BABE IN RUNAWAY ON SUNDAY WAS NEAR DEATH--FELL UNDER WHEELS

HOPES TO FIND DAUGHTER STOLEN 22 YEARS AGO

(Special to Morning Press.)
UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Aug. 16.—Robert P. Purdue hopes to learn through the arrest of Wilbur Sillwell the whereabouts of his daughter Milla. He charges Sillwell with kidnapping her and the mother, 22 years ago.

Purdue has sought in vain all these years for the girl. He failed completely to find any clue until he discovered Sillwell in Marion, O., Monday.

Purdue was a farmer a short distance out of Upper Sandusky with his young wife and two little girls. Sillwell worked for him.

FAMILY DESERTED LIVES IN TENT

(Special to Morning Press.)
LANSING, Mich., Aug. 16.—Living in a tent made of sheets spread over some bushes, and her three children, one of whom is only six weeks old, subsiding upon tea and crackers for weeks, is the condition in which Mrs. Albert Taylor, colored, was found by the police.

The report came to the officers that a colored family was living in the woods near the slaughter house and among the children was a six weeks' old infant. The entire effects of the family could be put in a bushel basket.

Mrs. Taylor is the wife of Albert Taylor, a negro. The woman had been put out of a house last week, and she says as she had no other place to go and no money with which to seek shelter, she was compelled to go to the woods with her children.

CANNED PEAS DOWN MARINERS

(Special to Morning Press.)
CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 16.—Eleven deckhands, cooks and firemen on the steamer Indiana, running between Chicago and Muskegon, were stricken with ptomaine poisoning.

It is believed the poisoning was caused by canned peas, which the men ate for dinner. Doctors were secured in Muskegon and they accompanied the boat to Grand Haven. Four of the crew were so ill that it was necessary to take them to the marine hospital at Grand Haven.

HIS LIFE BLOOD SAVES SISTER

OMAHA, Aug. 16.—That his sister, Mrs. Alice Towle, might live Charles N. Sullivan has given a quart of his own blood.

Both reside in Omaha and are wealthy.

For several weeks Mrs. Towle has been in one of the Omaha hospitals, slowly wasting away from lack of blood.

Both brother and sister are said by physicians to be beyond the danger point.

FATHER IS NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ACTS OF THE CHILD; IS OLD ENGLISH AND AMERICAN LAW DUG UP IN COURT HERE

That a parent is not responsible for damage committed by his child was the English and American law quoted in justice court yesterday by Atty. C. D. McEwen

ARM BROKEN AND FACE CUT

Child Had Narrow Escape From Death, While Brother of Four Years Escaped Without a Scratch

Lying helpless in the seat of a heavy wagon, with the horse running at a mad pace the 18 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johnson of Escanaba township narrowly escaped death on Sunday. Falling from the seat as the horse ran madly the babe floundered under the wheels of the wagon and one wheel passed over its body. A long gash was sustained at the side of the head and one arm was broken but the child was not killed. The accident was witnessed by the frantic parents of the child who could do nothing. They were picking berries on the Cornell Road and the babe with a four year old brother were left in the wagon. The babe was dumped out after the horse had run for a half mile and the other child in the wagon clung to the dashboard until the horse was stopped three miles away.

MOST ORIGINAL OF UMPIRES IS A KANSAS MAN

(Special to Morning Press.)
M'PHERSON, Kan., Aug. 16.—The Kansas State league has the most original umpire in the business, and if there is an umpire in the world who has better success at handling games than this one, he hasn't shown up yet.

Mickle Cleary is his name, and the other day he was umpiring a twenty-one inning game between McPherson Lyolins. In the fifteenth inning the umpire delayed the game while he methodically searched every pocket in his clothes. At the end of the sixteenth inning he delayed the game again while he approached half the ball players on the field and whispered in their ears.

At the end of the seventeenth inning he held up the game while he sent for the groundkeeper and, after a short talk with that individual he walked back to his job in disgust.

At the end of the eighteenth inning Mickle removed his mask, stepped to the front of the grand stand and asked in a low voice if any gent there could oblige him with a chew of tobacco. A gent did oblige him, and the game went on without further delay.

CHEW OF TOBACCO SAVES MAN'S LIFE

(Special to Morning Press.)
LOGANSPORT, Ind., Aug. 16.—August Walters, a park policeman, was almost killed by electricity while assisting a lineman who was repairing an arc light in Riverside park.

The lineman requested Walters to let down the arc light and he grasped the wire cable. Instantly fire flashed from Walters' body, and he was unable to release his hold.

It was several hours before Walters regained consciousness. He received a current of 2,200 volts.

Physicians attribute Walters' escape to the fact that when he first grasped the cable the shock caused him to swallow a big quid of tobacco. This tobacco acted as a stimulant and kept up the heart action.

WOMAN PUTS ON OVERALLS; FAMILY DOG IS MISTAKEN

(Special to Morning Press.)
PORTLAND, Mich., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Chas. Hudson is rapidly recovering from injuries received when she was attacked by a dog, which had been in the family for 13 years.

Mrs. Hudson and one of the children were going to the woods to pick berries and had donned a pair of

MEANEST TRICK ON RECORD; YES, IT'S THAT, SURE

(Special to Morning Press.)
ASPINWALL, Pa., Aug. 16.—What is said to be the meanest trick ever perpetrated in the Allegheny valley was pulled off here by Stephen Swartz, who when last seen was heading for Pittsburgh with great speed, though only a few rods ahead of an angry crowd armed with clubs.

Swartz was employed by a local land company, and he and some others, by a rare streak of luck, succeeded in having a swarm of bees enter an empty beer keg.

He placed a bung in the keg and later in the afternoon telephoned for some of his friends to join him under a large tree just back of the town.

The gang came quickly, to find Swartz sitting by an innocent-looking keg which had a large bit of ice on top of it.

When the crowd had gathered and lay about the grass Steve excused himself for a few moments, saying, he would return. As he went he pulled the bung from the keg, and in two minutes there were about two pecks of mad bees in the air.

It is said that 500 stings were inflicted on a score of Swartz's friends inside of two minutes.

LOVE'S LOVE HAS $1,000,000 NOW

(Special to Morning Press.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Through an inheritance of $1,000,000 from the large Burns estate of St. Joseph, Mo., Mrs. Sidney E. Love expects to rehabilitate her husband in Wall street where he lost his fortune last January.

Mrs. Love was formerly Miss Margery Burns who was pronounced by Sir Philip Burne-Jones to be the most beautiful woman in the world.

Love, who came to New York from Keokuk, Ia., was the particular protegee of Judge William H. Moore, formerly of Chicago, and when Love failed Judge Moore saw that none of the creditors lost anything.

G. A. R. IS FAST DWINDLING AWAY

(Special to Morning Press.)
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 16.—According to the report of Past Commander-in-Chief Nevius at the G. A. R. encampment, the survivors of the civil war numbered 629,985 on Dec. 31, 1908.

There are 220,616 members of the G. A. R. in good standing at the same time. The report showed that the veterans are rapidly dying off, over 10,000 members of the G. A. R. answering the final call during 1908.

Morning Press Job Work orders will be taken at fair prices during twenty-four hours every day except Sunday.

HOME-COMING PROCLAMATION

The Committee in charge of the County Fair and Farmer's Picnic have suggested to me that it would be extremely pleasant to make Thursday, August 25, which has been selected as Home Coming Day in all that the words imply. The Day has been extensively advertised and a large number of former residents of the city will be here for the occasion. The County Fair committee has said to me that they feel that the arrangements of a formal program for the day should be in the hands of a committee of old residents, and I am asked to name such committee.

I believe the suggestion is a good one and I hope the day will be made one which will long be remembered. Therefore I trust the work of making suitable plans for the day to the following Committee of fifty.

PANTS ARE N. G. FOR LEAVING THIS VALE OF TEARS

(Special to Morning Press.)
FLINT, Mich., Aug. 16.—As the result of an exciting episode in the Genesee county jail, Sheriff Parkhurst is anxiously awaiting word from Sharon, Pa., as to what to do with Arthur Cooper, the former employee of the Buick company, who was lodged in jail after exhibiting traits of mental derangement.

