IT will be seen by his letter that we have lost Dr. Mulliken. We expected it when he started to spy out the land of Colorado, and are not surprised although we regret his decision. The letter (extracts) from Capt. Shepard, formerly of the Mary Jarecki and City of New York, gives the reason why such men like the southwest.

A LETTER from Mr. Moore, the president of strong, will visit Escanaba on August 19, and remain here over night. Arrangements will be made for the board of the party during its stay, but it will be neccessary that our citizens open their homes to give the members quarters for the night. FRANK BROWN, a seaman belonging to the teambarge R.J. Hackett, was drowned, just outside the merchants' dock on Monday afternoon last. With another man he had come over from the ship, which lay at the ore dock, after supplies, and was returning, sculling the boat, when the oar with which he was at work stroped from the chock and he went overboard backward. He made some effort to save himself, but being unable to swim sunk before his mate could get the boat back to the spot, and did not come to the surface again. His body was recovered two or three hours later, by dragging ; Coroner McFall held an ance with the facts, and the captain of the Hackett took charge of the body and sent it to Amherstburg, Ont. There was no whisky in this case the man was not a drinker. THE case of the U. S. against Cota, for selling liquor without a license, came up this week. It was submitted on the evidence and the charge of Judge Withey, without argument by counsel on either side, and resulted in Cota's conviction. This settles the "Tonic" decision is just.

The court fined Cota $341, which sum he proposes to get back from Reed, who guaranteed him immunity from the laws, both of Michigan and the U.S.

MICHAEL HARRIS has been appointed postster at DeLoughary and the office will be ntinued. Mike Is a little less belligerent than he original appointee-won't care to tackle at once the postoffice department and the Northwestern railway-and there will be peace.

At midnight of Monday, arrived the De Pere, in place of the Oconto, having been deained by fogs. The officers and crew of the Ocould transferred, so while we have a new and much nicer boat we do not lose our old friends. The De Pere is not new, but the rebuild she has had makes her look like new

WE DID not know (nor, we imagine did our neighbors) until lately that the N. Ludington company and the town company were different and distinct organizations. Such, however, is the fact-the N. L. Co., which owns THE Ed Kelley discharged 101/2 tons of the mill at Flat Rock, and is managed by the Hon. I Stephenson, having no interest whatever in the town property. The fact that Geo. T. Burns is agent for both gave the idea that the companies were the same.

Some slight touches of improvement, directed and superintended by Mr. Ludlow, the patentee, put the coal derricks in shape, and is that it will not be sold even then, but that the Tilden was discharged by them on Wed-Mr. Clark will arrange to clear the title an? nesday. Some more improvements are indicated and in progress, but the derricks are already a success. The thing wanted, now, is familiarity with their use-skilful men at the brakes. A great deal of coal is to be handled here, and the machinery will be

ONE of our northern neighbors is open-eyed it's "big load" of ore taken by the David Dows from Marquette. It consisted of 2.057 gross tons, but did not equal a load taken by the Magnetic, the Republic company's barge, which was 2,172 gross tons. Good loads, both, but the biggest is 300 tons short of the since our residence here. The walks under the ore-docks were two to three inches under the City of Cleveland and the City of Rome, and has been exceeded by the Chisholm and the Ranney. The biggest of 'em don't go through the St. Mary's river.

THE handling of "high explosives"-the the American Charcoal Iron workers, conveys | preparations of nitro-glycerine used in the the intelligence that the association, some 150 mines-over the Merchants' dock, in close proximity to the business part of town, endangers both property and life, and the city council should take some action concerning it. The stuff must be had and must therefore be handled, but some place should be provided for the purpose where an explosion, should one occur, would be less destructive to life and property than at the Merchants' dock. There was enough "Hercules powder" discharged from the Kelly on Sunday evening last to have blown Sand Point as bare as it was twenty years ago, had any accident ex-

Boys, youngsters, of ten to twelve years of age, sons of respectable parents whose precept and example, each and both, should have denew walk we saw another thing, a Brunsvigia, terred from the practice of any such vandal ism, destroy and carry off the plants from the cemetery and in other ways deface or injure the grounds. On Monday last, four of them attempted to hack down one of the gate-posts, were seen and identified by the custodian of the place, and were only saved from punishment by the reluctance of the directors of the cemetery association to inflict pain upon their parents. There can be no object in their doings-it is pure boy cussedness, but it must be stopped, by this caution if this will do it or by such more severe measures as it may be necessary to adopt. Take our advice, boys,

ORE shipments to date of reports aggregate 875,605 tons. Last year at even date 1,370,-257 tons, a falling off of 494,652 tons. Of this shortage 70,889 tons is in the product of the western or Menominee mines and 423,763 tons in the product of the northern mines: shipments from Escanaba are 245,778 tons less than in '82, from Marquette 250,223 less, is a good one, and while we did not agree to and from L'Anse 1,349 tons more. The amount of ore from the northern mines going out through Escanaba this year is 167,444 tons against 342,333 tons last year.

A RENEVOLENT looking gentleman visited and inspected the jail on Friday morning. As he said the visit was a duty to be discharged instead of the gratification of a curiosity or the pursuit of pleasure, we take it that he was an official of some sort.

-We learned, later, that the gentleman was Mr. W. J. Baxter, secretary of the state board of correction and charities. He went south from here to see about the jail at Me-

A LETTER, addressed to a lady resident here by her brother who resides at Stratford, Ontario, gives a graphic description of the scenes of the late flood in that vicinitytreams out of banks, low-lands overflowed, oridges and houses carried off or destroyed and women and children afloat on the dwelings and drowning, by scores; a ghastly spectacle. Following the floods came fevers, and the death rate, especially among women and children, the weak and young, is high. The letter had neither address nor signature, except "Dear sister" and "Your brother," so we can give no names.

WE WISH it distinctly understood that there s a complete job printing office in connection with the IR N PORT, and that it is in the hands of a man who knows what to do with t. We do not do any work at Chicago prices any more than you sell dry goods and groceries at Chicago figures, but our rates are in porportion to yours. Remember this, business men, and when some agent for an out-side job office (which is starved out of its own town) comes around with his soft talk, use him as you would a peddler in your own kind of goods. Everything we cat, drink or wear as bought in Escanaba, of our own business men, and we think it no more than fair that we should have the Escanaba trade. That's all

MR. JAMES CLEMENT AMEROSE, a corres-pondent of a publication called the Christian Statesman (because it carefully avoids both christianity and flatesmanship, we suppose) refers to our city thus: "the sand-logged little city that lives by shipping ore from rail to lake, without any monopoly on piety"-and that's about the only truthful paragraph in his letter. We do not know exactly what he ment by "sand-logged"; we doubt very much whether he knew himself, but we do live by handling ore, most of us, and we have no monopoly of piety, though if we had it would be no hardship to Mr. Ambrose-he has no use for the article-couldn't write letters to the Christian Statesman if he was hampered by a system which insists that "thou shalt not bear false witness." A "monopoly on piety" might perhaps be a handy thing to ship ore with but it is a matter he has nothing to do

AND L'Anse, too, has a pestiferous newspaper that wants water-works.

Dixon will get into his new residence about the first prox., and the new parsonage ? will be ready a month or six weeks later.

THE little fishing tug, Maggie Lutz, which was here last week, has a history. She was the first boat built for the purpose of fishing, propelled by steam, ever launched on Lake Michigan. Capt. John Lutz built her, in the winter of '68 and '69, at Sheboygan, and put her into service the following spring. The Captain tells us that she paid for herself by her earnings during the first three months she

P. N. CARDOZA finished his business career in our town and turned over the "boss store" to the painters to be fixed up for occupancy by Burns' millinery establishment, vesterday. Nahma,

THE Nahma White Stockings and Garden Bay club crossed bats again on the 22d for the second time and a large crowd was in attendance to witness the game. The grounds being very rough and stony there was some very loose fielding done on both sides. Due credit is extended to the Garden Bay club for the iosistality and courtesies shown the Nahma club, and they have the han' of friendship always extended. The game opened with the Garden club at the bat and some very sharp and exciting fielding was done whoth clubs considering the ground. The butting of the Nahma club, was unusually heavy, securing no less than 25 base hits off of the pitcher of the Garden club while only 13 safe hits could be secured from the pitches of the Nahma club and the Nahma boys proved a little too much for the Gardenites. The umpiring of Mr. Ias. McCarty was impartial in every ressect and held the game down to the merits of the players on both sides. The score will show that the Nahma boys out-played and out-batted the Garden club all around. The heavy hitting of Cam, Steele, Markle and Sadler, of the Nahma club, was excellent. The following is the score of runs and outs of Meeting an old farmer recently whom he had known in his youth, the old fellow congratulated the gallant colonel on his youthful appearance and the surprising way in which he held his own. "How is it you've managed to keep so fresh and good looking all these years?" quoth he. "Well," said George, "I'll tell you. I've always drank new rum and voted the Democratic ticket." NEWCASTLE, IND., July 20.—For several years past reports and rumors in regard to a gigantic snake disporting himself in the near vicinity of town at various times have disturbed the even current of the good folk's lives hereabouts. About noon to-day Clark Hosher, a highly respected citizen of our neighboring town of Spiceland, arrived in town with a blood-curdling account of an interview with the monster occurring on the road about half a mile from town. A battalion of well-armed citizens was hastily organized and pursuit instituted. The horrid reptile was discovered in a piece of thick woods full of underbrush. It took after a boy, and while in the act of gobbling the youngster was shot twice by Elwood Pleas, editor of the Newcastle Mercury, who put both loads from a double-barrel shotgun into it, and also by a darkey, who fired five shots into it with a revolver. The "critter" was brought to town, and now lies stretched out in front of the Mercury office, where it is an object of intense interest to the curious crowds who throng about it. It measures 18 feet 9 inches in length, and girths 4 feet from the eyes, 22 inches; dark dun color on back, shading to dirty color on belly; small eyes, and no fangs or teeth discernable. During the hnnt Dr. H. B. Alexander, of this town, in climbing a fence, was thrown over a bank about twenty feet high by a rail breaking under him, badly injuring his jaw. The snake may have escaped from some menagerie in times past, though no such incident is remembered as occurring in this vi-

"FERRUM," in the Menominee Range gives the following as to iron ores, which seems to us worth copying. It is, at least a pleasant contrast to the senseless vaporings of the "Professor" whom we have agreed not to laugh at

There are several hundred minerals containiron as an element, but only four ores. Hematite, (red hematite, specular ore) .-Color, brown, blue, brown or red; when powdered is always red; very soft, to very hard. When perfectly pure contains exactly 70 per cent. of metallic iron, and 30 per cent of oxygen gas. No hematite ore can contain more than 70 per cent. iron, and usually contains less. 2. Magnetite, (magnetic ore, loadstore).—Color, black; powder black; generally very hard. Contains, when pure, 72.5 per cent of iron and 27.5 per cent of oxygen. 3. Simonite, (brown hematite, bog ore), has the same composition as hematite, except that it contains 14.5 per cent of water, 60 per cent of metallic iron and 25.5 per cent. of oxygen gas. 4. Liderite, (spathic ore, chalybite).-Color, yellow to brown, powder, white. This mineral is a combination of 48 per cent, iron and 52 per cent carbonic acid gas and oxygen. The value of an iron ore depends, 1st, upon the percentage of iron. 2d, the amount and kind of impurities. Those of importance are silica and its compounds, Titanic acid-usually found in magnetic ore. Above 5 per cent. makes the ore almost worthless. Phosphorus. This is by far the worst impurity in iron ores. For bessemer steel the amount must not exceed 7 parts in 10,000 of ore. Alumina, lime and magnesia. These are not objectionable except for refining pig iron ("fix ore").

