DETECTIVE SAYS EVELYN KEPT THAW IN CELL BY TELLING JEROME SECRET

Decision of Court Yesterday Calling Slayer of White Still Dangerous, Ascribed to Wife's Statement to District Atty.

CAN GET A DIVORCE EASILY

Asserted That no Obstacle Will be Put in Her Way, if She Decides to Get Separation From Young Man Doomed to Insanity Cell

(Special to Morning Press.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—When Justice Mills decided today that Harry K. Thaw is still insane, and so dangerous that he must remain in the Matteawan asylum, it was a big victory for District Attorney William T. Jerome.
And, it is now claimed that the blow fell to Thaw because Evelyn, his wife, "went back" on him.
Detective Roger O'Mara, who has returned from White Plains, N. Y., here he was attending the latest hearing in Thaw's efforts to establish his sanity, says:
"She threw Harry over hard in this White Plains trial. Why, after what he did for her, after he had married her to square her name with the world, she played to Jerome and told him everything that, until that time, he had not known. She was not for Harry and did her best to keep him in Matteawan."

"I she tries to get a divorce, there will not be any obstacle placed in her way."
O'Mara says Thaw was to take a trip to Europe, "where in some secluded spot he could quietly rest, never to touch a drop or pack a gun."
Mrs. Thaw and Harry would have had all credit if the boy had been freed. Evelyn will not be troubled by Harry's company. No more while lights or bubbling wine for him.

Womack died of a broken heart. The death of his niece, Dorsey Womack, two weeks ago hastened the end.

Statute Says Signs May Not be Displayed Outside Saloons but Does not Prohibit Inside Announcements

IN EFFECT ON SEPT. 1
Statute Governing Thirst Parlors in Portion of its Provisions Becomes Effective in Few Days

Comparatively few days are left for the use of beer and liquor signs. September 1, the new law goes into effect, which prohibits the display of any advertising matter relative to the sale of liquors on any building. This means the expensive signs which have formerly decorated the corners of buildings, advertising the various brands of beer, will disappear if the law is to be obeyed and more than that, the more expensive electric signs must come down.
Some argument has, however, arisen over the wording of the law itself. The law says no sign shall be displayed on the outside of the building. The dealers say if they chose to get around this they don't see how the law would apply to

MAN HIT BY CAR

Leaping from a Charlotte street car to board a west bound Wells car at Ludington and Charlotte street late yesterday afternoon Albert Gundstrom, walked directly in front of an east bound Ludington street car and was thrown aside. Although directly in front of the car when struck he sustained only a scratch on the side of the head and a few minor bruises. The accident was plainly the fault of Gundstrom, according to eyewitnesses, as the car going east was running slow and the motorman was sounding his gong but the man walked directly in the car's path without appearing to notice it, in his haste to catch the Wells car. The car which struck the man was brought to a standstill within a few feet and after Gundstrom had brushed off his clothing boarded the Wells car for his home.

BUILDING STONE BADLY DAMAGED

The final shipment of stone for use in the construction of Escanaba's new federal building was received in the city yesterday and because of the fact that five of the big blocks were cracked in transit work on the building may be hindered. The stone received yesterday is all in large pieces and the loss from the five pieces being broken is a considerable one.

BROTHER WOULD KILL PRINCE IN SERBIA, IS CHARGE

(Special to Morning Press.)
BELGRADE, via Semlin, Aug. 12.—The attempted assassination of Crown Prince Alexander by his brother, Prince George, is openly charged by many persons here as a result of a bomb explosion near the crown prince's house.
A suspect, arrested immediately after the explosion, confessed he fired the bomb and said Prince George hired him to do it.
When confronted with the prisoner's confession, Prince George admitted he had hired him but declared he was merely testing a new explosive.
Because of royal pressure, the police dropped the inquiry.

AUTO BACKS INTO CAR

Jules DeGrand and Marc Pepin Given Severe Fright in Crash Yesterday

Backing his auto from the Charlotte street livery directly in front of an approaching street car, Jules DeGrand and Marc Pepin, occupants of the car, narrowly escaped death yesterday morning. Mr. DeGrand had stopped at the barn with his car and Mr. Pepin had just stepped into the seat with him to ride to Ludington street. Backing from the barn Mr. DeGrand failed to see a street car approaching on Charlotte street. Although the motorman rang his gong violently the noise made by the car drowned the warning and before the motorman could get his car under control the crash had come. The rear of the auto was demolished but the two occupants escaped without injury, other than a severe fright. Both rear wheels were torn off the car and the damage to the machine was considerable.

ELLA GINGLES GOES BACK TO IRELAND WITH A PROTECTOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Ella Gingles, the young Irish lace-maker, whose trial in Chicago for larceny from her employer attracted national attention because of her sensational charge that an attempt had been made to force her into "white slavery," sailed for her home in Ireland, by the aid of a fund by Orangemen, on the steamer Campania. Miss Gingles was accompanied by Mrs. Grace Van Deusen Cooke of Boston, who has taken a deep interest in her case.
Mrs. Cooke said that she and her charge had kept in strict seclusion since their arrival from Chicago "to escape the enmity of a very evil gang that has its agents in this city as well as in Chicago."
Mrs. Cooke declared Miss Gingles was returning to Ireland willingly.

Antoine LeDuc Fell Dead at Ludington and Dousman Following Attack of Heart Failure

LIVED HERE 40 YEARS

Victim Had Been Engaged in Draying Business For 28 Years and was Known to Many People

Taken suddenly ill while walking on lower Ludington street early last night Antoine LeDuc, a veteran drayman of the city living at 221 North Sarah street, passed away from an affection of the heart, it is believed, before a physician could reach his side.
Mr. LeDuc worked all day yesterday and last night was walking to the Stephenson dock to meet the boat on which his little daughter Mamie was to arrive from Gladstone when he was suddenly stricken.
Pedestrians on the street at Ludington and Dousman, saw him stagger as if faint and then collapsed falling to the sidewalk.
Although a physician was quickly summoned it was found that death had come instantly and nothing could be done by the physicians who were called.
Coroner L. O. Kirstine was called and after making a preliminary examination, allowed the body to be removed to the undertaking rooms of J. A. Albo where it will be prepared for burial.
Today the body will be removed to the home of the family and definite arrangements for the funeral will be made.
Mr. LeDuc had lived in Escanaba for the past 40 years and being engaged in the draying business for 28 years was known to a great host of people to whom the announcement of his death will come as a great shock.
Mr. LeDuc worked as usual yesterday on his day and made no complaint last night of feeling ill when he left home. It was known however that he was suffering from a chronic affection of the heart and it is believed that it was that disease which brought about his sudden death. Coroner-Kirstine will hold an inquest over the body this morning.
Mr. LeDuc is survived by his wife, two sons and one daughter, the surviving children being William LeDuc of this city, Wilfred LeDuc of McFarland and Mamie LeDuc of this city.