Cooper attempted to end his life. It is said, in the jail. He is confined in the hospital ward and he doffed his trousers and fastened one leg to the top of his cell and the other around his neck.

The improvised rope would swing him two feet above the cell floor and he jumped off the cell gate.

The trousers were not of the best material and ripped with the sudden strain. Cooper was thrown to the floor and the noise aroused a prisoner in a cell on the same tier. Sheriff Parkhurst was notified and placed Cooper under guard.

TAFT FINISHES PLAN FOR REGULATION OF ALL THE INTERSTATE CORPORATIONS

Laws to be Amended so Books Can Be Examined For More Than of Taxation Under New Law

FOR INTERSTATE COMMISSION

More Powers to be Provided For Commerce Body- Nazel's Department to be as Big in Importance as Department of Justice- New Bureau to be Provided For Making Prosecutions

(Special to Morning Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16.—People returning home from Beverly report that the president has finally reached a tentative agreement with his cabinet lawyers concerning the program he will put up to congress next winter for the further control of corporations doing an interstate business.

The men who are to work out the details of the president's plan include Representative Townsend of Michigan, who is prominent member of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce.

In brief, it is reported here that the president's plan will be to build up a structure of federal supervision of corporations based on the corporation tax provision of the new tariff law.

Prominent "trust busters" will be talked with, so that no phase of the question will be overlooked.

10,000 "PUNKIN" PIES AT PUMPKIN FESTIVAL

(Special to Morning Press.)
LONGMONT, Col., Aug. 16.—Ten thousand pumpkin pies were consumed here today in the observance of Longmont's annual "punkin" festival.

For weeks wagons filled with big and little yellow ones have come in from the surrounding country.

The pies were served free to everybody and excursions were run from Denver and other cities.

SIX BABES DIE; WITCH DOCTORS

(Special to Morning Press.)
READING, Pa., Aug. 16.—Coroner Strasser is busy procuring evidence in the case of six infants who died after alleged treatment by witch doctors for "summer complaint."

Reading is known for its many witch doctors. People assert that neighbors "verhexed" them. No sooner does a child become ill than the neighbors rush in and declare the child is "verhexed."

MRS. M'GRATH IS OLD BUT ACTIVE

(Special to Morning Press.)
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 16.—"I want to live two or three years longer yet," said old Mrs. McGrath of the home for aged conducted by the Little Sisters of the Poor, as she drew her shawl about her bent shoulders and brushed back her thin yellow hair under her woolen bonnet.

Mrs. McGrath was 112 years old on Aug. 15. In spite of her years she seems to possess a remarkable memory for facts. When asked how long she had been in the home, she said:

"It was two years July 24, last."

This proved to be the exact date, according to the home records.

"I buried my man 28 years ago, last May and after that I lived alone in my little home that my good man left me in Brandon, Wis," she said.

Mrs. McGrath has a stepson, Jas. McGrath, Appleton, Wis., who is the only relative that cares for her interests. He is 89 years old. There are many Milwaukee friends who

DIVINITY STUDENT GREAT ON CHECKS

(Special to Morning Press.)
MUSKEGON, Mich., Aug. 16.—Harry M. Hedge, a divinity student at the Northwestern university, at Evanston, Ill., and reputed to be a resident of Edgewater, Chicago, who had been in camp at Bear Lake for ten days, as custodian of about 25 choir boys of a Chicago church, is charged with having maintained the camp by purchasing truck and supplies from the farmers in the vicinity of the lake, with "phony" checks. Since the boys returned to Chicago, the checks have been coming back after having been to the Chicago bank, marked "No funds."

It is understood that each of the choir boys paid well or their outing the price Hedge charged being $10 each.

WOMAN PUTS ON OVERALLS; FAMILY DOG IS MISTAKEN

(Special to Morning Press.)
PORTLAND, Mich., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Chas. Hudson is rapidly recovering from injuries received when she was attacked by a dog, which had been in the family for 13 years.

BOY SHOOTS AN INDIAN MADE OF HARD WOOD

(Special to The Morning Press.)
LANSING, Mich., Aug. 16.—Shooting at Indians is now an old experience with Lawrence Bishop, aged 13 years.

Young Bishop was assisting a family by the game of Pitts move. Among the effects belonging to the family was a shot gun and boy fashion young Bishop wanted to carry it into the house.

He was permitted to do so and after getting inside the house, he espied the wooden Indian used as a sign in front of a north end store. He took aim at the Indian and pulled the trigger and burst to his surprise, he says, the gun went off, breaking the glass out of a window and struck the Indian amidst.

When brought to the police station young Bishop told Chief Behrendt that he had played with the gun before while visiting at the Pitts home but on those occasions it was not loaded and he was not aware that a cartridge had been placed in the gun since.

The lad was given a good reprimand.

He quickly discovered his mistake and his every movement after

HEARS HUSBAND "TALK"; SUICIDE

(Special to Morning Press.)
MARSHALL, Mich., Aug. 16.—Because her husband had told her she could live with him no longer and because she overheard a conversation in which he is said to have spoken of her slighting, Mrs. Gertrude Casey, wife of a wealthy stock dealer here, tried to end her life. She may not recover.

Mrs. Casey, after leaving her husband's home took rooms with Mrs. S. A. Cole.

Sunday she was doing some purchasing in a local store when Casey entered. Not seeing her, it is said, he began telling of his domestic troubles and made an attack on his wife.

Mrs. Casey came out from the rear of the store and husband and wife engaged in a heated word battle. The former then left and going to her rooms swallowed strychnine. It took the combined strength of two men and two women to restrain her.

ARE YOU LEFT HANDED?

Dr. Stier, an eminent German physiologist, has published some interesting particulars of investigations he has made of several thousand left-handed people in all walks of life.

He draws his principal facts from carefully made investigations in the army, in which the military authorities aided him in every way in their power, and he had ample time to work out his conclusions.

He selected various actions among hundreds of others as certain tests of left-handedness—bread cutting, threading needles, cracking a whip and shuffling cards.

Prof. Stier found that in the vast majority of cases it is not a more highly developed muscular arrangement in the left hand and arm which causes left-handedness; in fact, in 77 per cent of the cases examined he found that the right arm and hand were the stronger.

He found that left-handedness is in a large number of cases inherited. A left-handed man is bound to have a certain number of his children of a like habit. He reckons that 50 per cent of left-handed persons had left-handed parents and that this peculiarity is inherited by three times as many boys as girls.

Especially remarkable is the combination of stammering with left-handedness. In fourteen regiments he found 1,237 left-handed persons, of whom nearly a thousand had some impediment in speech or some other form of nervous disorder.

Whether the charges against Superintendent Judd of the School for the Blind at Saginaw are or are not sustained the fact that the institution has been more or less involved in quarrels and scandals for years makes it plain that there should be a thorough overhauling and cleaning out of the institution. This much is due to clear it of the stigma which has attached to it.—Bay City Tribune.

Inane at Father's Grave. A Parisian girl of 16, whose wayward conduct drew from her father a stern reprimand, left home, and began to frequent the cafes at Montmartre. A party of revellers with which she was connected conceived the bizarre idea of promenading through Pere La chaise cemetery.

The party were leaving one path for another when a sharp cry arrested their steps. They turned round, and found the girl kneeling at a freshly-made grave, her eyes fixed on the marble slab. It was the grave of her father, who had died suddenly and had been buried on the previous day. The girl sank into a swoon, and when she came to she was insane. The shock of finding her father dead and buried had turned her brain.

Lord Kitchener's Orchids. Lord Kitchener, who leaves India next August, has lately been devoting a great amount of his spare time to gardening, which has been for many years a favorite recreation of his. His official residence in the fort at Calcutta possesses rather extensive grounds, and these he keeps under his personal supervision when he is staying there. He is a very early riser, and gives two or three hours every morning to his gardens, digging and trimming the soil with all the ardor of a professional. He has of late years taken great interest in orchid culture and has visited recently some of the more famous of the Bengal collections. It is his intention when he settles down in England to purchase a small estate, somewhere within easy reach of London, where there is space to collect orchids on a large scale.

