REGRET.

BY CELIA THAYER.

Sweet Death touched her and the passed away
Out of this glad, bright world she made more fair.

All that fresh delicate beauty gone from sight,
The house is empty, though we more
Hast the house be emptied of her?

What shadows on the threshold she passed over!

She loved me. Surey I was grateful, yet
I could not give her back all she gave me—
Even I think of it with vain regret,

Musing upon her, "good by" the sea;

Remembering troops of pretty girls who pressed
About me, clinging arms and tender eyes,
And love, like sweet of roses. With the rest
She came to all my heart with a sweep.

The day is over, and saluted with gray sky
With rain or the calm, soft, soft gray sky
They waved farewell, she followed me, to say Yet once again her winsome, sweet "good by."

At the boat's bow she drooped; her light green dress

Swept o'er the drift in many a graceful fold,

Her glowing face, bright with a mute curse,
Crowned with her lovely hair of shadowy gold;

And tears she dropped into the crystal brine
For me, suddenly, as we drove by.

Free from the misery of death, no more,
Held me still, the mighty crowd among,

O dear memory of the dead I hold
So precious through the frost and dangers of years!

Went to live till time itself grew old.

The sad world would be sadder for those tears.

RAILROAD FLIRTING.

A Stolen Kiss for a Pocket-Book.

"Katonab!" shouted the brakenas, passing the car door as the train passed for a pleasant station on the Harlem rail-

I do not know that I should have partici-patedly noticed that we stopped so late, for

I had been napping for several miles, but as I was driving an energetic, sleepy look of the windows, settling my self for another siesta, my attention was attracted by the entering of a young lady,

a way passenger, who, perceiving the car

wielded, paused before me in evident embarrassment.

I scarcely wish the reader to infer from this that there were no vacant seats; on the contrary, the chair I occupied was safely monopolized by my shawl and mantle, which had excluded many an applicant;

and when the door opened, I mentally resolved not to budge an inch; but a glance at the new comer changed my mind.

She was a young lady of exceeding beauty, dressed in the rich and tasteful style of the present fashion. Whether it was not gentle aspect or the soft melanholie of her impressive eyes, I cannot say;

but she ventured, almost timidly, to inquire if the half seat by my side was "engaged." I gallantly arose and professed it to her at once. I must acknowledge that I felt somewhat flattered by her companion,

so, though a young man, and tolerably good-looking, I had sense to perceive that there were other ones around, who, like me, might have shared their chaff with the handsome lady stranger. I fancied they envied me too, as the fair girl sat plump down and her dainty form nestled close to myself.

"I fear I have disturbed you," said my companion, in a low, sweet voice that thrilled me with its cadence.

"Not at all, Miss," I rejoined, with stereotyped politeness. "I am so happy to oblige you."

She bowed and smiled reply, and then a short pause ensued, as is usual upon such sudden acquaintanceship. In the meantime the train had started and we rattled swifly through the fields and woods, now decked with the lively tints of Spring.

The conductor came in and went his cus-tomy routine of examining the tickets.

I purchased mine for New York, and after some hesitation, I said:

"Then go to the city?"

"Yes," she replied, with a smile of winning candor; "that, I presume you have already found out."

"I shall keep your company, then," I observed pleasantly.

"Thank you, sir."

There was a slight dignity, I thought,

in her tone, which repelled further familiarity, so I was a very modest man, I drew back and said nothing further.

On rushed the steam engine upon its iron pathway. One more station had been passed, and I was rapidly losing into my former apathy, when my lady friend, to my surprise, leaned toward me and whispered.

"I am so timid on the cars."

"Indeed," added my companion, with naively, "it is so unpleasant to travel unactustomed; I usually have my brotch, charlie with me; it is a splendid ese . . ."

"If you will allow me," said my specially, "I will gladly occupy that position."

"I am much obliged to you, sir," replied the lady, with a grateful glance from her dark orbs; "yet I am accepting the escort of a stranger—not that I fear you, sir; but also! I have a jealous father."

"A jealous father?" I replied, somewhat perplexed and surprised.

"Ah, yes, said the young lady; "it is my mother while having weak health, and almost everything the heart can wish, to be under the tyrannical control of an old step-father, who treats us as chattels with a pitiless rigor, and keeps me up in the dreary confinement of my chamber, and treats me with a pitiless rigor, if I do not speak as speak or look at a man."