PITTSEURG, Pa., July 21 .- The failure of the Manchester Steel and Iron company for $500,000 Friday has had little effect on the on trade here, chiefly because the event has been expected for months, and secondarily because the list of creditors are nearly all in the east. In the iron trade, however, business is at a standstill, and the slack time is being taken advantage of to make the necessary annual repairs. At Hussey, Howe & Co.'s the puddling department was closed this week and will remain so for about two months. The fini-hing department will be closed on the 28th of this month to make the annual repairs. Schoenberger's Iron works will reman closed after next Saturday for three weeks to make necessary repairs. At present the puddlers are working double time on five heats. The Cable Iron Works of Zug & Co. are undergoing some extensive repairing. New foundations are being built. A new engine is also being added and a train of 10-inch rolls. The Wayne iron works of Brown & Co. are also closed. The outlook for the fall trade is regarded as very promising by both iron and steel manufacturers. More than a dozen new railroads will be put under contract in this state before the end of August. The different coal-carrying companies have ordered in the aggregate 10,000 new coal cars and additional locomotive power in proportion. The Pennsylvania railroad company s adding six engines per week to its present supply and have placed a large order with the Baldwin Locomotive Works. The Reading company has given an order to the Baldwin Works for thirty engines to be built within the next six months, and it has its own shops engaged upon new locomotives. The Baldwin works now employ 2,800 hands, and will turn out 240 engines during the next six months. This activity in railroad building is accompanied with renewed inquiries about rails. The Bethlehem Iron company last week received an order for 1,000 tons, and the Cambria Iron company expect several large orders. The Edgar Thompson works, the Pittsburg Besse-mer Steel company, and the Pennsylvania Steel company are in receipt of nutrierous in-quiries aggregating about fifty thousand tons, which, when turned into orders, will keep them comfortably busy and add to the stabil-ity of the iron trade.

HE WAS only 12, but he picked up a pocket-b ok with $10 in it, and with the rashness of youth started in for a grand debauch. He laid in $2 worth of cigarettes, and then commenced sampling the lemonade at the bridge entrance. As everybody knows, there is a wild profusion of brands at that place. He tried them all. By this time he was excited and reckless, so he bought a quart of green apples and two decayed bananas and sat down on the Astor house steps to enjoy them, and then went and had some clam-chowder. After this he proposed to go up to High Bridge and smoke cigarettes for a week. But he was in-tercepted by the coroner at Eighty-sixth street, who took out of his clothes two pistols, a quart of peanuts, six raw tomatoes, one paper of chewing tobacco, four pounds of damaged gum drops, six tickets for a dime museum, three new iron pocket-knives, a clay pipe, a dime song book and a pair of bathing pants. He was reported as a case of cholera infantum -but it was only extravagance.-New York

IN KEEPING with its midsummer holiday character, the August Century contains an unusual number of short stories and striking illustrations, as well as poems and articles adapted to summer reading. The number of fers, in addition to the most entertaining part yet given of Mr. Howell's "A Woman's Reasthe first part of a stirring romance called "The Bread-winners," which will run through six numbers of the magazine. The scene of the story will be recognized as a flourishing city on lake Erie. It is anonymous to the ed itor, as well as to the readers of the magazine, the author's dealings with the editor having been carried on through a third person. Hu mor is the characteristic of the short stories, which comprise "The New Silk Dress Story," by James D. Hague; "The New Minister's Great Opportunity," by the author of "Eli" and "The Village Convict;" and another group of Joel Chandler Harris' "Nights with Uncle Remus." The frontispiece, and an admirable essay by Henry James, have to do with the leading French novelist of the day,-Alphonse Daudet,-whom Mr. James places at the head of living writers of fiction. One cannot look at the portrait of Daudet's sensi-tive and romantic head without caring to know what Mr. James has to say about the man and his stories; and after reading the essay, one feels less surprised that the author of "Les Rois en Exil" and "Numa Roumestan"-two intensely modern stories-should in outward semblance suggest a Provencal troubadour born after his time. G. W. Prothero contributes an art essay, richly illustrated by engravings of ideal pictures and portraits, upon the works of "Mr. Watts at the Grosvenor Gallery," John Burroughs has an admir-ing and judicial word to say of "Carlyle," apropos of the reminicences and letters, including those of Mrs. Carlyle.

"Bob White, the Game Bird of America," is the subject of the first illustrated article. It is by Prof. Alfred M. Mayer, of the Stevens Institute of Technology, who is also a "scien-tific" sportsman, and who gives practical suggestions for shooting "quail"-a misnomer, as the writer shows, for the bird which has acquired the popular and fitting name of Bob White. In "Under the Olives," Mrs. Bian-ciardi describes the olive culture in southern Europe, and gives interesting information regarding the successful efforts to grow olives in California. A humorously illustrated article is Robert Adams, Jr.'s description of "The Oldest Club in America," the Philadelphia Fishing association, known as the Stree in Schuykill, which resembles the London Beefsteak Club. In "The Present Condition o the Mission Indians in Southern California (profusely illustrated), II. II. concludes her historical sketch of priestly devotion to the aborgines and of governmental neglect and injustice. The poetry of the number includes five "Songs of the Sea," by different writers, accompanied by a full page engraving, "The Rock in the Sea," by Elbridge Kingsley, which was drawn with the graver; two pages of "Love Poems by Louis Barnaval," edited by Charles de Kay; a page of Poems," by Robert Underwood Johnson; "The Voice of D. G. R." (Dante Gabriel Rossetti), by Edmund W. Gosse, and other poems. "Topics of the Time" discusses "Caucus Reform," "Vicarious Benevolence," and "Vagrant Par-Among the "Open Letters" is a resons." joinder to Oliver Johnson's letter in the Century for May, by Prof. Leonard Woolsey B: - con, who asks, "Did 'Abolition' Abolish?" The August "Bric-a-Brac" comprises an amusing satire, by Frank R. Stockton, on anonymous authorships, entitled "The Author of "The Lion and the Lamb," and a variety of bright and humorous verses by H. C. Bun ner, Walter Learned, Parmenas Mix, George A Hibbard and Frank Dempster Sherman.

Special Notices.

Are articles of such common use that almost every man feels an interest in their manufacture-a desire to know what he is getting when he buys. In this connection and to satisfy this desire, we looked, a day or fwo since, through the manufactory of Jager & Loell, at the corner of Wolcott and Thomas streets, and this was what we found there: ten men at work upon "Daisy," "Good Stock," and seven other brands of cigars, and turning out from 50,000 to 60,000 each month, though the factory was only established in February last. The two brands of cigars named differ only in size and price, each consisting of Havana filler, seed-leaf binder and Sumatra wrapper, and selling at $60 per thousand for the "Daisies" and $55 for the "Good Stock," and we venture the assertion that no equally good cigar can be bought for the same money of any foreign dealer-nothing approaching them of any traveling salesman. The firm employs two-thirds of its men on these two brands, but can supply a cheaper cigar (of which they make seein brands) at prices to suit any trade. Our readers, such of them as buy cigars, would do well to call on or address Jager & Loell, Escanaba.

Marvelous Cure of Stene in the Bladder—Large Stones Removed by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy."
From the l'ittsfield, (Mass.) Eagle.

Stone in the Bladder is a very dangerous ailment; but many most remarkable cures have of late been wrought by "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy"—the invention of Dr. Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y. Another straking case is how added to the list. Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., states in a letter to Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with bladder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond tem-

SALICYLICA is known as a common-sens edy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rhei-matism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the facts. Fit has been conceded by eminent sci-entists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect or SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid, and so removes the disorder. It is now ex-clusively used by all celebrated physicians of Amer-ica and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

Remember

Dr. Kennedy that he had been troubled with badder complaint for 14 years, and had consulted at different times seven physicians; but nothing beyond temporary allayment of the pain had been worked. Towards the end-of last January Mr. Lawier called on Dr. Kennedy. Sounding the doctor "struck stone." He decided that Mr. Lawier should first try the "Favorite Remedy," so as, if possible, to avoid an operation. And here is the remarkable result: "Dear Doctor Kennedy." The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. If you would like to see the stones I will send them to you." This letter bears date "Dalton, Mass., Feb, 6th," and is signed "Peter Lawler." The stones, which are so large as to warrant for "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" the claim that it is the most successful specific for Stone yet discovered, are now in Dr. Kennedy's possession. Incidentally Mr. Lawler also states that the "Favorite Remedy" at the same time cured him of a stubborn case of Rheumatism; and it is a fact that in all affections arising out of disorder of the liver or urinary organs it is a searching remedy and works marvelous benefits. It is in itself almost a medicine chest. Order it of your druggist. Price $1.00 a bottle, that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMA-TISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most in-tense pains are subdued almost instantly. Agrice it a trial. Relief guaranteed or money refunded. Thousands of testimonials sent on application.

But do not be deluded into taking imitations or substitutes or something recommended as "just as good." Insist on the genuine with the name WASHBÜRNE & CO. on each box, which is guaranteed chemically pure under our signature, an indispensible requisite to insure success in the tryatment. THE Chicago market for pig iron has really improved a trifle both in demand and price. It's not a great rise, but it is something, and iron producers are in a frame of mind to be thankful for the smallest of favors.

HANLAN beat Ross, easily, at Ogdensburg on the 18th, coming home a quarter of a mile ahead in a four-mile race. He made fast time though, doing four miles with a turn, in rough water, in 27.571/2, beating the best previous time in such a race 91/4 seconds. There's but one oarsman in America, if in the world, that has the ability to beat Hanlan, and he won't do it if he can make twenty-five cents more by giving the race away, and the one man is Charles E. Courtney.

THE iron ore from the Philadelphia Co.'s immense mine on East Fork, Ketchum, Idaho, known as the Iron Clad, yields 90 per cent. of pure iron. The famous Iron King of same company yields from 75 to 90 per cent., and there are large iron ledges all over the country, some developed and some new locations, that yield from 40 to 75 per cent .- Chicago Min-

JUST as every one at all familiar with the circumstances expected, the "great bridge" across the East river, connecting New York and Brooklyn, proves a financial blunder. After the curiosity of the people was satisfied they stopped using it, returning to the ferries. The receipts of the bridge which were $10,-000 a week for the month after the opening, have dwindled down to $2,500, and it is not earning enough, or anywhere near enough to pay the interest on the bonds issued by the two cities to provide funds for its erection.