No acceptance was received and when they met in the cathedral the other day Quirose taunted the man he had challenged, accusing him of cowardice. Garas at once drew his knife and began slashing. In an instant Quirose's

BOSTON MARKETS

BOSTON.—The market was quiet today with scattered selling. We believe the better class of coppers should be bought on the weak spots. The New York market became very weak under heavy selling in the Pacific. Stop loss orders were caught in many of the stocks, causing a bulk break. This break may continue a little further in the New York market, and should strengthen the technical position.—FOSTER, of Paine, Webber & Co.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK.—Recent advances fostered quite a few weak accounts which receded sharply, recoveries were brought in a manner indicative of good control, and the desire on the part of large market interests to strengthen the position of the list was apparent. Today's declines make prices more attractive, and after early weakness, tomorrow expect to see market resume its upward course. Total sales, 1,068,000.

THE CURB MARKETS

CURBS.—Santa Rosalia was the attractive curb today, closing at 1-2 and with practically no stock offered. There is no particular news to account for the advance, but the buying comes from good sources and is very confident. Chief was active, selling freely at 1 1/2. Good news is expected from this property within a few days. Arizona-Michigan sold at 1 1/2, but the trading was quiet. Superior & Globe is wanted at 99 cents, but the market for this stock is in a rut. Hancock has called a two-dollar assessment, payable in one dollar installments, on October 10th and Feb. 1st, 1910. The proceeds will be used to provide permanent equipment for the mine. Diamond drilling was started at the Oneco today. The property will be cross-sectioned and thoroughly explored. The stock is quiet. Live Oak is in good demand, closing 8 1/2. Inspiration is becoming more active, and the stocks located in the Miami map promise great activity in the next big market. Superior & Boston was quiet today with sales at 16. The southwest group have not participated to any extent in the activity enjoyed by the Lake Superior specialties in this market.

Judging from Boy's Comment Who Believes in Early Rising Must Stick to Shingle

Is there a boy in the world who doesn't hate to get up in the morning? A Jersey man who has three possible future presidents does not think so. With his he has tried everything from a bucket of cold water and a shingle to proverbs. The shingle seems the best argument. The proverb was in this nature: "You know Jones?" the father remarked at the dinner table, addressing his wife. "Well, he is a very early riser—takes a long walk before breakfast every morning. Besides the good it does his health, he says that he finds any number of things on the street—he got up at 5 o'clock the other morning and found a pocket-book containing $20 before he had walked a block."

Not Worth Shingling.

The late Thomas Bone, "the sailor's missionary," was the soul of kindness, but he was seldom worsted in repartee. One of the many instances of this given in his just-published life is the following: "His work was not without its humorous side. Among the new men there were always some who sought a little amusement at his expense, but they reckoned without their host. His kindly manner never changed. The smile never left his face. There was no venom in the retort, but it seldom failed to silence the interrupter. The laugh rallied at his expense made it quite certain that no second attempt would be made. "Seeing him approaching one day, one of a group of sailors announced his intention of having some fun. He stepped forward and removed his hat, revealing a perfectly smooth crown, and asked: "Can you tell me why my head is so bald, while all my companions have plenty of hair?" "I don't know," was the smiling reply, "unless the reason given me the other day by a farmer would apply, that an empty barn is not worth shingling."—Judge.

RAIN HUMBLER PROUD PIRATES
 Lone Game in National League Ends With Rain and the Score a Too-ti-too

MATTHEWSON HIT FOR 7
 Willis Holds Giants to 6 Raps but its all for Naught Anyway--The it Rained

(Special to Morning Press.)
 PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 16.—There was only one game slated in the National league for today, and the Pittsburgh fans thought themselves quite into a piousness for having the aforesaid lone game in this city.

So they went out in great numbers unto the ball park. But, when they reached there, it looked threatening. Pittsburgh landed a couple of runs and so did New York. When the score had been tied, no more and no less, didn't it pour. Yes, it did.

Matthewson did the slabwork for the Giants and Willis for the Pirates. There were no special features. The score:

Pittsburg	2	7	3
New York	2	6	0

Batteries: Willis and Gibson; Matthewson and Meyers.

RAIN, AND THEN SOME

Monday was a great day for rain in the baseball business.

In the American league, Boston and New York, Cleveland and St. Louis and Detroit and Chicago were unable to play on account of wet grounds and rain.

In the National league, Pittsburg and New York were halted early in their game by rain. This was the only contest that was started at all in this organization.

Milwaukee and Columbus in the American association had to quit before they were through, but it was not on account of rain. These two outfits battled along for fourteen innings, and then had to let off, owing to darkness.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.
BREWERS AND COLUMBUS: 2-2
14 INNINGS

(Special to Morning Press.)
 MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 16.—The Ohioans and the Brewers got on the map today.

After battling fourteen innings, they called it off. And, what do you think was the score: 0 to 0.

Wacker was slugging it for the Brewers, and lasted fourteen long innings. He wasn't hit hard, either. Neither was Geyer who furnished the ammunition for the Columbus outfit. It was a beautiful pitcher's battle all through. Warner, a "newer" Brewer officiated behind the Columbus batters and James behind the Brewer slick artists.

The game wasn't so exciting either. It rather dragged along after a while. Then, too, these Milwaukee fellows suffer from ennui if there isn't a fireworks hitting game.

OGONTO GOES TO GLADSTONE TODAY

The Oconto baseball team will go to Gladstone today to meet the strong aggregation of the Upper Bay City in a single game this afternoon. Tomorrow the Oconto players, twice trimmed, will stack up against the classy Rapid River aggregation in that city.

The Oconto team will be strengthened in its weak spots by local players and both Gladstone and Rapid River should be pleased.

HOFFMAN LEADS LOCAL BATTERS

With a batting average of .407 for 21 games, Capt. Hoffman of the local team leads the local sluggers in stick work according to figures that have been compiled by the official scorer of the team. Flath, N. Welch and Lentz follow next in order with the remainder of the team strung out through the list and with Lewis bringing up the rear.

Following is the record of batting averages for the team:

G	AB	H	Pct.
Hoffman	21	81	.33
Flath	19	81	.29
Walch, N.	21	32	.29
Lanz	21	83	.26

McDonald	11	39	.09
Lewis	7	29	.06

PASSOWS TRIMMED THE GARDEN COSYS

By a score of 8 to 2 The Passow baseball team defeated the Garden Cosys at Garden on Sunday. With young south paw "Bug" Carroll in the box the local amateurs had the game safely in their hands from the beginning to the end in spite of the fast and classy play of the Cosys. Carroll was working in prime form allowing but six hits and having a total of 12 strikeouts to his credit in the nine innings. Up to the opening of the seventh inning the Cosys were unable to score but in that period they started things and played a lively and spectacular game in the remaining innings.

RIGHTERS SLAUGHTER BARK RIVER TEAM

The Richter baseball team slaughtered the fast Bark River aggregation at Bark River on Sunday to the tune of 12 to 1. Delocary, the crack Bark River twirler was in poor form for Sunday's game and the Richter sluggers got to his delivery for a multiplicity of hits. Londerville, of the Richters' pitching staff never worked in more perfect form than on Sunday when in the entire nine innings he allowed but a single and had an excellent knockout record.

The Richters are greatly pleased over their victory at Bark River as the team of that city is counted as one of the strongest in this district.

When Youth Wanes.

Old age has many definitions, and middle age more. But you may take it that you are not really an old man so long as you take an interest in your personal appearance. There is not a nurse who does not know the sign of convalescence—when the patient wants to be shaved and put a good appearance in this world. And so long as the man of 80 can take an interest in the latest tie—and the tie is preserving his youth.

 And it Wasn't Yellow Either; for the Senators Lost to Him, 8 to 1, Yesterday

TWO MIFFS "COUNTLESS"
 Phillies Make a Couple of Misplays but That's More Effective Than Senator's Errorless Game

(Special to Morning Press.)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16.—Philadelphia, of the American league has a man named Krause. They also have a young fellow named Livingstone. Together these two gents make some team especially when the fielding is good, to wit: The Phillies went to it here to day and by the aid of their German English battery combination, did up the Senators to the tune of 8 to 1.

Excellent fielding did the trick, coupled with Krause's good pitching and Livingstone's great catching. Krause was hit eight times, just as often as was Johnston of the Senators, yet the Senators had to take Johnston out and put in Gray. It didn't do a great deal of good, any how.

