

PLAYERS SECURED

THREE NEW STARS WILL JOIN ESCANABA BASEBALL TEAM THIS MORNING.

Three baseball players who have been signed up by the management of the Escanaba baseball team for the remainder of the season, will arrive in Escanaba today. The new players to join the locals in a desperate effort to land the Marquette-Delta county league pennant are: J. H. Gilligan, a pitcher from the Milwaukee American Association team; Oscar Knolls a pitcher from the Chicago White Sox who had been farmed for a portion of the season to Joliet, Ill., and Otto Kemp a catcher and outfielder who belongs to the Denver Western league team and who had been farmed to one of the Three I league teams for the early portion of the season. The two pitchers and catcher and outfielder were signed up by the management early in the week with instructions to report here before the opening of the games with Negaunee on Saturday and Sunday and yesterday telegrams were received by Manager Hodson from each of the players reporting that they would arrive in Escanaba today. Gilligan was counted as one of the Milwaukee American Association team's strongest pitchers. He was married three weeks ago and failed to report for work for a week and with the result that he was suspended for the season. Knolls tried out with the Chicago White Sox two years ago and after remaining with the team for a portion of the season was farmed out for season to minor league teams when he will be recalled by the White Sox management is not known but his work throughout the season has been spectacular. Kemp has qualified both as a catcher and an outfielder and in addition is said to be a heavy stickler.

The addition of the three new players is certain to materially strengthen the local lineup and give Escanaba fans a team on which they can rely to burn up the league in the remaining weeks of the schedule and easily land the league tag.

CLOTHING IS WANTED

Confined at the isolation hospital and to be released from quarantine on Saturday is a family consisting of father, mother and four children, who are without clothing and have not the means with which to purchase new clothing. The family came to the city a week ago with three of the children suffering from diphtheria. One died at the isolation hospital and the remaining infected ones are recovering fast. It was necessary to confiscate and destroy the clothing of the entire family and that the need may be supplied the people of Escanaba are requested to make donations of suitable clothing to Health Officer H. W. Long who will deliver the donations to the needy family. Those in the family are: the father and mother; a babe of 18 months; one boy 4 years old; one boy 6 years old and one girl 12 years of age.

MILK BUSINESS HERE IS SOLD TO EMIL LED

Emil Led has closed negotiations for the purchase of the milk business of Hodgkins Brothers who have conducted the Pine Ridge Dairy for several years and who have a large patronage in this city. By the deal that has been made Mr. Led will take over the firms wholesale and retail milk business in this city and will purchase the supply of milk from Hodgkins Brothers dairy. Mr. Led is now familiarizing himself with the details of the business and will assume personal charge of the affairs on Sept. 1.

James H. Rogers of Ishpeming, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rogers 1129 Second Street.

BEGIN SUIT TO RECOVER DAMAGES

Through his attorneys H. J. Rushton, T. E. Strom and John M. Loell, Magnus Erikson yesterday filed suit against the North Western Co. and Lumber company for $5000 damages.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that while at work in the mill of the defendant on November 20, 1909, his coat was caught in a cog wheel and he was drawn into the machinery sustaining severe injuries to his left arm and side. The case will be heard at the October term of circuit court.

ALL PLANS COMPLETED

CORNISH WRESTLING TOURNAMENT AT GLADSTONE WILL BE HELD AT BALL PARK.

All arrangements have been completed by members of the businessmen's committee of Gladstone in charge of big Labor Day celebration to be held there, to hold the Cornish wrestling match, which is to be one of the features of the program, at the Gladstone ball park on the evening of Labor Day. From inquiries that are pouring in from all parts of the peninsula, northern Wisconsin and Minnesota it is confidently expected that nearly 50 contestants will be entered in the tournament. An arena is to be erected at the all grounds and the officials of the Gladstone municipal lighting plant will arrange for the adequate lighting of the grounds on the night of the tournament. It is planned to start the tournament at 8 o'clock that all Escanaba people who wish to witness the tournament will have an excellent opportunity to attend.

Members of the committee on sports and games for the two days will complete their program within a few days. The committee has a total of nearly $350 to be awarded in prizes for that feature of the celebration, a fact which will attract some of the best talent of the peninsula to Gladstone when the program of sports is carried out.

Nothing is left undone by members of the committee to make the two days celebration the biggest of its kind ever arranged by any city in the peninsula regardless of its size or population.

THOMPSON GETS BERTH

Robert Thompson of Chicago, who reported to the locals for a tryout a month ago, left yesterday for Ishpeming to join the league squad of that city. Thompson received a bad start in Escanaba, being injured in an auto accident on the evening of his arrival here and preventing him to show up to form in his first trials. Later he accompanied the team on a northern trip and played a star game at first but in the second contest he was off color and he has been warming the bench since that time. On Wednesday he received a wire from Manager Ray instructing him to report at once and he left yesterday for the Hematite City. In what position he will play has not been divulged.

BOAT TO MAKE TRIP ON SUNDAY

Through an error in yesterday's issue of the Press it was stated that Capt. George English's launch would leave Escanaba at 8 a. m. on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of each week when in fact the launch will leave at that hour for Gladstone and Maywood on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday of each week. By this arrangement local people will be enabled to spend their Sunday's at Maywood until the close of the season.

MARQUETTE IS HIGH

ESCANABA SLUGGERS IN THIRD PLACE WITH WILLOW PERFORMANCE.

A comparison of the batting averages of the four baseball teams participating in the Marquette-Delta county league, gives Marquette the highest standing, its percentage, following the Saturday and Sunday games, being .267, or one point higher than the Negaunee team's average while his .266. Escanaba is third in line, with an average of .244, while Ishpeming's average is .239.

Ishpeming has the honor of having one of its players holding top place in the percentage column. McCarthy, one of the twirlers, who has been thirteen times at bat, has had five hits, giving him a percentage of .385. The Ishpeming team has four men batting over .300, Escanaba has three, Marquette five and Negaunee three.

Escanaba's batting averages were boosted considerably as a result of Saturday's game and the second game of the double-header Sunday with Ishpeming which was one of the worst slugging matches seen here this season. Lindquist, Escanaba's "home run" hitter, is now at the top of Escanaba's percentage column and Hynes is leading the Marquette team, while Rains, who has held first place with the Negaunee team for some time, is still in that position.

In the two games played Saturday and Sunday at Marquette, Harley, who has been hitting above .300 practically all season, dropped eighteen points, while Knutz, whose name has been near the bottom of the list, went up thirty-two points. Carey also raised his percentage, jumping from eighth to sixth place. Hynes stepped ahead of Ripelle in the Marquette column, and Day of the Marquette team, also fattened his percentage in Saturday and Sunday's games. Clark, who has been one of the steadiest hitters on the Ishpeming team, and who has been at bat ninety-nine times, with a total of thirty-two hits dropped from first to fourth place, though the averages of Hiltonen, Geelan and Clark are quite close.

The batting averages of all of the players at present holding places on the four teams are as follows:

	A. B.	H.	Pct.
McCarthy, Ish.	13	5	.385
Warner, Neg.	8	3	.375

ASSAILANTS ARE SUED FOR DAMAGES

Suit was filed at the court house yesterday by Attorney H. J. Rushton for Jonas Anderson, plaintiff, versus, John Smith and John Bousler, defendants. All three are residents of Gladstone.

For injuries received when he was attacked in his saloon last Thursday by the defendants, Anderson asks damages to the amount of $2000. On Tuesday in Justice Scott's court at Gladstone, Smith and Bousler paid fines of $25 and costs for the assault. The civil suit will be heard at the October term of circuit court.

NEGAUNEE IS NEXT

LOCAL LEAGUERS WILL CLASH WITH ANCIENT ENEMIES IN TWO GAMES.

With the full strength of their regular lineup the Negaunee baseball team will come to Escanaba tomorrow for a series of two games on Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Cullis, the crack Negaunee short stop, who has been out of the lineup suffering from a sore arm, will be back in the game although it is said that his arm is still sore. If it is found that Cullis is unable to work up to form Williams, a Copper Country recruit will be sent in at short. More local interest is centered in the games to be played here on Saturday and Sunday than in any diamond contests booked this year. With Negaunee less than a half a game in the lead over Escanaba and with the locals fighting desperately to pry the champs off the top position, two brilliant battles are certain. Negaunee is smarting from the effect of four straight defeats at the hands of Ishpeming and Marquette and will come here to camp on the trail of their ancient enemies in a last desperate endeavor to hold the league leadership.

It is expected that Rosevear will be plucked by Negaunee to twirl Saturday's game against the locals and if such is the program Scanlon will probably be selected to mount the pitchers mound for Escanaba. The visitors will arrive in Escanaba tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and the first game of the series will be started at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Of the recovery of Cullis the Negaunee correspondent for the Mining Journal says:

Ray Cullis, who has been out of the game because of a sore arm for three or four weeks, and who was unable to play in the series against Marquette last week, will be in the lineup in the games against Escanaba, in the latter city, next Saturday and Sunday. For the past week Mr. Cullis has had his arm in a sling and his physician forbade his using it, and though it is now much better he will not be able to use it as freely as before the injury. In the event it is necessary for Mr. Cullis to retire either from Saturday or Sunday's games. Al Williams, the shortstop of the Mohawk team, in the copper country league, will take his place. Williams has a splendid reputation and it is thought he will give good satisfaction.

GIRLS WIN AND LOSE

The Hopkins Brothers women's baseball team and the Gladstone city team split the double bill at Gladstone yesterday. The upper bay aggregation cleaned the girls in the afternoon 9 to 0 and in turn were nicely cleaned in the night game by the fair sex 16 to 11.

As was the case in the game in this city on Wednesday, Anna Ryan as pitcher and short stop and Carrie Nation on the first sack, were the star performers on the woman's team. They both made several spectacular plays at Gladstone yesterday and were roundly applauded by the upper bay fans.

