when he got up round the house he wuz as oneasy as a whale would be in our summer kitchen, and flopped round most as much. I tried to git him to read the Testament; I put some lib'ry books before him, and a him book. But no, he wouldn't look at 'em.

And I sez, "Don't you want to read 'Frenzied Finance,' or the 'Arabian Nights,' or 'Gulliver's Travels?' They're all light readin', and real takin'."

No, he didn't want to read nothin'. he said.

Then 1 brought out the big family Bible and put it in front of him.en the stand, and sez: "Don't you want to look at these beautiful moral pictures. Josiah? Mebby they'll do you good." I dassent hint a bit closter that his morals wug runnin' down.

"No. I don't," he snapped out.

"Well," sez I, bringin' out "Foxe's Book of Martyrs" (and I thought to myself, with a deep sithe, oh what a chapter I could add to that book. if Miss Foxe and I could git together and talk over our tribulations, I thought I would ruther have seven, and one at the breast, than one man in his state). Sez I: "These are dretful interestin' pictures, Josiah, and mebby it would do you good to see what John went through."

"John Rogers!" sez he, skornfully, "what did he know about trouble? He never had the lay grippe that I hearn on. No, mom, I don't want to see no pletures!"

"Well," sez I, "don't you want to croshay?" seg I. "Some men love to when they're shet up in the house. Or knit tattin, some men git real interested in that at such times," sez I. "Deacon Gowdey tatted enough lace to trim a piller case when he had the grip."

Pianos Were Coming In Pretty Fast to Consignee in Dry Town in Maine

It has always been claimed that the craftiest smugglers were the pot hunters of Washington county. Not so, now, says the Lewiston Journal. Never once did they devise a scheme cleverer or which worked more successfully in getting game out of the state contrary to the law, than did a certain Penobscot county rumseller in getting a supply of goods into his place of business in violation of the statutes of Maine.

But while it worked successfully on two occasions, there is but little likelihood that it will ever do so again, for the deputies are wise to it now and in the future will watch out. One day the people of a certain Penobscot county town, freight for which must pass through Bangor, saw a big upright plano box hauled up to the establishment of one who had for years been identified with the liquor business. However, no one thought anything strange of this, because he lived over his place of business,

The box, bearing a stencil mark which announced that it came from Boston, caused the people to go out and talk, and when in the course of a week, a second case showed up, to wonder. Then gossip got busy and the inquisitive began to pry around, with the result that some interesting, if not exactly startling, information was trotted out. Said information caused the deputies at Bangor to carefully examine all plano cases which the freights bring to Bangor city. Each of those two plano cases, or boxes, it is said, contained 150 gallons of bottled liquor.

Raised Bates Lawful.

Circuit Judge Eugene F. Law, of Port Huron, handed down his opinion in the case of Dan St. Clair Winland, of Pittsburg, Pa., against the Knights of the Maccabees of the World, wherein the defendant protested against the raise in rates adopted by the supreme tent at its biennial review in Detroit last year. In a nutshell the finding is that a decree be entered dismissing the bill of complaint with costs to the defendant. Judge Law based his finding on the laws of the supreme tent governing an appli-

Michigan Councils Meet.

One hundred delegates representing practically all of the Royal Arcanum councils in Michigan met in Detroit in a convention called by the local councils of the order to discuss the recent increase in the rates of the Royal Arcanum. Two delegates from Ohio lodges attended the convention for the purpose it is understood, of pledging the support of the membership in that state to any attempt to have the raise in rates reconsidered. A delegate from Ontario was also present at the meeting. Organization was effected at the first session and speeches were made by delegates urging that action be taken toward rescinding the raise which they declared would force the old men out of the order. Discussion among the delegates seemed to indicate a decided preponderance of opinion in favor of asking the supreme council to meet and reconsider the raise in rates.

In the following sharp message the council demanded that the extra rates be rescinded: "The representatives of our grand council to the supreme council and the officers of the supreme council have proved to be our dictators, instead of our servants. They have said to us 'Get out, you are too old. We have no more use for you and city, one in Milan township, Monroe you are too near death's door to take any more chances on.' Resolved. That whereas our representatives to the supreme council, S. S. Babcock and J. R. cause for the following month, as the Johnson, have so emphatically declared in favor of the proposed increase in rates that they be requested to resign as representatives of our grand councll, and that two others be elected in their places, who will voice the sentiment of Michigan in the supreme council. Resolved further, That whereas our supreme council officers have opposed the members of the Royal Arcanum and outlived their usefulness, they be requested to resign."