Now, the Phillies made two errors, but while Washington didn't make any, Friend Krause kept the eight hits so well scattered that the Senators got a lone run.

The score:

Washington	R. H. E.
Philadelphia	1 8 0
Batteries: Johnston, Gray and Street; Krause and Livingstone.	6 8 2

Where Caesar Crossed Thames.

Where did Julius Caesar cross the Thames? This sounds like one of the questions set by staid old examiners in search of information they failed to acquire in their youth. There are perhaps as many places claiming to be the site of the famous fording as there were claiming to be the birthplace of Homer. This week Brentford has staged a march on other places and has erected a monument commemorating Caesar's crossing of the Thames there!

Most historians and topographers agree in placing the point of crossing at Halliford at a point known as Cowey (i. e., Causeway) Stakes, and but little support is found for the Brentford theory. To many people a monument is the most convincing of evidence, and though there is little tradition to support the Brentford claim, that column will no doubt serve to strengthen the tradition.—London Chronicle.

A Few Suggestions.

To the man who ate too much duck and suffered indigestion thereby, we suggest that he consult a quack doctor.

The man who marries a grass widow must not expect necessarily to live in clover.

Even if you are an Englishman don't think that "ugging is 'armless. It's 'armful."

Says a poet, "If misfortune overtakes you, smile." Very good advice, but suppose that misfortune overtakes you in a strictly prohibition town?

Never carry your civic pride too far, like the Minneapolis congregation which rose and left the church one Sunday because the minister took his text from St. Paul.—Bohemian Magazine.

As Dr. Johnson Said It.

George Augustus Sala's eloquent testimony to the superiority of English vlands reminds us of Dr. Johnson's outburst after examining a French menu.

"Sir," said he to the faithful Boswell, "my brain is obfuscated with the perusal of this heterogeneous conglomeration of bastard English ill-spelt and a foreign tongue. Did the rascals bring me a dish of hog's puddings, a slice or two from the upper cut of a well roasted stein and two apple dumplings."

McDONALD PITCHES NO HIT GAME HERE

Crack Local Twirler Shut Out Oconto 9 to 0 by Pitching Great Ball. Clayton in Box Sunday Twirled Escanaba to 6 to 1 Victory

With Jack McDonald pitching hit less ball and every member of the team again playing in old time form Escanaba yesterday drubbed Oconto 9 to 0 thus taking both games of the series of two having copped off a 6 to 1 victory on Sunday. Working through the entire nine innings without allowing a semblance of a hit, Jack McDonald yesterday showed his real worth and achieved a record that has seldom if ever before been approached on the local diamond. McDonald was in perfect form for yesterday's game. He had speed to burn and his curves of every caliber were breaking on the scratch completely befuddling the Oconto sluggers. Only twice during the entire game did an Oconto player reach second base and no visitor ever advanced as far as the second sack, the only bases reached being on two errors that were marked up against the locals. Lesperence and his successor on the slab were touched up for a total of 13 swats by the locals, hits coming at opportune times when swats were needed to bring in men from the bases.

In Sunday's game Clayton, like McDonald yesterday, had the Oconto batters decidedly on the hip. In the nine innings the big local twirler allowed but four hits the visitors being held scoreless until in the eighth inning when two hits and a wild heave gave Oconto its first and only score of the game. Moon who twirled for the visitors on Sunday was also a classy pitcher letting the hard local batters down with but six hits. Both Lentz and Hoffman distinguished themselves in the first game of the series by driving out beautiful two sackers which a pretty home run hit and Nick Welch followed closely in the ex-captain's footsteps by binging out a long three sacker. Lentz followed up his two sacker of Sunday with another yesterday and Clayton demonstrated that he is not only a great slab artist but some stick shoveler when he also slammed out a screaming double.

In Sunday's game the strike out record between Clayton and Moon was equally divided, each having six strikeouts to their credit. Clayton gave but one base on balls while Moon gave four.

In yesterday's game McDonald not only pitched a hitless game but he also pitched perfect ball in every other respect, giving no bases on balls and striking out six batters. The Oconto pitchers had five strikeouts to their credit and gave two bases on balls.

Following was the score by innings in Sunday's game:

Escanaba	0	1	3	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	0

Following was the score by innings in yesterday's game:

Escanaba	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0

Following was the lineup of the two teams:

Oconto	Escanaba
Whitecomb	Lewis
Schriener	Lentz
Brooks	Hoffman
Phelan	Clayton
Clark	McDonald
Lesperence	Connor
Whitecomb	Loell
Schluke	Walch
Orgeman	Walch

RAPID SHUTS OUT GLADSTONE TEAM

In one of the fastest and most interesting games ever played at Rapid River the classy diamond aggregation of that city trimmed Gladstone 4 to 0 on Sunday. The wonderful pitching of Frost for Rapid River together with the gilded support given him tells the story of Gladstone's downfall. Frost could never be found in any of the innings for consecutive hits and in spite of the spectacular game put up by the wearers of Gladstone's colors no impression could be made on Rapid's stonewall front. Every member of the Gladstone team as well as the Rapid players showed excellent form in the game and the defeat administered is admitted to have been fairly accomplished. A slight disturbance marred one of the early innings but play was again resumed and the unpleasantness was soon forgotten.

UNIONS WIN GAME FROM NORTHWESTERNS

In an interesting game at the Yellow diamond Sunday afternoon the Unions defeated the North Western by a score of 5 to 1. Both teams played good ball but the superior hitting of the Unions decided the game.

The North Westerns had been untrially strengthened for this contest but still they were no match for the Unions. Klinger for the Unions pitched a strong game allowing but six hits and Scalls for the Northwesters also pitched a good game although he was touched offener for bingles.

And It Was Overruled.
 Judge Hoar and Gen. Butler were opponents in a case of a new trial. Gen. Butler quoted: "Eye for eye, skin for skin, tooth for tooth, yea, a' that a man hath, will be give for his life." To which Judge Hoar replied: "Yea, the devil quoted that once before in a new trial."

WANTED ONLY MONEY'S WORTH.

Example of the Workings of the "New England Conscience."
 A woman who has spent many summers at Haines Falls in the Catskills tells the following story:
 "A mountain wagon full of summer excursionists stopped at the hotel one morning. They wanted to see the falls 'turned on.' In order to assure a good flow of water there is a sort of lock built above the falls. The lock is always kept closed except when somebody makes application to see the falls; then, on payment of a quarter, the gates are thrown open and a fine flow of water pours forth. The old man who has charge of the falls went out and opened the gates; the visitors were delighted, paid their quarter and drove away. About half an hour later another wagonload drove up to the hotel and asked to see the falls. Again the old man went out and opened the gates; but owing to the previous drain on the water supply the result was far from satisfactory, and the spectators were not enthusiastic. The old man noticed the dissatisfaction of the visitors, and was, perhaps, somewhat conscience stricken, for when he was offered a quarter to pay for opening the gates, he hesitated a moment, then said:
 "No, it wasn't worth that much. I think there was just 'bout 17 cents' worth that time."
 Young Woman Extremely Meady When Defense of the Fair Sex Was Necessary.

Winifred Shaw, a young woman employed as a stenographer in Baltimore, has made a sharp reply to a crusty bachelor who complained in a Baltimore paper that the average woman of today is a vain, shallow creature, who makes herself ridiculous by "painting, powdering and slaving to hideous fashions." Miss Shaw writes as a "country girl," and she starts by telling the grumbling critic of her sex "that bachelors are inferior to the majority of women of the present day." She believes that the "white lights of a large city" have blinded him to the superiority of women, and continues: "I will invite this mistaken bachelor to take a day in the broad open country, where he will find girls whose lives are as pure and healthful as the air they breathe; girls who have no time for the extreme and artificial style of fashion; whose labor is only for love and home, and whose pleasures are of the simple kind rather than the glaring amusements of the city. These country girls would prefer to settle down in a little cottage, with contentment and happiness surrounding them, rather than in a Fifth avenue mansion. My short experience of city life has taught me that men, by their flattery and admiration, are the cause of the extremely ridiculous fashions of the day."

Acrobatic Burglar.