A. L. Beaw of Perkins has left for his annual trip, to South Dakota where he will be engaged in running a threshing engine until the end of the season.

PROFESH. DOWNED

CHESTY VICTORS OF MONTH AGO ARE SLAUGHTERED BY BUSINESS MEN'S TEAM.

In a sensational hitting game and in spite of the errors made by Grant T. Stephenson on the initial sack the businessmen's team of Escanaba yesterday slaughtered the professional men's squad at South park by a score of 12 to 8. While but 24 men were used in the game they changed positions so often that all efforts of experienced scorers were futile and the individual playing record of each member of the teams will forever remain a mystery. The businessmen men used but three pitchers in yesterday's game while the professionals, driven into a corner and fighting desperately called upon a total of five flingers before it was fully demonstrated that the victors of a recent encounter were completely outclassed when the businessmen had presented their best material in a regular lineup. Smith, Stack and Sawyer were the twirlers for the businessmen while Sourwine, Roshton, Groos, Ainslie and Farrell were each called upon in turn in a vain effort to stop the slugging handlers of merchandise and money.

R. B. Stack former star twirler of the local city team, "came back" yesterday and demonstrated that even if he has lost the smoke of former years he still was the most versatile member of the businessmen's squad in turn holding down jobs as catcher, pitcher and center fielder. Dr. R. E. Hodson was the real and only versatile member of the professional team in turn appearing as catcher, left gardner and first sacker.

Without Grant Stephenson in the lineup the businessmen might have played an errorless game. The superintendent of the Mashek Chemical & Iron company showed far from his usual playing form in yesterday's game when he made seven of the nine errors that were charged against the team. That he did not make the entire complement of misplays charged against the team was due only to the fact that he sidestepped chances that made errors for his brother players. His work at times however was sensational in extreme for at least on three occasions he caught and actually held a ball thrown directly into his monster mitt. Pros. Atty. T. E. Strom was the real hero of the game for the professional men. In the first inning in taking what looked to be a perfect throw that he handled awkwardly the ball was clipped cleanly from the second finger of the left hand. In spite of the injury he remained gamely on the job holding down the short stop job throughout the nine innings.

The long drives of the game were made by Hodson with a two bagger, Spencer with a long two base clout and Grosbeck who drove out a long three bagger that would have been good for a homer had not the runners breathing apparatus failed him at the third sack. Following were the members of the businessmen team: M. N. Smith pitcher and third base; Otto Manthey first base and catch; G. T. Stephenson first base; A. H. Grosbeck short stop and catch; F. E. Levine second base; L. M. Beggs center field; J. A. Allo right field; Benjamin Young right field; Carl Sawyer left field and pitch; George H. Cobb left field; Fred Portiance left field; and R. B. Stack, atch, pitch and center field.

Professional men's team: Claude Farrell third base and pitch; Dr. W. E. Boyce right field; Lewis Stangby first base; Dr. H. W. Long second base; Rev. F. W. Ainslie center field and pitch; Dr. J. O. Gross right field and pitch; Atty. N. C. Spencer catch; Dr. R. E. Hodson catch, left field and first base; Dr. W. A. Lemire left field; Atty. T. E. Strom short stop; Atty. H. J. Rushton left field and pitch and J. J. Sourwine pitch and second base.

Following was the score of the game:

RECEPTION HELD YESTERDAY.

Mrs. E. C. Norton of 327 Harrison avenue entertained yesterday in honor of Mrs. F. N. Broderick and Mrs. H. M. Stevenson who are visiting in the city. A large number of guests called during the afternoon.

Following the reception dainty refreshments were served.

MANY PEOPLE ON EXCURSION

In spite of the chilly weather last night a large crowd of local people took in the trolley excursion to Gladstone last night given by the Escanaba city band.

The majority of the excursionists attended the promenade at the Gladstone theater and enjoyed themselves immensely. The music was furnished by Olson's orchestra and was excellent.

The trolley excursions this season are proving especially popular with the young people of the city.

DAVIS HAS RESIGNED

RELIABLY REPORTED LAST NIGHT THAT FORMER SUPERINTENDENT HERE WILL NOT TAKE POSITION.

It was reliably reported last night that Prof. F. D. Davis, former superintendent of the Escanaba public schools, because of ill health will not accept the superintendency of the Sault Ste. Marie public schools. It was reported last night reliably that Mr. Davis has already forwarded his resignation to the board of education at the Soo and that he will continue in the insurance business, making his headquarters in this city.

Mr. Davis has been suffering from a nervous ailment for some time and it is asserted that his condition is now not such that would allow him to give his best efforts to his new position and for that reason has decided to resign the position, before taking up the active duties. Mr. Davis was elected as superintendent of the Soo schools shortly after the close of the last last school year and intended to assume active charge of the school affairs in the Lock City early in next month.

ISHPEMING WON ONE GAME AND LOST THE OTHER

The Ishpeming league team split even with the Union Giants of Chicago in two games on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Tuesday the colored players won easily 4 to 0 and on Wednesday Scott, Ishpeming's star twirler shut out the dusky lads to the tune of 9 to 0. Scott was in top form allowing hits only when they did not count and holding the visitors safe for the entire distance. Harvey was on the mound for the Giants and was slammed for 11 hits. The victory of Ishpeming broke a string of 18 straight wins for the colored team on a tour through Wisconsin and the upper peninsula.

THE GOLDEN U. P.

By OSCAR V. LINDEN

Oh, say! Can you show me a land that's more blessed Than this land of the North with its woodlands enchanting! With its rivulets swift coursing downward to rest In the waters so blue of our lakes without counting! The hills filled with riches of value untold, Placed there ages ago for our sons to unfold; Where the banner of freedom is waving on high, Supported by strong arms of sons always nigh.

See great lakes how they circle from East to West, From North to the South with their arms so far-reaching; And proud ships to and fro how they pass without rest, With thick, heavy clouds from their smoke-stacks a-belching; And their burdens worth millions in precious gold, Were brought forth by the brave of our heroes so bold; And the banner of freedom is waving on high, Supported by strong arms of sons always nigh.

Happy homes by the thousands we find everywhere, Golden fields and green meadows with harvests abundant, Where the pioneers, brave, fought their battles—and where Great, deep, sighing forests once stood so defiant, We now point with pride to our U. P. so dear, And challenge the world for a future more clear; And the banner of freedom is waving on high, Supported by strong arms of sons always nigh.

BANQUET A FINE AFFAIR

HONOR WILL BE PAID TO HON. CHARLES D. MASON OF GLADSTONE TONIGHT.

A large number of the members of Escanaba lodge Knights of Pythias will go to Gladstone this evening to take part in the banquet to be given by the Upper Bay City Pythians in honor of Hon. Charles D. Mason, who is to leave soon for Cleveland to make his home permanently. Probably no young man in Delta county has a greater number of personal friends than Mr. Mason. In a business, political and a fraternal way he has been one of the leaders of the district and the banquet tonight is arranged as a testimonial of the regard in which he is held here. He has shown a marked interest in the Pythian lodges both of Gladstone and Escanaba and because of that interest he is now one of the officers of the state grand lodge.

Today arrangements will be made for a special car to take the local Pythians and their wives to Gladstone and to return them to their homes following the program of the evening.

Following the banquet tonight a short program of toasts will be carried out with Prof. E. J. Willman, superintendent of the Gladstone public schools serving as toastmaster. The address of welcome will be delivered by Atty. G. R. Empson of Gladstone. Atty. I. C. Jennings will discuss the guest of the evening as A Man of Affairs. His Social Affiliations will be the subject of a toast by Rev. Frederick Spence of Escanaba. The farewell address will be given by Dr. George Bjorkman of Gladstone.

Following the banquet and program of toasts a dancing program will be carried out until 1 o'clock. Members of the committee of the Gladstone lodge in charge of the banquet in honor of Mr. Mason are: Ray W. Scott, F. W. Aslett, H. C. Henke, H. W. Blackwell, Charles Walz and H. J. Krueger.

OUNSWORTH CANDIDATE

W. H. Ounsworth of Menominee, former chancellor commander of the Menominee lodge of Knights of Pythias, will be a candidate for the post of grand inner guard of the Michigan grand lodge at the coming state convention of the order to be held in Grand Rapids next month. The position of grand inner guard is made vacant by the resignation of Charles D. Mason of Gladstone and the peninsula will be entitled to name his successor. Mr. Ounsworth is one of the most enthusiastic Pythians in the north country and much of the success of the recent Upper Peninsula Reunion at Menominee was due to his efforts.

BRIDE-TO-BE CHANGES MIND

Albert Erbstein of Milwaukee, aged 50, was a victim of too much faith in human nature, according to the testimony in the suit instituted by him against Joseph Montel which was called before Judge Gregory, in civil court in Milwaukee on Friday.

Erbstein, who is a bachelor, had long been seeking a suitable mate to share his worldly joys and sorrows, and felt greatly relieved when Montel, an acquaintance of his informed him that his sister, Fanny Montel, then a resident of Russia, would be glad to come to America and marry such a fine man, if he would advance the necessary fare.

This Erbstein agreed to do, and the arrangements were soon completed, he paying $71, he says, for the ticket with which his future bride was to come to him in Milwaukee. At last the day arrived and Erbstein received a message asking him to meet the young woman at the train. He did so and was overjoyed. Fanny arrived, young and fair to look upon. And what was more, she readily accepted the situation, according to Erbstein, and confirmed the promise of marriage made by her brother before her arrival.

However, she told him she had not suitable clothes for so momentous an occasion and just couldn't think of marrying without a trousseau. So Erbstein accompanied Fanny on a shopping tour in which he said he spent $70.73.

Time passed, but there was no wedding bells and last Erbstein was informed that there would be no marriage between him and the lovely Fanny, who he says, told him she was looking for a younger and handsomer man.