WHITEFISH ARE GOING

(Special to The Morning Press.)
CALUMET, Mich., Aug. 12.—Copper country fishermen report a gradual decrease in the whitefish supply. Along the lake shore near Calumet, and in the sheltered nooks along the shore of Keweenaw county where the nets gather in the flimsy inhabitants of the deep, the catches have been very light this year.
A well known Keweenaw fisherman ascribes the decrease in the supply to the fact that many fishermen fall to haul in their nets at the proper time.
Lost nets have the same effect upon the fish, and they have been known to spoil good fishing fields.

TEACHER ENJOINED FROM DEVOTIONS TO A STUDENT

(Special to Morning Press.)
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 12.—Alleging that Lily Burden, a Flint Rock teacher, is so persistent in her love-making toward his son that there is grave danger of him becoming insane, Ernest D. Shove, a Brownstown farmer, was granted an injunction by Judge Donovan restraining the young woman from calling upon the younger Shove and from holding any conversation with him.
The father alleges that his son, who is but 17 years old, has been backward in school. Using this as an excuse, he says, Miss Burden gave him private lessons. He was sent to an asylum, but returned as cured after a while.
The father declares that the affair between his son and the teacher created such a scandal two years ago that she was asked to resign her position.

IRON TRADE REVIEW

(Special to Morning Press. CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 12.—The Iron Trade Review tomorrow will say:

The condition of the iron trade continues highly satisfactorily. The first week under the new tariff gives little evidence of that measure affecting the trade in iron and steel products to any important extent this year, although there is much more inquiry for prices on foreign material on which duties have been reduced, and English iron has advanced. There is some confusion in alloys, and zinc has advanced in price. Scarcity of labor, especially in machine shops and in mining operations is becoming a factor of increasing importance.

Surprising activity continues on Lake Superior iron ore, and it is probable that August will make a new record for shipments. Sales have been so heavy, that figuring on a total movement of thirty-eight million tons, it is now evident that there will be no more than consumers require. Announcements of new construction include two new blast furnaces, ten open hearth furnaces and a new structural mill by the Bethlehem Steel Co., and a blast furnace by the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., to take the place of the smaller stack sold to a Sharpsville, Pa., foundry.

A very decided increase of interest in steel making irons has been a feature of the pig iron market in the central west. Some exaggerated reports which are greatly deplored in the trade have been current, but actual sales in the Pittsburgh district have amounted to thirty-five thousand tons, while inquiries foot up to about 150 thousand tons.

The Republic Iron & Steel Co., bought fifteen thousand tons of Bessemer for prompt shipment at sixteen dollars, and a Youngstown company which was in the market for twenty-five thousand tons, succeeded in getting only fifteen thousand tons of steel making iron for delivery at sixteen dollars valley. Another Pittsburgh steel company is in the market for twenty-five thousand tons of steel making iron for forward delivery. The Standard Steel Car Co. is inquiring for one hundred thousand tons of basic iron for delivery throughout the year 1910.

An interesting development in the Philadelphia district is the uniting of the leading users of heavy melting steel scrap for the purpose of making their purchases through one agency.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has purchased twenty thousand tons of rails from the Steel Corporation. The Gould lines have ordered twenty thousand tons and the Chicago and Great Western ten thousand. The Lackawanna Steel Co. has sold five thousand tons of rails to the Manila railroad. Recent car orders amount to fully twenty-five thousand. The Pennsylvania has divided an order for 3,155 freight cars between the Standard Steel Car Co. and the Cambria Steel Co.

BOSTON MARKETS

BOSTON.—The market for coppers opened with a rush this morning and continued all day with only reactions. Lake was again the favorite, making a new high record of 37 1/2, with a close at 36 1/2. Copper Range sold freely at 85 and is booked for higher prices. North Butte declared $1 dividend and easily advanced 3 points. The whole list is going higher, and should be bought. —FOSTER, of Palmer, Webber & Co.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK.—The stock market during part of today's session displayed considerable strength in special issues, whereas in other quarters realizing caused irregularity. At the close a selling movement caused recessions throughout and the tone of the market was such as to suggest distribution on a good scale and pool liquidation in view of the firmer tone of the money market. The list has reached levels from which sharp recessions are to be expected and therefore prices

THE CURB MARKETS

CURBS—Full steam was turned on in the curb market today. Good demand was in evidence throughout the list, Chino, Gila, Ray Cons, Superior & Pittsburg, Arizona & Michigan, Ohio Copper and Superior & Globe being the features. Just at the close, however, there was some profit-taking going on which caused recessions. Would buy the good curbs on any weakness. Santa Rosalia was wanted at 1 1/4, with very little stock in sight. The buying comes from people loose to the property who are encouraged over its showing. Indiana Copper was allotted today, the full amount being given all subscribers. Subscriptions totalled 45,000 shares, while 36,000 shares were given out. The flotation was underwritten and was very successful. Subscriptions to Sierra Gold will be received by us up to August 16th, when the books will be closed and the stock allotted pro-rata to subscribers. From present indications there will be a heavy oversubscription. Efforts of copper yesterday were 234 tons, making August exports to date 7,130 tons. North Butte declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 per share, payable Sept. 25th, books closing Sept. 11.

 MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 12.—W. W. Wittig, Milwaukee theatrical manager and sport promoter is after the Johnson-Jeffries fight and wired Sam Berger, in Chicago, that he would put up a purse of $25,000, and in addition give the fighters 25 per cent of the gate receipts, they to divide it any way to suit themselves.
 Mr. Wittig will not make public where the battle would be held. Wittig pulled off the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match in Chicago.

 In addition to the unveiling of a beautiful bronze tablet at Red Banks there was also unveiled on the site of old Fort Howard another

SCHOOL BOARD MEN DANCE WITH THE TEACHERS, IN JAG

(Special to Morning Press.)
 PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 12.—The way things went on here was something terrible.

"Why, directors of the old school board came here under the influence of liquor and wanted to dance with the children and teachers.
 This statement, credited to Mrs. W. D. McAuliffe, janitress of the old Second ward school, promises to stir up things in the ranks of the directors.
 The alleged "joy parties" of the school board were brought to light through the auditing of the books of the Second ward school.

MEXICAN JACALS.