Convicted of no fewer than thirty-two burglaries, Emile Orieth, a Hungarian, who for years was connected with Barnum's circus as the famous "India-rubber man," has been sentenced at Marne Assizes, France, to eight years' hard labor and 20 years' banishment. Orieth, who was a clever clown, bareback rider, and acrobat, displayed extraordinary skill in climbing walls and picking complicated locks. The day after his arrest he astonished the warden by suddenly scaling the wall on the narrow prison courtyard, 15 feet high. He then took a flying leap of 19 feet on to a neighboring roof, and thence into the dry moat of the prison. When another warden tried to seize him Orieth jumped back to the court from which he had escaped. During the 12 months he spent in prison awaiting trial it was found necessary to keep him constantly in irons, hand and foot, and in a strait-waistcoat.

Regard for Appearances.
 Max O'Rell was once staying with a friend at Edinburgh. Starting for a walk on Sunday, he took his walking stick. "Do you mind taking an umbrella?" asked his conscientious Scotch host. "It looks more respectable."

Timely News and Notes for the
By Fredericka Herman
Realm of Women and Girls

"Back up!" laughed the trainman, stooping for a rock. Jerry was not half a second too quick in dodging that stone.

"On the square, old man, I've got to get to Los—"

"I'll sick mother you!" but there was no other rock handy.

The train pulled out a few minutes later, leaving Jerry standing against the fence, a picture of despair. He watched the cars swing around a curve and disappear; then he started to limp down the track.

He kept on down the track until he reached a siding, where he decided to wait until a freight train stopped long enough to permit of another train's passing. It was five o'clock in the afternoon before a south-bound freight drew up at the siding. He climbed into an empty box car, at one end of which he sank to the floor, utterly worn out. He stretched himself at full length and soon was dreaming of the beautiful land of pot-pte, coffee and sound fruit.

When he opened his eyes it was almost pitch dark and the car was standing still. He got up, but almost sank down again when he found the doors closed. He tried to push them open, but they were locked. Through a crack he saw electric lights and one or two rather pretentious buildings, and he wondered where he could be.

"What time is it? What place is this? How long have I been asleep? Who locked these doors?" These and many other questions flashed through his mind. He was ravenously hungry and so thirsty that his throat was parched. He brought all of his little strength to play, but failed to open the doors. He decided that he could not possibly get out of the car until the doors were unlocked, and he sat down at one of the larger cracks and looked out into the darkness. His eyes had not been on the crack long before a wagon loaded with trunks passed under an electric light. Painted on its side was, "Los Angeles Transfer Company."

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed, his blood running cold. "I'm in Los Angeles! How long have I been here? Maybe I have been asleep for days! Maybe I am too late—" The dread of this thought almost drove him insane. "I must get out of here right away!" he muttered, desperately, "and I will get out if I have to set fire to the car!" He felt in every pocket, but could find nothing that resembled a match. There was a toothpick, but he threw it to the floor with:

"That's right—you rub it in, too! I've had a lot of use for you!"

When, very early in the morning, the doors were unlocked and pushed open, Jerry Chambers was almost a nervous wreck. He had champed and fretted, cold chills succeeding hot flashes, for hours—days it seemed to him. He was so eager to get out of the car that he did not wait until the man who unlocked the doors had gone, and he afterwards thanked his lucky stars that the man was too old to give chase.

The car was on a siding near a freighthouse, off by itself. It was a little after six o'clock, but Jerry thought only of the date—not the hour. With heart almost standing still and eyes almost popping from their sockets, he ran up to a man and asked what day it was.

"This is Thursday, the 19th," answered the man.

"The 19th!" exclaimed Jerry, bringing his hands together in ecstasy. "Thank heaven, I've made it this far, anyway!" Before the man could recover from his surprise Jerry was running across the tracks. "I've hours, hours to spare!" he muttered to himself, his face reflecting the great joy that raged within him. It was not for many minutes that he was brought back to the realization that he was almost starved. He reached a narrow street, and in the yard of the first house he came to he saw an elderly man spitting wood. He went up to him and agreed to finish the job for his breakfast. An hour later he left the place the possessor of three cups of coffee, two slices of ham, two eggs, several pieces of buttered bread, and two, or three pipefuls of tobacco. He felt 100 per cent better, mentally and physically, notwithstanding that his arms were very sore from wielding the ax. While he trudged across a common he gave himself a thorough inspection.

"This will never, never, never do," he said to himself. "If they see this horrible example downtown there'll be but one flogger for little Jerry."

His trousers were rent in a dozen places and his coat was stiff with mud. The old slouch hat was at least three sizes too small for him, and every time he took a step the sole of his foot beat the little remaining suggestion of the sole of his shoe to the ground. At six houses he managed to beg and work for a pair of trousers, a coat, a clean flannel shirt, a fairly sound pair of shoes, much too large for him, and a soft hat that might man's barber shop for a bath and a shave (he shaved himself as per the proprietor's ultimatum), and when he started towards the central business portion he felt considerably "dressed up."

Los Angeles was in gala garb for the annual Festival of Fruit and Flowers was in full swing. Thousands upon thousands of persons from sections of the country were in the city, and the trains still were pouring in others by the hundreds. It was a little after 11 o'clock when Jerry got his first view of the Hotel Florida, at the office of which he was to receive his further instructions.

It was the first time that he had given much thought to what the next envelope would contain, and he fell to picturing all kinds of possibilities.

"But I've gone this far," he mentally commented, "and made good, and I'll shove through the last three months if I have to swim across the Pacific or walk to Jericho. They can't hand it to me any harder than they have, and I'm used to about everything in the tough-luck line. The San Dimas can wait and so can she—if she has not waited too long already." Here he became gloomy over the thought that Marina might be dead, or that she had ceased to love him, or that she had fallen in love with another.

The broad, flower-banked plaza of the hotel was swarming with men and women and children—all dressed as if becoming such a festive occasion. Jerry was in tremendously marked contrast with his checked coat and brown trousers, and when he got near enough to be seen he was easily one of the "sights."

Girls giggled as they looked at him, men eyed him suspiciously, and two tots set up a scream and ran from him when he gave them a "good morning." He deemed it advisable to become less conspicuous, and determined to wait until a few minutes of the appointed hour before going to the hotel office. He had retraced his steps a short distance when he saw a man and a woman, the former swinging a cane and the latter in fluffy white from tip to top. She was a picture of loveliness and Jerry could not take his eyes off of her. When they had approached to within 20 feet of him his chin dropped and he almost reeled. It was Marsylla Bayless! It was too late to turn, and, brining his teeth together, he kept on, increasing his gait. He did not intend that she should get a good view of his face, but for some unaccountable reason he looked her squarely in the eyes. Her eyes were directly on him, and she came to a sudden stop and uttered a little exclamation of surprise. Then, when he was but five feet away, she curled her lips, tossed back her head and looked straight ahead.

"Good heavens!" flashed through Jerry's brain; "she recognized me! She was startled at seeing me, but she wouldn't speak!" She turned up her nose, and— Here he broke into a broad grin. "I don't suppose she should be blamed, for I'm a nice looking thing to be spoken to. Out here for the festival with her father and mother, eh? I wonder who that sickly-looking stick was she had with her? Some 'busted' count, I suppose. He's just the sort."

Jerry walked until his legs were ready to give way, and then, after a rest, started back to the hotel about half an hour before the appointed time. He had reached the end of the piazza when he saw Marsylla alone in a smart little trap. She pulled her pony close to him and whispered:

"Jerry Chambers! Go down to the next street. I must see you!"

Jerry could not say anything before she was driving away. He thought for a moment, his first impulse being to keep straight on, but he finally decided to see her.

"She didn't want to speak to me where there were people around," he said to himself, "but wants to have a word away from their sight. I'll see she is doing a lot of worrying right now for fear that she will be seen talking to me."

Five minutes later, in the shade of a large tree on the next street, he was standing before her.

"Jerry, Jerry, where have you been?" she asked rapidly, looking up and down the avenue. "The whole country thinks you are dead. Tell me, tell me—"

"Dead?" gasped Jerry. "How did that get out?"

"They searched for you for weeks and weeks, until a body was found in the Rio Grande. Everybody, even your father, was convinced that it was you. Oh, Jerry, how you look! Please don't—don't speak to me when others are—" she pleaded, her face coloring in embarrassment.