Erbstein suspected he had been victimized and consulted Attorney Max Schoetz of the law firm of Rubin & Lehr. Montel was arrested on a civil warrant and held under bonds of $150.

BOLT WELDS STEEL IN FARMER'S HIP POCKET.

Mansfield Center, Conn., Aug. 24.—A bolt of lightning threw itself into the hip pocket of Joseph Barrow, a farmer as he was sitting in the kitchen of his home last night. The bolt came into the house via the stove pipe and was attracted to Barrow's hip pocket by the presence of an iron monkey-wrench and a big jack-knife. It passed down his leg, burning him severely, and then careened over the floor, upsetting a tub of water and splitting a huge chopping block.

In Barrow's pocket the end of the wrench and the blade of the knife were fused into a solid piece of steel.

THE OILING OF CITY STREETS

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 24.—Last week state street was swept and oiled by an order from the street committee. Monday the heavy rain ruined the work done and "made the street very slushy and ill-smelling for the residents. Yesterday the street was oiled again and the committee is hoping that there will be no rains until the oil becomes dry. Dunlap avenue has been oiled between State and Carpenter streets. Ludington avenue was swept last week but has not been oiled yet.

The oiling of the streets is absolutely necessary as they become very dry and the fine concrete dust raises into the houses, going in at every minute crack around the windows. It becomes very disagreeable to the people when they see a fine layer of dust on all the furniture in the house. During the sweeping process of Monday on State street, the dust was carried to the east side of the street by the wind and into the very windows of the homes. Great clouds of it were raised and many got busy with hose to keep it down.

The street committee will continue until all the streets are oiled. It is very inconvenient for the residents on these streets, who have automobiles, as the street is of necessity closed up and they must either go through an alley or not at all. Some times it is impossible to do this and the machines

MODERN HOUSEWIFE WHO BAKES BREAD IS ACCUSED OF COMMITTING MURDER BY BAKER

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—That the modern housewife who attempts to bake her own bread produces a soggy article is committing murder in allowing it to be eaten, was the statement made by Paul Schultze, Chicago, president of the National Association of Master Bakers, at the second day's session of the annual convention of that body here today.

"This county is full of housewives who are proud of their cooking and who think they are doing their duty by baking at home," said Mr. Schultze said. "The long suffering stomachs of their families continue to pay the penalty of this mistaken sense of duty."

"The American housewife, the American mother of today, is an earnest and sensible individual, but very 'set in her ways.' She is still influenced by the working methods adopted in her are left idle until the oil is in shape to drive over.

The oil that is used on the streets is very destructive to automobile tires. It eats into the rubber, soon causing a rotten condition of the outer tube. Then it gradually soaks through to the inner tire. When rubber has been soaked thus with oil it is practically useless, as every sharp rock will easily make a gash. Motorists in the cities have tried to overcome this danger by using a steel covering over the tires but it has not proven a very great success owing to the noise that is made by the metal on paved streets. There is really only one thing to do, if one wishes to save his tires—be must stay off the oil streets until they are perfectly dry.

Life Saved At Death's Door

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington Tex., as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. The Motor Veil

"What a beautiful scarf, Nell," remarked Laura as her friend untied her motor veil and settled beside her on the shady side of the porch. "I never saw one just like it."

"I don't believe there's one like it this side of Europe," returned the visitor. "My aunt brought it to me from Paris last month and I think a great deal of it. Further, the associations that have gathered around it since I got it make it doubly precious."

"That sounds like romance. Go on with the story."

"Well, to begin at the beginning, the first time I ever wore it was one night when Jack Clay came along to take me out in his new runabout. When we got to the park we went into the refectory and I removed my veil and Jack said he would put it in the pocket of his light overcoat, which hung on the rack behind our table. I never thought of that veil again until the next evening, when Jack came around to take me out for another little ride."

"You must have been very much engrossed."

"Well," Nell dimpled rosyly, "Jack and I had been having quite a discussion, and of course I didn't think of my veil, and when I asked him for it he thrust his hand into his motor coat and brought it out empty."

"Why," he said, "I must have taken it out in my room. I'll bring it next time."

"I was decidedly surprised when he appeared two evenings later without it."

"You must think me unparadoxically careless not to have brought it," he said.

"Of course I told him it didn't matter in the least. But just fancy how I felt the next day when I saw Allie Randall jump out of an automobile and run into a house directly across the street from ours with my veil tied over her hat! Why, Laura, for a moment I was in a perfect rage. I remembered distinctly how much Jack used to see of Miss Randall before—well, I made up my mind that in some way she had inveigled Jack to let her take that veil and that she had worn it into our neighborhood just to annoy me."

"When Jack called that evening, I left the porch as his car was drawing up to the curb. Then I instructed our maid to tell him I was out. In about a minute she brought me a card on which he had written: 'What is the matter? I must see you.' I knew Jack well enough to be certain that if he intended to 'see me' he would wait all night if necessary, and I thought I might as well go down first as last."

"Nell," he cried, "what is the meaning of this?"

"What did you do with my scarf?" I asked.

"I don't know," he answered. "I wish I did, but surely you won't let a mere bit of veiling come between us!"

"I thought a great deal of that mere bit of veiling," I answered.

"I know you did, and I've tried everywhere to find it or buy you another. I've advertised it and I've searched for one like it in every shop without any luck. I may as well own up at last that in some unaccountable way I've lost it!"

"Lost it! How does it happen that your old friend, Miss Allie Randall, happens to be wearing it?"

"Great Scott! Is she wearing it? Where did she get it?"

"That's a question you can answer better than I," I returned.

"Well, I'll find out," he said. "I've known Allie all my life, and I'm not afraid to ask her a simple question."

"He ran out and jumped into his machine and in less than 20 minutes he was back again with the scarf in his hand. He came up on the dusky porch and actually lassooed me with it, saying gayly: 'Nell, own up! You were jealous, weren't you?'"

"Of course I declared that I wasn't and he—well, after a little while he told me that Allie's sister found the veil in her husband's overcoat pocket after he had been out in the park one night in a car with some man friends. It vexed her so because he wouldn't tell her how he came by it that she couldn't bear to have it around, so she gave it to Allie. Jack laughed and said that that veil came pretty nearly wrecking two families."

"Two families? Nell, have you and Jack at last—"

"Do you suppose I would have told you this story if I hadn't been in need of a maid of honor?"

Honor for Captain Cook.

Captain Cook was really the first navigator of the Pacific ocean. Others had discovered it centuries before, but he was the first to put those discoveries to practical use, and his explorations served as a basis for the first accurate maps of that great ocean. He found that there was no vast continent stretching from near the shores of Asia to the antarctic pole, as Europe had always thought. He was the first to sail around New Zealand, and he gave New South Wales its name. He is at last to have a fitting memorial of his services to England and the world. This memorial will take the form of a statue to be designed by Sir Thomas Brock, the sculptor who did the Victoria memorial, and will have a place in London near the Admiralty arch in the Mall.

GARDEN

A dance was given last Friday by members of the Beaver club of girls and boys of Garden.

Same was largely attended and everyone had a good time. It was first of a series of dances to be given by that club.

A game was played the following Sunday by Beavers at Manistique against the Tigers of that city. The Beavers won a victory over them by a score of 6 to 2. Napoleon Dubey pitched a 22 hit game, striking out 12 men, now being the star pitcher of Garden.

THE MEANING AT ATWOOD'S FEAT

The success of Harry N. Atwood in making a great cross-country flight with no other setbacks than those that would be incident to an auto or train trip—the occasional exhaustion of fuel—is encouraging. It shows that the reasonable use of the aeroplane is assured. It will eventually be about as safe to go from one town to another in an aeroplane as in an auto. But it is as unsafe to drive spirals through the air, as it is to try to run an auto without a road. Automobiling had to be stripped of the spirit of adventure. The aeroplane is about due to have the craziness of "moets" subtracted, when it will be discovered that an immense distance has been traveled in perfecting a machine which under favorable conditions will enable man to make fifty or sixty miles an hour through the air with less danger than the same number of miles per hour by any other mode of conveyance. When one observes the Atwood flight and remembers that it was only about four years ago that one of the Wrights, after careful preparation and cautious selection of weather, made the remarkable flight of ten miles cross-country near Washington with a turn at Fort Meyer, one sees what wonderful progress has been made in the art of flying.

Nor is it necessary to credit much of the progress to spectacular fliers. It is true they have demonstrated that spirals can be made, but they have also demonstrated at considerable cost of life that spirals ought not to be made. That they were not needed was known before any were made. The only thing the spectacle fliers have done is to show how an aeroplane, deprived of its engine power, may be made to glide to the earth. This is a most valuable addition to the knowledge of flying.

DIPLOMACY AND THE STRIKE.

In Europe the relations of Nations are matters of grave concern and respect upon domestic affairs in a manner Americans do not understand. It is quite possible, therefore, that Germany furnished the inducement for the sudden settlement of the railway strike in England. Paris dispatches told how German diplomacy was availing itself of the advantage presented by England's domestic difficulties. Whereas ten days ago in the negotiations with France the Germans were asking for half the French Congo in exchange for German Togoland and a rectification of the Kamerun border in favor of France no sooner was the great strike on in England than the Germans asked for half the French Congo without mentioning Togoland.

Lloyd-George may easily be conceived as representing to the British railway directors the National necessity for domestic peace. The directors may have been convinced that this was not the auspicious hour for a bout to the limit with the labor unions. The unions, which are patriotic, may also have been made tractable by similar representations.

Anyhow, German diplomacy must be surprised by the sudden restoration of industrial peace in the British Isles. Meanwhile, France is cool, polite, firm. She is willing to negotiate, perhaps to trade, but she is not in the business of purchasing peace by concessions. The whole Moroccan business on the German side reads much like the Luxembourg business on the part of the French Emperor, Napoleon III, and bids fair to end the same way. To threaten war with no intention to make war, if the bluff is called, is wretched diplomacy.