Primitive Huts in the Villages of the Native Indians.
 The Mexican Indian huts in the villages and upon the ranches of the lower Rio Grande border region of Texas have a style of architecture and construction that is distinctly their own. This type of primitive building is rapidly passing out of existence. At many places on the border families of Mexicans have abandoned their jacals and moved into more pretentious homes.

No money outlay is necessary in erecting the old style picturesque structures; neither is a knowledge of carpentry needed. A double row of upright poles firmly set or driven into the ground forms the framework for the walls. Between these two rows of poles are placed other poles or sticks of shorter length, forming a thick and compact wall. At each of the four corners of the building posts are set, reaching to a height of about eight feet. Roughly hewn stringers are laid from one post to another, and to these stringers are tied other poles that form the framework of the walls. The strong fiber from the maguay plant or strips of buckskin are used to tie the poles into position. The rafters were tied to the ridgepole and the stringers in the same manner. At one end of the building is built the opening through which the smoke of the inside fire may ascend. Stoves are unknown among these Mexicans, and the cooking is all done upon the ground.—Kansas City Star.

She Was Slow.
 The shop assistant had shown and reshown the toys to the undecided shopper.
 Rabbits, monkeys, jacks-in-the-box, juggling jacks, trains, velocipedes—everything had been displayed, manipulated, operated and explained to the shopper, but still she could not make up her mind.
 "I wanted to get something suitable for my little nephew," she reiterated for the thousandth time.
 "Yes, madam," responded the weary assistant. "You told me that when you came in, but I think your nephew has outgrown all these toys while you have been at this counter."—London Opinion.

TIDES IN THE EARTH.
 The Moon Pulls Our Solid Globe Out of Shape Twice a Day.
 That the attraction of the sun and moon not only causes tides in the ocean, but has a corresponding influence on the solid earth itself, has now been definitely proved by Dr. O. Hecker, a Prussian physicist. A quarter of a century ago Professor G. H. Darwin concluded that there must be tides in the solid earth as well as in the fluid seas, but he was unable to detect them, and his only conclusion was that the earth's mass was very rigid—at least as rigid as steel. Dr. Hecker now confirms this conclusion with his improved instruments and methods he has been able to detect and measure the amount by which the moon pulls the solid earth out of shape twice a day. Dr. Hecker's measurements, which lasted continuously more than two years, were to ascertain the lunar influence on the earth's gravity by observing the oscillations of a delicate pendulum. It was by comparing his results with the figures as calculated for a rigid earth that he was able to detect the tidal deformation caused by the pull of both moon and sun. Dr. Hecker's pendulums were a complicated series of bars joined together, and they were installed in a specially designed brick lined room seventy-five feet below the surface of the ground, where the temperature remained practically constant at about 12 degrees centigrade, or 54 degrees F. A continuous record of their position was kept by means of photography. Working here daily from December, 1902, to May, 1905, Hecker carried on the laborious series of observations that have now established the existence of lunar and solar tidal waves in the solid but flexible mass of the globe.—New York Herald.

French Artillery Invention.
 Colonel Depont, the well known French expert, has just invented an improvement in the three inch field gun that will enable the battery to be worked by five men instead of six. This will free 2,400 men in the French army, enough to serve twenty-four new batteries. The colonel's system consists in employing the recoil to open the breechblock, which then shuts automatically on the cartridge being introduced. There is also an ingenious contrivance for obviating the necessity of lowering the gun, and the total weight is reduced by six hundred-weight for the gun and almost as much for the ammunition wagon, which thus makes the new model es-

REQUISITES FOR THE MINISTRY.

Pastor Must Carry Earth's Freshness to Do Effective Work.
 A minister in these indoor days needs all the open air he can beg, borrow or buy. Consider a moment. Through the week his privilege will call him into close and curtained sick rooms—sick rooms of the soul, most of them; he can never go, to any good purpose, unless all the clear winds of heaven and health are buttoned freely under his coat. He shall have daily to move among persons whose skies are perpetually overcast and gray, whose irritabilities act upon their friends like a fine, drizzling rain in November; he must somewhere have observed more sunshine than will ripen a thousand strawberries, and an evenness of temper that earthquakes cannot shake. Time and again he will have to work with people whose outlook is narrow and their horizon short; he must somehow have gotten a vision of distance—of far prospects and wide adventures; he must have climbed a hill with a friend that challenges, he must have driven a canoe through smoking rapids, he must have galloped a young horse across green meadows.—H. D. Gallaudet in the Outlook.

Proposals Made While Under Influence of Gas, He Declares.
 "Ugly as I am," said a dentist, "I have been proposed to by 73 women!"
 "Impossible!" they cried, gazing with ill-concealed repulsion on his ugliness.
 "The ladies did it unconsciously," he hastened to add. "They were unconscious in the grip of gas at the time. And it was—excuse me—gastly. Fresh-drawn teeth were scattered about, and the declarations gurgled forth amid a stream of blood."
 "They were all old maids. They all meant business. In vino veritas—and there is truth in gas, too. The things said in my red plush chair are real and secret beliefs of the heart."
 "My wife—I don't mind telling you under the seal of professional secrecy—my wife proposed to me in the chair while I was pulling 17 teeth for her. The wedding came off the day her full gold set was done. My wife may not be beautiful, but she is a very good and rich woman."

Antidote for Suicide.
 They tell of an Atchison girl who thought her heart was broken. She was so convinced of it that she began reading up on deadly poisons and cried softly to herself upon the thoughts of an early death. At this juncture a friend sent her a box of chocolates. She ate one; life looked a little brighter. She ate another; why not put off that death till next week? She ate a third, and forgot she ever had a trouble. All of which is proof of the claim of an Atchison physician that when people are morbid and unhappy the most effective cure is something to eat. No one, he says, can long for death while engaged in chewing something palatable. The man who talks suicide needs a beefsteak instead of advice.—Atchison Globe.

His Depressor.
 He was handsome, young, talented. He had apparently everything one could wish for as a start in life, but every time he came into a room where there were mirrors he absorbed himself in contemplation of the back of his head.
 "That spot is getting thinner and thinner," he complained when he called on the woman and sat down after looking at it in all the mirrors in her flat. "Don't make any difference what I do with it, it keeps on getting larger. I've tried everything, rubbing it with kerosene, with hair tonics. Can't do a thing with it."
 "It's just as well," she consoled him. "If you didn't have that little bald spot to keep you humiliated there'd be no associating with you."

Pearl.
 Pearl—in the first chapter of this novel it states that the heroine has hazel eyes and in another chapter it alludes to her liquid eyes.
 Ruby—Liquid! Well, or—perhaps she has witch hazel eyes.