St. Joseph.-Eighteen citizens of Buchanan narrowly escaped drowning in the St. Joseph river when the naphtha launch in which they were riding struck a snag and went to the cation for membership. These read as bottom. Women and children, terrorfollows: "This application, and the stricken, leaped into the water, but all constitution and by-laws of the supreme were brought to land safely.

He then left her and sued for divorce, alleging infidelity. In the parting he settled on her a mansion home in New York and stocks, bonds and money, her possessions at that time, it is said, being over $200,000.

In the fall of 1901, abandoned by her husband, Mrs. Hoyt came to Tiffin and purchased the Maples, worth $50,000, for her home, in the most aristocratic suburban part of the city. On it she placed many improvements and gathered around her many servants. Her stables contained a $2,000 team of horses. One of her manias was her love for cats and dogs. She had many of them, one of the witnesses in the contested will case saying: "There was a cat up every tree on the premises." Her dogs were allowed to eat at the table with her, and if any of them got sick, a regularly licensed physician was summoned to attend it. In one instance she summoned a specialist from New York to attend to a favorite poodle. The dog died and the doctor got a $500 fee and his expenses. It was buried in the burial lot at The Maples and the grave was ever kept green.

In her girlhood days, as Catherine Guss, she had a slight acquaintance with Judge Bunn, then a young lawyer, now 50 years of age and a widower. This acquaintance led her to employ him as her legal adviser in the management of her affairs and the divorce proceedings with her husband, yet peading in the courts. Their renewed acquaintance rapidly ripened into love, and they were engaged to be married as soon as the divorce from her husband, Reuben M. Hoyt, was granted in the courts. They were constantly together, and, with her, he took several trips from Tiffin to New York to attend to her property affairs, and, as affianced husband, she turned on him much of her personal property, musisting of stocks, bonds, etc., and also made a will bequeathing him almost her entire estate, only small legacies being left to her sister, Mrs. Hill, and her stepbrothers, Frank and Rufus Guss.

During the winter of 1903 Mrs. Hoyt was taken seriously ill with pneumonia and her death soon followed. Immediately after Judge Bunn had the will probated, the sister and the stepbrothers brought proceedings to have it set cabin. Portions of the upper deck ide, alleging undue influence and the mental inability of the testatrix to make a will. Many important depositions were to be taken in different parts of the country, and for this and other reasons the trial of the case did not take place until last June. The verdict of the jury was rendered about the middle of July. The reasons of Mrs. Hoyt, as shown in the evidence, for practically disinheriting her sister and stepbrothers and other relatives were that until she came into possession of her wealth they had not been on friendig terms. In girlhood, the sister, Mrs. Hill, and the brothers had opposed her in a love ashes. match. This led to a bitter estrangement, and the angered girl left home. When wealth came to her, however, Mrs. Hoyt's bitterness of the years before lessened and she often remembered them with expensive gifts and large sums of money, but blood relationship with her was not stronger than the love for her lover, and she left him almost her entire estate. DISASTER ON A WAR VESSEL

FAULTY BOILER ON GUNBOAT BENNINGTON BLOWS UP.

Fifty-Eight Members of Her Crew Killed and 46 Wounded-Event Occurs at San Diego, Cal.

San Diego, Cal., July 22 .- Broken and blackened, with her flag flying at of water, the United States warship Bennington lies beached on the shores of San Diego harbor. Fifty-eight of been identified; 46 were wounded. and 21 are missing. This is the result of the explosion which wrecked the trim little naval craft and wrought such terrible havoc among her crew at half-past ten o'clock Friday morning.

Boiler Explodes.

The Bennington at the time of the accident was lying in the stream just off the commercial wharf at the foot of H. street. The warship had received orders from the navy department at Washington to sall for Port Harford, where she was to meet the monitor Wyoming and convoy that vessel to Mare Island navy yard. Steam was up and everything was in readiness for sailing when suddenly, and without any warning whatever, the starboard forward boiler exploded with a Seatening roar. The explosion was terrific. People standing on the shore saw a huge cloud of white steam rise above the Bennington. Columns of water were hurled into the air, and for a distance of nearly twice the height of the spars of the vessel.

A Terrible Scene.