Borrowed Bridal Finery. In Norway every parish house has a set of ornaments for the temporary use of the bride, including a showy coronal and girdle, so that the poorest women in the land appeared for one day in their life in a costume which they probably thought equal to that of a queen. The museum of national antiquities at Copenhagen contains a number of such sets of bridal decorations, which were at one time used in Denmark.

Not So Bad as He Seemed. A curious incident occurred at a children's matinee in a Moscow theater lately. How to Be Good. Tommy is an impulsive little fellow, who doesn't always find it easy to live up to the expectations of his elders. When, one day, his Sunday school teacher asked him to tell the other members of the class the way to be good, Tommy gave this explanation: "Just think of the things you want to do and don't never do 'em!"

The Summer Cottage Pony

Billy was introduced on the premises by Anna when she came to clean house. As I saw her rattling along down the wooded road in her old rickety cart drawn by a small and businesslike hay pony I did not clasp my hands to my heart with a premonition of trouble—I was too busy thrilling with joy at the prospect of turning the battle against cobwebs and dust over to her. She unhitched the pony and tied him to the back of the cart outside the fence with his nose in a bunch of hay under the seat.

The sun was shining fiercely on him a little later when I noticed him and had a surge of philanthropy. "It's a shame!" said I. "I am going to let him inside, in the shade, where he can eat grass. It'll save mowing it!" Billy turned a mild and trustful eye upon my approach. It was then that I saw a cherished grapevine that had been trailed over the fence at the expense of much time and several yards of twine had been eaten bare. Not a leaf remained. Early that morning it had been a mass of green.

"You imp!" I said and slapped Billy. He was tied short. To eat those leaves he must have performed an acrobatic twist that would have been well worth seeing. He did not seem in the least concerned as I jerked him inside the fence and tied him, but rubbed my shoulder with his soft nose. I hardened my heart. There are people who use exactly the same tactics as Billy and they should be disapproved of on principle.

Some time later I looked out at Billy. I never did have a head for mathematics and I had been too liberal in the length of the rope. Having eaten all the grass in a circle Billy was now with great enthusiasm and gusto enjoying a salad of my scarlet geranium bed recently set out at so much per geranium.

"Billy!" I shrieked, just as he bit off the top of the sixth geranium. He merely flicked his tail and seemed injured when I hauled him back. Holding his ears firmly, I glared into his countenance and told him a few things. Wriggling loose, he tried to stick his nose into my apron pocket.

"You are not in the least cute!" I insisted coldly. "I am not impressed at all, understand! I prefer beauty of character to parlor tricks and it's plain to be seen you are an abandoned and hardened case!"

Then I tied him to a small tree in the midst of an arid waste of moss, sprouting acorns and other unappetizing things, for it really seemed that by this time Billy must be entirely "so with food." Leaving him to his meditations I stalked away. It was Anna, washing windows, who saw the deed.

"That bad horse!" she commented with cheerful stolidity. "He is now eating things above!"

It was true. Twisting and stretching his neck like a serpent, Billy reached a waving tendril of the grapevines trailed over a rustic arbor and hauled in several yards. He was standing on tiptoes to do it. We went out and seriously considered the matter after separating Billy from his first feast. The only safe place for him was on the fireplace mantel or the roof. Still, from the latter he probably would spring agilely into the treetops and devour those. If there had been an abandoned well on the place he could have been lowered into that till Anna was ready to depart, comfortably bulging from his numerous repasts. Billy watched us with mild and liquid eyes as we debated. He whinnied beguilingly. He seemed to think he was a favorite with the family, instead of an outcast.

I got the yardstick and measured. Tied around by the corner of the house, it seemed that Billy would be rendered utterly innocuous and helpless. He could not reach the peach tree with six peaches on it, which are more to me than diamonds. He could not reach the young beeches to gnaw the bark and he could not touch the woodbine over the house. Under his feet was good, plain sand, on which he might gorge if he cared to, and over his head unlimited quantities of air. I tied him in vindictive triumph while he tried to rub his nose against my cheek and whinnied the depth of his affection. There was no doubt he was a social horse.

"There!" I crowed. "Now go ahead and do your worst!"

An hour later it was time to get our noonday dinner and I sought the kitchen. Hastily stepping into the pantry, I got a shock that finished me. Through the open window from outside projected Billy's head, and he was just consuming the last of the rhubarb pie that I had baked early that day and set on a chair to cool. He licked his jaws as he twinkled his eyes at me. If he could have talked he would have murmured: "You told me to!"

I am going to reach up money and say Billy. I think he would be far more interesting than a parrot or a bulldog.

BOSTON MARKETS

The local market acted fairly well today. Liquidation was heavy but stocks were in good demand at the lower levels and there was more public interest in the market than we have had for a long time. The Dow stocks were conspicuously weak at the opening, caused by the selling out of some bank loans. We think the weak spots in the market are being gradually eliminated and that the general level of prices among the coppers is much too low. Owing to the long period of discouragement, it will be hard for any copper company's to get new money for further development and before buying we advise careful scrutiny and the selection of such coppers as are either going concerns or have plenty of money in the treasury. On this axis we advise the sale of Arizona and the purchase of Corbin, the sale of Algoma and Indiana and the purchase of Franklin. We also especially urge the purchase of E. Butte, Lake, N. Butte, C. Range.

NEW YORK MARKETS

The origin of the drastic liquidation which has taken place appears at this time to be the mystery of the street for the reason that the same has been general rather than specific and whenever it is traced to some particular source, a positive denial is immediately put forth. The banking situation is a bright spot and that our financial institutions are in a position to finance the crops and supply current needs without depressing results is a factor worthy of comment but as long as liquidation continues and as long as general trade displays the effect of agitation and demagogism it is probable that the security market will remain extremely feverish and therefore moderate turns should not be neglected on either side.

IRON TRADE REVIEW

The Iron Trade Review says: Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 24.—Price cutting on finished material, especially in eastern territory, has attracted more attention during the past week, but concessions do not seem to be any larger than for some time. Salesmen who have recently visited the west and south report favorably prospects for the fall trade, and say that the crop situation was very much better than was indicated by the government report for August 1.

Judging from the promptness with which iron and coke are being received by many foundries on contract, the melt is increasing, but new business is light and prices do not advance. The Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. purchased about 7,000 tons of foundry grades for fourth quarter delivery.

The principal structural material contract of the week was fourteen thousand tons for the Kansas City terminal, awarded by the general contractor to the American Bridge Company, which it is said also has taken the contract for $5,300 tons for the Northwestern Life Insurance building, Milwaukee. The city of Chicago has awarded eleven hundred tons for the Washington street bridge to the Stroble Steel Construction Co.

In the east the railroads are more prominent in inquiring and contracting for structural material. The New York Central has awarded five thousand tons to the American Bridge Co. for terminal work in New York City. The Boston and Maine is in the market for five thousand tons additional for bridge work. It is expected that nearly all of the seventy thousand tons of plates and shapes which will be required for the Erie cars awarded has been rolled by the Pittsburg mills.

Phillips on Matrimony. The late David Graham Phillips had, like many bachelors, a cynical view of matrimony. Mr. Phillips, at a reunion of Princeton's class of '99, at the Princeton club, said of marriage: "The Persians have a proverb that every young man should consider well before proposing. It runs: 'He that ventures on matrimony is like unto one who thrusteth his hand into a sack containing many thousands of serpents and one eel. Yet, if the serpent so will it, he may draw forth the eel.'"

ORDER IS IN HEALTHY CONDITION

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 24.—Eusebe Bertrand, general secretary of the U. S. C. F., has returned from the convention held at Iron Mountain last week very enthusiastic over the success of the meeting.

There were a few changes in the personnel of the officers of the society, although Mr. Bertrand was re-elected general secretary for a three year term.

The directors are Eugene Menard, Sault Ste. Marie; F. X. Normand, Iron Mountain, and J. W. Cloutier, of Laurium.

NOW MARRIED ENOUGH,

THINKS MRS. GERAGHTY.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 24.—New Jersey's "marring justice," Henry Spitz, of Union Hill, is proudly exhibiting a letter from Mrs. Julia French Geraghty, whose elopement gave Newport a shock a few days ago.

"Dear Mr. Spitz:—Your very kind letter received. I want to apologize for not having answered before, but you cannot imagine how rushed we have been.

"We are very happy and contented, and outside of a little too much novelty everything is going along beautifully.

"Thanking you again, I remain,

"MRS. JACK GERAGHTY."

RELIGIOUS PART IN HEALTH

It is the Interpreter of Sickness and Death, and of Health as Well.

There is a great deal of nonsense written about religion and health;

there is a great deal of sense in really connecting the two. There are a great many religious people who get sick and die. A great many irreligious people who do the same thing.

TWO FATALITIES TAKE PLACE IN MICHIGAN

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 24.—George C. Sterling, fifty years of age, was one of Battle Creek's foremost businessmen for many years, was instantly killed today by "the Wolverine Flyer."

St. Ignace, Mich., Aug. 24.—Nelson Stalry, aged eighteen, of Paulding, O., and Paul Kreiger, aged fourteen, of Pittsburg, Pa., were drowned while bathing in the Straits of Mackinac today. The bodies were recovered after being in the water about twenty minutes.

BREWERY WAGON KILLS A BOY

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 24.—Sheriff Byers is looking for a brewery wagon driver who Tuesday afternoon ran over and killed 7-year-old Oliver Wilhonen at Hancock and drove off, apparently unconcerned with the extent of the child's injuries.

The boy died an hour later at St. Joseph's hospital. The little body was cut almost in two.

Witnesses cannot recall the name of the brewery owning the wagon or the name of the driver, who will be charged with murder when found.

THE PETERSON

"Man in his life plays many parts" while it is not an adage of note or of past history is saying that is true, at least so says Will N. Haneal, the clever character actor in "The Cow and the Moon" which comes to the Peterson on Tuesday August 29.