"What a monster!" I ejaculated, with a face of melo-dramatic sympathy.

"That is the reason," she continued,

looking around, "why I am so difficult about intrusting myself to your care, but I do it on one condition."

"Name it?" I rejoined, charmed and delighted with the strange confidence the young lady was giving me.

"That you will leave me the instant the car reaches New York."

I was so bewitched by the beauty and charming innocence of my new friend, that I readily gave the desired pledge; apparently quite relieved, the young lady threw aside all reserve, and talked and chatted to me in the most pleasant manner. It is needless to say that in an hour's time I had so far advanced into her good graces as to venture to press her hand, and the sweet and half coquettish smile that played around her cherry lips, did not seem to disapprove the liberty I had taken.

"Do you know," said she, as we sat talking confidentially together, "that I liked your face the first time that I saw it."

Inow Sums.—The Philadelphia Press says that "Capt. Eber Ward, whose name and life are inseparably allied with the interests of labor in the west is about to establish a yard for the building of iron ships for the lake trade. Milwaukee has been chosen as the site for the new ship yard, and $600,000 will at once be put into the enterprise. This great establishment must not only powerfully stimulate business along the Wisconsin lake front, but in time its work will revolutionize the whole trade of the lakes."

FREE TRADE MOVES.

The New York Tribune publishes the treasurer's statement showing the financial operation of the Free Trade League; since January 1, 1850, and the sources from which the funds have been drawn for carrying on their campaign against protection to American industry. We have had frequent occasions to note, what we believed to be the truth, that the importing ring, that is to say, those who make their money out of the American people by importing and selling to them foreign goods, were at the bottom of the crusade against tariffs, and that the free trade papers and lecturers were, whether consciously or unconsciously, whether voluntary or as hired agents, the tools of that ring of importing capitalists! This document shows as clearly as anything can that we are right in our charge that the free trade agitation is kept up by the importers and solely in behalf of their interests. They handle annually about five hundred millions of dollars in foreign trade and make their profits out of that on the American people. They are not satisfied with that, the tariff stands in the way of an entire monopoly of American markets; they want the bars let down so that they can step in tax-free with the cheap-labor products of other countries, and compete on that vantage ground with the labor and manufactures of this country. They are wot to talk savagely about monopolies in manufactures, just as though there could be any monopoly in any business where all are free to compete; but in the sense in which they use the term "monopoly," where is there another wealthy monopoly on American ground as that same importing ring? Now let us see what they are doing. From this treasurer's statement it appears that the free trade league had on hand, January, $8,834.32, and has received in subscriptions since $49,160.50, making the funds of the year thus far $57,954.82. Who have furnished this money? The following list shows who contributed $21,500 of it.

Stewart Brown (Bryan Boutelle & Co.) $2,000 Mahan Sands, Central Importer of Drugs and Secretary of the Free Trade League $500
Charles Marshall Black Ball Line of sailing vessels $500
Robert B. Munro (London Line of Packets) $200
A. & C. Constantine & Co. Importers of dry goods $100
H. W. Richmon (Importers) $100
Duncan Macmillan & Co. (London packers) $100

Then there are twenty-three subscriptions of $500 each, all but five of which are by importers or foreign bankers; thirty-two of $250 each, all but nine of which are of the same classes; and then a long tail ranging from $200 down to $25, at least three-fourths of which are made by the same classes of men. Not $5,000 of the whole sum is subscribed by those not directly interested, if not actually engaged in foreign traffic. The next question is what have they been doing with that fund?

Spend in paying agents and lecturers, supporting the Free Trader, paying expenses of public meetings, and in printing and circulating 250,000 tracts and other documents $10,600.12 of it, and had on hand, Oct. 1, a balance of $24,225.70, according to the Treasurer's report. These figures are suggestive. By a study of the sources of its support, we have a pretty accurate indication of who are most interested in and expect to reap the benefit of the adoption of the policy of free trade. It is the importing ring. American farmers, iron workers, cotton and woolen manufacturers, dealers in domestic goods exclusively of any description, American artisans or mechanics do not figure in the list of subscribers to this fund raised for the purpose of breaking down the tariff and letting loose upon American industry the competition of foreign paper labor. Are we to find that they cannot see from the logic of these facts alone that the free traders are seeking, not the interests of the American people at large, but the interests of an aristocracy, of the importing ring, as directly opposed to the protection of domestic enterprise and production.—Grand Rapids Eagle.