The Unruly Member.
 A man whose tongue is unruly works badly in any kind of harness.

Secrets Are Revealed to Them in Dreams.

A young Indian, who is ambitious to become a doctor, and finally a prophet, learns from his father or other member of his tribe, the name and medicinal properties of some herb, says a writer in the Denver Field and Farm. He can also, by presenting a sufficient number of ponies to a medicine man, prevail upon the doctor to impart the secret of the herbs to him. Frequently Indians allege that the secret is revealed to them in a dream, or by a bird or an animal. After procuring it, the novice is prepared to begin the practice of medicine. Success in their opinion is only possible with the aid of the Great Spirit, and in order to invoke the help of the supernatural they resort to various sacrifices.
 For instance, there is the practice of ascending a butte or other elevation and lying with the face to the ground for several days without food or until they are completely exhausted. During this period they profess to have been taught some song or the Great Spirit conversed with them through a bird, wild animal or reptile. They frequently allege that wolves come to them and howl and that they understand what the animals say. While treating a patient they place tobacco in little pouches which they tie with sinew. These are painted brilliant colors and fastened to willow sticks about the size of the shaft of an arrow, but somewhat longer.

LOAFER, BUT HAD REAL TACT.
 Delicate Situation Was Handled in Masterly Manner.
 "Talking about tact," said a woman who is just verging on middle age, "I never saw anyone get out of a difficult situation more deftly than did a man I met at a blacksmith shop in a New England village I was driving through last summer. I was alone in the lanes with my friend, the horse, when I noticed that he limped a bit, so when we reached the next village I stopped at the door of the blacksmith shop. A man was holding up the doorpost and to him I said:
 "Will you please tell the blacksmith to come out? I want to see him."
 "After the manner of the village loafer, he did not stir, but smiled sweetly at me, and lifting up his voice cried:
 "Bill, come out! There's a lady wants to see you."
 "From the depths of the blacksmith shop a voice roared:
 "Is she young, John, or old?"
 "In the words of an old poem, I looked at John and John looked at me. Then, still without moving, he called:
 "You'll be satisfied, Bill, when you get out."

Saint Had Disregarded Small Girl's Appeal and Her Faith in Him Had Vanished.
 There is one small girl in a New York school who has lost her faith in the saints—a faith that was implicit, says the New York Tribune. Her name is Elizabeth, and she can't learn to spell. She is always at the foot of the spelling class. She does her best to learn, but if a wrong letter can creep into a word it sneaks in when Elizabeth tries to spell that word. Tuesday she came into the class beaming, but inside of two minutes she had spelled innocent "in-essent" and few "spelled." The teacher shook her head.
 "Elizabeth, what shall I do with you?" she asked. Elizabeth looked at her with a hopeless gaze, two tears trickling down her nose.
 "There ain't anything to do," she said in a tone of finality. "I did the last thing this morning. I offered St. Anthony 50 cents if he'd help me spell right, and he hasn't done it, and I've no more use for him."

Doing Police Work.
 The "police girl" is something new in the ranks of women workers, a young lady filling such a position having been given a "beat" at a Philadelphia theater entrance recently. She wore a uniform—at least the coat part of it—and a white cap and carried a rattan cane and seemed to be able to keep order.

about the limit, but this—and for six months, too! Ye gods! His hands went up in despair.

"Evidently not," suggested the de-liverer.

"Certainly not!" exploded Jerry, who walked to the window and looked thoughtfully into the street. He remained there for minutes, and neither he nor Mr. Fosgate said a word. Finally Jerry walked back to the desk and held out his hand.

"I think I'll be moving now."

"I'm glad to have met you, brother, and—"

"What is a deserving charity in this town?" Jerry asked, with a sickly smile.

"Oh, we have several worthy institutions," said the surprised Mr. Fosgate. "Personally, I believe that the Home for the Needy is—"

"That's the one for me—the Home for the Needy," broke in Jerry, laughing with genuine heartiness. "I'm going to do something for that place and I'm going to do it right away." While he went through his pockets and lay his money on the desk Mr. Fosgate looked on in amazement. "I want you to turn this money over to the needy. I hate for anybody to want for nice little things on the side. And, oh," he went on as he placed the nuggets on the desk, "I'd almost overlooked these. They'll be nice for the young ones to play with. Now I think I'll be moving along." He again shook Mr. Fosgate's hand and started for the door. Just as his right hand touched the latch his left came out of his vest pocket and he turned around. "Excuse me, but I'd almost overlooked this time." He tossed the coin to the wondering Mr. Fosgate and, with a wave of his hand, went into the street.

Jerry wandered along, scarcely conscious that there was anybody else on the thoroughfare. He made an effort to bring his jumbled wits together, but it was a fruitless one, and he turned into another street. He walked down this street a block or two, and then suddenly concluded that he was going farther away from the Hotel Houston. At the end of an hour he was at the hostelry, where big, beaming-faced Mike O'Connor was awaiting him with a big black cigar between his teeth.

"Would you be good enough to give a poor man with a gold mine at his fingers' tips a cigar?" laughed Jerry, and there was something behind the laugh that caused Mike to lift his brows in mild wonder. The cigar forth-came immediately.

"You ought to buy a box of these," said Mike. "A mining king can afford 'em, even if they do retail at $5 per each."

Jerry laughed and Mike laughed, too, but the latter did not see anything to cause such an expression of mirth.

"I think I'll make this one last, Mike," said Jerry, as he bit off the end of the cigar. "Where is Marina?"

"In her room. What are your plans now, my mysterious Mr. Midas?"

"I think I'll drift up and see her for a little while," said Jerry. "I'll see you in—let's see, in half an hour, but don't you dare to leave this place before two o'clock. That is the limit. Understand?"

Mike did not understand, and he could think of nothing to say before Jerry was at the stairs. As the young Gemini went up those steps his strength almost left him. He hesitated before rapping on Marina's door and tried to take on an appearance of calmness. But when he was admitted to the parlor he looked the picture of hopeless despair.

"Jerry!" was all that Marina could say.

"Hello," said he, with a little laugh that was more like a soulless cackle than a laugh. "Have I kept you waiting? I came as soon as I—"

"Jerry Chambers, what is the matter with you?"

"Matter with me? Why, nothing at all. I am the happiest mortal under the sun. Ha, ha, ha! Can't you tell that I am hilariously joyful when I'm near you, little love?" She was in his arms, her wondering eyes on his face.

"And your business engagement?" she asked.

"Oh, that's all settled, sweetheart," he replied in the strained manner of one who would appear satisfied. "Great business, that. You would be surprised how long a walk it is from—"

"You certainly did not walk all the way from Montezuma street, when you knew that every minute was like an hour to me!" she pouted.