SomeBody has found out that of the (presumably) 4,000,000 "young men" of America, "3,200,000 never enter a place of worship." Somebody infers from that, that the human race is going to the bow-wows at once, and we have only a word of advice for somebody, to wit: make your "places of worship" attractive. The human race is getting too old to be scared-too brave to be driven. Drop your old-time fallacies and come up abreast of the age if you would retain your influence. For priests the world has no further use, but it will never cease to need or to appreciate teachers. Dogms is dead, teason only lives,

WE'LL forgive the Free Press almost any legree of cussedness in politics as long as we remember the backing it gives the operators in their struggle with the Western Union. It stands by "the boys" in spite of the inconvenience to which it is subjected, as if their cause was its own.

A NEW oil-field has been discovered near Rich Hill, Bates county, Missouri, and it is to be energetically developed. Mr, Cowles, President of the Standard, takes hold of it. The "oil-sand," or the porous sandstone in which the oil is every where found has been struck at a depth below the surface of 1,000 feet, and a big "boom" is in progress.

THE Western Union magnates are calling each other pet names-Gould tells Eckert that he is either a fool or a liar (he is both)-and the public is pressing them hard. The men have only to hold out, and behave themselves so as to command the respect as well poor jockey that "blows" his horse before the as the sympathy of the public, and the company must come to their terms. H. G. SEDGWICK, the Methodist preacher who volunteered to help the Western Union against the operators, in a letter to the Milwaukee Sentinel, justifies himself by his friendship for Manager Weller. Too thin, Mr. Sedgwick. Manager Weller has no interest to save. The public will hold you a friend of the oppressor, or one whose greed takes no account of justice. Take your choice.

Tom Eckert, general manager of the Western Union, was "a liar from the beginning," and he comes out grandly in his telegrams concerning the strike. His position demands a giant mendacity, and his native talent and long practice qualify him as no other man of the organization is qualified. The gentlemen ought to chip in again and furnish the house and stock the larder and cellar, and notify Barney Hart that Phil's account with him will be guaranteed. "THE boys have got 'em." The big money man, Gould, and the big wind-bag, Eckert, take Sherman's vacant place, and of course he are by the ears, and the apostle of soft soap Dr. Green, is not at hand to lubricate things. We subjoin a clipping from the telegrams of Tuesday night last:

To-day the trouble culminated in an angry interview between Jay Gould and Gen. Thomas T. Eckert, the acting president of the company. The interview came about accidentally when the two men met in a corridor of the Western Union building this morning, and a trustworthy informant states that it began by Mr. Gould's asking in a tone that indicated both chagrin and anger: "Mr. Eckert, when is this thing going to stop? It is costing me money in Wall street, and we are losing thousands by the hour here."

Gen. Eckert appeared to be taken by surprise, and began to explain that business was moving along in the operating room, when he was interrupted by Mr. Gould with the interected remark: "Yes, it's moving along-like freight train.

Gen. Eckert attempted a reply, but was again cut short by Mr. Gould, who is reported to have said t. "Gen. Eckert, I don't want to ay that you are a fool, or a knave, but what can I think? Either you did not know the stuation well enough to keep us posted, or be I must think that you have been playing

There was an ugly look upon the faces of both the men at this juncture, but their further talk was lost to the public by Gen. Eckert's Mrt Gould into the president's elegant and closing and locking the door. The handsomely dressed colored servitor who carrally attends in the president's room, even during confidential interviews, came out very hurriedly a moment later, and as he arranged his swallow-tail coat and white necktie, remarked casually: "Looks squally in

"An Apache, in full war paint, stalked into an Indian school at Albuquerque, N. M., one day. The children were immediately terrified, and tremblingly told us he was a 'bad Indian.' They said an uncle of one of our boys had for revenge. As it was dinner time I saw nothing better to do than to have the children marched into the dining room, as usual. We keep open house to Indians at all times and year them as distinguished quests, so I mooned to our Apache to take a seat at the table. He sat down, terrible in his war paint, and laid two loaded revolvers on the table before him. The children began to tremble. I summoned all my courage and said: 'Put those revolvers on the window.' The Apache never moved. The cook placed before him a cup of coffee and a bowl of soup. Take away that coffee and soup,' I commanded, with my heart in my mouth, adding, to the Indian: 'You shall not have them until you put those revolvers on the window.' Frem-bling for her life, the cook obeyed. When the Apache saw his dinner removed he deliberately arose, picked up his revolvers andshall I ever forget that terrible moment?quietly laid them on the window. His dinner was restored to him; he ate it in silence, and then picked up his property and walked out without a word."

If the United States will adopt the schoolmaam's tactics and carry them a step furtherdisarm the Indian and then tell him to earn his food or starve, the Indian question will be settled. If he starves, well and good. If he works and lives, it is well.

THE M. H. & O. railroad company's oredock at L'Anse all but fell down last week, but was braced up and is still doing service. So, at least, says the Sentinel.

IT appears to be an off year at the summer resorts as well as among the mines. There are only 200 people at Mackinac, at a date when there are usually a thousand, and the proportion is about the same at Harber Springs, Petoskey, Charlevoix and the other summer places.

IF THE telegrapher's strike does but open the eyes of Mr. Gould to the true value of the inflated wind-bag whom he has made general manager of the telegraph he controls, it will not have been in vain, whatever else may result. If the boys break Tom Eckert's neck they will have accomplished much.

ONE Mr. Sedgwick, a Methodist preacher, of Elkhorn, Wis., formerly a telegrapher, volunteered his services (for a consideration, of course) to the Western Union monopoly at Milwaukee. The strikers say of him:

"It says in the Bible that you can't serve two masters," remarked a prominent citizen yesterday morning, "but it seems that this Mr. Sedgwick can, or at least that's what he is trying to do at present."

It is rumored that Gen. Hazen, chief signal officer, contemplates ordering his men, such of them as are telegraphers, into the Western Union offices. He has no right to issue such an order, and he will seriously compromise his own standing if he does it. He can have a mutiny if he wants one, but he can not drive the men of the signal service into any such position as that indicated.

JOHN KELLY, big injun of Tammany, will support "Cipher Sam" for the democratic presidential nomination. So, at least, says the New York Star, and Irving Hall is alarmed. Tammany has heretofore opposed and Irving Hall supported Mr. Tilden, and if Tammany changes front Irving must. The democratic platform is not wide enough for both to stand upon it. Tammany has voters but Irving has the wealth and "all the decency." As to brains they can call a "stand

THE government is trying the experiment of setting the Indians to stock-raising. The Arapahoes and Cheyennes are the tribes now used for the experiment, which is said to promise favorably. If the rascals can be turned into "cowboys," while not much will have been gained, the possibility of change will have been determined and further experiments can be tried. It may be found practicable to make a Kilkenny cat business of it between the white and red cowboys and so get rid of both.

CAPT. WERE, the English champion swim mer, attempted the passage of the rapids and whirlpool of the Niagara river on the 24th and met the fate that everyone except himself anticipated-he was drowned. He passed the rapids, beneath and below the railroad bridge, safely, keeping in the middle of the stream, but upon entering the whirlpool was carried to the right (or American side) where the waves ar 30 to 40 feet high and lost sight of. His body is still in the whirlpool. The affair was a failure financially as well as nata-

EDGAR OTHO CRESAP ORD, who died of yellow fever, at Havana, on Monday last, was born in Allegany county, Md., in 1818, and was therefore 64 years of age. He graduated at the Military academy in 1839 and was assigned to the 3d artillery, serving continuously until he was retired last year. He took part in all the wars, Indian and other, occuring during his term of service and made a creditable record in each. He was a major general of volunteers during the war of the rebellion, and on the reorganization of the army in 1866 was promoted to a brigadiership therein. He leaves a widow and ten children not well provided for, we fear, as the Genera was too good a soldfer to be a money-maker His eldest daughter is the wife of General Trevino, of the Mexican army.

THE following is the latest from the Pitts-

A better feeling obtains, and furnacemen not only look for an increased demand in the near future, but are hopeful of better prices The demand for immediate use is light as a number of the mills are stopped taking stock, but it is intimated that there are a number of consumers who, being apprehensive of an ad vance, are disposed to anticipate future wants. As stated in our last report, it appears to be generally conceded that the market has touched hard pan, that its downward course has been arrested and as a natural consequence, buyers are more disposed to buy and sellers less anxious to sell.

From Cleveland we have the following:

An upward tendency has been developed within the past few days, but the trade in gen eral has taken no alarm, and continues to sup ply immediate requirements at a slight in crease over June quotations. Grey Forge has been contracted for this week at $17.50, furnace delivery, to $18.50 the majority of the sales being under $18. Sales of iron above $18.00 were all special brands which are difficult to obtain, especially for prompt delivery. There is more confidence among pig iron men this week than for three months, and they look for a continuance of the present upward tendency until the opening of the fall trade in August. Quotations range from $17 to $19, but the special brands are not to be had. Some of the furnaces will blow in by the end of this month, and if the present tendency continues, the number will be still further increased during the month of August. The ore market is quite active in filling orders for future as well as present use. Furnacemen are beginning to talk of starting more furnaces and are buying ore in larger amounts than has been the rule heretofore this season. The ore already sold so far this year aggregates 1,600,000 tons, and of the sales by far the greater amount has been for immediate use. greater amount has been for immediate use. So that the inference is pertinent that the trade in this line will be large in the remaining months of the year. Lake freights are firm and tendency higher. Vessels are scarce and rates rule strong at $1.00 to $1.05 for ore From Escanaba and $1.15 for ore from Marquette while some vessel owners are holding for $1,20.

HOWELL, of the Ontonagon Herald, won't have it that Tim Nester's removal to Marquette is "a bad sign" for Ontonagon. All right, Charlie; you are on the ground and ought to know. For our part we wish you, your town and county all the good you hope for, except the success of the O. & B. R. steal.

MILLY COOMBS, a St. Louis heiress ,was in danger of drowning in the surf at Long Branch. One Whittlesey, a stout swimmer, saved her. Good foundation for a romance, and "a soft thing" for Whittlesey, for the heiress was willing; but he had a sweetheart already and stuck to her. ADVERTISING.

THE THEORY OF ADVERTISING: -USE THE-

NEWSPAPERS AND

KEEP AT IT. Some advertisers think that because an advertisement which appears to-day is not followed to-morrow by an appreciable increase of sales, the advertisement has done no good and the theory of advertising is false. Though it is perhaps impossible to nsert a notice that will not be read let any Didy nus put a three-line card, "Wanted-A Dog," in not to be expected that the moment a person casts his eye upon an advertiser's announcement he sets out for the advertiser's store. He my not at the time need any article in the merchant's line, or he may deal with another house. But if the representation is attractive he will almost inevitably, whenever he needs anything of the kind announced, turn to the paper where he saw the card and give the advertiser trial. The merchant should regard his outlay for dvertising as he would that for painting his building or putting up his sign-board-as a necessary charge upon the whole year's business, the effect of which is not to be perceived immediately. Men do ot sow wheat one day and harvest it the next. The man who has begun to advertise must keep on dvertising if he desires a continual increase in the volume of his business. He may keep a steady lientele of satisfied customers, but the chances are that some of these will be detached by seeing the advantages of other dealers persistently advocated He will certainly not attract new patrons. They will go elsewhere, just as they would seek another it locked and shutters up. Intelligent advertisers are learning to beware of the catchpenny, illegitimate mediums of advertising so much affected hitherto by dealers who thought that cheapness always meant economy, and that in the advertising department of any business the principles governing the conduct of the other departments no longer obtained. Messrs. W. W. Sharp & o., of New York, have already published some triking testimony given by the great merchants whose names are familiar in the mouths of American as household worlds. That of a leading thry goods house in New York is herewith presented :

" Of all the methods open to the merchant for advertising his business, an experience of nearly half a century enables us to unhesitatingly declare in favor of the newspaper. It is, without exception, the most economical, persistent, painstaking and suc cessful canvasser any business firm can secure for the purpose of bringing their goods to the attention of the consumer."

