The City Canvassed to Ascertain the Amount of Business and the Disposition of the People-Surveyors Coming.

Some three weeks since a young man named Remington visited Escanaba and 'sized it up," so to speak, from the point of view of a railway man. During the current week another gentleman of the same name, Mr. C. Remington, of Remington & Co., general contractors, has spent some days here. Of the two methods of acquiring information-asking questions and peeping through key-holes -only the former was open to us and that was open but a little way, but using it as we could we come to this conclusion. The St. Paul railway company, by arrangement with the Soo line company, proposes to give us both an open door to the west and a competing route to Chicago if we want such accommodation bad enough to aid in the work by the concession of the right of way and, perhaps, some further aid.

Logal measures have been taken to restrain the Hackett wrecking company from doing any work on the sunken schooner Fayette Brown in Lake Erle. It had been understood for some time that the concerns controlled by the parties represented by Ferd, Schlesinger, of Milwaukee, both mining companies and farnaces, were "in dep water," but it was boped that their resources were sufficient and that they would pull through. This hope fails. The C. & Ncompany, which is creditor to the amount of some two hundred thousand dollars on account of ore freights, and other creditors for smaller amounts, have levied on the properties in this region, the employes are two months in arrears of wages, one of the furnace companiesthe Bon ton, of Chicago-has assigned, and it looks, now, like an entire suspension of business, for the present at least, at all the "Schlesinger" properties.

The failure of the Cleveland firm, Corrigan, Ives & Co., helped to precipitate matters, as the Schlesingers held its paper for a million, on which they can realize nothing at present. A Chicago dispatch says; truly, that disasters to these corporations would precipitate into the gulf of bankruptcy many besides themselves, both in Europe and America. A Good Start Made and Progress Assur ed-A New Line of Business Proposed Which Will Call For More Hands

This morning an Iron Port itemizer paid a hasty visit to the old Cochrane Roller Mills location to be able to say something of the progress made by the new occupants. He saw raw material coming in, a few men at work and a quantity of unfinished goods taking shape under their hands, more men engaged in placing machinery in position, and Mr. Neufeld making contracts for labor in the office. The engine was not running but will start up on Monday next, and about thirty hands will be employed at the start and others will be added to the force day by day until the contract number is reached, on August 1, and others thereafter as the business in.

It is probable that the manufacture of mouldings and frames will be added to the lines previously contemplated, and such addition, when made, will double the force at cace. That work will give employment to boys of fourteen years and will be a godsend to many such lads in our city, to whom beretofore no employment except such as the railway company offered has been open. Messrs. Neufeld & Jacobs are making no flourish of trumpets but they are carefully and persistently laying the foundations of a permanent and profitable business; one which will become, year by year, of more importance and a greater benefit to Esca-

The men refused and the works remain idle.

Edward Bellamy hails the present depression as the beginning of Nationalism; he says "the money problem will never be solved; it will be abolished. The working force of the Pratt mine was reduced to ten men this week.

Not Yet, Boys.

Our contemporaries, all over the peninsula, are congratulating McKenna, of the Mirror, over his appointment as deputy collector of interval revenue. They are a trifle previous; he has "the pole" in the race, but the appointment of collector for the district is not yet made and until that is done Phil's appointment is prospective only. We hope he may get it; we believe he will; but he has not, as yet. The republican still holds the place.

"Only Five Miles."

The Gladstone Tribune tries to poke fun at us because (it thinks) we are unduly elated over the prospect of another railroad, saying "it is only five miles long." Aye; but that five miles is the gap between this city and two systems milway which cover the west and orthwest with ten thousand miles of rates on both passage and freight. That five miles, once built and in operation, means to Escanaba furnaces, foundries, manufactories, progress. le it any wonder that we are clated, good that there is a prospect of that five miles being constructed?

Measurements of School Children.

Superintendent Powell of the Washington public schools and Dr. Harris of the bureau of education wish to find by actual experience whether or not there can be established any certain relation between the physical and mental devel-opment of the children in the various grades, and for this purpose there will be taken a series of measurements of about 20,000 of the school children, under the supervision of the director of physical training.

Miss Stoneroad, the teacher, has made a study of the systems of physical measurement in use in the gymnasiums and schools throughout the United States and Germany, besides having done a good deal of experimental work in the same line, and the results of her experiments will be embodied in the series of measurements to be taken in the public ools of Washington, which will include the height, weight, chest measurement and some cranial measurements, besides a series of experiments as to nervous sensibility. These last consist principally in ascertaining at what distance apart the child is able to distinguish between the points of a pair of calipers touching the wrists. The results in this experiment are interesting. some of the subjects being able to distinguish between points a very small fraction of an inch apart, while others require a distance of more than two inches before they can tell without looking whether one point or two is touching their wrist.—Washington Post.