"Well, really, Marina, I did walk—not that I wanted to be away from you, but because—because—well, you see, I actually felt stiff in the joints, and I needed a little exercise. It was a rather nice walk."

"Why, the perspiration is fairly rolling off of you. This room is like a lake-oven, and the street is much hotter."

"Oh, I'm tremendously fond of hot weather. I actually hate to see winter comin'!" and there was a world of truth in this remark.

"Father has ordered a carriage for this afternoon," said she, "and he interesting places in town. But perhaps you would rather walk!"

Jerry's brow wrinkled a little and he began to bite his finger nail.

"Why, aren't you glad of the opportunity to see this beautiful city—with such companions?" she added.

"Yes, yes, to be sure," he said, as though suddenly being aroused from reverie. "It would be so nice to—"

"Would he? You mean will he?"

"Well, Marina, I'll tell you. You see, there are some things in connection with this business affair of mine that I shall not be able to clear up at the moment. This afternoon, as much as I regret it, must be sacrificed to matters in connection with it. Yes, yes, I know you are disappointed," he went on quickly, smoothing her hair, "but you wouldn't have me get so far and then leave it undone, would you? Of course, you wouldn't. I knew you'd say no, and—"

"I have not said 'no,' Jerry, dear. I want you to—"

"Now, little girl, you must be reasonable. Is this cigar offensive to you? I should have thrown it away before I entered."

"You know I love the smoke of a cigar," said she; "but that has nothing to do with the proposed ride. Jerry, dear, can't you put off that business until tomorrow?"

Just then there was a rapping at the door. Marina responded, taking a pitcher of lead water from a bellboy.

"Oh, Jerry," said Marina, "father has gone to the barber's, and he has all the money with him. Will you give this boy a coin? He has been so prompt and attentive."

"Why, certainly," said Jerry, and he fumbled in his pocket. If there ever was a man quick of thought Jerry Chambers was that man at this moment. Pretending to have a difficult time finding money, he succeeded in opening his knife and cutting a hole in his pocket. "Great Scott!" he exclaimed; "I have lost all my change! See, Marina, see!" he went on excitedly, exhibiting the hole in his pocket. Then to the boy: "I'll see you later, boy."

They heard slow footfalls in the hallway.

"Well, well!" exclaimed Gen. Bostos, entering and extending his hand to Jerry. "We were afraid you would not be back in time to start promptly on our sight-seeing tour. The carriage is waiting for us now."

"I just thought of something tremendously important," Jerry stammered, "and I'll run along and tell Mike—that is, I'll see that Mike doesn't—I'll see you later!" He was gone, the door closing sharply after him. Before the general or Marina could recover from their bewilderment he was half way down a flight of stairs.

Mike O'Connor, lighting a fresh cigar, was waiting for him.

"Have another," said he, proffering the second big cigar.

"Thanks," said Jerry, pocketing the gift. "When are you people going to San Diego?"

"We leave—when are we people goin'! Why, all of us are goin' in a chartered car—all for our 'lonelies'—tomorrow mornin'."

"Mike, I'll not be able to accompany you," said Jerry, smiling as he thought of a private car. "I still have some business to look after before I settle down to pleasure. But you all go and I'll—"

"Why, of course you're goin'," interposed the surprised O'Connor. "If you can't get away to-morrow with this mysterious business of yours, the general will wait till you can—"

"No, no, Mike; you folks run along and I'll drift along later. Why, I wouldn't have you lose a day up there on the beautiful coast for a good many thousand dollars—no, sir, not for the San Dimas gold mine. Really, Mike, you hurt my feelings when you—"

"Say," began Mike, a picture of mingled interest, doubt and surprise, "what in the devil are you up to, anyway? What's gettin' through you? You are goin' to be more 'n' more of a Chinese rebus every day."

"Yes, I know, Mike, and— Have you a match?"

"Your cigar's lit," and Mike, fairly roared with laughter. "But," and he started towards the stairs with a determined look in his face, "we shall see about this, sir. General Bostos may have a word or so to say."

After Mike had disappeared from view, Jerry's brain began to work with lightning rapidity. He paced across the floor, his head lowered, and then moved briskly towards the door.

"I'll do it—I'll have to do it!" he said to himself. "It will raise thunder, but I can't help it. Damn a Gemini's luck, anyway!" and he slammed the screendoor behind him with a bang.

When Mike and the general entered the rotunda arm in arm Jerry Chambers was leaning against a building in an alley half a block away re-reading these instructions:

"Again have ye performed well, faithful one of The Gemini; but ye have not yet earned an audience."

"Who—who do you think I am?"

voice that almost took Jerry off his feet. "The shurf'll soon tell, and if you're him me 'n' Bill 'll be jus' a thousand better off. An' I reckon you have some idee what a hoss thief gits down in this 'ere neck o' the woods, I figger."

"Horse thief! For heaven's sake, I'm not a horse thief! I never stole a thing in my life! This is a mistake, and you'll soon find it out, too!" Jerry's face was red with anger and indignation and his brain was so hot that his fear of the man became dispelled. "This will go hard with you, even if you have got the drop on me with that cannon in your hand. I'll show—"

"Now, jus' quite down 'n' keep your team at the rack a minit 'r so," broke in Dick. "If you ain't 'Spick' Ransome, the nerviest hoss thief that ever put foot on Texas, my name ain't Dick Splavins. That's how sure I am. Why, this 'ere reward sheet 'scribes you to a dot. It couldn't be surer if the 'was a photograph 'longside the letterin'."

Within half an hour four other men came tearing down the road on horses, dismounting at Dick Splavins' home.

"Bill said you had 'm fer sure," excitedly yelled one of the newcomers, going so close to Jerry that the odor of bad whisky almost stifled him. "Danged if he don't seem to answer the 'scription all right, all right, eh, fellers?" The other men carefully looked Jerry over through their bleared eyes and nodded their heads.

"The shurf 'll know fer sure," said one of the men. "Him 'n' Tom Norton's the on'y ones 'round 'ere that's ever seen 'Spick' Ransome. Bill oughter be back 'th the shurf party soon. He was movin' like hell when I seen him."

Tom Norton, owner of a small ranch a few miles away, was sent for, responding with all possible haste. He was an old man and his eyesight was badly impaired. He squinted at Jerry for fully five minutes and then said:

"I ain't jus' sartain it's 'Spick,' but if it was a hoss race I'd put a hundred to one to win hands down."

"That's near 'nough fer us, eh, fellers?" shouted a reeling man, flashing a revolver over his head. "Shell we wait fer the shurf?"