On bard the Bennington were preseared terrible scenes. The force of the explosion had torn a great hole in the starboard side of the ship, and the vessel was already commencing to list. A section of the upper deck was carried away from stem to stern. Blood and wreckage was distributed over the entire ship, the after cabin and the vicinity of the ship adjacent to the exploded boiler resembling a charnel house. Over it all hung the great cloud of white smoke which drifted slowly toward the Coranada shere.

Many Biown Overboard. A dozen or fifteen were blown overward by the force of the terrific explosion. Captain Wentworth, who was looking at the Bennington when the licaster occurred, says he saw human bodies hurled over a hundred feet upward. The air was black with smoke, which enveloped the ship. When it hard away only a few men could be cen on the decks, while a number ere foundering in the water. A boat cas lowered from the vessel's side and most of them were picked up and taken on board. The shock of the exlosion p-netrated every section of

There Is Plan Afoot to Connect Prince

Edward Island with the Mainland.

One of the most important and interesting of engineering problems in these days of tunnels is that of connection between Prince Edward Island and the mainland of Canada. This island, lying as it does in the lower Gulf of St. Lawrence, is a verhalf mast, her hold filled with 15 feet | itable garden in summer, but it is so isolated in winter as to prove a great discouragement to its population of about 100,000 thrifty and enher crew are dead, of whom 54 have terprising people, says the American Syren and Shipping.

It is an independent province of Canada, with its own local legislature, lieutenant governor and all the legal machinery of any other province, but for three or four months in the year is so cut off from communication as to make transit difficult and dangerous. The past winter has been so severe that for a month at a time the island was without mails.

The trouble is with the ice. The gulf does not freeze up solidly, as does the St. Lawrence river, but the swift tides and currents coming from the straits of Belle Isle, the Cabot straits (between Cape Breton and Newfoundland) and the strait of Canso, swirl through the Northumberland straits, which separates Prince Edward Island from the mainland, and carry with them fields and bergs of ice that are often impenetrable by the most powerful steamers.

It is stated that the distance at the narrowest point of the shores across the strait is about 61/2 nautical miles, and with approaches the tunnel would be in all about 814 miles. The island is now contributing about $1,400,000 to the revenue of Canada per year and contributes to all the great works of Canada without complaint.

The province is an old one, capable of prosperity, and could support 300,-000 people easily. It has valuable fisheries as well as agriculture. One survey made some years ago by Sir Douglas Fox for a tunnel estimated the cost at less than $1,000,000 per mile. but other surveyors have pronounced the bottom of the strait a mass of granite bowlders, polished cleanly by the ice to such a degree as to sparkle in a summer sun beneath the particularly clear water, while oetween these masses of granite are cleits of vast depth across which a tunnel would be impracticable. Further surveys will, however, doubtless soon be made.

ILE. BAYSSON PUBLISHES RESULTS OF VALUABLE EXPERIENCE.

A Former Pronounced Dyspeptic He Now Rejoices in Perfect Freedom from Miseries of Indigestion.

Thousands of sufferers know that the reason why they are irritable and depressed and nervous and sleepless is because their food does not digest, but how to get rid of the difficulty is the puzzling question.

Good digestion calls for strong digestive organs, and strength comes from a supply of good rich blood. For this reason Mr. Baysson took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the cure of indigestion.

" They have been my best doctor," he savs. "I was suffering from dyspepsia. sengers, who were stung repeatedly, sallow. As the result of using eight boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, about the merits of which I learned from friends in France, I have escaped all these troubles, and am able again to take pleasure in eathig." A very simple story, but if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills it might have been a tragic one. When discomfort begins with eating, fills up the intervals between meals with pain, and prevents sleep at night, there certainly annot be much pleasure in living. A final general breaking down must be merely a question of time. Mr. Joseph Baysson is a native of Aix-les-Bains, France, but now resides nt No. 2439 Larkin street, San Francisco, Cal. He is one of a great number who cau testify to the remarkable efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the treatment of obstinate disorders of the stomach. If you would get rid of nausea, pain or burning in the stomach, vertigo, nervousness, insomnia, or any of the other miseries of a dyspeptic, get rid of the weakness of the digestive organs by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are sold by druggists overywhere. Proper diet is, of course, a great aid in forwarding recovery once begun, and a little book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," may be obtained by any one who makes a request for it by writing to the Dr. Williams Medical Co., Schenectady, N.Y. Bolt on Barbed Wire Kills Cattle. Kansas City, Mo .- During a recent thunderstorm in Brown county a bunch of cattle on Asa Hull's farm backed up against a barbed wire fence for protection. A bolt of lightning ran along one of the wires and killed eight of the cat-

to the wreck while most of the rowboats along the bay were brought into use. Most of the dead and injured were taken ashore, where the undertakers and physicians were assembled, the former taking charge of the dead and the latter to minister to the needs of the living. The bodies of many of the men taken from the wrecked interior of the ship were mutilated almost beyond recognition. The faces of many were covered with blood and

