(Continued From Page One) minutes before order could be restored. A number of states refused to join in the demonstration, and in two or three delegations, where sentiment was divided, there were tussles between delegates who sought to take the standards of their states into the parade and those who sought to prevent it.

When quiet had been restored Mr. Johnston concluded his speech and former Governor Charles H. Brough, of Arkansas, presented the name of Senator Robinson. He was applauded from many parts of the hall and the Arkansas delegation stood on its chairs and cheered, but there was no effort at a prolonged demonstration.

It was impossible to estimate how many delegates took part in the hour's demonstration. Among the marchers were many who wore no badges to identify them, and a group of those gathered in front of the speaker's stand kept whooping it up for McAdoo after most of the delegates were back in their places. The band, too, and a group of McAdoo boosters stationed in the gallery, carried the demonstration along for a time while most of the rest of the hall was quiet.

Klan and League Prove To Be Hard Platform Planks

(Continued From Page One) tee adopted a plank denouncing the Lausanne treaty with Turkey, which is yet to be ratified. An agricultural plank embodying the Curtis-Aswell bill but going beyond that, also was approved. Besides declaring for governmental stimulation of cooperative marketing, it proposes revision of the tariff; reduction of rail and water transportation rates, and establishment of an export marketing cooperation or commission to aid the farmer and to obtain for agriculture equality with other industries.

Late tonight the planks agreed upon provided: Law enforcement, omitting specific mention of prohibition. A federal corrupt practices act. Federal regulation and control of the anthracite coal industry and of other corporations or combinations controlling the necessities of life.

Immediate independence for the Philippines. Enactment of legislation to prohibit the "watering" of stock. The agricultural relief plank was taken up late in the night. Senator King had drafted a plank along the lines of the Curtis-Aswell bill for creation of a great national marketing organization.

At midnight Chairman Cummings issued a statement saying: "We have been discussing in addition to the corrupt practices act, the Lausanne treaty and some planks in regard to women, and provisions regarding postal clerk's wages. We are tentatively preparing planks on all these subjects. The women's plank contains nothing of material importance."

"The league of nations is in status quo. The sub-committee expects to report to the full committee at about ten o'clock tomorrow. "If we find that we are not harmonious on any crucial subjects, we may prepare alternative plans for submission to the full committee."

TAKE GUNMEN TO DETROIT

After close questioning of the suspected men in the county jail yesterday the detectives reiterated their conviction that the quartet are members of a gang which "pulled" recent bank robberies, payroll holdups and murders in the Michigan metropolises.

Mixed In Murder? One of the crimes with which it is thought they were connected, was the murder of a Mr. Lambert, prominent Detroit business man, who was held up and fatally shot when he walked out of a Detroit bank carrying, in his pocket, a large amount of money which he intended to pay to a contractor who was building a palatial residence for him. When Lambert, on the command to get into the gunmen's automobile, started to take off his coat, he was shot in the back. Mortally wounded, he was dragged into the car. The gangsters drove the car a few blocks away and parked the car in an alley. They took the money away from Lambert in the car. Lambert managed to get out of the car and stagger a short distance before he collapsed on the sidewalk. He died a few hours afterwards.

Smith Men Plan To Outdo Party Given McAdoo

(Continued From Page 1.) of the unofficial commission which was there called the "Davies report." His appearance here may be the beginning of an effort by the Democrats to challenge the Republicans for claiming the results of the commission's work as a Republican achievement.

Strategy Unchanged. The strategy between the various candidates shows little change or progress tonight. The chief value of the McAdoo demonstration was that at least four hundred delegates participated in it. He has about two hundred more who will ultimately vote for him after "favorite son" ballots have been taken. Until McAdoo's strength has been taken from him, which may be the case after ten or fifteen ballots but which has not yet been assured, the chances of the other candidates are zero. McAdoo may be forced out of the race in the end but his delegates did not act today as if they would desert him even if they had to stay in session all summer.

It is expected about 250 more will register next week from Detroit, as the Detroit public schools do not close until the end of this week. If the Detroit enrollment is as large as is expected, the total enrollment for the session will be larger than for any previous summer school.