"You needn't worry about that, Marsylla," he smiled. "I know just exactly how you feel, and I wouldn't humiliate you for a fortune. But, tell me, Marsylla—"

"Your mother and your father are at a quiet hotel on the other side of the city," she broke in, plainly showing her desire to be rid of him. "Your mother has been ill for months and

"good-by" she drove away.

Jerry scarcely knew what to do, so hot was his brain, so great his surprise to learn that his father and mother were in Los Angeles. He had about ten minutes in which to reach the hotel office, and he knew that he would be unable to look up his parents before two o'clock. He decided, however, that, no matter what the instructions were, he would go to them as soon as possible after he received the envelope.

He reached the hotel steps at three minutes before two o'clock, after running a gauntlet of curious eyes, whispered remarks, giggles and laughs, and advanced boldly towards the door. His hand was on the knob of the screen when the hand of a big, uniformed man came down hard on his shoulder.

"Here, you can't go in there," said the doorman, gruffly. "There ain't no job for you. Clear out!"

"But there is a message in there for—" protested Jerry.

"Clear out, I say," snapped the man, grabbing his arm.

"I am—" "You get out o' here or I'll have you arrested," and he blew a police whistle.

The clock over the office counter showed about a minute before two. Jerry was desperate. His face was colorless and his hands moved restlessly. The sound of the whistle brought a fat, bald-headed man to the door on a run.

"Is there an envelope here for Rodney Graves?" Jerry cried, as the doorman started to drag him down the steps.

"Graves—Graves, oh, yes!" quickly answered the man. "It's at the desk!"

"Quick, quick, for God's sake, quick!" frantically implored Jerry.

The doorman was half dazed, relaxing his hold, and Jerry dashed into the office, barely missing a collision with a fat woman. The bald-headed man had reached around the letter-case and grabbed up a long blue envelope, which, just as the clock struck two, he handed to the fast-breathing Jerry in the middle of the crowded room.

CHAPTER XXXV.
Reunion.

The hand that came down on Jerry Chambers' shoulder a second later was the friendliest he had felt in six long months. It was the hand of Phineas Hwytte, manager of the hotel, and a Gemini Person of The College class of '81.

"I'm awfully sorry you were so badly treated by the man at the door," apologized Hwytte.

"Oh, don't let a little thing like that worry you," laughed the happy, light-hearted Jerry, apparently oblivious to the many curious eyes that were focused on him. "If just such a thing hadn't happened I should have been surprised and perhaps a little disappointed. I'm so used to excitement in the stretch runs, you know. But wait a second," and he looked at the envelope. A soft light of satisfaction came into his face and he sighed like the man who had won. "There's no hurry about getting into this," said he. "See"—holding the envelope before the older Gemini's eyes—"For Rodney Graves—to be opened ten hours after the specified receiving time. Plenty of time, you see— But, gee, that means midnight! The hour when graveyards yawn! A little creepy, isn't it?"

Half an hour later Jerry and Phineas Hwytte were being driven down one of the principal business thoroughfares. Jerry was kept in surprise and wonder until the vehicle came to a stop in front of a men's furnishing shop.

"We are going to tog you out as well as we can," explained the hotel manager. "I have been instructed to make you look as respectable as possible at a 'ready-made' store, and to see that your pockets are not entirely empty."

When Jerry came out of that store he was a complete transformation.

His snug-fitting, stylish gray suit, an immaculate negligee shirt, a spotless straw hat, a pair of eight-dollar tan shoes and a bamboo walking stick reminded him of the Jerry Chambers of other days—the Jerry Chambers whom Marsylla Bayless would not insist upon going up a side street to see. In his pocket were half a dozen $60 gold certificates—"just a little pin money, you know," said Hwytte.

"Diamond-pin money," laughed the rich Jerry, as he kissed the roll of yellow-backs.

When Jerry and Hwytte, arm in arm, walked up the hotel steps the uniformed man at the door colored and seemed ill at ease.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he began, bowing and opening the door as wide as it would go, "but I—"

"Oh, that's all right," smiled Jerry, handing him a cigar. "I don't blame you a little bit, but you did give me a pretty good pinch."

Hwytte took Jerry to one of the parlor-floor rooms, which he turned over to him "with the compliments of The Gemini." When Jerry was alone, lying on the bed after another bath, he wondered and became suspicious.

"What does all this kind treatment mean, anyway?" he mused. "I suppose it's meant to make what's coming to me all the harder. What in thunder can be doing at midnight! That's rubbing it in good and hard!" He had intended losing no time in looking up his parents, but he was so tired and worn out that he fell asleep. A rapping on his door about five o'clock aroused him.

"Come in," he said, sitting upright and rubbing his eyes.

The door opened and in rushed Wallace Chambers, Mike O'Connor and Gen. Fernandez Boston. Before Jerry could be made to believe his eyes he was being almost smothered with hugs. Wallace Chambers, the first to

AN ANCIENT RACE DYING OUT.

Veddahs of Ceylon Regarded as Representing the Stone Age.

The oldest inhabitants of Ceylon are passing away. These are the famous Veddahs.

Fifty years ago it was estimated that 8,000 of them were still living in the forests, but Dr. Max Moszkowski, who has recently visited them, says there are only 50 or 60 of them still alive and that a few more years will see the end of their race.

The Veddahs have interested anthropologists because they have been regarded as the best living types of the man of the stone age.

The attitude of the Cingalese toward them is remarkable. They hold the poor creatures in great honor and rank them as belonging to the highest caste in the island. The reason is that they are reputed to have descended from the ancient demons or spirits that were the original possessors of the island.

These nomad, hunting people, never leaving their forests, living under trees and in caves, without knowledge of pottery or any other art except that of making bows and arrows, are perishing because of their way of living and of their inability to stand up when stronger folk are pressing closer around them. They are exactly what they were centuries ago when people of India came and conquered their green island.

Most People Will Be Likely to Agree That Such a Thing Was in Demand Here.

A New Yorker tells this story of a South Carolina meeting he once attended.

"At the end of this meeting it was decided to take up a collection for charity. The chairman passed the hat himself. He dropped a dime in it for a nest egg.

"Well, gentlemen, every right hand here entered that hat—every right hand—and yet, at the end, when the chairman turned the hat over and shook it not so much as his own contribution dropped out.

"Fo' de lan's sake!" he cried. 'Ah's eben los' de dime Ah stashed wiv!'"

"All the rows of faces looked puzzled. Who was the lucky man? That was the question which tormented all. Finally the venerable Calhoun White summed up the situation.

"'Breddern,' he said, solemnly, rising from his seat, 'dar 'pears ter be a great moral lesson rown' heah some-whar.'"

The Secret of Happiness.

The moment we set about the task of making every human being we come in contact with better for knowing us—more cheerful, more courageous, and with greater faith in the kindness of God and man—that moment we begin to attain the third purpose of life—personal happiness.

Would you possess the magic secret of the alchemist which transforms all things to gold? It is unselfishness—or, to use a better word, selflessness. He who goes forth bent upon being always kind, always helpful, in the little, daily events of life, will find all skies tinted with gold, all his nights set with stars, and unexpected flowers of pleasure springing up in his pathway. And all his tears shall turn into smiles. —Boston Globe.

Native Newspapers in India.

The papers published in the native dialects of India are circulated among, and read by more than any other dailies on the globe—a single paper. It is said, being circulated from house to house through an entire village, and read until it is completely worn out. Six papers from the entire collection of Persian periodicals—one printed in Syriac and five in the native vernacular. Until lately none of these Persian papers was printed from type, but was engraved. The island of Borneo boasts a paper printed in English, called the Sarawak Gazette, size only 8x13 inches, but which was first issued in August, 1867.

Satisfied with a Smell.

This little three-year-old hungry American was with his mother at the home of a neighbor. The neighbor's little boy was eating a piece of chicken. Hubert wanted a piece, but it was all they had. He then asked for a bite, but the other little fellow objected. The two mothers then took a hand, and amidst many "yes's" and "no's" on their part, Hubert silenced the whole business by saying: "Well, just let me smell the bone." The bone was handed to him, and he very soberly took a long, delicious smell and handed it back.—Delineator.

Mouse's High Jump.

