ARRESTS NEAR FOR ROBBERY

Revolver Found in Snow May Lead to Identification of Bandits.

C. A. Carlson, aged 65, was confined to his home, 325 South 14th street, yesterday as a result of the injuries he received Thursday night in a struggle with two armed bandits who held up and robbed his gasoline service station in South 8th avenue.

Police officers, working on the case throughout the day, said last night they were confident they were nearing a solution and predicted that arrests would be made before the end of the week.

Pistol Found.

An automatic pistol and a red bandana handkerchief, left by an unnamed man, believed to have been one of the bandits, in a snowdrift in an alley in the 400-block, South 9th street, was exhibited yesterday and it was intimated that the weapon probably would lead, at least part way, to the identification of the thieves.

The gun, it was declared, undoubtedly is the one which the bandit fired at Mr. Carlson. The empty cartridges found in the filling station were the type such a gun would use.

May "Break" Soon. Important developments in the investigation were expected momentarily last night, but Chief of Police John J. Toian declined to discuss the nature of the additional evidence held by the department.

SELECT NAME FOR ORCHESTRA THIS EVENING

Bink's new orchestra, which plays at the North Star hall tonight, will probably be sailing under its new name after this evening. The orchestra has offered a prize of $10 for a name. More than 100 names have been submitted for consideration and a name will be selected and the winner announced at the dance tonight.

The contest for a name has stirred up deep interest and it is indicated that the dance tonight will be largely attended both by reason of the music to be furnished and the fact that the contest comes to an end.

YOUTHFUL JACKETS.

Jackets of bolero length, with round or Eton collars, are very youthful and are exceedingly smart.

LET'S PASS A LAW.

One of the interesting pieces of news coming out of the national capital is a statement that an Ohio representative has introduced a resolution in the house, making it a felony for a bootlegger to carry arms.

Which strikes us as being in the same class with that New York police order sent out following the Louise Lawson murder, instructing officers to "interview every bootlegger" in the city.

We don't know just what the Ohio man proposes to do in the way of enforcement. Of course the first thing would be to make an appropriation. But we mean, after that, supposing a man is found totting arms. Is it going to be necessary to prove he's a bootlegger before he can be convicted?

The thing has us all fussed up. Maybe we're off in our logic or maybe our vision is blurred, but there's something distinctly exciting to the risibilities in both situations.

Its an even bet that Ohio Congressman is so cautious and thorough that he wears both a belt and suspenders.

By all means, let's not let bootleggers carry firearms. But let us not interfere with the manufacture or sale of firearms. Let's make a bootlegger stamp his dollar so the firearms dealer can recognize it and refuse to sell to him.

It might not be a bad idea to compel bootleggers to wear some distinctive badge, or have them all cross-eyed, or branded with a flaming arrow. Something ought to be done about it. Let's pass a law. That ought to scare 'em.

Mr. Dun's interesting review tells us "business" still moves along conservative lines and with continued irregularity, but with definite progress in some quarters.

We have no doubt that James R. Garfield's appointment to act as an oil prosecutor, succeeding Silas H. Strawn, by the Soo News, will come as a great surprise to that gentleman.