ANOTHER VICTIM.—As one of the forty boats came over from Windsor, Saturday night, a drunken man fell overboard and was lost. It subsequently transpired that the man was one Andrew Kelly, a baker employed in a bakery at Windsor, and having a mother and sister in this city. We have known this poor fellow for several years, and his life, thus so lamentably terminated has been almost one unceasing career of tippling. He made several attempts to reform, but alas, the tempter, had him too firmly bound in the fatal grasp. Will not his comrades take a warning from his terrible fate, and change their ways?—Detroit Commercial Alchemist.

TERMS FOR PAPER.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman, planted a few acres of turnips which were large enough to begin to feed the first week in July, when they were fed to pigs. No other food given until the last week in September. Not but of pigs could have done better, growing and keeping in good condition all the while.

GRATUITOUS TICKET OF THE PORT.—A correspondent of the Horticulturalist states that he succeeded perfectly in grafting a scion of the tomato upon the potato vine. He cut about one-third of the potato shoot off, just above the leaf, taking care not to injure the bulb at its base! The scion being shielded from the sun, was every day sprinkled with a little water, and it took readily. In the fall the tomato was loaded with ripe and unique fruit and had grown to a large size.

A speck of war! The British lion roars and ungallantly shuns his mighty tail toward the Queen of the Antilles! The Spanish authorities in Cuba have seized and executed three British subjects, and a new "Cuban demonstration" may be made shortly from figures cut by Great Britain and Spain. The Cuban Republicans, whom President Grant advised not to erect a Cuban republic in New York, are invited to the size of balloons over this latter piece of intelligence, and Alibio's wrath may cause a blowing up all around.

THE BAVARIAN PROPOSITION.

All prophecies contain the details of the proposition of Bavaria as to the conditions of a union with North Germany, which have already been hinted at as creating much opposition to Prussia. From the full legal text we can deduce the more important general provisions, a perusal of which will show that Prussia has yet much to do before the union of Germany, under the domination of the Hohezollerns, shall be accomplished.

The proposal provides, among other things, that Bavaria shall form a constitutional union with the North German confederation, which shall hereafter be called the "German Confederation;" the constitution of the North German Confederation of April 16, 1867, shall form the basis of the new constitution. To this constitution shall be added clauses embracing substantially the following additions and modifications: Bavaria shall have six votes in the National Council; in the Military Council of the Confederation Bavaria shall at all times have a representative appointed by the King; the President of the National Council shall at all times inform the Council of the course of diplomatic proceedings, of the danger of foreign wars, of the conclusion of alliances, or of preparations for the restoration of peace; in all peace negotiations subsequent to a national war, the kingdom of Bavaria shall have a representative in case of a foreign invasion, or of an assault upon the coasts, war may be immediately declared, but in all other cases may not be declared except by the consent of the sovereigns of at least two-thirds of the kingdoms or governments embraced by the Confederation; to the National embassies at Paris, Vienna and Rome, there shall be attached a Bavarian counselor of legislation, who shall be considered an officer of the Bund, and who shall have all the privileges, and perform all the duties, of such officer; the Bund shall not impose national taxes upon brandy or beer in the kingdom of Bavaria, except in the Palatinate, although proper efforts shall be made to render taxation uniform; taxes and customs shall otherwise be regulated by the usage of the custom's union; the Bund shall not constrain railroads in Bavaria except with the consent of that country; the regulations of the North German confederation with respect to the mails and telegraph shall not apply to Bavaria; in the appointment of consuls Bavaria shall have her proportion and her wishes shall always be consulted; the King of Bavaria shall determine the uniform of the Bavarian troops, although in general the terms of the military treaty shall have application; Prussia shall agree not to declare Bavaria in a state of war, except by the consent of that power; until a national appeals court shall be created offenses against the finest shall be determined by the laws of Bavaria; a two-thirds majority shall not authorize a change in the constitution in cases where Bavaria is in the minority.

The sure, steady and rapid growth of the village of Escanaba, is the best guarantee for its ultimate success, and I feel assured that its increase in the future will be greater than it has been in the past, believing that a small beginning has the greatest chance of success.

The extension of the C. & N. W. R. R. Westward in Marquette county, the establishment of Factories, Foundries, &c., the early building of Railroads Westward to the Minnesota Iron Range, and the erection of new and old docks, mills, Planing Mills, &c., all point with increasing vigor to an increase of business and population.