No comment upon this recital of experience is needed, further than to note that the firm, who write this have taken the sound, scientific view of advertising-that they recognize the necessity for persistence, and understand that the newspaper has done its duty when it has brought the advertiser's goods to the attention of the consumer.

That service will be rendered in the most attractwe and effective manner by the PEOPLE with presidential candidates will do well to go a little slow for a while. It's a poor jockey that "blows" his horse before the starter's bell rings.

THE ships Lawrence Delap, Col. Adams and Perseverance, lying at Harbeck's stores, Brooklyn, took fire and were burned, together with the dock and warehouse, on July 19.

FOR President in 1884 -Each reader is to fill the blanks to suit himself, and the probabilities are that each is as likely to hit the truth as Watterson, or Reid, or Dana, or Halstond.

THE Chicago market for pig iron has really improved a trifle both in demand and price. It's not a great rise, but it is something, and iron producers are in a frame of mind to be thankful for the smallest of favors.

HANLAN beat Ross, easily, at Ogdensburg on the 18th, coming home a quarter of a mile ahead in a four-mile race. He made fast time though, doing four miles with a turn, in rough water, in 27.571/2, beating the best previous time in such a race 91/4 seconds. There's but one oarsman in America, if in the world, that has the ability to beat Hanlan, and he won't do it if he can make twenty-five cents more by giving the race away, and the one man is Charles E. Courtney.

THE iron ore from the Philadelphia Co.'s immense mine on East Fork, Retchum, Idaho, known as the Iron Clad, yields 90 per cent. of pure iron. The famous Iron King of same company yields from 75 to 90 per cent., and there are large iron ledges all over the country, some developed and some new locations, that yield from 40 to 75 per cent .- Chicago Min-

Mineralogy will have to be re-written, that's evident, unless these folks have strugk a mine

JUST as every one at all familiar with the circumstances expected, the "great bridge" across the East river, connecting New York and Brooklyn, proves a financial blunder. After the curiosity of the people was satisfied they stopped using it, returning to the ferries. The receipts of the bridge which were $10,-000 a week for the month after the opening, have dwindled down to $2,500, and it is not earning enough, or anywhere near enough to pay the interest on the bonds issued by the two cities to provide funds for its erection.

SOMEBODY has found out that of the (presumably) 4,000,000 "young men" of America, "3,200,000 never enter a place of worship." Somebody infers from that, that the human race is going to the bow-wows at once, and we have only a word of advice for somebody, to wit: make your "places of worship" attractive. The human race is getting too old to be scared-too brave to be driven. Drop your old-time fallacies and come up abreast of the age if you would retain your influence. For priests the world has no further use, but it will never cease to need of to appreciate teachers. Dogma is dead, reason only lives.

IN SOME way, or by some means, the telegraphic monopoly must be broken down, and competition insured. The business of the country cannot with safety be intrusted to the custody of a single corporation, and left at the mercy of its whims or its greed,—Free Press,

Will the Free Press be good enough to point out some way (other than the one it declares against, viz. the government control) in which that end can be occomplished. The writer was for some years connected with the telegraph system -has watched its growth and development from '45 to the present timeand had a fixed impression that no other remedy exists. The tendency has been from the first toward a monopoly. WE'LL forgive the Free Press almost any degree of cussedness in politics as long as we remember the backing it gives the operators in their struggle with the Western Union. It stands by "the boys!" in spite of the inconvenience to which it is subjected, as if their cause was its own.

A NEW oil-field has been discovered near Rich Hill, Bates county, Missouri, and it is to be energetically developed. Mr, Cowles, President of the Standard, takes hold of it. The "oil-sand," or the porous sandstone in which the oil is every where found has been struck at a depth below the surface of 1,000 feet, and a big "boom" is in progress.

THE Western Union magnates are calling each other pet names-Gould tells Eckert that he is either a fool or a liar (he is both)-and the public is pressing them hard. The men have only to hold out, and behave themselves so as to command the respect as well as the sympathy of the public, and the company must come to their terms. Hold on,

THE Inter Ocean betrays its ignorance of the business of telegraphing in that it rebukes the operators for making a demand for increase of pay during a period of commercial depression. Periods of commercial depression -panic times-are harvest times for the telegraph company. Pat your thinly-disguised partisanship on a better basis, I. O. or keep

H. G. SEDGWICK, the Methodist preacher who volunteered to help the Western Union against the operators, in a letter to the Milwaukee Sentinel, justifies himself by his friendship for Manager Weller. Too thin, Mr. Sedgwick. Manager Weller has no interest to save. The public will hold you a friend of the oppressor, or one whose greed takes no account of justice. Take your choice.

Tom ECKERT, general manager of the Western Union, was "a liar from the beginning," and he comes out grandly in his telegrams concerning the strike. His position demands a giant mendacity, and his native talent and long practice qualify him as no other man of the organization is qualified. When a cheek of brass and a chrome-iron conscience is required Tom Eckert is the right man in the

WE HAVE always supposed that Elisha Gray, of Chicago, was the inventor of the telephone and that J. Graham Bell, of Boston, was the first to adapt it to the transmission of articulate speech, but now comes Professor Sylvanus P. Thompson (whoever he may be) and introduces one Phillip Reis, a German, insisting that he, and not either of our men, is the "original Jacobs." All right, if so. It was the Yankee that made the dollars out of it, anyhow.

WE'RE glad that the Chicago folks have given Phil. Sherdan a house at Washington. It would have been too bad had Phil been compelled to live in a tent when he went to take Sherman's vacant place, and of course he would have had to do so only for the thoughtful kindness of these Chicago gentlemen. His pay for the last seventeen years has only been $11,000 a year, and the cost of living at Chicago has used that all up, year by year. The gentlemen ought to chip in again and furnish the house and stock the larder and cellar, and notify Barney Hart that Phil's account with him will be guaranteed. Do the thing up, while you are about it, gentlemen.

The profits of the iron mines are hard to come at, but reference may be made to the Jackson, Iron Cliffs, Superior or Republic companies at the north, or to the Menominee or Penn companies at the west of us, and as to the copper, Kibbee gives the following:

A dividend of $3.50 per share was declared by the Quincy company on Wednesday last, payable on August 15, prox. Total dividends since January 1. 1883, $380,000. Total since July 1, 1882, $3,610,000 Here is a copper mine that has returned its paid-up capital ($200,000) to its owners eighteen times over, and is "doing so some more" right along. The Calumet & Heela has declared its usual quarterly dividend, payable August 15 to holders of stock July 14, making $1,-500,000 declared since January 1. Here is other copper mine that on a pay-up capital of $1,200,000, will have returned to its stockholders, by the middle of August next, 523.850,000, or nearly 20 times the amount of the original investment.

Grand total from Escanaba 610839 PORT OF MARQUETTE.

Total from L'Anse PIG IRON.

Total ore, pig iron and quartz AT Champlaign and Rantoul, Illinois, on July 18, hail fell which was said to be "as large as bricks." It was large enough and hard enough to go through roofs and sides of buildings like so many canon balls. Strangely enough, no loss of life is reported. "THE boys have got 'em." The big money man, Gould, and the big wind-bag, Eckert, are by the ears, and the apostle of soft soap Dr. Green, is not at hand to lubricate things, We subjoin a clipping from the telegrams of Tuesday night last: To-day the trouble culminated in an angry interview between Jay Gould and Gen. Thomas T. Eckert, the acting president of the company. The interview came about accidentally when the two men met in a corridor of the Western Union building this morning, and a trustworthy informant states that it began by Mr. Gould's asking in a tone that indicated both chagrin and abger: "Mr. Eckert, when is this thing going to stop? It is costing me money in Wall street, and we are losing thousands by the hour here."

Gen. Eckert appeared to be taken by surorise, and began to explain that business was moving along in the operating room, when he was interrupted by Mr. Gould with the interjected remark: "Yes, it's moving along—like a freight train."

Gen. Eckert attempted a reply, but was to have said: "Gen. Eckert, I don't want to ay that you are a fool, or a knave, but what can I think? Bither you did not know the ituation well enough to keep as posted, or lse I must think that you have been playing

There was an ugly look upon the faces of both the men at this juncture, but their further talk was lost to the public by Gen. Bekert's ading Mri Gould into the president's elegant office and closing and locking the door. The handsomely dressed colored servitor who generally attends in the president's room, even during confidential interviews, came out very harriedly a moment later, and as he arranged his swallow-tail coat and white necktie, remarked casually: "Looks squally in there fo' de boss,"

HARRIET PHILLIPS tells a story about an Indian in which she, unintentionally perhaps, 'hits the nail on the head" as to how to manage the Indians. This is her story:

"An Apache, in full war paint, stalked into an Indian school at Albuquerque, N. M., one day. The children were immediately terrified, and tremblingly told us he was a 'bad Indian.' They said an uncle of one of our boys had killed his brother and they feared he had come for revenge. As it was dinner time I saw nothing better to do than to have the children marched into the dining room, as usual. We keep open house to Indians at all times and treat them as distinguished guests, so I motioned to our Apache to take a seat at the table. He sat down, terrible in his war paint, and laid two loaded revolvers on the table before him. The children began to tremble. I summoned all my courage and said: *Put those revolvers on the window.' The Apache never moved. The cook placed before him a cup of coffee and a bowl of soup. Take away that coffee and soup,' I commanded, with my heart in my mouth, adding, to the Indian: 'You shall not have them until you put those revolvers on the window.' Trem-bling for her life, the cook obeyed. When the Apache saw his dinner removed he deliberately arose, picked up his revolvers andshall I ever forget that terrible moment?quietly laid them on the window. His dinner was restored to him; he ate it in silence, and then picked up his property and walked out without a word."

If the United States will adopt the schoolmaam's tactics and carry them a step further—disarm the Indian and then tell him to earn his food or starve, the Indian question will be settled. If he starves, well and good. If he works and lives, it is well.

THE M. H. & O. railroad company's orelock at L'Anse all but fell down last week, but was braced up and is still doing service. So, at least, says the Sentinel.

IT appears to be an off year at the summer resorts as well as among the mines. There are only 200 people at Mackinac, at a date when there are usually a thousand, and the proportion is about the same at Harber Springs, Petoskey, Charlevolx and the other summer places.