"Yes" says Bill, as he is favorably known among the profane. "Man in this life plays many parts. Take myself for instance in this:

When I was two years ago as principal character man, Mr. Chas. A. Selson, who owns this attraction, would not tell men what I was to play. He told me that this was a show of novelties, that I would be expected to be the novelty player, and each day at rehearsals they would hand me a new part, saying: "Here you Haneal, you play this too"

Well, before we got through I had some ten different parts, cleverly conceived and written so I would have time to make up and play each one in a separate and distinct manner and you can see for yourself, ran the gamut from an advertising agent in the first act to keeper of the sacred cow in the last act.

I put on and take off ten different makeups as each character must be played in a correct manner, so that the novelty of the arrangement will be there. Of course I don't have any time for a manœuvre during the action as every step I make is timed by the stage managers. My dressers and valets of which I have two, are always awaiting at the proper place with all the essentials. Its a great study and a wonderful schooling.

Mr. Haneal is a young actor from the West and is rapidly developing a reputation second to none as a lightening change artist, and to those who like character acting of varied hues will delight in Mr. Haneal's characterization. Mr. Haneal is also a dancer of ability and a singer and will show his versatility in that line as well as the aforesaid work.

THE GRAND.

Callahan and Kline at the Grand this week billed as "Dixies Dandiest Dancers" are without a doubt one of the best acts of its kind ever given in Escanaba. They dance and dance well, executing some most difficult steps with the greatest ease. They no doubt will prove to be the stellar attraction at the popular little theater this week. Lyon, Broh and Lorraine in a musical skit, "A Rehearsal at Home," could be a whole lot better.

Mr. Lyon has a rather pleasing voice and knows how to use it. The piano solos by Miss Lorraine are pleasing. The singing of Miss Broh could be improved upon.

Curing the Rest Habit

It is said that the great inventor, Thomas A. Edison, when younger than he is now, could work continuously for two days and nights, or even longer, without a wink of sleep. One of Edison's "young men"—that is, his pupils, or assistants—once told me that the wizard, his master, would keep "the boys" at work until they were "dead on their feet," laughingly telling them that sleep was a habit. "Look at me," he would say to them. "I never hanker after sleep." And then the drowsy assistants would sneak away and hide behind the bales in the warehouse in order to steal a nod or two while the tireless master was lost to the world in some abstraction of mind.

I repeat the story for what it is worth, but whether it is an exaggeration or not, Edison's well known tirelessness suggests the thought that the time may come when long continued work will not be followed by fatigue.

Why indeed should it? Why does a man feel tired after a hard day's labor?

The question seems a childish one, but a German physiologist not long ago put that very query to himself, not with the simplicity of a child, but with the deep knowledge which sees in the questions of children the most difficult problems of science.

That a man can feel tired without having exerted himself at all is a well known fact. It is a fact recognized by enterprising sellers of tonics guaranteed to cure that "tired feeling" which persons with deranged bodies have on arising from sleep. And it is a fact which would seem to prove that the sensation of fatigue is due to the presence in the body of some substance that by its reaction on the nervous system produces the sensation in question.

Such, in short, is the plain truth. Fatigue, or the sense of fatigue, is caused by the poison, or toxin, of fatigue, and this toxin of fatigue is produced by the using up of certain materials in muscle and nerve and other tissues of the body, just as smoke and ashes are produced by the using up of fuel with the evolution of heat.

But if the sensation of fatigue is caused by the presence in the body of the toxin of fatigue, the body tries to neutralize this toxin—and actually does neutralize it—by the production of an anti-toxin for fatigue. When put to hard work the body grows tired after a short time, but presently recuperates, while still at work. A man gets what we call his "second wind," and this "second wind," this refreshment of the body, is due to the quick production of the anti-toxin in question. The body begins to fight this poison of fatigue, just as it tries to fight all substances antagonistic to its perfect equilibrium. But push the labor further, drive the body on continuously in its work, and the toxin of fatigue is produced in such large quantities that it can no longer be conquered by its anti. Your man is then "dead tired," and must "rest" until the fatigue poison can be thoroughly overcome by the accumulating anti-poison, or anti-body, as it is technically called.

Our German scientist had all these well known facts in mind when he set to work on the experiment by which he hoped to make an anti-toxin for fatigue which he could administer artificially, and thus perhaps cure the rest habit altogether. The experiment and its results are interesting.

Taking a rabbit—one of those pliable and uncomplaining tools of the laboratory—and placing it in a revolving cage, he made it work continuously until it was perfectly exhausted.

(There is positively no limit to the feat things a rabbit will do, once it is fairly started on its way.) Then the experimenter drew off from this exhausted rabbit a quantity of serum which he injected into two fresh rabbits. These fresh rabbits he now placed in revolving cages, and, as a check, or "control" experiment, he at the same time placed two fresh un.injected rabbits in two other cages, and then put on the power.

Away went the revolving cages. Trust a rabbit for doing any desired quantity of purely unprofitable labor! But our experimenter found precisely what he was expecting. The injected rabbits were quickly exhausted, whereas the un.injected ones merrily whirled their cages, both of them as fresh as a daisy and veritable gluttons for work.

The first point was proved. Inject into a fresh animal the serum of a fatigued animal, and the fresh animal is at once, without a stroke of work, fatigued in a degree that varies with the size of the dose. But the main object of the experiment was to produce an anti-toxin for fatigue; a serum that would make the rabbits immune to fatigue. The experimenter by repeatedly treating a fresh animal with increasing doses of serum from a fatigued animal, believed it possible that the body of the treated animal would react against the poison in such a way that new doses would have no effect. By taking the serum of this now immune animal and injecting it into the body of another and fresh animal, the experimenter hoped to make this last rabbit immune, and able to work indefinitely without fatigue!

The results of these latter experiments do not seem to have been quite as satisfactory as were those of the former.

While the body of the injected rabbit would react to a certain degree against the injected poison, it would not react more vigorously than it would to the toxin of fatigue produced in the ordinary way by labor; at least the results in the second line of experiments were not what might be called startlingly encouraging.

And yet it is not to be expected that this patient German will let his idea go by default. The secret of success in all scientific research is a patience and a power of waiting that are almost godlike. In these desirable qualities the German mind excels all others; and the Germans therefore lead the world in this kind of unremunerative and slavish toil. But if he did not succeed at once in banishing fatigue from labor, our German has made a good start. No doubt in time an anti-toxin for fatigue will be discovered. No doubt the Edison of the future when he desires to work a week or two without resting will only be required to apply at necessary intervals to the nearest doctor for the injection of the few hundred "units" of the anti-toxin needed, and merrily work away. Nor is it to be imagined that he will permit his pupils and assistants to do away valuable time behind the bales in the warehouse when a few additional units will keep them whistling like sawyers at their work for three or four weeks at a time.

FACTS FEATURES and FANCIES for WOMEN

NEW YORK.—The inconsistency of modern fashions is well expressed in the picturesque flower muffs that have lately appeared over the sartorial horizon. Nevertheless these unusual creations are considered among the daintiest accessories introduced in many a day. Frequently the muff is made to correspond with the covering of the parasol or its decoration. One of the prettiest flower muffs we have seen was made of rose petals in shades of pink running from the palest tints of Brides' roses to the softer tones of the American Beauty rose. The sunshade that accompanied the muff was lined with white mousseline caught across the ribs with narrow shirring. The rather deep shade of pink silk forming the foundation of the parasol showed through just enough to give a lovely mellow effect.

Another charming outfit consisted of muff, parasol and hat in violet, running from the various purple tints to the pinkish shades of the lilac. The becoming little hat was fashioned after the style of the Brittany peasant cap, which furnish the inspiration for many plays on smart head-wear just now. In this particular instance the cap covers the features almost completely. The crown is covered with violets and the little brim is faced with point venise lace in its natural color. Such hats require a pretty young face to bring out their best lines. Other models of this type are fashioned after the style of the Normandy cape and trimmed with numbers of tiny wings. One model boasted of as many as fifty of these wings hardly bigger than a humming bird's.

Smart Vails of Raw Silk.

The smartest vails of the present hour of odd fancies are the raw silk consider the cost of their wardrobe. They are so soft that they tick into a little handbag for an over-night trip or go into numbers into the suitcase without danger of being mussed.

Midsummer Novelty.

One of the midsummer developments that might be considered a novelty is the use of striped skirts with plain little sash coats, cut on Directoire lines. Frequently bright tones are employed for the stripes and the plain coats—emerald green, coronation blue, fruit red and old rose and the like. A very stunning suit of the kind had the skirt of golden brown and white striped silk serge and a coarse net blouse embroidered with brown. The coat was of plain golden brown satin. The model in this instance was one of the open effects with a single huge revers. The opposite side of the coat showed a very large full frill of ivory tinted lace.

White flannel and white serge costumes stitched with bright colored silk and with hat, parasol, shoes and stockings en suite are the latest whim of a society leader whose clothes are always more or less out of the ordinary. This same young matron appeared at an uptown restaurant the other day attired in a white serge tailor-made stitched with bright green thread. She wore a becoming little drooping hat in the same shade of green trimmed with swirls of uncurled ostrich feathers arranged high at the back. Her long-handled sunshade was in corresponding color, and was mounted on a green glass stick that scintillated at every turn. The glass was cut in crystal effect. Her green suede pumps were decorated with big oval buckles in tarnished gold.

Dainty Lawn Party Frock.

A dainty and effective little frock worn at a lawn party was of cream-colored batiste of sheer quality trimmed very effectively with cretonne. The skirt was straight and neat, and gathered ever so slightly into a raised girdle. There were three narrow bands of cretonne near the foot, the bands being made up of a delicate rose and vine pattern. The bodice was a cunning little affair, fashioned after the style of the "baby" waist and finished with a gracefully draped fichu edged with double pelisse of white maline. The coat was of directoire style and made of the cretonne with old blue collar, revers and cuffs. The short tails or tabs at the back were lined with blue and further trimmed with big buttons.