As fast as the wounded could be emoved they were hurried in ambulances, carriages, wagons and automobiles to the hospitals. For a long time the hot steam prevented access to the space between decks, where most of the dead bodies lay, and it was not until late in the afternoon that the last were removed from the boiler rooms. It happened on a Perryville car early the other morning, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. It is said that soon after the car left the terminus of the line for the initial run to the rity it bumped a wagon loaded with poxes. No damage was done to car or wagon, although the jolt was severe, and the car proceeded on its THD.

Directly the motorman heard a strange buzzing sound. Thinking it came from the machinery, he stopped the car to make an examination. As he stepped from the platform he noticed a swarm of bees a few feet above the car.

With a yell he leaped back to the platform, and, throwing on the current, started down the hill at top speed.

This did not daunt the bees, and a second later they filled the car, in open one. Some sailed through the ar, causing the women to scream, the children to cry and the men shrink in terror.

Once the motorman attempted to stop, and the beees immediately settled. A chorus of shricks and yells arose from the passengers, and a cry louder than the general chorus showed that a bee was at work.

Women attempted to beat them off with their fans and handkerchiefs, while the men resorted to hats, but this only aroused the ire of the bees, and the succession of yells showed that the bees were getting the best of the battle. The motorman started the car, but the bees followed, adding to the terror and pain of the passengers. 7 Those who desired to get off at points along the route refrained from doing so. The entire interior of the car was fairly black with bees, while thousands covered every surface.

When North avenue and East street was reached the queen bee settled on a piece of burlap on a telegraph pole. and in an instant the other bees had settled. They formed in the shape of a heart, a foot long and half as thick. The car continued until the motorman was sure the bees had given up the chase and was then stopped. There was a general exodus of passengers with swollen hands and faces and demand for baking soda, lodine, arnica and other soothing lotions.

The "Sketchy" Girl Must Cram for Examinations-She May Get High Marks, But Will Finally Be Distanced by Her More Conscientious Schoolmate - Perseverance Will Bring Even the Dull Girl Its Reward-A Little Study During Holidays Keeps the Mind Facile-Nature Work for Out-of-Doors.

BY MARCARET E. SANGSTER. (Copyright; 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.) Examinations loom large in school life, because they are tests of progress. When the school year is at an end, and you look back over its course. as over a journey from one point to another, the examinations stand out in memory like milestones on the road. In some schools there are weekly tests in others reviews come monthly, and in nearly every school there are halfyearly examinations which very fairly show the work that has been assigned and demonstrate the faithfulness with which it has been done. A student whose work is fairly well performed every day, who never brings half-learned lessons to a recitation, who never shirks a task or accepts help, instead of working out problems for herself, need have no dread of examinations. They will take care of themselves. But there are girls who have an easy way of slipping through their tasks, who are not at all thorough, nor diligent, and yet who manage to seem prepared when they are just the reverse. I have known such girls, brilliant and superficial, who glanced over their work at the last moment, and hoped for an easy question, or who looked as if they knew so much that the teacher passed them over, and put her query to a dutter girl in the next seat. These sketchy girls when examination time comes are obliged to "cram." They spend frantic hours in making up in a hurry what ought to have been at their fingers' ends throughout the term. They possibly pass a written examination, and send in papers that receive high marks. But in the end

I wonder if you understand precisely what I mean? It is so important that a woman should in these days be equipped at every point, for her home life or her business opportunities, or her profession, whatever it may be, that no girl at school can afford to waste her opportunities. You have been told over and over until the words seem but an idle tale, that you are in life's morning, that these are your best days, and that if you do not make the most of the present, it will never be in your power to retrieve the loss.