IF THE telegrapher's strike does but open the eyes of Mr. Gould to the true value of the inflated wind-bag whom he has made general manager of the telegraph he controls, it will not have been in vain, whatever else may result. If the boys break Tom Eckert's neck they will have accomplished much.

ONE Mr. Sedgwick, a Methodist preacher, of Elkhorn, Wis., formerly a telegrapher, volunteered his services (for a consideration, of course) to the Western Union monopoly at Milwaukee. The strikers say of him:

"It says in the Bible that you can't serve two masters," remarked a prominent citizen yesterday morning, "but it seems that this Mr. Sedgwick can, or at least that's what he is trying to do at present."

It is rumored that Gen. Hazen, chief signal officer, contemplates ordering his men, such of them as are telegraphers, into the Western Union offices. He has no right to issue such an order, and he will seriously compromise his own standing if he does it. He can have a mutiny if he wants one, but he can not drive the men of the signal ervice into any such position as that indicated.

JOHN KELLY, big injun of Tammany, will support "Cipher Sam" for the democratic presidential nomination. So, at least, says the New York Star, and Irving Hall is alarmed. Tammany has heretofore opposed and Irving Hall supported Mr. Tilden, and if Tammany changes front Irving must. The democratic platform is not wide enough for both to stand upon it. Tammany has voters, but Irving has the wealth and "all the decency." As to brains they can call a "stand

THE government is trying the experiment of setting the Indians to stock-raising. The Arapahoes and Cheyennes are the tribes now used for the experiment, which is said to promise favorably. If the rascals can be turned into "cowboys," while not much will have been gained, the possibility of change will have been determined and further experiments can be tried. It may be found practicable to make a Kilkenny cat business of it between the white and red cowboys and so get rid of both.

CAPT. WERB, the English champion swimmer, attempted the passage of the rapids and whirlpool of the Niagara river on the 24th, and met the fate that everyone except himself anticipated-he was drowned. He passed the rapids, beneath and below the railroad bridge, safely, keeping in the middle of the stream, but upon entering the whirlpool was carried to the right (or American side) where of. EDGAR OTHO CRESAP ORD, who died of yellow fever, at Havana, on Monday last, was born in Allegany county, Md., in 1818, and was therefore 64 years of age. He graduated at the Military academy in 1839 and was assigned to the 3d artillery, serving continuously until he was retired last year. He took part in all the wars, Indian and other, occuring during his term of service and made a creditable record in each. He was a major general of volunteers during the war of the rebellion, and on the reorganization of the army in 1566 was promoted to a brigadicrship therein. He leaves a widow and ten children, not well provided for, we fear, as the General was too good a soldfer to be a money-maker. His eldest daughter is the wife of General Trevino, of the Mexican army.

A better feeling obtains, and furnacemen not only look for an increased demand in the near future, but are hopeful of better prices. The demand for immediate use is light as a number of the mills are stopped taking stock, but it is intimated that there are a number of consumers who, being apprehensive of an advance, are disposed to anticipate future wants. As stated in our last report, it appears to be generally conceded that the market has touched hard pan, that its downward course has been arrested and as a natural consequence, buyers are more disposed to buy and sellers

From Cleveland we have the following: An upward tendency has been developed within the past few days, but the trade in general has taken no alarm, and continues to supply immediate requirements at a slight increase over June quotations. Grey Forge has been contracted for this week at $17.50, furnace delivery, to $18.50 the majority of the sales being under $18. Sales of iron above $18.00 were all special brands which are difficult to obtain, especially for prompt delivery. There is more confidence among pig iron men this week than for three months, and they look for a continuance of the present upward tendency until the opening of the fall trade in August. Quotations range from $17 to $19, but the special brands are not to be had. Some of the furnaces will blow in by the end of this month, and if the present tendency continues, the number will be still further increased during the month of August. Theore market is quite active in filling orders for fu-ture as well as present use. Furnacemen are beginning to talk of starting more furnaces and are buying ore in larger amounts than has been the rule heretofore this season. The ore already sold so far this year aggregates 1,600,000 tons, and of the sales by far the greater amount has been for immediate use. so that the inference is pertinent that the trade in this line will be large in the remain-

ADVERTISING.

THE THEORY OF ADVERTISING:

-USE THE-NEWSPAPERS

KEEP AT IT.

Some advertisers think that because an advertisement which appears to-day is not followed to-morrow by an appreciable increase of sales, the advertisement has done no good and the theory of advertising is false. Though it is perhaps impossible to insert a notice that will not be read let any Didy-mus put a three-line card, "Wanted-A Dog," is out by experience how easy it is to have good the obscurest corner, and be convinced of this-it is not to be expected that the moment a person casts his eye upon an advertiser's announcement he sets out for the advertiser's store. He my not at the time need any article in the merchant's line, or he may deal with another house. But if the representation is attractive he will almost inevitably, whenever he needs anything of the kind announced, turn to the paper where he saw the card and give the advertiser a trial. The merchant should regard his outlay for advertising as he would that for painting his building or putting up his sign-board-as a necessary charge upon the whole year's business, the effect of which is not to be perceived immediately. Men do not sow wheat one day and harvest it the next. The man who has begun to advertise must keep or advertising if he desires a continual increase in the volume of his business. He may keep a steady clientels of satisfied customers, but the chances are that some of these will be detached by seeing the advantages of other dealers persistently advocated. He will certainly not attract new patrons. They will go elsewhere, just as they would seek another ore than his if, on coming to his door, they four it locked and shutters up.

Intelligent advertisers are learning to beware of the catchpenny, illegitimate mediums of advertising so much affected hitherto by dealers who thought that cheapness always meant economy, and that in the advertising department of any business the principles governing the conduct of the other departments no longer obtained. Messrs. W. W. Sharp & Co., of New York, have already published some striking testimony given by the great merchants whose names are familiar in the mouths of Americans as household worlds. That of a leading dry goods house in New York is herewith presented :

" Of all the methods open to the merchant for advertising his business, an experience of nearly half a century enables us to unhesitatingly declare in favor of the newspaper. It is, without exception, the most economical, persistent, painstaking and suc cessful canvasser any business firm can secure for the purpose of bringing their goods to the attention of the consumer."

No comment upon this recital of experience is needed, further than to note that the firm who write this have taken the sound, scientific view of advertising-that they recognize the necessity for persistence, and understand that the newspaper has done its duty when it has brought the advertiser's goods to the attention of the consumer.

That service will be rendered in the most attract ive and effective manner by the

THE BEAUTIFUL CITY.

The Beautiful City! Forever
Its rapturous praises resound,
And we fain would behold it—but never
A glimpse of its glory is found.
We slacken our lips at the tender
White breasts of our mothers to hear
Of its marvelous beauty and splendor;—
We see—but the gleam of a tear!

Yet never the story may tire us— First graven in symbols of stone— Rewritten on scrolls of papyrus, And parchment, and scattered and blown By the wings of the tongues of all nations, Like a litter of leaves wildly whirled Down the rack of a hundred translations, From the earliest lisp of the world

We compass the earth and the ocean, From the Orient's uttermost light, To where the last ripple in motion Lips hem of the skirt of the night -But The Beautiful City evades us— No spire of it glints in the sun— Ko glad-bannered battlement shades us When all our long journey is done.

Where lies it? We question and listen; lean from the mountain, or mast, And see but dull earth or the glisten Of seas inconceivably vast: The dust of the one blurs our vision— The glare of the other our brain, Nor city nor island elysian In ali of the land or the main!

We kneel in dim fanes where the thunders Of organs tumultuous roll, And the longing heart listens and wonders, And the eyes look aloft from the soul, But the chanson grows fainter and fainter, Swoons wholly away and is dead; And our eyes only reach where the painter Has dabbled a saint overhead.

The Beautiful City! O mortal, Fare hopefully on in thy quest, Pass down through the green grassy portal
That leads to the valley of rest,
There first passed the One who, in pity
Of all the great yearning, awaits
To-point out the Beautiful City

And loosen the trump at the gates.

BORN TO GOOD LUCK.

Patrick O'Rafferty was a small farmer in the County Leinster. He and his father before him had been yearly tenants to Squire Ormsby for fifty years on very easy

Patrick-more uneasy than his sire-now and then pestered the Squire for a lease. Then the Squire used to say: "Well, if you make a point of it, I will have the land walued and a lease drawn accordingly."
But this iniquitous proposal always shut O'Rafferty's mouth for a time. He was called in the villiage Paddy Luck; and certainly he had the luck to get into a good many fights and other scrapes and to get out of them wonderfully. It was he who set the name rolling; his neighbors did but

He professed certain powers akin to diridiculed, for he was right one time in five, and that was enough, for credulity always forgets the usual and remembers the ec-

This worthy had a cow to sell, and drove her into the nearest fair. He put twelve pounds on her and was laughed at. She was dry and she was ugly. "Twelve pounds! Go along wid ye." "Never mind her," was Pat's reply. "I'm Paddy Luck, and it's meself that will sell the baste for twelve pounds, and niver a ha'penny less." This was his proclamation all the morning. In the afternoon he condescended to ten pounds, just to oblige the community. At sunset he managed to get eight pounds, and a bystander told him he was a lucky "That is no news, then?" said he. It was dark, and he was tired; his home was twelve Irish miles off. He resolved to sleep in the town. In the meantime he went to a tavern and regaled his purchaser, drunk, and was robbed by one of the light-fingered gentry who prowl about a fair.

The consequence was that the next time he ordered liquor on a liberal scale-for he was one who treated semicircularly in his cups-he could not find a shilling to pay, and the landlord put him out into the street. He cooled himself at a neighboring pump, and went in search of gratuitous lodgings The hard-hearted town did not provide these; so he walked out of it into sweeter air. He was not sick nor sorry. Quite the reverse. He congratulated himself on his good luck. "Sure, now," said he, "if I had sold her for twelve pounds, its four pounds I'd be losing by that same bargain."

Some little distance outside the town he found a deserted hovel; there was no door, window nor floor; but the roof was free from holes in one or two places, and there was a dry corner, and a heap of straw in it. Paddy thanked his stars for providing him with so complete and gratuitous a shelter, and immediately burrowed into the straw, and was about to drop asleep when the glimmer of a lantern shot in through the oorway, and voices muttered outside.

Patrick nestled deeper in the straw; he was a trespasser, and it seemed too late and yet too early for the virtues, charity included, to be afoot.

Two men came in with a sack, a spade and a lantern; one of them lifted the lantern up and took a cursory glance over the premises. Patrick, whom the spade had set a-shivering, held his breath. Then the man put the lantern down, and his companion went to work and dug, not a grave, as panting Pat expected, but a big round hole.

This done, they emptied the sack; out rolled and tinkled silver salvers of all sizes, coffee-pots, tea-pots, forks, spoons, brooches, necklaces, rings—a mine of wealth that glowed and glittered in the light of the lan-

Patrick began to perspire as well as trem-ble. The men filled in the hole, stamped the earth firmly down, and then lighted their pipes and held a consultation. question was how to dispose of these valuables. After some differences of opinion they agreed that one Barney was the fence they would invite to the spot, and if he would not give £100 for the spoil they would take it to Dublin. It transpired that Barney lived at some distance, but not too far to come to-morrow evening and inspect the booty. Then, if he would spring to their price, they would go home with him and receive the coin.