"Hain't no use to delay matters," said another. "Tom is 'bout as sure as a feller kin be, an' he ain't talkin' jus' fer excitement's sake. Where'll we take him?"

"Back in the huller," said Dick. "I'll git the rope and—"

Jerry sank to the ground in collapse.

"See the slinkin' cur!" sneered one of the men, kicking Jerry soundly in the back. Jerry attempted time and time again to protest his innocence of any criminal offense, but his words were drowned by derisive laughter.

It was not long before this luckless son of Gemini, utterly devoid of physical strength, was being rudely dragged towards a tall tree in a hollow about 100 yards back of Splavins' house. The youngest of the Texans soon was climbing the tree to a strong limb 15 feet up. While the rope was being tied to the limb Jerry's hands were being bound behind him. The noose had just been prepared when the sheriff, whom Bill had telephoned to from the outskirts of the city, came up with Bill on their panting, lathered horses.

"Not so quick, men," shouted the sheriff, dismounting and running to where Jerry lay on the ground. "I'll tend to this matter if it needs 'tendin' to." A roar of protest rose from the throats of the would-be lynchers, but the sheriff asserted his authority so strongly that the men dropped back, and he brought a lantern to bear on the white face of the captive.

"Tom Norton says it's 'Spick' Ransome as certain as hell," said one of the men.

The officer looked Jerry over carefully and then, his face the picture of fierce wrath, arose and addressed Norton in this manner:

"You squint-eyed old fossil of a heathen, you, you couldn't tell a hoss from a cow! You'd jus' as soon swear this man's life away as to drink that rot-gut you're full of now! This ain't no more 'Spick' Ransome 'n' you're a decent citizen. For a cent I'd drag you back with me and let this young feller make you-swear till your measy old hide didn't hold an ounce o' meat. And if it wasn't fer your old age I'd make you skin up that tree and untie that rope. You git out o' here in two min-

DOUBLE DEATH BY DROWNING ENDS NEW ROMANCE

(Special to Morning Press.) Chicago, Ill., Aug. 12.—A hard-earned vacation which had just begun to develop into a romance came to a tragic end for Miss Alida Johnson and George C. Engelbrecht, two Chicago young people who were enjoying an outing at South Haven, Mich. While bathing in the surf, Miss Johnson ventured too far out. Engelbrecht, who had been with her almost constantly in the week, went to her rescue but the breaker were too high for him and after a moment's struggle both went under. Hundreds of bathers saw the incident but supposed that Engelbrecht had rescued the girl, and before anyone realized what had occurred both had drowned.

Putting Expression into It. The teacher of elocution was nearly discouraged, says a writer in the Boston Transcript. He urged his pupils, in some excitement, to put more expression into their recitations. "Too flat!" he exclaimed. "Too colorless! You can do better than that. Try again. Now! Open your mouth and throw yourself into it!"

GLADSTONE AND ESCANABA TO MEET HERE AGAIN SOON

Through arrangements that have been made the Escanaba and Gladstone baseball teams will be brought together here again on Aug. 27 and 28, offering an attraction for the big farmers celebration and home coming to be held here on those dates, second to none that has been planned. Gladstone's decisive diamond victory over Escanaba last Monday has made the two towns baseball foes for the remainder of the season and any games that can be scheduled between them will surely attract capacity crowds of enthusiasts. With the great host of visitors that will be in Escanaba on Aug. 27 and 28 the games here will, it is expected, attract greater crowds of fans than ever before down to baseball games in this city. Escanaba must return the courtesy and play a series of games at Gladstone that all of the fans of the Upper Bay City may see the two teams in action and the action of the management of the Gladstone team in agreeing to come to Escanaba again without the return games being played there is greatly appreciated by all of the local fans and the management.

"RAT" SAVES HER LIFE IN SHOOTING

(Special to The Morning Press.) ROANOKE, Va., Aug. 12.—Bertha Deline, a young white woman, after quarrelling with a young man on the street shot herself in the head, in an attempt to commit suicide. A "rat" in her hair saved her life. It checked the speed of the bullet.

THE LAST WEEK FOR STODDARD'S LECTURE

This will be the last week of the sale of "Stoddard Lectures" in Escanaba. The representatives have been here for nearly two months and have sold a large number of these beautiful books to the best families of Escanaba and adjoining towns, and every one who has been fortunate enough to secure them, pronounce them to be the most interesting and instructive books they have ever purchased.

They are replete with history, geography literature art and natural scenery of our own country as well as abroad. As one of the leading teachers has said: "Any one who reads these volumes is traveled and educated and therefore, no home can afford to be without them, for the benefit to the young whose whole future lives are shaped by the character of the food for their minds and no teacher should be without them." This valuable work will be offered in Gladstone for a short time only, on the same liberal terms which has enabled so many families here to enjoy this trip around the world with Mr. Stoddard as their guide. 126-13.

FANS LOOK FORWARD TO BIG CONTESTS

Every baseball fan of Escanaba is looking forward eagerly to the coming of the Oconto baseball team on next Sunday and Monday when the locals will get into action against the fastest aggregation of visitors to come here this season. With the shifts in the local lineup that are now planned Escanaba will present it is believed the strongest front that has been offered to an opposing team in many months. Exactly what shifts are to be made has not been divulged by the management but it is understood that a general shakeup of the team is to be made, with each man being placed in the position best suited to his style of play. Every member of the team is determined to wipe from the record the stigma of their defeat at the hands of Gladstone and from this time forth until the close of the season Escanaba's warriors will show to the fans their real ability on the diamond. The manager of the Oconto team wrote to Manager Follo of the locals again yesterday and announced that after closing a deal with Young Cy Young to come here with the team, the crack young twirler had fallen down on his agreement and will be unable to appear here. The Oconto manager says, however that he has a line on two other Lake Shore league pitchers and will bring one of them here with his team.

ANOTHER CHINK TRAGEDY SHOWN

(Special to Morning Press) NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Mission visitors to Chinatown knew Lillian Burk and Chu Gar for years as teacher and pupil.

They attended Sunday school together, where she gave him Bible instructions. They ate together in Chinese restaurants, and when he presented her to his countrymen as his wife he was envied for having won so comely a young woman.

A year ago she renounced mission service and accepted the attentions of a white man, to whom she was married in February. Chu Gar ferreted out her new address and wrote her loving letters. Now Chu Gar is made defendant in an alienation suit for $15,000 brought by George R. L. Burk, Lillian's husband.

In an alleged confession to which Lillian has sworn, she says she met Chu Gar about 11 years ago, when she was 17. He had a laundry near her home in Harlem. Her mother treated him for a felon. In gratitude he invited the mother to his Sunday school.