How far can animals leap? One night there was a suspicious noise upon a mantel shelf, six feet from the floor. Investigation proved the presence of a mouse. With poker in hand, ready to strike a deadly blow, the householder disturbed it from its hiding place. Without hesitation it sprang to the middle of the floor, 78 inches away. If we take its height as one inch and a half, that mouse had leaped 52 times his own height. For his plucky act he deserved a Pev!

The Berkshire Breed.

The Massachusetts maid was in a romantic mood.

"I am dreaming," she murmured, poetically, "dreaming of the dear old Berkshires of my native state."

"Berkshires!" echoed the Chicago youth, somewhat bewildered. "Berkshires was your father in the pork-raising business!"

MUSIC LOVERS TO HAVE FEAST

APPLETON, Wis., Aug. 16.—A great treat is in store for music lovers of northern and eastern Wisconsin next fall, when Lawrence college conservatory of music will offer an artists' series of recitals that has never been excelled in Wisconsin, not even in Milwaukee. The series will bring to Appleton such stars as Mme. Louise Homer, who is appearing with Caruso in the Metropolitan Opera company in New York. Mme. Homer has been connected with this company for several seasons, reaching her greatest triumph last year.

One of the most attractive offerings will be the rendition of the brilliant oratorio, "Elijah," by a company of vocal and instrumentalists, with Dr. William Harper of New York, the famous basso, who is now director of the Lawrence conservatory, in the title role. Dr. Harper has appeared in this role in all of the largest cities of America, and critics rank him as the foremost "Elijah" on the concert stage today.

The artists' series is designed primarily as an auxiliary to the work of the conservatory and for the benefit of the students, but is the result of the desire of the Lawrence college authorities to provide rare entertainment and culture to music lovers as a whole. It is the most expensive undertaking of this kind that Wisconsin has ever known.

Enthusiastic Laborers Had Overlooked Important Point in Their Calculations.
Bob and Jim were two Jacks-of-all-trades, and whenever possible, worked together. One summer's morning Bob came round to Jim's house at the early hour of three o'clock, and, having managed to wake Jim, went inside. "Now, then," he cried, "hurry up; there's a big factory chimney wants pulling down, about a mile away from here, and I got the tip from the factory foreman that if we could knock 20 feet off before the authorities were about it would save the factory the expenses of a scaffold, and it would mean a five-dollar note apiece for you and me."

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Let's go home, Jim, thundering quick. We've been pulling down the wrong chimney."—London Tit-Bits.

NEED OF INTENSIVE FARMING. With the Growth of Population Increased Production Will Be Imperative.
As the population of this country grows, intensive farming will increase. Japan's 50,000,000 of people are fed from an area a good deal smaller than the state of Pennsylvania. Some day the state of Pennsylvania may grow ten times the amount of food products that now come from the earth.

Seattle's exposition bears the label of one of America's chief mineral treasure houses. While it is true that $20,000,000 or more gold comes down from Alaska every year, it is still more significant that right at Seattle's door are apple orchards worth $3,000 an acre.

Plains that were fruitless and almost entirely barren of all vegetation a few years ago are now yielding to the sinuous fingers of irrigating ditches huge crops of apples and plums. Oregon has become one of the nation's great fruit growers and Washington's vast forests and hither to fallow fields are blossoming forth as splendid farms.

In Garb of Woe Philadelphia Woman Attended Funerals and Robbed the Borrowing.

Originally arrested on a charge of drunkenness, a woman who says she is Annie Allen, sometimes of Camden, Gloucester and Philadelphia, was arraigned before Magistrate Gallagher in the Twentieth district police station on suspicion of being a "funeral thief" who has been much sought by the authorities, says the Philadelphia Record. When taken into custody at the Broad street station the woman carried a small handbag, which on being searched was found to contain more than seventy pawn tickets, together with black veils and other mourning apparel, which the police say she used in attending funerals as a professional "mourner."

The pawn tickets found in her possession bore the names of 24 different pawnbrokers, with places of business in all sections of the city. Many complaints have been received from houses of mourning where petty robberies have been committed while the services were in progress, and the police say the woman now in custody admits that she has put on her black veil and mourning raiment and attended funerals for the purpose of robbery. Pending further investigation of her career and to give the police time to find out the owner of some of the articles called for on the pawn tickets found in her possession, the accused was held in $500 bail for a further hearing.

Bound to Have Fine Casket. Much Bad Luck, an aged Lapwai brave, arrived in Dayton, Wash., a week or two ago and paid for a casket ordered from a local undertaker nearly a year before. Last September Much Bad Luck went to the undertaker and in a voice choking with sobs tried to buy a casket for his son, who had died a short time before. The Indian wished his son to be buried "American fashion." The few dollars the old man had would scarcely buy the silver mountings on the casket of his choice, so he was told that the casket would be reserved for him until he earned money enough to pay for it. The Indian left Dayton the next day. He told the undertaker how he had saved the pennies from his meager earnings. Somewhere in the hills east of Dayton the old man's son is buried. The body will be exhumed and placed in the expensive casket.

There is Full Proof of This One. "We have lots of curious 'last requests' from patients who are about to have operations performed," said a nurse in the women's surgical ward of one of the New York hospitals, "but I thought about the last word had been said on this subject one day last week when one of my patients, before going to the operating room, called me to her and asked me to write two postal cards to her husband, so that she might sign them before the operation. One was to read: 'My dear husband: The operation was at ten this morning and I am getting along fine!' The other one was: 'My dear husband: The operation was at ten this morning and I am sorry to say I died. From your loving wife.'"

The Puzzle Craze. "One of the curious things about this revival of the puzzle craze," remarked the man who notices little things, "is the fact that I never have met a man or woman who plays with the cut-up pictures nowadays who knew them as a child. Whenever I have commented on the superior beauty and difficulty of the present-day puzzles over the ones I knew as a little boy the invariable response has been: 'It is curious, but I never saw any when I was a child.' I don't just know how my youthful social standing could have compared with theirs, but I do know the old-time picture puzzles were sold in the best shops in my city at that time."

Beware of Bondage of Habit. Habit is a cruel master, and it should be one of man's first concerns to free himself from its bondage. It's a fight royal, whether we conquer our habits or they conquer us.

Matter of Relative Values As Understood in Holstein.

"In the province of Holstein," says a traveler who spends a good deal of his time abroad, "where, of course, nothing is more important than the breeding of superior cattle, the country people are not only very thrifty, but exceedingly fond of their cows, as may be gathered from a characteristic story current there.

"It appears that one farmer was walking sadly down the road one day when the village pastor met him. "Why so downcast, friend?" asked the pastor. "I have a sad errand, pastor," replied the farmer. "Farmer Henrik's cow is dead in my pasture, and I am on my way to tell him."

"A hard task, indeed." "You may well say so, pastor; but I shall break it to him gently." "And how will you do that?" "Oh, I shall tell him first that it is his father who is dead, and then, having opened the way for sadder news still, I shall tell him that it is not his father, but the cow!"—Harper's Weekly.

23:15 O'Clock. A New York manufacturing concern in which only one-half of the employees work in the daytime has a 24-hour clock in the timekeeper's office, by which the work record is noted. The business day begins at one o'clock in the morning, and when other clocks indicate midnight this factory timepiece shows that it is 24 o'clock. The men who go to work at the time ordinarily known as six p. m., are recorded as having started at 18 o'clock. The people in charge of the work say that this change in the timekeeping method has prevented many errors, and although it took the men a little while to become accustomed to it they now speak of 14 and 16 o'clock in a matter of fact way and without the snail which at first the strange figures provoked.

Unfeeling Police Officer Arrested Youth in the Act of Kissing Away Sweetheart's Tears. It's a pity a boy can't kiss away his sweetheart's tears without a big, unsympathetic policeman taking them both to the children's court, the New York Evening Telegram says. Any fellow would have acted just as Jacob Kliner did, especially if he was as fond of his sweetheart as Jacob is of Susie Stahl. Jacob is a manly little chap of 15 and Susie, two years his junior, is one of the prettiest little girls on the east side.

"We wasn't regular kissing," explained Jacob. "I'll tell you how it was. A boy nearly twice as big as I am came along and slapped Susie and she began to cry."