"My luck" thought Patrick. "What need had they to light their pipes and chatter like two old women about such a trifle, without searching the straw first, the omad hauns!" The thieves retired, and lucky Pat went quietly to sleep.

He awoke in broad daylight, and strolled back into the town. He walked jauntily, for, if he had no money, he possessed a secret. He was too Irish and too sly to go to the police office at once; his little game was to try and find out who had been robbed, and what reward they would give.

Meantime he had to breakfast off a stale roll given him by a baker out of charity. About noon he passed through a principal street, and lo! in a silversmith's shop was a notice, written very large:

"FIFTY GUINEAS REWARD!

"Whereas, these premises were broken into last night, and the following valuable property abstracted—"

Then followed an inventory a foot long.

"In earnest! Of course I am."
"What if a dacent poor boy like me was and you the silver and thieves and all?"

"Pd give you the fifty guinleas, and my blessing into the bargain"
"May be ye, wouldn't like to give me my linner an' all, by raison Pm just famishing with hunger? with hunger?"

This proposal raised suspicion, and the proprietor asked his name.
"Patrick O'Rafferty. Pm tenant to 'Squire Ormsby."
"I know him. Well, Patrick, I suppose you can give me some information. I'll risk the dinner, anyway."

"Ah, well, sorr," said Patrick, "they say fing a sprat to datch a whale." A rump steak and a quart of ale is a favorite repast of mine; when I have had 'em I'll ar'n em, by the boly poles." by the holy poker!"
"Step into my bac

"Step into my back parlor, Mr. O'Raffer tp," said the silversmith. He then sent for the rump steak very fond, and for a policeman in a whisper. The steak came first, and was most well some. When he had eaten it the modes

O'Rafferty asked for a pipe and pot. Whilst he smoked and sipped calmly the disguised policeman arrived, and was asked to examine him through a little win dow. "Does he look like crime?" whispered the silversmith. "No," said the policeman. "Calf-like in nocence and impudence galore."

The jeweler asked O'Rafferty to step out. "Now, sir," said he, "you have had your dinner and I don't grudge it you; but if this is a let it end here, for I am in sore trouble, and it would be a heartless thing to play of the."

"Och, hear to him!" cried Patrick, with a whine as doleful as sudden. "Did iver an O'Rafferty make a jest of an honest man's trouble, or ate a male off his losses? But what is a hungry man worth? I could not see how to do your work while I was famished, but now my belly is full, and my head fuller, glory be to God!"

"I don't know how it is," said the jew-eller, aside to the detective, "he tells me nothing, and yet somehow he gives me confidence. But, Mr. O'Rafferty, do consider: time flies, and I'm no nearer my stolen goods. What is the first step we are to "The first step was to fill my belly; the next step is to find me—och, murther, it is a rarity "Never mind," said the disgusted officer. "Find you what?" "A policeman-that isn't a fool."

This was a stinger, and so sudden; his hearers looked rather sheepish at him. It was the policeman who answered: "If you will come to the station, I will un dertake to find you that," Patrick assented, and on the way they made friends; his companion revealed him-self, and forgave the stinger, and Patrick, pleased with his good temper, let him into the plan he had matured while smoking his pipe and appearing to lose time. All Patrick stipulated was that he should be the per son in command; and as he alone knew where the booty was, and was manifestly as crafty as a badger, this was cheerfully acceded to. So, an hour before dusk, four fellows that looked like countrymen drove a cart full of straw up to the hovel, and made a big heap by adding it to what was there stready.

Then two drove the cart back to the edge of the town, and put the horse up, and re-joined their companions in ambush, all but one, and ne hid in a dry ditch opposite. They were all well armed, and the outside watcher had a novel weapon-a powerful blue-light in the shape of a fat squib It is a dreary business waiting at night for criminals who may never come at all, or, if they do, may be desperate and fight like madmen or wildcats.

Eight o'clock came—nine—ten—eleven—twelve; the watchers were chilled and stiff, and Patrick sleepy.

One of the policemen whispered him

"They won't come to-night. Are you sure they have not been and taken up the swag?"
"Not sure; but I think not." The policeman growled and muttered something about a mare's-nest. "Hush!" said another.

"What!" in an agitated whisper.

"Wheels?"

Silence. They all remained as still as death. The faint wheels, that would have been inaudi ble by day, rattled nearer and nearer. It ble by day, rattled nearer and nearer. It was late for a bona-fide traveler to be on the road. Would the wheels pass the hovel? They came up fast; then they stopped suddenly. To the watchers everything was audible and every sound magnified. When the drag stopped it was like a railroad train pulling up. Men leaped out, and seemed to shake the ground. When three figures bustled into the hovel it sounded figures bustled into the hovel it sounded like a rush of men. Then came a thrilling question. Would the thieves examine the remises before they looked for the booty?

The chances were they would. Well, they did not. They were in great anxiety, too, but it took the form of hurry. They dug furiously, displayed the booty to Barney all in a hurry, and demanded their price.

"Now, then, £100, or take your last look

"One hundred pounds!" whined Barney "Can't be done." "Very well; there's no time to bargain."

"I'll give eighty pounds. But I shall ose money by 'em." "Blarney! They are worth a thousand. Here, Jim, put 'em up; we can do better in Dublin," Barney whined and remonstrated, but ended by consenting to give the price.

The words were barely out of his mouth when the hovel gleamed with a lurid fire, so vivid and pentrating that every crevice of it and the very cobwebs came out dis-The thieves yelled with dismay, and one ran away from the light, slap into danger, ran away from the light, sup into danger, and was dazzled again with opening bull's-eyes, and captured like a lamb. The other rushed blindfold at the entrance, but his temple encountered a cold pistol, and a policeman immovable as a statue. He re-coiled, and was in that justant of hesitation pinned from behind and handcuffed-click As for Barney, from whom no fight was expected, he was allowed to clamber up the alls like a mouse in a trap, then tumble down, until the four-wheel they had come in was brought up by Paddy O'Rafferty. Then the thieves were bundled in, and sat each of them between two honest men, and the fence was attached by the wrist to a policeman, who walked him to the same destination; but like Virgil's bull, multa reluctantem, hanging back in vain, and in vain bribing the silent, impenetrable Bobby. Pat slept at the station, and next morning the jeweler gave his fifty guineas with a good heart, but omitted the blessing. Patrick whined dismally at this very serious omission, and the worthy little fellow gave it him with glistening eyes. "For," said he, "I'll own now the loss would have ruined me. I find by my books they cost me £1,300." So then he blessed him solemnly, and Pat went home re-joicing. "I'll have more luck than ever now," said he. "I'll have all sorts of luck—good, bad and indifferent." When he got home he told the story inac curately, and like a monomaniac; that is to say, he suppressed all the fortitude and sagacity he had shown. These were qualities he possessed, so he thought nothing of Luck and divination were what he prided himself on. His version ran thus: He had the luck not to sell his cow till nightfall, the still better luck to be robbed of his money and compelled to sleep in the neighborhood. Then, thanks to his super-lative luck, the Queen's jeweler had been robbed of silver salvers the size of the harvest-moon, two-gallon tea-pots, pearls like hazlenuts, and diamonds as big as "The above reward will be paid to any person who will give such information as may lead to the conviction of the thieves and the recovery of the stolen goods, or any considerable part thereof."

Patrick walked in find asked to see the proprietes. A little fissey man in a great stact of agitation responded to that query. "Are you in arnest, now, sorr?" asked In telling this romance he was careful to take out the fifty sovereigns and jingle them, and this musical appeal to the senses so overpowered the understandings of his neighbors that they swallowed the wondrous tale like spring water.

After this few were bold enough to resist his pretentions to luck and divination. He was often consulted, especially about missing property, and as he now and then guessed right, and sometimes had taken the precaution to hide the property himself, which materially increased his chances of finding it, passed for a seer.

One fine day Squire Ormsby learned to his dismay that his pantry had been broken into and a mass of valuable plate taken. Mr. Ormsby was much distressed, not only on account of the value but the length of time coretin pieces had been in his family. He distrusted the police and publicity in these cases, and his wife prevailed on him to send for Patrick O'Rafferty.

That worthy came, and heard the stery. He looked at the lady and gentleman, and his self-deception began to ooze out of him.

his self-deception began to coze out of him. To humbug his humble neighbors was not difficult nor dangerous, but to deceive and then undeceive and disappoint his landord was quite another matter.

He put on humility, and said this was a matter beyond him entirely. Then the Squire was angry, and said bitterly: "No doubt he would rather oblige his neighbors, doubt he would rather oblige his neighbors, or a shopkeeper who was a stranger to him, than the man whose land had fed him and his for fifty years." He was proceeding in the same strain when poor Pat, with that dismal whine the merry soul was subject to occasionally, implored him not to murder him entirely with hard words; he would do his best.

"No man can do more," said Mr. Ormsby. "Now how will you proceed? Can we ren-der you any assistance?"

Patrick said, humbly and in a downcast vay, he would like to see the place where the thieves got in.

He was taken to the pantry window, and examined it inside and out, and all the servants peeped at him.

"What next?" asked the Squire. Then Patrick inwardly resolved to get a good dinner out of this business, however bumilisting the end of it might be. "Sorr," said he, "ye'll have to give me a room all to myself, and a rump-steak and onions; and after that your servants must bring me three pipes and three pints of home-brewed ale. Brewers' ale hasn't the same spiritual effect on a seer's mind." The order was given, and set the kitchen on fire with curiosity. Some disbelieved his powers, but more believed them, and cited the jeweler's business and other exam-

When the first pipe and pint were to go to him a discussion took place between the magnates of the kitchen who should take it At last the butler and the housekeeper insisted on the footman taking it. Accord-ngly he did so.

Meantime Patrick sat in state digesting the good food. He began to feel a physical complacency, and to defy the future; he only regretted that he had confined his demand to one dinner and three pots. To him in this frame of mind entered the footman with pipe and pint of ale as clear as Masipped and smoked, and his mind worked. The footman went to the butler with a scared face, and said: "I won't go near him again; he said I was one." "Nonsense!" said the butler; "I'll take up the next."

He did so. Patrick gazed in his face, took the pipe and said, sotto voce:
"This is the second;" then, very regret fully? "Only one more to come."

The butler went away much discomposed. and told the housekeeper.
"I can't believe it," said she. "Anyway, I'll know the worst."