Nestos Leading In North Dakota

(By The Associated Press.) Fargo, N. D., June 25.—Governor R. A. Nestos, seeking re-nomination on the Republican ticket, with the support of anti-non-partisan leaguers, was leading his league opponent, A. G. Sorlie, in early returns from today's North Dakota primary election. These returns were principally from admitted anti-league strongholds, including the larger cities and other territory in the first congressional district, where the independent voters association, the anti-league faction in the Republican party, has its greatest support.

MISHAPS KILL MORE THAN WAR

That Is The Record Of The American Navy.

BY LARRY BOARDMAN NEA Service Writer. Washington, June 25.—More than twice as many navy men have been killed by accidents since the armistice as died in action on American ships during the war. For the World War years, 1917 and 1918, the total was 467. With the disaster on the battleship Mississippi June 12, the post war toll reached 981. During the war, the navy lost 10 vessels—a cruiser, a gunboat, a submarine, a collier, two destroyers, two trawlers and two yachts.

Since the war it has lost nine—eight destroyers and one tug. Indeed, peace-time tragedies in the American navy always have been frequent and formidable in proportions, both as to numbers and the amount of damage done. A list of outstanding accidents for 20 years: Turret explosion on battleship Missouri, 1904; killed 31. Boiler explosion on gunboat Benington, 1905; killed 34. Turret explosion on battleship Kearsage, 1906; killed 6. Turret explosion on battleship Georgia, 1907; killed 6. Bursting of boiler on cruiser Tennessee, 1908; killed 5. Blowout of breech block on cruiser Charleston, 1910; killed 8. Boiler explosion on battleship Delaware, 1911; killed 8. Rammings of destroyer Woolsey by a shipping board vessel off Panama, 1921; killed 16. Loss of naval tug Conestoga in the Pacific, 1921; drowned 43. Point Honda disaster, 1923, in which, through a wrong charge in his course, the commander of a destroyer squadron piled seven vessels on the rocks of the southern California coast; death toll 22. Turret explosion on battleship Mississippi, 1924; killed 48. QUERY: What, if anything, is the matter with the American navy? Why are accidents numerous? Faulty construction or material? Or carelessness or deficient training, on the part of personnel? The answer, as responsible Navy Department officials give it, is this: "Of course, there is a specific cause for every accident. A court of inquiry may put the blame either upon material or personnel. But the very officials who fix the blame know there simply must be a slip once in a while." As for the Mississippi disaster, the prevailing belief in naval circles is that compressed air failed to clean out the bore of the exploding gun—a bit of smoldering waste remained in the barrel, and ignited the powder charge prematurely. HOME TRADE IS VITAL TO TOWN

Buying At Home Builds Up Prosperity Of Community.

The chief argument in favor of home trade is the fact that it not only rebounds to the benefit of the resident in the adjacent trade territory which is a part of every community but pays in dollars and cents. Every dollar sent away to build up business in some big city is just that much taken away from the resources of the home community.

All the people will only figure on the incidental costs and consequences occasioned by sending out of town for anything that can be purchased in their home town they will readily see that it pays to trade at home. It is customary to ignore such items, but they are there just the same and are part of the cost of the goods that are purchased in that manner.

For instance the cost of a trip to the city hotel bill, time wasted away from employment, goods bought that are not really needed, higher prices actually paid for the goods on account of the enormous overhead of the big city stores. All this means cost and must be charged up against the purchases if one is honest with oneself.

In case of mail order purchases there are money order and postage fees, express or freight charges, time wasted and delay in waiting for the goods, annoyance of exchanging the goods that do not fill the bill, or that do not measure up to the grade expected—these and many other charges of like nature should honestly be figured up against the purchases. If this is done the quality of goods compared to the cost will be found that it is a case of trying to lift yourself by your bootstraps. There is no easy way to secure goods for a less price than they can be supplied for by the experienced business man of Escanaba.

Perhaps nothing is studied any closer than the retailing of merchandise and you can safely figure that your live home merchant working hard to secure the best of merchandise to place before his customers at the lowest possible figure consistent with sound business principles. And on this day of keen competition there are few business men who do not run close to the danger line in fixing prices that will attract trade and meet competition anywhere.