Chu Gar rose superior to the laundry business and opened a shop in the Arcade, at No. 11 Doyers street where he dealt in laundry supplies and patent medicines.

TO THE PEOPLE

The Local Grocers and Butchers Explain Their Position.

At a meeting of the retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association of the City of Escanaba, Michigan, held April 9, 1909, by motion it was unanimously adopted that the undersigned make known to the people of the city of Escanaba, and others, its position in regard to certain matters pertaining to its business methods.

The Association was organized for the purpose of correcting many wrongs and abuses heretofore practiced, and by so doing, establish a practical understanding between merchants and customers.

Chief among these undesirable abuses is the practice of many who virtually ignore their agreements, thus forcing merchants to accept less than the amount due; and though the individual balance left may be small, the collective balances thus carried for months on books of account amount to an enormous sum. Therefore, the overbalances left work the greatest loss and injury to the merchant.

After due consideration on these facts, it was unanimously decided that on and after September 1, 1909, all overdue accounts must be settled every 20 days either by cash or satisfactory security.

This action was not taken in a spirit of antagonism, but rather with the broadminded view of adjusting matters in a reasonable and just manner.

The association wishes it to be well understood that it will not interfere with members in making prices on goods. Free and open competition will be continued in the future as it had been in the past; merchants will seek to retain and sell-it patronage by adopting a high standard of business integrity, and by rendering courteous and fair treatment to all, and by showing a due appreciation for patronage.

Respectfully submitted, JAMES S. DOUGHERTY, Credit Auditor 303-126-11.

MADE HER SIGH.

Mrs. Brown and Her Experience With a Newspaper Reporter.

"Are you Mrs. Brown?" asked the reporter. "Yes," replied the lady, who was holding herself in readiness to slay the doer in his face if he attempted to enter.

"I have been sent out to secure a picture of you for publication in the Morning Bulletin. Have you a photograph of yourself that I may borrow?" "Mercy! I like your effrontery. I wouldn't think of permitting any paper to publish a picture of me."

"You are Mrs. William Henry Brown, are you not?" "Yes, but that makes no difference. I shall not let you have a photograph I would be so mortified that I could never look any of my friends in the face again if a picture of me were printed in a newspaper."

"I am sorry you feel that way about it. Of course if you object I suppose we shall have to get along without the photograph. Your husband is the William Henry Brown who has just been elected to the presidency of the Rein and Stirrup club, is he not?" "No; that's another William Henry Brown. The papers are always getting us mixed. It's awfully provoking."

"Oh, I beg your pardon. In that case it is not your picture I want. We intended to publish a group under the head of 'Beautiful Wives of Prominent Clubmen.' I am sorry to have bothered you. Good afternoon."

"There, that's just my luck," she said to herself when she had picked up her popular novel again. "I do wish my husband had the gumption to get elected president of something. And those last photographs I got make me look so young too!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

HOCKEY TO BE A SOUND SPORT

A movement has been started toward the formation of a governing board for the direction and governing of the great winter sport, hockey, in the United States and Canada.

The plan is to have an organization, similar to the National baseball commission.

Manager McNamara of the Amphidrome, and late Portage Lake hockey team, world's champions for several years, has been for weeks in communication with Thomas W. Prior, secretary and general manager of the Ice Rink Co. of Chicago, the concern promoting the mammoth skating auditorium in the Windy City.

Mr. Prior is interested in launching hockey in Chicago.

Mr. Prior's idea is to have hockey on a sound basis. This does not necessarily mean the formation of a professional league.

JAPANESE CADETS.

Military School Exercises Include Hand to Hand Conflicts.

In the Japanese military school, where I saw a Spartan system of education, the exercises of the cadets with pikes, rifles and broadswords were not approached by anything of the kind that I had witnessed in Europe. It was fighting of the fiercest character.

At the end of the struggle there was a hand to hand combat, which lasted until the victors stood triumphant over the bodies of the vanquished and tore off their masks.

In these exercises, which were very severe, the cadets struck one another fervently and with wild cries, but the moment a prearranged signal was given or the fight came to an end the combatants drew themselves up in a line, and their faces assumed an expression of wooden composure.

In all the public schools prominence was given to military exercises, and the scholars took part in them with enthusiasm. Even in their walks they practiced running, stanking and sudden, unexpected attacks.

The history of Japan was everywhere made a means of strengthening the pupils' patriotism and their belief in Japan's inviolability. Particular stress was laid upon the country's successful wars, the heroes of them were extolled, and the children were taught that none of Japan's military enterprises had failed.—McClure's Magazine.

A Cowboy Spider.

"Faking spider," said the nature student, "there is in New Zealand a cowboy spider. This creature throws a coil of web like a lasso over its prey's head, then adds more and more coils and when the prey is bound hand and foot devours it."

"There is a Borneo spider that in the spring days plays a fiddle. It is a common thing for a lovesick spider to dance before his girl, but this Borneo boy my drawing his arm across his tum produces a sweet, clear note. Whenever he sees a good looking young lady spider he stops and gives her a tune, hoping to win her as his mate."—Bismarckian.

Miners' Freedom From Cancer.

"Miners never have cancer. In thirty-five years' practice in a mining town I haven't had a single cancerous patient."

"And to what, doctor, do you impute this immunity?"

"Miners are singularly cleanly. They bathe every day. They rarely smoke. They are a temperate and regular set. Above all—"

The physician smiled grimly.

"Miners," he said, "die young. Cancer is an old age disease. And there really is the reason of the miner's cancerous immunity."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Memory Studies.

A small boy went into a South Boston drug store, wrinkled his face, rubbed his head and rubbed his left foot up and down his right leg in an effort to remember something that had escaped him.

"Say," he began, "will you tell me the name of the place where we Americans have so many soldiers?"

"Fort Sheridan?"

"Oh, no. It's farther away than that."

"The Philippines?"

"That ain't just it, but it's somewhere around there."

"Perhaps you mean Manila?"

"Manila! That's right! I knew I would get it after a while. I want a bottle of manila extract for flavoring. They're going to have ice cream."—Boston Record.

Modern Warfare.

The battle of Fornova, fought July 6, 1495, between the French and the Milanese, whose territory they were invading, was the very last of the characteristic Middle Ages battles. From that time the infantry gained the pre-eminence over the cavalry, and cannon were employed in preference to all other projectile weapons.

ENJOYED HARD JOB SAYS MAN WHO WAS LOST FOR 4 WEEKS

(Special to Morning Press.)
KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 12.—"I had a bully time doing manual labor in the button factory at Sabula. I could get up early in the morning and work hard all day, and when I returned home at night I could sleep—and sleep soundly—something I could not do while I was practicing law."