We have on hand business and building lots, excellently few, many of which have been sold, and are prepared to dispose of those at fair prices and on liberal terms, to parties buying for the purpose of improving.

The village has recently been incorporated by the Board of Supervisors, and contains about 1,100 inhabitants, with five General Stores, one Hardware store, one Jewelry store, two Wholesale Drug stores, one Drug store, one Tailor shop, one "Mail" market, three first class ones of which are in the Upper Peninsula, and five second-class Hotels, one Liquor store, one Harness shop, two Cabinet and Carpenter shops, two Bakers, one Bakery, one Photographic Gallery, one Printing Office, and several Saloons; besides the R. R. Co.'s Royal house, Machine-shops, &c. They are also Presbyterian and Catholic Churches, a good School, and a considerable amount of literary culture for a place so young. In this and many other respects it challenges comparison, and it can be imagined fairly also that there are few places in any that have grown up so rapidly to which a gentle man can go with his family, and have the advantages of education and social intercourse that he can find here.

To all therefore who are in search of a good business point, a rapidly growing village, and one that is certain to continue so, we say come on, and we will welcome you with open hands to hospitable homes.

Winter commenced in earnest in the vicinity of Negauke on Monday night, and snow fell to the depth of one or two inches. In these southern latitudes we have as yet had no indications of winter, and are enjoying a splendid season of Indian summer.

The leaves on the trees are rapidly dying, and they are leaving their elevated positions and seeking more earthly quarters. The death is natural, and not an account of frost. It will be remembered that the woods were clad in green several weeks earlier this season than usual.

NEGUAKE Oct 18.

On Wednesday evening last James Plunkett opened his new billiard room, which is without doubt the handsomest one on the Peninsula. The interior of the building has been overhauled and refurnished throughout. We have been shown a potato raised on R. D. Elliott's farm, which will beat the one that beat the "big potato" we spoke of a week or two ago. They have one over the bay that won't go in a barrel—of course not, unless somebody puts it in.

A RELIC OF BEN FRANKLIN.—Every visitor to a printing office is more less curious as to how the types are plated in position, and they invariably want to "feel of it," the consequence being a "p." Over the entrance to Franklin's composing room was this "warning," for the benefit of meddlesome visitors, probably written by Ben himself.

"All who come this wondrous art to see,
To touch and handle must cautious be.
That you may not damage them,
Let this suffice to give to every stranger,
Look on and welcome but to touch where danger."

The Democracy of Delta County held a Convention at Judge O'Malley's office on Thursday last and nominated the following ticket:

Proceeding Attorney—E. P. Hayes
County Treasurer—F. Langley
County Clerk—T. Killian
Sheriff—Patrick Farrelly.

Circuit Court Commissioner—F. O. Clark
Coroners—J. C. Cheever and Wm. Donsey
County Surveyor—John Wier.

The county nominations are now made, and it is left for the people to decide who shall be elected to fill the various county offices, both parties have nominated strong tickets, and the contest will be a sharp one. May the best men win.

France and Germany met on board the bark Louise the other day, and the result was a friendly engagement. The decks were cleared for action, and the combatants "met" for each other for about 20 minutes in a very energetic manner, both parties sustaining considerable loss of blood resulting in a victory for France, Germany graciously acknowledged the "crown" and France was forgiving, they shook hands, and concluded on the whole that it was a very severe way to settle little difference of opinion.

The second of the series of socials instituted by the Good Templars of Escanaba will be held at John Semer's Hall on Tuesday evening next. These socials are for the purpose of getting together, becoming acquainted with our neighbors and for passing away an evening pleasantly by innocent amusement. Some games have been gotten up for the occasion, and a charade will be enacted entitled the "Gamblers Warning." Tea, Coffee and Lunch will be served during the evening gratis. Let us have the hall well filled and we promise you a good time. Admission free.

The Dunlap sprang a leak on her return trip from the Bay on Thursday last, which necessitated her going to Chicago, and going in the dry dock. The leak is, we understand under the wheel house, and very difficult to get at, besides being a bad one. A number of passengers were disappointed by this occurrence as the Captain reluctantly refused to take other passengers or freight on board. She left here Friday morning and expects to get back by the latter part of next week. The Saginaw will in consequence double her trips.

A BRUTAL ASSAULT AT THE FURNACE.—On Sunday last a very brutal assault took place at Fayette, by which a sailor was almost killed, the deck of the schooner New London Capt. Stone, master, being the scene of action. A sailor belonging to the crew and a young boy, also belonging to the vessel, by some means got in a quarrel, in which neither would have been injured.