It is only necessary to use common sense in dealing with these problems. The field is open to all who may wish to enter any line of business, and if there were big profits to be made that condition would not last for every opening for business is carefully searched out, and competition has reduced everything to the level of lowest possible prices.

On another page of The Press will be found the special advertisements of business men of Escanaba who are interested in getting the facts of the value of home trade before the people.

NARROW ESCAPE IN AUTO WRECK

Bloomstrom Family Has Unusual Experience In Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor K. Bloomstrom and three sons, Ellis, John and Joseph had a miraculous escape from death when they were returning from Cincinnati, Ohio, Wednesday morning. They had gone to accompany their two sons home, who are students at St. Francis Seminary at Cincinnati, and left Danville, Ill., at an early hour Wednesday morning, expecting to reach Rockford by night, when they met with a serious accident near Watseka, Ill. A car which preceded them, driven by Dr. E. C. Sites of Indianapolis, Ind., suddenly turned in the road ahead of them without the driver giving the proper signal which caused the Bloomstrom car to swerve to the edge of the road and went over the embankment. The car turned completely over, pinning the occupants beneath it. Mr. Bloomstrom, who was caught by the neck under the car, was able to speak and he called each one of his family by name. All answered with the exception of John who was so badly crushed that he was unable to cry out.

Ellis was the first to crawl out from under the car. He raised the car a bit but was unable to do so alone. The occupants of the other car helped him and Mrs. Bloomstrom was dragged out. When the men let the car go down again it pinned Mr. Bloomstrom still tighter as the car sank lower in the ground. More tourists came along and finally after ten minutes or more of agony Mr. Bloomstrom, John and Joseph were pulled out. John suffered a fractured collar bone while the others are badly bruised, scratched and very unnerved.

Dr. Heinlein, of Watseka, Ill., attended to their injuries. The driver of the other car hurried on to Indianapolis. Mr. Bloomstrom located the brother of the Doctor who drove the car and he admitted that he had not signaled the car behind. They finished the journey to this city by rail, arriving Wednesday morning.

The entire party in the car was not instantly killed seems like a miracle. They were driving slowly when the accident occurred. The car was taken to Watseka for repairs and will be brought back to this city when finished.

Pretty Wedding Ceremony Ends School Romance

Among the interesting June weddings was the marriage yesterday of Miss Rhea Marie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Carr, 1402 Hartnett Ave., and Mr. Harry J. Ehnerd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ehnerd, 405 So. 11th St., which took place at eight o'clock at St. Patrick's church, when Rev. Fr. J. Mockler was the celebrant at the nuptial high mass and who pronounced the words which made them man and wife.

Mrs. Ramspeck played Lohengren's wedding march as the bridal party entered the church. The bride looked charming in a gown of white canton crepe and Chantilly lace with tulle veil arranged in cap fashion fastened with a bunch of valley lilies. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and baby breath. The bridesmaid, a cousin, Miss Anna Carr, wore a gown or orchid georgette with hat or corresponding color and carried Ophelia roses.

The little flower girl, little Ethel Charibols, wore a beautiful and dainty dress of sheer white organdie with pale pink chiffon bow at the back and on her arm she carried a basket of pink and white sweet peas which she strewed in the path of the bride who entered on her father's arm.

The bridegroom and best man, Donald Fillion, entered the church from the right side of the sanctuary and took their places before the altar which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, ferns and lilies.

During the mass Wm. Ramspeck sang "Oh Promise Me," and Mrs. George Casey sang "Ave Maria." Mendelssohn's march was played as the party left the church.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents where covers were laid for ten guests limited to the immediate relatives of both parties.

They left for a motor trip to Wisconsin, Illinois, Washington, D. C., and New York. They will be at home at 312 So. 15th St., after August 1st.

NEW CHEVROLET CAR ON DISPLAY

L. K. Edwards Co., Receive New Model Yesterday.

Automobile dealers throughout the country are reporting, it is said, an amazingly strong demand among motorists this Spring for color in cars, and special or sport equipment.