So in due course she took up the third pint and pipe, and wore propitiatory smiles.
"This is the last of 'em," said Patrick, solemnly, and looked at the glass. The housekeeper went down all in a flut er. "We are found out, we are ruined," said she. "There is nothing to be done now but—. Yes, there is; we must buy him, or put the comether on him before he sees the master. Patrick was half dozing over his last pipe when he heard a rustle and a commotion, and lo! three culprits on their knees to him. With that instinctive sagacity which was his one real gift-so he underrated it-he said, with a twinkling eye: "Och, thin, you've come to make a clane brist of it, the three Chrischin vartues and haythen graces that ye are. You may save yourselves the throuble. Sure I know all "We see you do. Y'are wiser than Solomon," said the housekeeper. "But sure ye wouldn't abuse your wisdom to ruin three poor bodies like us!" "Poor!" cried Patrick. "Is it poor ye call yourselves? Ye ate and drink like fighting cocks; y'are clothed in silk and plush and broadcloth, and your wages is all pocket-money and pin-money. Yet ye must rob the man that feeds and clothes ye,"

"It is true! it is true!" cried the butler.

"He spakes like a priest," said the woman. Oh, alanna! don't be hard on us; it is all the devil's doings; he timpted us. Oh! oh!

"Whisht, now, and spake sinse," said Patrick, roughly. "Is it melted?"

"Can you lay hands on it?" "We can, every stiver of it. We intinded put it back."

That's a lie," said Patrick, firmly, but not in the least reproachfully. "Now look at me, the whole clan of ye, male and fay-male. Which would you rather do—help me find the gimcracks, every article of 'em, or be lagged and scragged and stretched on gibbet and such like iligant divarsions? They snatched eagerly at the plank of safety held out to them, and from that minute acted under Mr. O'Rafferty's orders.

"Fetch me another pint," was his first behest. "Ay, a dozen, if ye'll do us the honor to drink it."

"To the dickens wid your blarney! Now tell the master I'm at his sarvice."
"Oh, murder! what will become of us? Would you tell him, after all?"

"Ye omadhauns, can't ye listen at the dure and hear what I tell him?" With this understanding Squire Ormsby was usbered in, all expectation. "Yer honer," said Patrick, "I think the ower is laving me. I am only able to see the half of it. Now, if you plaze, would you like to catch the thieves and lose the silver, or to find the silver and not find the "Why, the silver, to be sure." "Then you and my lady must go to mass to-morrow morning, and when you come back we will look for the silver and may be. if we find it, your honnor will give me that little bit of a lease."

"One thing at a time, Pat; you haven't found the silver yet."
At nine o'clock next morning Mr. and Mrs. Ormsby returned from mass, and found O'Rafferty waiting for them at their door. He had a long walking stick with a shining knob, and informed them, very solemnly, that the priest had sprinkled it for him with holy water. Thus farmed, he commenced the search. He penetrated into outhouses, and applied his stick to chimneys, and fagots, and cold ovens, and all possible places. No luck.

Then he proceeded to the stable-yard and Then he proceeded to the stable-yard and searched every corner; then into the shrubbery; then into the tool-house. No luck. Then on to the lawn. By this time there were about thirty at his heels.

Disgusted at this fruitless search, Patrick apostrophized his stick: "Bad cess to you, y'are only good to burn. Ye kape turning away from every place; but ye don't turn to anything whatever. Stop a bit! Ob, holy Moses! what is this?"

As he spoke, the stick seemed to rise and As he spoke, the stick seemed to rise and point like a gun. Patrick marched in the direction indicated, and after a while seemed to be forced by the stick into a run. He began to shout excitedly, and they all ran after him. He ran full tilt against a dismounted water barrel, and the end of the stick struck it with such impetus that it knacked the barrel goat, then flaw out of family for fifty-two years.—N. Y. Times.

Patrick's hand to the right, who himself made a spring the other way, and stood glering with all the rest at the glittering odjects that strewed the lawn, neither more nor less than the missing plate.

Shouts and screams of delight. Everybody shaking hands with Patrick, who, being a consummate actor, seemed dazzled body shaking hands with Patrick, who, being a consummate actor, seemed dazzled and mystified, as one who had succeeded fat beyond his expectations.

To make a long story short, they all settled it in their minds that the thieves had been alarmed and hidden the plate for a time, intending to return and fetch it away.

Mr. Ormsby took the seer into his study and gave him a piece of paper stating that for a great service rendered to him by Patrick O'Rafferty he had, in the name of him and his, promised him undisturbed possession of the farm so long as he or his should farm it themselves and pay the present rent.

Pat's modesty vanished at the Squire's gate; he bragged up and down the village, and henceforth nobody disputed his seership in those parts.

But one day the Saseenach came down with his cold incredulty.

A neighbor's estate, mortgaged up to the eyes, was sold under the hammer, and Sir Henry Steele bought it, and laid some of it down in grass. He was a breeder of stock. He marked out a park wall, and did not include a certain little orchard and a triangular plot. The seer observed, and applied for them. Sir Henry, who did his own business, received the application, noted it down, and asked him for a reference. He gave Squire Ormsby.
"I will make inquiries," said Sir Henry.

"Good morning."

He knew Ormsby in London, and when he became his neighbor the Irish Gentle-man was all hospitality. One day Sir Henry told him of O'Rafferty's application, and asked about him.

"Oh," said Ormsby, "that is our seer." "Your what?" "Our wise man, our diviner of secrets; and some wonderful things he has done."

He then related the loss of his plate, and its supernatural recovery.

The Sassenach listened with a cold, incredulous eye and a sardonic grin.

Then the Irishman got hot and accumu lated examples.

Then the Sassenach, with the obstinacy of his race, said he would put these preten-sions to the test. He had picked out of the various narratives that this seer was fond of a good dinner and pretended it tended to enlighten his mind; so he laid his trap accordingly.

At his request Patrick was informed that next Tuesday, at one o'clock, if he chose to submit to a fair test of his divining powers, the parcel of land he had asked for should be let to him on easy terms.

Patrick assented jauntily. But in his se cret soul he felt uneasy at having to encoun-ter this Sassenach gentleman. Sir Henry was the fortunate possessor of what Pat was pleased to call "a nasty glittering eye," and over that eye Pat doubted his ability to draw the wool as he had done over Celtic However, he came up to the scratch like

However, he came up to the scratch like a man. After all, there was nothing to lose this time, and he vowed to submit to no test that was not preceded by a good dinner. He was ushered into Sir Henry Steele's study, and there he found that gentleman and Mr. Ormsby. One comfort, there was a cloth laid, and several silver dishes on the hobs and in the fender.
"Well, Mr. O'Rafferty," said the host, "I believe you like a good dinner?"

"Thrue for you, sorr," said Pat.
"Well, then, we can combine business with pleasure; you shall have a good din-"Long life to your honor!"

"I cooked it for you myself."
"God bless your honor for your condescin-"You are to eat the dinner first, and then just tell me what the meat is, and the par-cel of land is yours on easy terms."

Patrick's confidence rose. "Sure, thin, it is a fair bargain," said he. The dishes were uncovered. There were vegetables cooked most deliciously; the meat was a chef-d'œuvre—a sort of rich ragout done to a turn, and so fragrant that the very odor made the mouth water.

Patrick seated himself, helped himself and took a mouthful: that mouthful had double effect. He realized in one and the same moment that this was a more heavenly compound than he had ever expected to taste upon earth, and that he could not and never should divine what bird or beast he was eating. He looked for the bones; there were none. He yielded himself to desperate enjoyment. When he had nearly cleaned the plate he said that even the best cooked meat was none the worse for a quart of good ale to wash it down.
Sir Henry Steele rang a bell and ordered quart of ale. Patrick enjoyed this, too, and did not nurry; he felt it was his last dinner in that house, as well as his first.

The gentlemen watched him and gave him But at last Ormsby said: "Well, Patrick-Now Patrick, whilst he sipped, had been asking himself what line he had better and he had come to a conclusion creditable to that sagacity and knowledge of human nature he really posessed and underrated accordingly. He would com-pliment the gentlemen on their superior wisdom, and own he could not throw in such eyes as theirs; then he would beg them not to make his humble neighbors as wise as they were, but let him still pass for wise man in the parish, whilst they laughed in their superior sleeves. To carry out this he impregnated his brazen fea tures with a world of comic humility. "And," said he, in cajoling accents, "ah, your honors, the old fox made many a turn, but the dogs were too many for him

What more of self-depreciation and caolery he would have added is not known, for Sir Henry Steele broke in loudly: "Good heavens! Well, he is an extraordi nary man. It was an old dog-fox I cooked for him." "Didn't I tell you?" cried Ormsby, de lighted at the success of his countryman. "Well, sir," said Sir Henry, whose emo-tions seldom lasted long, "a bargain's a bargain. I let you the orchard and field for -let me see-you must bring me a stoat, a weasel and a polecat every year. I mean to get up the game,"

Mr. O'Rafferty first stared stupidly, then winked cunningly, then blandly absorbed laudation and land; then retired, invoking solemn blessings; then, being outside, exe cuted a fandango, and went home on wing; from that hour the village could not hold him. His speech was of accumulating farms at peppercorn rents till a slice of the county should be his. To hear him, he could see through a deal-board, and luck was his monopoly. He began to be envied, and was on the way to be hated, when, confiding in his star, he married Norah Blake, a beautiful girl, but a most noto-

Then the unlucky ones forgave him a great deal; for sure wouldn't Norah re-venge them? Alas! the traitress fell in love with her husband after marriage, and let him mold her into a sort of angelic duck.
This was the climax. So Paddy Luck is now numbered amongst the lasting institu tions of ould Ireland (if any).

CHARTER AND PORFEITURE. When a State granted a charter to a corporation, reserving the right to purchase its property and franchises after the expiration of twenty years, and by a subsequent act granted to such corporation perpetual succession with added powers not included in the original charter, it was held to operate as a relinquishment by the State of its right of purchase the new legislation being a repeal of the former wherever the two were inconsistent. The court said that the franchise granted to the defendant by the several acts of the Legislature was indivisible, and constituted but a single franchise. Hence a failure on the part of the defendant to make certain required improvements within a certain time worked a forfeiture of the entire franchise. Although it is in the discretion of the court to impose a fine rather than enforce a forfeiture in such cases, a forfeiture will be enforced where the cause is the non-performance of a thing which is of the essence of the contract.-People vs. Kankakee River Improvement Company, Supreme Court of Illinois

CHATTEL MORTGAGE-PAROL PROOF. In a chattel mortgage a machine was included which was not in the possession of the mortgageor at the time the mortgage was executed; but shortly af-ter he received it. Nothing was said in the mortgage about its application to after-acquired property. In a contest over this machine the court said: A chattel mortgage will not cover afteracquired property unless it expressly so provides. It is immaterial that the parties may have intended that it should have that effect. The mortgage can not be changed or its legal effect altered by any parol agreement or understanding between the parties at the time of its execution. The instrument must speak for itself. It will not help matters to say that the description in the mortgage calls for property not then owned by the mortgageor, and that therefore it may be shown by extrinsic evi-dence that they intended to include property of that description then expected to be acquired. This mode of nelping out the written instrument is liable to the same objection.-Montgomery vs. Cha-e, Supreme Court of Minnesota.

STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Where a written subscription for shares in a company was unconditional on its face, a contemporaneous understanding between the subscriber and the promoter that the subscriber should have an option to take the shares or not. could not be set up by the subscriber as a defense after others had been induced to subscribe on the faith of his subscription. The liability of the subscriber having been once fixed by subscription, could not be avoided by notice on his part to the promoters of the company that he declined to take the shares, nor could such liability be affected by the fact that he failed to meet subsequent calls, that no call was made upon bim. that he participated in no meeting of the company, and that no certificate of stock was issued to him.-Haskell vs. Sells, St. Louis Court of Appe

CORRECTING INSTRUMENT. An instrument may be reformed in case of fraud, accident or mistake, but where the mistake was the result of the supine negligence of a party who sleeps upon his rights until other duties and responsibilities have grown up, the law will not help him. - Susquehanna Mutual Fire Insurance Company vs. Swank, Supreme Court of Pennsyl-

Syberg seemed to fully comprehend the situation then for the first time, and he started from the door out into the open air. McCabe caught sight of him as he went out the door, and, apparently endowed with superhuman strength. he started on a run after his fleeing assailant. He ran about five hundred feet swiftly, and was within ten yards of the fleeing man, when he pulled up short, took deliberate aim, and fired. The ball struck Syberg in the back of the head and came out of his mouth, breaking his jaw-bone. The moment he was struck Syberg staggered forward and fell bleeding to the ground. McCabe rushed to him, grabbed him by the hair, turned him face up, and then, with the glaring, glassy eyeballs of the dying man gazing into his own pale face, on which the seal of death had already set, he placed the muzzle of the pistol against the marble forehead and blew the whole top of Syberg's head off. THE DANGER OF OVER-EXERTION.

A Stalwart Man Becomes Weaker Than a Child and Then Recovers His Former Strength.

(Waterloo, N. Y., Observer.) In these days of rowing giants and athletic heroes fine physical development is more observed than ever before since the time of the Athenian games. A man who shows the elements of physical power is looked up to far more than in the days of our ancestors possibly because there are fewer specimens of well-developed manhood than then. An emissary of this paper met a magnificent specimen of physical power a few days since in the person of Dr. A. W. McNames, of Waterloo. His muscles, which showed unusual development, were as hard as wood. At his request the writer sought to pinch him in the arms or legs, but found it wholly impossi-ble. A realization of what is meant by an iron man was fully made manifest.

"Not by any means," was the reply. "When a young man I was always strong and active and felt that I could accomplish anything. This feeling so took possession of me on one occasion that I attempted to lift a box which four men found it impossible to move. I succeeded in placing it on the wagon, but in two minutes from that time was unconscious and remained so for hours and when I recovered consciousness I vomited a large quantity of blood. From that day I began to grow weak and sickly. I believed that I had suffered some internal njury and experienced a general debility, which seemed similar to the effects prowhich seemed similar to the effects produced by malaria. My back was very weak. I had no appetite, and at times loathed food. My lips were parched and cracked. My head felt as though it were entirely open at the top and it pained me on the side intensely. In six weeks' time I had fallen away from 208 pounds to less than 170. I was in a most wretched condi-tion. I was completely discouraged."

"Have you always been so stalwart as

"What did the doctors say about you?"
"Almost everything. I consulted no less than six different physicians. They all treated me and none did me any good. At that time I was suffering intensely. I could not sit upright but was obliged to rest in a cramped, uneasy position. I was compelled to urinate every five minutes and I passed over three quarts every day. I was not living, I was existing.

"One night(how well I remember it!) my wife had put the children all in bed when the feeling came over me that I should live but a very short time. My wife and I talked matters all over and I gave the minutest directions as to what she should do after I was gone. I was not in a flight. condition by any means, for the doctor, on leaving town the day following, bade me good-bye, saying he never expected to see me again, for I was suffering with Bright's disease of the kidneys in its last stages. Within the next few days more than twenty friends came to bid me good-bye. Among the number was Dr. John L. Clark. He asked me what I had used in the way of medicines. I told him. He then recom-mended a remedy of which I had heard much, but about which I was very skeptical. If faith were an element of power it certainly was lacking in my case."

And so you did not try it?" "On the contrary, I did try it, and to my surprise it seemed to go to just the spot Indeed, it was the most palatable thing had taken into my mouth for months.

" And did it cure you?" "Do I look as if it did?"

"Yes, indeed. What was it?"
"Warner's Safe Cure." "A proprietary medicine!"
"Of course. What of that? I suppose I once had as great a prejudice against advertised medicines as any one could have. When I was studying medicine at Ann Arbor, Michigan, I used to yow with the rest of the class that we would fight all such remedies at all times. When a man comes down to the last hour, however, and bids his wife and friends good-bye, such bigoted prejudices as these all vanish, I can assure you, and any remedy that can cure is gladly welcomed." "And how have you been since then?"

"As well—or better, than before." "Do you still exert your strength?" "Certainly. But I do not over-exert, as formerly. My strength is increasing every day, and my health is number one. I know that my life was saved by Warner's Safe Cure, and I believe it is the best medicine that was ever compounded by any chemist or physician. I am willing the doctors should sneer at me for such a statement if they choose, but I have proven its truth, and am prepared to stand by it."

The above experience should be of great value to all who are suffering. It shows the deceptive nature of this terrible malady; that all symptoms are common to it and that there is but one way by which it can be absolutely avoided. Some men are known by the company they-can't get into.

NO REST DAY OR NIGHT.

In the fall of 1875 my sufferings were terrible. I was swollen to such proportions that I feared my limbs would burst. I had the best medical talent obtainable, would barst. I had the best medical takens obtainable, and at the worst stage of my illness, when my husband and many friends had given me up to die, the late Dr. John Woodbury made a thorough examination of my water, and pronounced my case acute kidney disease, bordering on Bright's disease, and accompanied by gravel, and recommended the immediate use of Hunt's Remody. At this time I was suffering most terrible pain in my back, limbs and head, and could find no rest day or night for weeks, and I was growing weaker daily until this kind physician ordered me to take Hunt's Remedy. Before taking half of one commenced to improve, and after taking six bottles was entirely cured. This was nearly eight years ago, and I have had no return of the disease. I nave recommended Hunt's Remedy to others in similar cases, and it has never failed to cure. I have also used it for sick headache, and found in it a sure relief. I think it the best medicine made, and cheerfully recomme to all. MRS. W. H. STILSON No. 16 Tyler St., Boston, Mass.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., July 17, '83. ' To the Editor of the IRON PORT:

After a very interesting trip of three days among a range of mountains to the north of Grand river, we returned to Grand Junction last night. It would be impossible, in the short letter I have time to write, to give you any clear idea of either the advantages or disadvantages of this strange and peculiar country. However, it may be said that it is a land of ever-changing wonders. So far as scenery is concerned, almost any variety can be met with, from the bleak and barren alkali plains, where nothing can grow but cacti and sage brush, to the grand old mountains with a thousand peaks stretching away into the distance until mountain-top and sky blend together in hazy blue. But my letter must be confined to matters pertaining to the section of Colorado which is more directly tributary to this city. A little over a year ago Grand Junction did not exist-the Uncomphagre Ute Indians and the festive coyote held undisputed sway over this valley. To-day, at the junction of the two largest and most beautiful rivers in Colorado, the Gunnison and Grand, stands the thriving city of Grand Junction, the future metropolis of Western Colorado. Its population is about 1,500, made up, for the most part, of active, wide-awake and hospitable men, men full of vim and determination. These frontiersmen make the best friends one can possibly have, but it is possible also, to convert them into the most deadly enemies. I found an old friend, Dr. DeBeque, located at Grand Junction, surgeon for the Denver &

the only climate in America worth speaking of. Grand Junction is situated near the center of a valley thirty miles in length by twelve to fifteen in width. Every acre of this valley can be made very productive by irrigation. There is no rainfall here sufficient to produce any crops, but with the great system of ditches which is now being pushed to completionthis whole grand valley will be ere long made to blossom as the rose. But greater interest even than that of agriculture centers here. Next to mining, stock raising, is the business of Colorado. Surrounding the valley for perhaps hundreds of miles are broad mesas, or table lands covered with the most nutritious of grasses, awaiting the advent of the stock men with their immense herds, which can here roam, and grow fat without expense or loss. Practical stock men say this section of Colorado is the best cattle region in the state. Our object in coming here was to look up a location for a stock ranch, and we are pleased to state that we have found just what was required. On Friday July 13, we left here at an early hour mounted upon fully equipped Mexican bronchos. A lively gallop for a few hours down the grand valley, brought us to the mouth of Montezuma canyon. Up this highly romantic, and picturesque canyon, between perpendicular walls of rock of great height, we traveled for fifteen miles. Our path was a narrow Indian trail, wide enough only for single file-which sometimes led us along the brink of fearful chasms and around the rim of frightful deapths. One misstep of our ponies would hurl us to instant death. A beautiful stream follows down the center of the canvon from the mesa above. About ten miles up the canyon it widens into a most charming valley of nearly a mile across and two or three miles in length, with gradually sloping mountains on either side, The valley, and mountain sides at this point are covered with a most luxurous growth, of various kinds of grasses, and the water supply is inexhaustable, as the stream is fed by a fine mountain lake, a few miles farther up. Here in the very heart of the Rocky Mountains, where perhaps the foot of a white man had never before trod, here in this beautiful valley, rich in all that nature can give to make it productive; with ample food and water for an innumerable number of cattle, in a climate as perfect as that of Italy, where barns, and sheds and stored feed are entirely useless, where the best of coal and timber can be had on the spot, we drove our stake and claimed this princely domain, with the firm determination to keep and maintain the same. If a man of pastoral tastes and modest aspirations can not be contented and happy in this beautiful place where the sun shines every day in the year, and where the storms and snows of an eastern winter never come, he deserves no happiness in this world. We camped out by the side of Lake Lewis at the head of the canyon. Our camping preparations were very primative and simple. A small fire of dry wood served to boil our tea and roast our game, the lake furnished water for ourselves and horses, the green grass served as a bed, and a blanket for each made us comfortable for the night. It is a luxruy to sleep in the open air in this climate, no dew ever falls, no rain or storm of any kind is feared. The air is pure, cool and delicious, and not a fly, mosquito or insect of any kind gives annoyance in the slightest degree. We lay wrapped in our blankets for hours before sleep came, admiring the beauties of the night and listening to the yarns of the chase, and Indian wars, of our scout Lewis. The monotonous night song of the cully-cully, and the quick sharp barking of the coyote grew fainter and fainter until tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep, came down upon the little camp in the mountains, and we slept. At sun-rise the next morning we were up and after a hearty but hasty breakfast we went through the ceremony of naming the lake, the plateau below it, and the principal mountain overlooking the canyon. The beautiful little sheet of water we called Lake Lewis, in honor of the scout Lewis, who discovered the canyon and lake, and acted as our guide to them. The table land below the lake, containing about twenty acres, with abrupt sides a hundred feet above the medows and overlooking the lake, we named plateau DeBeque. On this will be built our house of stone, from it we can defend our possessions if necessary. And last but far from least, we named the mountain, which raises its majestic head far up into the heavens, above the valley, lake and plateau. Malliken's Peak it is called, in honor of the member from Michigan who is writing these notes, and had the vim to climb three thousand feet alone to its top. After these interesting ceremonies were completed we packed our bronchos, and started on the back trail.