me of you have one method, some another. Whatever else you leave un ione, I beg you never to let a day end until you have finished fully the things that belong to that day. The long vacations which we have ought to be put to good use by school girls, partly in view of next year's work, and partly because it is absurd to drop study wholly for one fourth or one sixth of the year. The summer holiday is not in the least too long for the teacher, but it is much too long an interval for girls who wish to make the most of the flying years, to spend in ectire Idleness. Why not take two hours every day and devote them to some earnest study which will keep the mind facile, and help you along another year? Why not get up examination papers of your own? - If you like and if you have no conditions, to occupy you before you pass to a higher grade, a good plan may be to take hold of some study that will keep you much out of doors. The woods and fields are full of flowers. The brook and river wave with flags and rushes. Up the hill slopes climb the wild roses, beside the fence blaze the tiger lillies, over the stone wall riots the vine, and every tree and bush and shrub is a whole school of natural history.

There are birds almost without number, there will be moths, beetles, butterflies, crickets and katydids, squirrels will frisk among the boughs, and chipmunks play hide and seek among the leaves. Do not lose sight of the interesting things that are all about you out of doors.

Whether you pass your examinations in school with credit or not sit down' now at Mother Nature's feet and learn of her. Do not be discouraged if you have been surpassed by somebody else. Do your best, and leave the rest. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

CHANGED HUSBAND.

Wife Made Wise Change in Food.

Change of diet is the only way to really cure stomach and bowel trouble. A woman says:

"My husband had dyspepsia when we were married and had suffered from it for several years. It was almost impossible to find anything he could eat without bad results.

"I thought this was largely due to the use of coffee and persuaded him to discontinue it. He did so, and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. The change did him good from the beginning, his digestion improved; he suffered much less from his nervousness, and when he added Grape-Nuts food to his diet he was soon entirely cured.

She stuck to it until it restored her health so mpletely that she is now the most thusiastic friend of Grape-Nuts that I ever knew. She eats it with cream or dry. just as it comes from the package-keeps it in her room and eats it whenever she feels like it.

My appetite was gone, I was weak and nerv-ous and afforded but very little nourishment for the child. The Grape Nuts food, of which I soon grew very much on their native quickness, or fond, speedily set all this right again, they prove failures a plotding and the baby grew healthful, rosy and beautiful as a mother could wish. There's & reason

Half the time you listen to this sort of preaching with bored resignation, when it comes from parents and teachers. But, dear girl, it is true. The mill will never grind again with water that is passed. What you lose to-day you cannot gain to-morrow. The real value of education to girls, is that it is preparing them to take their places in the world, and to make the world better in days to come. A girl who does not make the most of her time in school will not only be sorry later on, but will be surpassed by others less clever than herself, but more conscientious. Occasionally one meets a very commonplace woman who has few ideas, no conversation, and very little influence. People pass her by without paying attention to anything she says, and express surprise when told that she is a graduate of some conspicuous college. How did she ever manage to secure a diploma? may be asked. Well, there may be more than one explanation. She may have done her work mechanically, or she may have had a remarkably good memory, or she may have studied hard for examinations and used up her strength too lavishly. Unless one is developed systematically in brain and heart and body, she will have to take a back seat in the audience when others are on the platform, directing the purposes of the assembly. She will be in the rear, and the procession will

Aggregate Age of Two Houses Is 84 Years and Their Value Is $5,000.

Working six days a week on the construction work of the New England Telephone company at Mariboro, Mass., are two gray horses whose ages aggregate 84 years. This statement is vouched for by their owner, Herbert E. Lathe, who has owned them for 40 years. He purchased the pair when they were two-year-olds, and finished breaking them himself. Mr. Lathe secured the horses in St. Johnsbury, Vt., and says they never have had a sick day since he owned them.

They have been worked steadMy and show every indication to-day of being able to do as much work as they ever did. In fact, the owner says that they can do more work in eight hours than the younger animals working beside them. The owner claims he can prove his assertion about their age and says they are the champions of the world as fer as age and ability are concerned.

They are of Arabian blood, their parents being imported about 60 years ago. Mr. Lathe says that the animals are worth as much now as many young. er ones and asserts he would not sell them for $5,000.

They do not know that they were obtained at the price of murder to the mother bird, who furnished them, and also the sacrifice of the lives of the tender brood. Hunmilliners with these plumes seek the 46 degrees from the moon's limb to- bird when she leaves her nest in search of food for her young, and when taking the delicate plumage literally clip from her breast the tuft of feathers with the

In the years of Miss Tarbell's study of Standard Oil she has acquired minute knowledge of John D.