All the smart bags this season have handles of heavy silk cord from one to two yards long. Sometimes they are carried with the cord knotted or twisted into big loops, but the latest fad is to put the cord over the shoulder and allow the bag to come almost to the finger tips, so that it may be in place to open conveniently. Some of the novel bags are of dull gold lace, representing ancient designs. Others come in cluny and Irish lace effects made of metallic threads, and all are so immense that they look more like albums than anything else. Black and white stripes are liked for costumes in the same combination. Such bags are mounted on metal rims and have handsome clasps often set with colored stones.

In Neckwear.

Fads in neckwear are so numerous that one hardly knows which to mention as being smartest. Perhaps the most practical of the better collars is the one of Irish lace worn over another collar of exactly the same shape, which is of plain organdie. Some such collars have long fichu ends that tie across the bust or just below it. Fichus remain in favor and have given on end of easy drapery possibilities to simple little blouses. Many are very elaborate, being of fine handkerchief linen and handsomely embroidered by hand. Some of the younger girls are wearing their fichu outside their coats, securing the ends with a very long bar pin.

The liking for cerise, or cherry, as it is touched by many, has not abated. When couples of it first appeared in the early spring it was thought to be merely a passing fancy, but now we see cerise trimming all kinds of gowns from the tailor-made to the elaborate evening frock. One of the latest uses to which the collar has found its way is in the separate collar and cuff sets of satin and worn with white serge or linen tailored suits. The collars are enormous in size, and likewise the cuffs. Pocket flaps, cravats and often the handbag, carry out the color scheme to perfection. We have also noticed such sets in reversible silks—plain on one side and striped on the other. They are very striking, whether made of the gay tones of black and white piped with color.

Our illustration shows the latest novelty, a robe of white linen and "broderie anglaise," with underskirt and sash of black velvet.

Peru's Unique Cotton.

Peru is the country which now leads all nations in the production of cotton per unit of area and offers the best conditions for the industry. The remarkable fact about the native stock is that the fiber closely resembles wool and the entire crop is used in the manufacture of woolen goods. It is claimed that such goods are improved by the admixture. Peru is the world's only source of supply for this singular fiber, and its market price ranges ten per cent. above all other kinds.

An Old Story.

See the man! And the woman! The man needs to mend his ways and for that has the woman married him. Precisely. Will her sacrifice avail anything? Oh, no—not a blessed thing! What, then, does it signify? Merely that mending is woman's work.—Puck.

NECK BROKEN; LIVED

MAN WHO SPENT YEARS IN CHAIR NOW DEAD.

Lived Twelve Years With Broken Neck—Father Left Him $300,000, Which He Raised to $2,500,000.

New York.—Walter E. Durree, who lived almost a full dozen years with a broken neck, died at his home in Upper Montclair in his forty-fourth year. He broke his neck in August, 1899, by jumping from the Casino at Glen Cove landing, alighting on his head in the sand in three feet of water. After ten months in Roosevelt hospital, following two operations, on which the doctors had based the slightest sort of a hope that he would recover, he mended and so recovered his faculties that by shrewd investments he increased the $300,000 which he inherited from his father to $2,500,000.

Durree, who is a son of Edgar E. Durree, the wealthy starch manufacturer, was a member of the Seventh Regiment and the Glen Cove Yacht club when the accident happened. In about ten months he was out of the hospital and at a sanitarium at Danville, N. Y. Meantime his father died. The elder thought that the possibility of his son living was so slight that he left him about $300,000 in trust, but should he live two years he was to get the bulk of the estate. His three sisters contested the will, but they were defeated, and the young man inherited about $800,000 from his father's personal estate and real estate holdings. It was said that Durree never forgave his sisters for contesting the will.

Durree's recovery was the subject of much medical discussion. He spent most of the time in a sitting posture in a specially contrived chair. Three years after the accident he had built a 65-foot yacht which he designed himself. At no time was he left alone, there being four women and two men nurses in attendance.

QUEER DISEASE IS IN UNITED STATES

Many Here Afflicted With Odd Ailment, Says Prof. Munyon.

GREWSOME CREATURES VERY COMMON, FINDS EXPERT.

Many people in the United States are afflicted with a queer disease, according to a statement yesterday by Professor James M. Munyon. He said the following remarkable and rather gruesome statement:

"Many persons who come and write to my headquarters at 331 and Jefferson St., Philadelphia, Pa., think they are suffering from a simple stomach trouble, when in reality they are the victims of an entirely new disease—that of tape worms. These tape worms are huge internal parasites, which locate in the upper bowel and consume a large percentage of the nutriment in undigested food. They sometimes grow to a length of forty to sixty feet. One may have a tape worm for years and never know the cause of his or her ill health.

"Persons who are suffering from one of these creatures become nervous, weak and irritable, and at the least exertion. The tape worms rob one of ambition and vitality and strength, but they are rarely fatal.

"The victim of this disease is apt to believe that he is suffering from chronic stomach trouble, and doctors for years without relief. This is not the fault of the physicians he consults, for there is no absolute diagnosis that will positively state that one is not a victim of tape worms.

"The most common symptom of this trouble is an abnormal appetite. At times the person is ravenously hungry and cannot get enough to eat. At other times the very sight of food is loathsome. There is a gnawing, faint sensation at the pit of the stomach, and one has headaches, fits of dizziness and nausea. He cannot sleep at night and often thinks he is suffering from nervous prostration.

"I have a treatment which has had wonderful success in eliminating these great creatures from the system. In the course of its regular action in aiding digestion, and ridding the blood, kidneys and liver of impurities it has proven fatal to these great worms. It is a safe, reliable, and pleasant treatment, which in nine cases out of ten, stumps and passes it away, but if not, the treatment is repeated until the person, who is probably suffering from stomach trouble and a general anemic condition. My doctors report marvelous success here with this treatment. Fully a dozen persons have passed these worms, but they are naturally reticent about discussing their case, as we cannot violate their confidence by giving their names to the public.

"Letters addressed to Professor James M. Munyon, 331 and Jefferson Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., will receive a careful attention as though the patient called in person. Medical advice and consultation absolutely free. Not a penny to pay.

An Anomalous Parent.

"Father!"

"Yes, Wilfred."

"What is reciprocity?"

"Reciprocity, Wilfred."

But pause! Father never told. He slipped over an epigram. He knew not what was reciprocity. No. He was totally different from the average father figuring in this sort of short squib. He just told Wilfred to run along and play, and resumed his reading of the evening paper.

Truly, a refreshing personality—not so?

Reason Enough.

"What's the trouble, old man?" asked the sympathetic friend.

"Well," answered the judge, "you see, my wife and I have never been able to get along very well. The relationship has become so unbearable that we both want a divorce."

"I see," answered the friend. "Then why don't you get one?"

"Because," answered the judge, sadly, "I have sent all the bogus divorce lawyers to the penitentiary."

A Little Knock for the Aeroplane

It is curious how the bird idea has clung to the art and science of the flying machine in spite of all efforts to shake it off. We call it the art of aviation, and the artist we call an aviator. Making these two terms into English, we would have bird-ation and bird-ator. Clearly then, if we are to be consistent in our etymology, we should call the flying machine itself "avis," the Latin word for bird.

And yet we do no such thing. We call the flying machine itself an aeroplane; and this word, with its two species of biplane and monoplane, is an excellent one for the purpose, because it means precisely what it says. The word plane as now used in this combination is not derived from the Greek word which means "wanderer," but from that which means "flat."

What warrant is there for the association of the bird idea with that of the curious machines that are now swooping and circling through the air in the skies of all the nations? Has man, as a matter of fact, realized the longing of the psalmist, who sighed for the wings of a bird that he might fly away and be at rest?

I, for one, do not believe it; and I imagine that I would not be alone in my conviction were a poll taken of those who have some knowledge of the structure of and the work done by the nervous and muscular mechanisms that enable the bird to fly.

When you look at a hawk high up in the air, soaring with rigid outstretched wings, maintained in his glorious flight by the pressures between his wings and the atmosphere, you have before you the pretty and inspiring prototype of the buoyant aviator in his monoplane. Maybe, both, perhaps, rest upon the same mechanical principles, so far as the buoyancy is concerned. Both are, in their way, monoplanes. "But there," as Lord Byron says, "all likeness ends between the pair."

The bird is the absolute master of the situation. The aviator is absolutely at the mercy of it. The wing and the tail of the bird respond to the will of the bird with the infinite nicety that mark the conduct of the arm, the hand and the fingers of a man when they move in response to the mandates sent down to them by their master, the brain. The bird's wing, apart from the plumage that makes it a plane, consists of millions of muscle-fibers, each one of which is directly supplied by its own nerve-fiber, and these millions of nerve-fibers (both sets of fibers are microscopically small) connect up with other millions of nerve-fibers in the spinal cord of the bird, and these last connect up with still other millions of nerve-fibers in the bird's brain, whose batteries are in certain groups of the most countless cells of the gray matter.

Here we have a mechanism incalculably intricate; a thing very different from the crude spread of the aeroplane and its motive power of gasoline.

I do not wish to be called a knocker, and I am none. But a conservative habit of mind will dispose a man to look with considerable calmness on the antics of those timid persons who directly fall into a passion of tears at their first sight of an aeroplane in the air. A conservative habit of mind will likewise dispose a man to have a little faith in the future of flying machines, so far as the "improvement" of the present genus of machine is at all concerned. The aeroplane was made possible by the invention of the high speed gasoline engine, which also made possible the dirigible balloon. There is positively no warrant whatever for the hectic hopes one hears expressed on all hands that the world will see "navies of the air" (worked by gasoline engines) replacing the navies of the sea, and the unpoetic, if useful, railway freight car. If there is any warrant in sound sense or sound science for the belief that gasoline engines will fill the sky with merchant aeroplanes, it has not yet been publicly discussed.