To meet this demand quickly, the Chevrolet Motor Company has added to its standard line of cars a new model—the Touring De Luxe—which L. K. Edwards, Inc., is now displaying in their showrooms on Ludington street.

Referring to this addition to the line, Mr. H. D. Brackett of the L. K. Edwards Company, says:

"The new Chevrolet Touring De Luxe is not only a smart looking car but the manufacturers have put really startling values into it. At its price it cannot be compared with anything approaching it in engineering quality, finish, special equipment, and appearance. "The chassis is identical with that of the powerful, economical standard Chevrolet Touring. The body is hand finished by Fisher in gray-blue, with cardinal triple stripings, the steel disc wheels being given the same color treatment. It has special gray top lining to harmonize with the finish, and ornamental door handles. The upholstery is in gray-blue whale grain Fabrikoid. Additional special equipment includes full nicked radiator shell, nickled bumpers front and rear, plate glass windshield wings, motor-meter and nickled cap with bars, cowl lamps, rubber-covered running boards with aluminum guard plates, and steering wheel with lock and nickled arms.

"The effect of the special finish and equipment is to give this car long lines, and the beauty and snap of a high-priced custom-made automobile, but with a much greater eventual trade-in value because it is a standard Chevrolet."

It must be nice to be running for vice president and know you won't be noticed for the next four years if you win.

Don't worry if daughter comes home from swimming looking pale. The water has washed off the rouge. That's all.

It must be awful to work in a bank and count so much money and get so little of it.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Piffle Hook

THE HEART of this column goes out in sympathy to the parched-tongued citizen who believes that if Al Smith is nominated by the Democrats, the brewers of the nation will be reopened by July 1. Such optimism may be comforting, but it packs no other wallop. The Democrats will write a wet plank into their presidential platform about the Hon. Prof. Goddard's muchly-advertised rocket lands on the well known moon. The delegates will proceed to partake freely of the liquid hospitality, which we are informed is bountiful in the convention city, and then continue to vote dry. So that, we stake our reputation as a prophet, which, we should say, is considerable staking.

"A newspaper reporter," remarks Hindu Mike in green ink on pink note paper, "is a person who goes around town asking everybody: 'Whata news t'day?' Everybody replies: 'Nothin' at I know of.' Whereupon the reporter returns to his cell and writes three or four columns about it."

SIR: Just saw a woman who was wearing two golf balls in her cheeks. My curiosity, of course, prompted me to ask her the reason. 'Unable' to speak without swallowing the balls, she wrote on a piece of paper: "I'm trying to get rid of these darn dimples. They're a dead giveaway."

STATE SENATOR BOHN.

It is a distinct pleasure to the Escanaba Press to call attention to an action of the state administrative board in which Dr. Frank P. Bohn, state senator from this district, was paid a most gracious and well-merited compliment, through the adoption of a resolution which provides that the Upper Peninsula trunk line highway, M-12, shall hereafter be known as the "Bohn Highway," in honor of the man who so ably represented this senatorial district in Lansing during the last legislative session.

It means something. It means that Senator Bohn is recognized by the state administrative board, which acts for the entire state, as one of the big and vital influences and factors which is prominent in shaping the destinies of the commonwealth. It means that Dr. Bohn has used his talents and his influence with a fairness and wisdom and sincerity of purpose which has wrought for the good of all the people as well as those of his own district. It is an honor to be represented in the legislative halls of this state by a man whose power and forcefulness and wisdom of heart and mind are so recognized that one of the state's most important highways is named in his honor—and without his seeking. For the senator did not have a part in securing the honor.

Delta county people who were fortunate enough to meet him personally, immediately liked Dr. Bohn. They liked his big, generous, broad-minded outlook on life and on things political and were impressed by his plain, old fashioned honesty. They were glad to learn that they had not judged the man. Mentally and temperamentally, Dr. Bohn has proven one of the big men of the senate and there never, at any time, has been an occasion when anyone questioned his sincerity of purpose or gave thought to an ulterior motive on his part.