"Why didn't you tackle him?" asked the court. "He was too big for me to tackle, and I let him go. But I did the next best thing. Susie was crying somep'n fierce, and I just grabbed her and was kissing away her tears when the cop came along and said I was violating the law. I didn't know what he meant, and as Susie kept on crying I kept on kissing. Then the cop stepped up."

"You and Susie may go now," said the court to Jacob. "The next time she cries give her your handkerchief—when you see a cop coming."

GLADSTONE NEWS NOTES (From the Delta.) There is a vulgar error prevalent in the city, that the park has been here established as a municipal rifle range. That is not its purpose, although some persons have chosen to use it for one. Families living in the neighborhood have become habituated to the crash of an occasional bullet through a window into the bric-a-brac on the mantelpiece. Every now and then some children's pique is greeted with a volley of softnose slugs. Some years ago a man sitting on a Delta avenue stoop was shot dead by a marksman some distance off.

AUGUST IRON BUSINESS HUGE

The month of August may beat the record for any one month in the shipment of iron ore from the upper lakes districts.

The ore is going forward at a rapid rate, and if the present pace is maintained to the end of the month there will be something over 7,000,000 tons shipped from the mines on Lake Superior and Lake Michigan, according to reports from the head of the lakes. Said a prominent vessel man yesterday:

"It is remarkable the number of boats that are being placed in service this season, even the little fellows that have not been in commission for a long time are coming up the lake every day—anything that will carry coal is now being pressed into service. There is an immense amount of ore going down the lakes now and the coal movement is getting nicely started. Besides that the grain business will start in a few weeks, and there will be about all the business that the boats can handle from then until the end of the season."

Considerable coal is coming up the lakes now, there being several cargoes every day and it is probable that the number will increase as the season advances.—Mining Journal.

Told by the Features.

Men who succeed in commerce have alert faces, but no particular features. Clergymen who go up the ladder of preferment have faces that tell of self-repression—tight lips, eyes which look straight ahead. Artists, on the other hand, have eyes which are all over the place and small, well-formed chins. Politicians who succeed by their influence over men have all ways prominent noses.

The Advantage.

John Bright used to tell how a barber who was cutting his hair once said to him: "You've a large 'ead, sir; it is a good thing to 'ave a large 'ead, for a large 'ead means a large brain, and a large brain is the most useful thing a man can 'ave, as it nourishes the roots of the 'air."—Sacred Heart Review.

FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Alleging cruel and inhuman treatment Mrs. Florence B. Hamilton yesterday began suit for divorce against her husband Charles E. Hamilton, one of the most prominent citizens and a druggist of Rapid River. Mrs. Hamilton alleges that her name has been brought into disrepute through the action of her husband and alleges a number of instances when he has been guilty of infelicity. The charges filed in the suit yesterday are among the most sensational made in a divorce suit filed here in months.

GET NEWS OF DEATH

Word was received in the city yesterday morning of the death of Liboire Clouthier, a resident of Escanaba, at Montreal, Can., while on a short visit to that place. Mr. Clouthier formerly conducted a shoe repairing shop on Elmore street and was well known to a large number of people in the city. He was ill when he left Escanaba for a visit with relatives in Canada but the announcement of his death was unexpected.

GRAIN SHIPPERS SEEKING VESSEL

Grain shippers at the head of Lake Superior are in the market for tonnage for September loading, and some chartering was done on Thursday at 1 1/2 cents on wheat to Buffalo. That rate is equal to 65 cents on ore.

Storage capacity is in good demand, but the Lake Superior grain shippers have not been able to do any business at 2 1/2 cents, which has been offered for some time. Cleveland owners are holding for 3 cents, and some of them would not take storage cargoes at that figure. Boats for early loading are in fair demand at Lake Michigan ports. The coal and ore trades show little change and offerings of tonnage are liberal. Some sales of ore are being made.

FRED TONEY GETS PRIZE HE WANTED

(Special to Morning Press.)
CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 16.—Word comes from Winchester, Ky., that Fred Toney, the big twirler of the local Blue Grass league team, has been purchased by the Phillies and thereby hangs some interesting dope. Firstly, Toney was recommended to the Cincinnati club some months ago immediately after he had pitched a seventeen-inning no-hit game—but the local management refused to go fishing for him with the golden bait. Since then he has won some eighteen or nineteen straight games, which is going some in any company.

Secondly, Toney is built on such heroic lines that if he can show that he has real pitching ability he'll prove a valuable asset for the Quakers for many years to come.

ALL BIDS REFUSED

Because the only two received were considered to be too high the contract for clearing out the Cornell road from Cornell to Woodlawn was not let by the county board of road commissioners yesterday. Bids by Larson Brothers and John M. Wright and Knut Peterson were received and both were rejected. Bills amounting to $3228.60 for the firm of Nee & Moran and bills of $3246 for the Solid Rock Construction Company, were allowed.

Reply to Varsity Critics. The variances are not the sinks of iniquity they are sometimes said to be. High spirits and levity are there in abundance, but considering the few years are the best of one's life as far as opportunities for enjoyment and bodily health go, this is not surprising.—Tallier.

Some of the smartest of the very late millinery importations are straws in a cinnamon shade, trimmed with black.

The ribbed Shantung is in line with the Ottoman and Bengaline silks which are very popular, and is having an extensive vogue, though this is its first season.

Ribbon and flower bracelets, worn with short-sleeved bodices which were very fashionable some fifty years ago, have once more come into favor and are worn by some of the fashionable women of this season.

There is free fare for you and return and $10.00 for spending money if you can beat the score made by citizens of Delta county. Escanaba Hunting Ridge.

Dance at Unity hall by Northwestern Club, Saturday night, Aug. 21.

It is predicted that puffed sleeves will return before the end of the summer.

There is a strong rumor that hats taller in the crown and narrower in the brim are to be brought out.

Linen coats with foulard gowns, the linen matching the ground color, is one of the whims of the moment.

Mrs. E. R. Burns has returned from a visit to Negaunee.

Corset covers and chemises fit almost straight across the front, there being little or no fullness at the top.

Pretty frocks for the girls are made of lawn, hand embroidered in delicate flower designs in light tints and worn with sashes the color of the needlework.

Mrs. John F. Meyer of Milwaukee, is in the city.

Persistent Office-Seeker Had Finally Landed Soft Job.

"I remember one man from my home town," a westerner senator said recently, "in the good old days of civil service examinations, whose dream of earthly attainment was a government place. When his party was finally successful he immediately set out for Washington and was 'on the job' long before the 4th of March, but there seemed to be a hitch somewhere. All through the spring he was about town. Wherever I went I would see him, striving for or just after an audience with some department official. By June he was seedy and broken looking, but still appeared to be 'game.' Finally I found him in the gallery of the senate chamber apparently endeavoring to kill time. 'Well, have you given it up?' I asked, trying to be sympathetic. 'Oh, I got the job, all right,' he replied with a satisfied smile. 'I'm working now.'—Success Magazine.

A Bad Habit. "Some barbers have a habit of asking a customer if he doesn't shave himself."

"What of it?" "It ain't no business getter." "Think not?" "I do. Would you patronize a tailor who insinuated in a supercilious manner that you sometimes made your own clothes?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Everybody Seemed to Know That This Couple Were Newly United in Matrimony.

A Boston young man had married a Chicago girl, and they had started on their wedding tour. Despite—or perhaps because of—their studied efforts to appear like "old married folks," their fellow passengers on the railway train had no difficulty in classing them as bride and groom, and manifested their knowledge by winks, nods and grins.

An unfortunate accident to the dining car compelled the conductor to leave it on the sidetrack at a small station, and it was several hours before the train stopped for refreshments at a town where there was a restaurant near the passenger station. It was by no means a first-class restaurant, but the travelers had a first-class appetite and they swarmed into it. With some difficulty the bride and groom found seats and presently a waitress came to take their order.

"Where's your bill of fare?" asked the young man.

"We haven't any to-day, sir," she answered.

"Nor any other day perhaps?"

"No, sir."

"Well, what have you that you can recommend as being good to eat?"

"We have some nice pork and beans."

"Alfred," whispered the bride.

"Everybody seems to know that we have just been married, but how do you suppose this girl has found out that I am from Chicago and that you are from Boston?"—Youth's Companion.