The only future for the aeroplane is one in which the prophet who founds on fact and not on fancy can see ambitious and reckless young men rising in the air (as they do now) for exhibition purposes, and descending, in many cases (as they do now), to certain death or permanent disability. Other and more hopeful predictions are for the most part pleasant dreams, which no earthly law can chasten. Whereas, the future of the much despised balloon is much the same to-day as it was when it was first launched more than a century ago by its French inventors.

But this is not saying that men will never be able to transfer all traffic from the surface of the earth to some considerable distance above it. On the contrary, there are in France a few bold scientists who are not afraid to suggest for human industry in general a future as far beyond the dreams of the aviators and their warmest friends as the light of the sun is beyond the illuminating power of a tall candle. It is held by these courageous men that what is called "mass"—that is, the weight of matter—is in reality nothing but electric discharge; that all the phenomena of matter are electric phenomena. And if we imagine that scientific investigation will go on taking the leaps it has taken during the past ten years in the study of radio-activity, the time may not be far distant when a vessel of the size of the largest ocean steamer—or much larger, for that matter—may be whirled through the higher regions of the earth's atmosphere from San Francisco to London in a few hours. Whirled—and with perfect safety for the thousands of men who shall take passage aboard. The discussion of these possibilities is tempting; but the possibilities themselves are so tremendously great that one hesitates to go farther than the barest mention of the subject.

WAS SLEEPING WITH A BEAR

Curious Discovery Made by Lumberman, Whose Camp Sunk Was Roof of a Big Black Bear's Den.

When certain Maine lumbermen one autumn took possession of the camps they had occupied the winter before a man named Jenkinson got one of the lower berths. He did not sleep well.

Ordinarily the lower berth is as comfortable as the upper one. The bottom of it, 18 inches from the ground, is made up of small poles, which are covered evenly and quite thickly with fir boughs, and all one needs over him is a pair of blankets. In Jenkinson's bed, however, there seemed to be a good many "hubbles."

Just outside the camp there stood a large birch tree. It was much agitated when the wind blew. It groaned. So did Jenkinson. He said the root of that tree ran in under his bed, and that when the wind blew it would rise up and roll him over against his berthmate. Then the berthmate would punch him in the ribs, demanding more room. Consequently there was much unhappiness on all sides.

Finally things got so bad that Jenkinson vowed that if the boss did not cut down that birch he would leave. Therefore the tree was felled. That night, however, Jenkinson found himself rolled against the other man as usual.

The unhappy woodsman declared that this thing had gone far enough. He determined to find out what was under that particular part of his berth. The next morning, which was Sunday, after the man got up, Jenkinson dug the boughs back and pulled up the poles.

The mystery was then laid bare. First there appeared a huge black bear and a pair of paws, then a head. A stampede among the men followed. A black bear weighing about 400 pounds crawled out and in less than a minute was in undisputed possession of the bed. He did not seem to be very friendly to the people who had unroofed his den and waked him up.

The men lassooed the bear and tried to keep him, but he made things so lively in the cook's range that he had to be shot.

Pity the Poor Pauper.

"Did you pay your fine?"

"Certainly not. I took the pauper's oath."

"And now?"

"Now I shall go to Paris to live."

ONE "DEAD MAN" IS FOUND

"Widow's" Application for a Pension Leads to Search for Man Who Deserted Her.

Roston, Mass.—Given up for dead by his wife and two children for more than 30 years, Timothy Teaffe has been found living in Grand Rapids, Minn., according to Special Pension Examiner E. W. Young.

Although he denied knowing anybody in Massachusetts, where his family lives, documentary evidence was unearthed in his home which the examiner says establishes the fact that he is the same Timothy Teaffe who deserted his wife and children in Boston, in 1875, and who has never been seen since by former friends except his wife, who encountered him on a journey in 1880, and had a chat with him for about two hours.

Teaffe had been given up for dead but the application of his legal wife for a pension led to the search which revealed that he had been living in hiding in the lumbering regions around the Ottawa river in Ontario for years where he had married again.

PAINT BABY COUSIN GREEN

Ward Eight Sets Dog and Mother Almost Hysterical and Doctor is Called.

Connellsville, Pa.—Two-year-old Willie Wilkins had the best problem settled for him by being fitted with a skin tight green coat of paint. He crowded with delight, rolled in the grass on the lawn and was having a splendid time, to the amusement of his two cousins, 8 and 10 years old, when the family dog, returning from a foraging expedition, saw him and became so wildly excited that his barking brought Mrs. Mary Wilkins, the baby's mother, to the door.

When she saw Willie she gave a wild shriek and George and Scott Williams, her nephews, hurried out to the front gate on a run. She picked up Willie and ran screaming with him into the house and summoned a doctor, who came to the house in a mad dash in his auto. The nephews had stripped Willie of his clothing and painted him all over with green paint, secured at a new residence next door, which Willie's father, Daniel Wilkins, is erecting.

Rattlesnake on the Table

Fairburn, G. D.—Rattlesnakes are very numerous in this locality this season. The little seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. B. C. Kennedy was bitten on the hand a few days ago, but by prompt services by a physician she is nearly well now.

The other morning, when the mail carrier, Myron Godding, stopped at Charles Nordstrom's ranch to deliver some groceries, he found a large rattlesnake coiled up on the kitchen table. He dropped his groceries, got a club and soon finished the snake, which measured six feet and had ten rattles.

Poese as Woman 30 Years

Boston, Mass.—An autopsy performed on the charred body of "Harriet" Kelly, steward, one of the two burned to death in the fire that destroyed the excursion steamer Governor Andrew, disclosed that "Harriet" was a man.

For thirty years Harriet had lived as a woman, and was known on the Governor Andrew as a widow. For several years Harriet was a domestic in aristocratic West Bay families.

Cement Talk No. 1

Buyers of Portland cement should remember that there are various brands of Portland cement on the market and that all Portland cement is not the same. Every manufacturer prints on the sacks the name of the brand and the trade mark. If you find the trade mark printed above and the name Universal on the cement sacks, you may know it is the best Portland cement possible to make. Good cement depends on good workmanship and good materials. Care and experience make for good workmanship. Good sand and gravel or crushed stone are obtainable quite cheaply. With these you may feel reasonably safe, if you use Universal Portland Cement. It is a combination of good sand, great strength and works easily. It is a cement, an Universal. Most other brands are inferior. If you don't see, write to UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO., 72 W. ADAMS STREET, CHICAGO. ANNUAL OUTPUT 15,000,000 BARRELS.

CUBS ARE BEATEN BY BROOKLYN 6-5

Brooklyn, Aug. 24.—The locals took the opener today from the Cubs 6 to 5 in ten innings. Burke for the locals was found for 11 safe ones but managed to keep them scattered. Reulbach went the distance for the Cubs and allowed but 9 hits but several were bunched.

PIRATES TAKE FIRST 3-1; GIANTS WIN SECOND 2-1

New York, Aug. 24.—The Giants and the Pirates split a double bill here today, the Pirates taking the first 3 to 1 and dropping the second 2 to 1. Both games were pitchers battles. In the first game Adams and Mathewson allowed 6 and 7 hits respectively. In the second Marquard held the Pirates to 2 bingles while Camnitz was touched for but 4.

REDS TAKE LONG GAME FROM PHILLIES, 4 TO 1

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—The Reds and the Phillies fought for fourteen long innings today with the result that the visitors won 4 to 1. It was a pretty game until the last inning when the Reds pounded Moore for several hits.

CARDS ARE CLEANED UP BY BOSTONIANS, 8 TO 7

Boston, Aug. 24.—The locals landed on Sallee for 15 safe swats today and won from the Cards 8 to 7. Tyler was touched up for 9 hits well bunched. He was given poor support at times.

Going Away

Mrs. Minton was dusting her best cut glass bowl—the Browning club's wedding gift to her—when a bird alighted on the window sill and sang its sweet song. At the same moment, a girl walked past wearing a bunch of sweet peas in her belt. Instantly Mrs. Minton realized that she was homesick for the garden and the birds that had been hers every year of her life until this year, and she decided she would go to see the garden and the birds and the dear own people she had not seen since her wedding day.

There was a moment's silence, then Mrs. Minton said slowly: "I've heard people joke about husbands being anxious to have their wives go away so they might have a good time, but I'm not in the least jealous of you, Jack, I made up my mind when we were married that I never, never would go to go around and have a perfectly splendid time. You know I'm a woman of my word, and I mean what I say when I tell you I'm not jealous."

"I'll have a great time," Minton laughed. "But don't look so tragic about it, Bess. Maybe I'll go out and maybe I'll stay at home. Whichever I do, you can be certain I'm thinking of you and wishing you back; yet, at the same time, hoping that you'll stay as long as you feel like it, and that you are enjoying yourself."

"The next day, before she left home, she pinned a tender little note on her husband's pillow, inserted a second in the book he was reading and slipped a third into the pocket of his house coat. Then she buried her face for a moment in the coat, and with one last, lingering look, left the house.

"Poor little thing! It's the most natural thing in the world for her to want to run home and see her mother," laughed the other. "She must be lonely here in the city."

"Jack won't be lonely while she's away," the other said. "Phyllis Bartlett is visiting next door, and she's coming to dine with us tonight. Jack used to be awfully attentive to Phyllis, and she thinks he's about the—"

Mrs. Minton felt that she could list to no more. When the train stopped she grabbed her valise and rushed out.

Minton dined with his friends that evening, escorted his old sweetheart home, and then went on his way wondering why every other woman seemed so unattractive compared with his wife. He let himself into the apartment with his latchkey, turned on the electric light and gasped at sight of a crumpled up little figure asleep on the lounge. In a moment, he was beside his wife.

"Bess, wake up! What's the matter? Are you sick?" Mrs. Minton opened two heavy, tear stained eyes. "I'm glad you've come, Jack," she said. "Have you had a good time?"