This was the statement made by ex-Judge Joseph R. Clarkson, who disappeared from here July 14 and who was found at Sabula, Ia., to his law partner, James Cavanaugh, when he returned here with John Burns.

The judge denied himself to interviewers but his partner, Mr. Cavanaugh, gave out the following interesting account of the story as told by Judge Clarkson:

"I left Kenosha on July 15 and went to Winthrop Harbor, ten miles south of here. I do not remember how long I stopped there nor do I know by what means I left, but the next thing I remember was being in Chicago. There, I had my beard shaved off, but at what barber shop I do not know, although I could find the place were I to return to Chicago."

BED 13, CHAIR 13, AT 1313 ON 13TH STREET; DENVER MAN SMILES

(Special to Morning Press.)
SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 12.—H. G. Stocking, who came here from Denver to register on Indian land drawings, holds the record for running against the unlucky number thirteen. He is still hale and hearty.

When leaving Denver, Stocking was given sleeping car berth No. 13. At Missoula, Mont., he registered with a notary whose license for and whose office number was No. 13.

When he arrived in Spokane, Stocking secured a job as a barber at the shop of A. W. Besse on Thirteenth street, and had the thirteenth chair.

That evening he secured a room farther out on Thirteenth street, at No. 1313.

He is cheerfully waiting, and expects to draw No. 13 envelope in the winning column of land seekers, thereby getting farm No. 13.

GETS 400 POUNDER ON "LITTLE JAUNT"

(Special to The Morning Press.)
MARQUETTE, Mich., Aug. 12.—Fred Green, a merchant at Pickford, Chippewa county, and who occasion ally shoulders his rifle, as out on the plains a few miles northwest, the other day when he ran across a big brown nose bear.

Mr. Green is a good shot and the first bullet hit the spot aimed at. The carcass was taken to town and together with some of the local sportsmen was photographed.

The animal was very gaunt, but weighed 300 pounds, and is said to be the largest one ever seen in those parts.

Had he been fat he would easily have tipped the scales at 400 pounds.

HE STAYS IN CELL TO AVOID A MOB

(Special to Morning Press.)
FLINT, Mich., Aug. 12.—Lewis L. Terry slept in the Genesee county jail overnight because he feared his life at the hands of his neighbors, who have sworn vengeance on him, he declares, because of stories his wife has told.

Terry is a local real estate operator and was arrested on complaint of his wife, who charged assault and battery.

Terry secured bail and reappeared at his home. Then the neighbors told him, it is said, that if he persisted in remaining in the vicinity he would be hanged.

Terry asked Sheriff Parkhurst if he could stay in the county jail nights and be released each morning until arraigned.

JUSTICE SHUTS OFF PHONOGRAPH

(Special to Morning Press.)
ISLIP, L. I., Aug. 12.—Justice of the Peace Wright has rung the curb on the phonograph.

Under his ruling it is illegal to operate a phonograph out of doors after 9 o'clock at night and before 8 o'clock in the morning.

Justice Wright, however, tempered that ruling with mercy. After he had decreed that Julius Mentz, a village barber, had violated the unwritten silence law against the phonograph and said he thought 60 days' imprisonment would fit the offense, he suspended sentence.

That was not done, however, until Mentz had promised, reluctantly, to keep his phonograph quiet in the night and early morning hours.

FIND JOCKER IN NEW LIQUOR LAW

vided they were behind the glass. The intent of the law was doubtless to prohibit the display of signs that could be seen from the outside of the building, but as printed the law does not say that.

It is provided that in case of two violations of the liquor laws the license shall be forfeited and the violator cannot longer engage in the business. The old law provided that upon one conviction the license might be violated put this was declared unconstitutional.

The new law gets around this difficulty by making it an agreement on the part of the man taking out the license that if he is convicted twice he shall forfeit his license. When he gets his red card he signs this agreement and thus becomes a party to a contract which, it is claimed cannot be broken.

Another feature which will make it difficult for saloonkeepers to secure bondsmen lies in the fact that no surety can go upon more than one bond and he cannot obligate himself to a greater amount than the assessed valuation of his property in this county free from all incumbrance and indebtedness. Heretofore one man has gone upon many bonds and while his assessed valuation might be but $5,000 he has claimed he was worth $10,000 and has been allowed to obligate himself to that extent.

(Special to Morning Press.)
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 12.—Bit terness marked the investigation to determine who is the rightful claimant to the reward offered by Pennsylvania for the capture of the kidnappers of Willie Whitle.

Patrick O'Reilly, who claims he summoned the police to arrest James Boyle and his wife while they were in his saloon, called Chief Kohler a liar, and all of the six contestants for the reward said harsh words to one another.

Chief Kohler was on the witness stand testifying at the time of O'Reilly's declaration. The chief declared O'Reilly made every effort to keep the Boyles hidden in his saloon while the police searched for them.

GEORGIA MOB BEATS UP THE UMPIRE

(Special to Morning Press.)
AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 12.—Immediately following his forfeiture of a baseball game to Macon this afternoon in the beginning of the fourth inning, Umpire Gifford was surrounded by a crowd of several hundred angry spectators and narrowly escaped serious injury. Gifford was struck in the face, hit on the head with pop bottles and choked.

Mayor W. M. Dunbar made an address to the crowd stating that Augusta had been wronged, but for the good name of the city he pleaded to "let the skunk alone."

ALL BEWHISKERED "PROFS" MUST GO

(Special to Morning Press.)
DES MOINES, Aug. 12.—Its goodbye to the bewhiskered professor on the faculty of Iowa educational institutions.

Whiskers breed germs, hence they must go. When school starts this fall, smooth shaven professors will be the rage. By Christmas, it is predicted, not a professor in any Iowa college will be wearing whiskers.

The professors on the faculty of the state normal school at Cedar Falls, started the movement.

TO STOP DELAY IN CIVIL CASES

(Special Correspondence.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Suggestions toward eliminating the ever-present delay in civil suits are contained in a report signed by five Justices of the New York Supreme Court.

The committee was appointed some time ago to investigate the situation and after conferring with their associates and prominent members of the bar, they made eight specific recommendations.

REV. SPENCE WILL RESUME HIS WORK.

Although the Rev. Frederick Spence has not yet fully recovered from his recent indisposition he will occupy the pulpit at the First Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday and all of the regular services will be held at that church on that day. Members of the official board, desired that Mr. Spence should take a rest of several weeks before resuming his duties but the pastor insisted on taking up his work at once.