The mate of the vessel, a brute, unscrupulous of the name of man, grasped a handspike and with all his force struck the sailor two powerful blows on the left arm, breaking it in several places, the third blow taking effect on the man's temple, and knocking him senseless to the deck. Some of the citizens who witnessed the scene spoke to the captain of the mate's cruelty, and he replied by threatening to blow their brains out. This caused no little excitement among the villagers, and the captain was informed that such threats would not be tolerated, and, seeing the folly of his unkindness, sought to make amends by apologizing to Mr. Rhodes. The just indignation of those who were witnesses of his brutality, frightened the mate, and in fear of the law, left the vessel and concealed himself in the woods, where he remained till late Saturday night, when he returned and took the vessel from the dock and maneuvered her out of reach of the authorities and soon after set sail for Cleveland taking the injured man along. Dr. Sloan attended the suffering man and dressed his wounds, which are of a serious nature, the still sustaining a very severe fracture, and his recovery is thought to be doubtful. The conduct of both mate and captain is inhuman throughout the whole affair, and should certainly not go unpunished.

Rev. Wm. Mahon of the M. E. Church will preach at the School House to-morrow at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

We were absent until Friday Evening of this week, and our readers are indebted to our foreman, J. L. McLaughlin, for the various items, jokes, &c., herein contained.

Why is the sanctum of a certain up-lake newspaper like the stock yards of a large city? Because there, there doth hold high carnival.

We learn with pleasure that our friend D. F. Wadsworth Esq. has received the appointment of Cashier of the Scandinavian Bank at Ishpeming.

To what strange uses have Editors been put, is the way the Menominee Herald mentions our visit in the capacity of Marshal. We may have to arrest the Editor of that paper, one of these days, as an un-stamped bear trap.

To Mr. A. C. Darling the bachelors' tache of this office is indebted for a very beautiful bouquet of flowers, composed of a very large "oxcomb" and evergreen. Mr. D. has our thanks, as he has also those of a friend, who is taking care of it for us.

The Republican representative convention at Negauke, on Tuesday last, nominated Benjamin W. Wright of Ishpeming, for the legislature. Mr. Wright is at present manager of the Cleveland company store at the Cleverland Mine.

EARTHQUAKE.—On Thursday morning last there was a slight shock of an earthquake felt in this village by persons who chanced to be in the upper part of their houses and we understand that the same shock was felt in Marquette.

E. S. Forsyth, Esq., Agent of the Smith mine, called on us to-day on his way below to purchase supplies, &c., for the mine. He reports everything all right at the mine, and that the vein in the new opening on section 18 continues to look more favorable as it is worked on.

MUSICAL.—Prof. Gordon of Marquette writes us that he will be here next week, for the purpose of organizing a singing class. He is known as a man of fine talent and we hope our citizens will embrace the opportunity offered for giving their children a musical education.

A RAID.—For some time past it has been known that there was a large deposit of iron ore a few hundred feet south of the track of the Pen. Division where it passes the Plover furnace, and on land owned by C. T. Harvey, but the trouble has been to find and how to approach the owner. Messrs. Bratting and Houghton received the necessary information about the same time, and started for New York city with an expedition, and the latter gentleman reached this office just 20 minutes after the former had received a 15 years' lease of the property. Work is to be commenced immediately.

CASUAL IN THE U. S. CONN.—This County had two causes before the above court at the present term, and Menominee one. Thomas Burch was found $350 for trespassing on government lands on Pininsul Point, and Thomas Lannaghan will receive sentence for violating the U. S. laws in regard to furnishing liquor to the Indians. Jessie Hamilton, of Menominee, was fined $82 for cutting pine on government lands. The government are determined to prosecute all offenders with due diligence hereafter.

"Je Hospiat!"—Such was the involuntary exclamation of ye local the other day, as Mr. E. P. Barnes came into our sanctum with presumption starting from every pore, puffing and blowing like a huge locomotive, while a smile of triumph beamed over his usually pale countenance, as he deposited it in the hold of the Captain of the steamer. The mate, a brute, unscrupulous of the name of man, grasped a handspike and with all his force struck the sailor two powerful blows on the left arm, breaking it in several places, the third blow taking effect on the man's temple, and knocking him senseless to the deck.