HARRY THAW FIGHTS PETITION OF WIFE

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 24.—An answer was filed today by Harry K. Thaw, through his attorney, former Governor William A. Stone, to the petition of his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, in which Judge L. L. Davis was asked to appoint a lunacy commission to take charge of the income of Thaw in this state and provide for the support of the wife. The income is said to be $60,000 a year.

Thaw claims that the verdict of the jury in New York state was not a finding that he was insane and that the decree confining him in an asylum was statutory entirely and not a proceeding as to the lunacy of Thaw. He claims that the fact that he is still confined in the Matteawan hospital, under the order of the court, does not judicially or in any way establish his present insanity. The answer alleges that the petition asked the court to do what it has no authority to do.

In the second part of the answer, Thaw states: "Your affiant is not at present insane. He is quite capable of attending to his own affairs and does attend to his own affairs. If there ever was any derangement mentally the affiant has entirely recovered from it and is now in the possession of all his mental faculties."

CORK LEG ALMOST COSTS MAN'S LIFE

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 24.—William Greene's cork leg came near being the death of him last night. Green got beneath his depth while bathing and his artificial limb was so buoyant that his feet flew up into the air and his head was forced under water. He was saved by a college girl who was out boating with a young man. She grasped Green by the hair and held his head out of the water until her escort rowed to shore with Greene dragging behind the boat.

RETURNS TO THE CITY FROM FINE AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. John Knutsen returned last night from a two weeks auto trip through western Wisconsin and Illinois, making the entire trip without a single unpleasant incident or accident. They visited Chicago on the trip and stopped there to witness the aviation meet for a day and returned along the west shore of the lake, finding good roads for practically the entire distance.

BIG CROWD IS CERTAIN

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 24.—A traveling man who has just returned from a trip through the central states says there will be at least one thousand boxing fans here for the Wolgast-MacFarland bout, before the National Athletic club on September 15th.

"Why ever in Michigan," remarked the salesman, "I never saw so many enthusiastic fans on boxing. They are nutty about Wolgast, and want to see him in action. At Benton Harbor, there was a party of seventy-five, all ready to start and another party of seventy-five at Muskegon, Mich. At Grand Rapids, a party there, 250 strong, has chartered a boat, and will come over the day of the show. At Cadillac which is Wolgast's home, there will be a party of 150; while Detroit will send about 100. I was at Gary, Ind., also South Bend and Indianapolis, and there will be another 250 from these places. At Toledo, and Columbus there will be about 25 from each place, and another 25 from Cleveland and Buffalo. These were towns I visited, and met the people who were arranging for the special cars, etc. It will certainly be a great turnout from outside of town, and I think it is a cinch that fully four thousand strangers will be here."

The tickets were placed on sale this week, and about five thousand have been taken right off the jump, according to Frank Mulhern, and Harlan Zea, the promoters. This of course, includes the demand in Milwaukee up to date.

ARTIST WHO HAD NO ARMS

Miss Sarah Biffen, of Menominee and Mrs. Held Brushner in Their Teeth or Toss.

Miss Sarah Biffen was a conspicuous example of the skill which armless people sometimes acquire in spite of their affliction. She was miniature painter to Queen Victoria and her work was widely known for its beauty and delicacy. She was born without arms, but as a girl, having a great wish to become an artist, she worked earnestly for years until she could paint by holding the brush in her teeth. In 1821, according to the Raja Yoga Messenger, the judges, without any knowledge of the means she was compelled to use, awarded her the gold medal of the Society of Arts, a prize sought by hundreds of others.

M. de Mentholon and Bertram Hilles other artists who were deprived of the use of their arms. The former had only one foot, which he used to paint with.

Mr. Hilles lost both his arms in an accident, being run over by a street car when he was only 3 years old and when he was just beginning to acquire skill in drawing. He spent two years in patient toil learning to draw by holding the pencil in his teeth, at the end of which time he won a first-class certificate from a local art school.

WHEN THE EYESIGHT FAILS

Then Things Look Good to One That Everyone Else is Criticizing Harshly.

"Everything has its compensations," declared the man whose hair is graying over his ears and who can't read fine print as easily as he could ten years ago. "Yes, sir! Things look good to me that I hear other people criticizing like the mischief. Every girl has a flawless companion; everybody's hair looks as if it grew there and didn't have to be pinned on; all my friends are handsome; the streets seem clean and my clothes look new."

"Then, when I put on my spectacles —! But I've learned not to, except when I want to read. When my straw hat gets too pretty my good wife punches me up and says it's time to buy a new one, and when she needs a frock she just quietly hauls my specs out of my pocket, hands them to me pointedly, and stands before me in a good light. Rose-colored spectacles are all right, she tells me, when I'm looking at her face, but she prefers me to inspect her last summer's gown with my strongest, clearest lenses."

STURGEON CAUGHT BY FAIRPORT MAN

The largest fish that has been caught in this region for some time was a big sturgeon brought here yesterday by Hugh Lundquist, a Fairport fisherman. The big fish was six feet long and weighed 160 pounds. After being dressed by Hanson and Jensen the monster weighed 100 pounds on the scales. The fish was shipped to the Chicago market last night and at the present price will bring about $18.

Lundquist was unable to take the fish from his net single handed and was forced to secure the assistance of several fellow fishermen.

FUNERAL WAS LARGE

A large number of sorrowing friends and relatives attended the funeral of Mrs. Maria Hill, at the family home, at 524 Ogden avenue at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. Frederick Spence, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, officiated at the service and in a short funeral oration paid a glowing tribute to the life and character of the deceased.

Mrs. Hill died at her home on Monday following a stroke of apoplexy from which she could not be revived in spite of the efforts of attending physicians. She was known and loved by a host of people in the city and to all of whom her death came as a severe shock. The immense quantity of flowers received at the home and which were literally banked about the casket testified eloquently as to the popularity of Mrs. Hill and the general sorrow that was caused by her death. Those who served as pall bearers at the funeral yesterday were: M. K. Bissell, Atty. F. D. Mead, Julius Greenboot, Mayor John S. Lindsay, Frank Brotherton and W. J. Hatton.

ONE BOUND OVER; OTHER CASES ARE CONTINUED FOR TIME

Henry Heldman, who conducts a saloon at Groos and who was charged with keeping his place of business open after hours, yesterday waived his preliminary examination in Judge O. V. The cases against Escanaba saloon keepers who were charged with having their places of business open on July 4, were yesterday adjourned until Sept. 8.

BLOWS OFF TOP OF HUBBY'S HEAD

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 23.—That following a quarrel between them over his drinking, Mrs. Jacob Valk blew the top of her husband's head off with a shotgun, is the statement given out at the sheriff's office as an explanation for a crime committed at the Valk home early this morning. Valk is living, although the chances for his recovery are slight.

According to Mrs. Valk, her husband during the day and evening made threats to do her bodily injury. He left after supper and was gone until midnight when she went after him and brought him home. In order to protect herself, she says, she stepped into a bedroom where the shotgun stood and picked it up, intending to frighten him. In some way the gun went off, although she did not know it was loaded. Mrs. Valk is held at the jail.

FIND $7,000 ON RAGGED OLD MAN

Chicago, Aug. 24.—A man apparently 80 years old, decrepit and ragged, who has been wandering around the streets for several days, was taken to the Chicago Avenue police station yesterday, where $7,000 was found on his person.

While walking past the prisoner's cell a deputy noticed the old man shuffling a roll of bills which he could not reach around with both hands.

After a while he began throwing the bills through the bars, as though he were dealing a pack of cards.

A search of the old man's clothing brought forth more than $3,000 in bills and bank books showing deposits of $2,800.

Last night he mumbled in Norwegian that he had come from Canada and said his name was Torsten Isaacson Aagaard. He could not give his home address.

WHISTLE INSTALLED

A new fire whistle has been installed at the pumping station and in the future will be blown when an alarm is turned in. The blowing of the big fire whistle, which according to Supt. Hatton, can be heard in all parts of the city, will be the signal for all patrons of the water company to shut off all running water. According to Mr. Hatton, the large number of lawn sprinklers during the summer make a good fire service almost impossible.

TAKE BODY OF YOUNG MOTHER TO BARK RIVER

The body of Mrs. August Carlson, who died at the Delta county hospital on Wednesday, leaving motherless four small children, will be taken to Bark River today. The body will be taken to the home of Helmer Bruce where it will remain until the hour of the funeral which will be conducted at the Swedish Lutheran church of Bark River on Saturday afternoon. Rev. C. A. Lund, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of Escanaba, will conduct the service.

LAD FALLS FROM APPLE TREE AND ARM IS BROKEN

While engaged in picking apples yesterday Albert Brinker, son of Henry Brinker of the Danforth settlement, fell from a tree and sustained a fracture of the elbow. The injury was attended at once by Dr. A. S. Kitchen of North Escanaba and because of the serious nature of the fracture an X-Ray examination will be made on Saturday.

ESCANABA

Is a Prosperous Growing City

It is becoming famous for its fine homes and great industries. Here are good opportunities for wise investments in real estate. We want to show you some of the desirable propositions that we have on hand—many of them bargains.

Lots on Michigan Avenue are an exceptionally good investment and we have 2 in a desirable part of the street. Our business covers the whole state as well as this city and from time to time we have propositions that offer exceptional opportunities—for instance we have listed today one of the best hotels in Northern Michigan. It is for sale and we would be glad to furnish particulars to any one who is interested. The hotel is modern and enjoys a good patronage the year around.

We can sell you a house and lot cheaper than you can buy a lot and build. Perhaps you want a farm. If you come in and let us go over a list that we have of some of the most desirable property in the Northern Country.

INSURANCE—LIFE

If a man needs life insurance he cannot afford to delay putting the contract in force. Statistics show that a man has eight chances of dying to one that his building will burn, and no prudent merchant will delay, even for a day, protecting his building and merchandise against fire.