It is Senator Bohn to whom the credit is due for the establishment of the state-owned ferry. For years it had been talked about. People said it couldn't be done; that it wouldn't be practical, and politicians feared it as a dangerous rock upon which their frail bark might founder and go to pieces. But not so with Senator Bohn. He "diagnosed" the case carefully and came to the conclusion that the patient wasn't as sick as the general public had been taught to believe. So he set himself to curing the evil. Today we have the state ferry and everybody who is in touch with the situation is more than pleased.

Senator Bohn, incidentally, was one of the strong, consistent and unwavering supporters of the "Escanaba Plan" for a more equitable distribution of the primary school funds of the state, a plan under which every child will have equal opportunity for an education. Nor has he abandoned the fight. On a recent visit here, Dr. Bohn let it be known that the "Escanaba Plan" would be one of the major efforts of his next term in the state senate. That's another thing about him—when he puts his hand to the plow, he plows a straight furrow.

When elected, he moved to Lansing, bag and baggage—made it his home and was on the job from beginning to end. There were no absences, no occasions for any fond and the senator was always found ready to go to the front for his constituents in any worthy cause.

We have reason to believe that the school bill will be enacted in conformity with the "Escanaba Plan" at the next session of the legislature, and Senator Bohn will be one of its ablest, most talented and most zealous supporters.

Knowing these things, it is but natural that we should feel deeply on the subject of paying this man the kind of an honor he has just received at the hands of the state administrative board. He's a man who gets things done, and that's what we desire in this part of the country.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

THE OLD HOME TOWN

"Proud Of His Wife"

BY JANE PRELPS.

LOIS LONGS FOR THE OLD TEAM WORK WITH ALAN Chapter XXXIX.

"I thought it would seem the same," Lois said when she told Alan of her day's visit to the old home, "but it didn't. Everything seemed different, even the people."

"Of course it did! You've outgrown those days, Lois. We all have. I don't see why you bothered to go over there at all."

She had intended to tell him of her reactions, of the place, her thoughts, but his lack of interest silenced her. He might think her foolish, sentimental. So she let the chance to open her heart to him slip by, the opportunity to let him know something of why she had been unable to feel happy in the new life as he believed her.

But the visit, the disillusionment, had done her good. She took a more personal interest in her home than ever she had before, asserted herself a bit more. This was her home, and she would be its mistress hereafter. She consulted with her housekeeper more often, even went so far as to make suggestions to the cook, and in many little ways changed all the help. Not yet did she forcibly assert herself, but gradually she became more of a factor in her own home. At first this was resented, but not for long. She was kindness itself to those in her household and they were wise enough to realize her right to require respect and obedience from them.

Alan did not notice. As far as he knew the house had always run smoothly, and it ran smoothly still. But when some old-fashioned dish that he particularly liked ing his easy adaption made her almost ashamed. She hated to put the inferiority she felt into words, to belittle herself to him.

She had stood by when he needed her, yet she feared to ask the same of him. Theirs had been teamwork in the old days, now each went it alone, in their changed life—seemingly unconscious of her need of him—alone in the deeper things, their thoughts, their confidences.

She felt that people pitted Alan for his marriage to her, that they thought her a drag on him. An occasional remark overheard, more often looks, chilled her. She didn't belong; she couldn't adapt herself.

Alan loved people and she, at times, hated them. She hated them, she hated their hectic, pleasure-loving lives; their talk of money and style. More than all she hated their steady and increasing absorption of Alan. She longed so to have him all to herself once in a while, and never did. She didn't object to Alan's popularity, she rather enjoyed it, was proud of it, and of him—but not to the extent of giving him up entirely to his admiring friends.

The two boys were her greatest comfort. Their letters were a joy. They were doing well, were happy and contented to stay with her and had been more affectionate than ever before, had praised her and shown their love, in many dear ways. And Alan, seeing her delight in them, had not made engagements for those days but had been with them, interested in them and their new interests. But as soon as they returned to school he had taken up his usual manner of living, filling the house with guests or accepting invitations.

Tomorrow—Alan Adds Fuel To The Flame.