Thinking of Many Things at Once.

What I would like would be a device to help me to forget things. If a man could absolutely forget all about his business when he locks the office door at night, his hair would not grow gray nearly so soon. The secret of the continued activity of such men as Chauncey Depew and Mr. Gladstone, who, always seem able to talk about everything and anything at a minute's notice, and who have forgotten what it is to be tired, is their ability to forget everything except the one subject on hand. The little school child rhyme about "one thing at a time and that done well" applies to mental as well as physical labor.

No reasonable man ever attempts to do two physical acts at one time, but nearly everybody tries to think of several things at once. If some philosophwould arise and tell us how to school the brain the same as we regulate the muscles of our hands and legs, he would prove a benefactor to his race and be the means of causing a large number of vacancies in insane asylums and homes for people who are called weakminded, but who half the time are simply worked to death by trying to do several things at once.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LOCATED IN MIDWAY PLAISANCE.

One Village Under the Superintendency of Lady Aberdeen and the Other of Mrs. Alice Hart-Blarney Castle With the Blarney Stone and Donegal Castle Beproduced-Honny Irish Lassles.

WORLD'S FAIR, July 7. - [Special] -There are two shows on the Midway pial ance which are not only interesting in themselves but worthy our attention and support because they are something more than mere private speculations. These are the two Irish villages, established here neidentally to show the progress that has been made in handiwork among the poor cople of Ireland under the patronage of wo associations, and more directly to earn a little money to help along that work of industrial education where it is so much reeded and where it is doing so much good. Quaint and picturesque are the two villages, and they adorn the always interesting landscape of the World's fair as no other structures here do. One has for its principal entrance a reproduction of a part of the noted ruins of ecclesiastical buildings which stand on the rock of Cashel in county Tipperary, with Blarney castle as another attraction. The other building has as its chief architectural adornment a reproduction of Donegal castle. Its entrance is a great feudal gate with tower, and both villages, with their heavy walls and battlements, and their collections of jeasants' houses with thatched roofs and walls of turf, carry the visitor over both

The first of these villages, the one with Blarney castle, stands near the entrance to the plaisance, and is perhaps the more popular of the two. It was founded by Lady Aberdeen, as president of the Irish Industry association, which has been in existence now some seven years and which in that time has taught thousands of poor Irish boys and girls how to work to best advantage with their hands. It has organized the working people of many counties, and taught them lace-making, dairyfarming, basket-making, wood-carving, shirt-making, knitting, weaving and many other trades. Moreover, it has helped the workers to find a market for their products, and has now two large stores, one in London and the other in Dublin, handling exclusively the handiwork of the pupils and dependents of the association. These stores are not only self-supporting, but last year were able to turn over to the association a profit of $25,000, and this money was used in extending the organization so as to give a much larger number of needy people the benefits of its teaching and

The other village, known as the Dro-gheda castle, was built by Mrs. Alice Hart, for a similar purpose. Ten years ago two English women journeyed through parts of Ireland expressly to observe the condi-tion of the pople. They traveled not by railway but by the familiar jaunting cart, which passed through the highways and | the village, and plays the sweetly patriotic stopped at the doors of the houses and humble homes of the poor. They saw so much poverty and suffering, so much willingness to work if only the opportunity could be found, so much heroism and selfsacrifice and at the same time somany deft fingers that could work to good advantage if they had but the chance, that the hearts of the English women were touched and they resolved to do what they could, be it much or little, to ameliorate the condition of those unhappy people. They returned to London, organized an association, sought assistance and found it, and speed-ily opened schools and factories and arranged for markets. In ten years they have been able to put thousands of idle hands to work and to bring peace and comfort into homes where poverty and ness formerly reigned.

These Irish villages are so much alike that to describe one of them is to describe both. Taking the one nearest the gate, we pay a quarter for a ticket which admits us to everything in the enclosure. First we enter a charming reproduction of farfamed Muckross abbey. Here the cloisters are cool, the grass grows green in the church yard, a tree stands within, and one's thoughts are of the graves and the heroes of bygone days. But the Irish village is nothing if not practical, and the visitor must not linger long in the clois-ters. There is much else to see. Emerging from these sacred precincts one finds himself confronted by an array of real Irish cottages in which the inhabitants of this busy little community ply their in-

Here is one large room which takes us across the sea to the shores of the Emerald isle. There is a turf-fire in the chimney, and over it hangs the potato pot. The bare wood floor is scrupulously clean. Neatness but not luxury are visible every window, sits Ellen Aher, who was trained at the Preabyterian convent of Youghal to make the fine needle point lace which is perhaps the most admired of all the prod-ucts of Ireland. She works as fast as she can from early morning till late at night, but is unable to supply the demand. Near by Kate Kennedy illustrates the making of applique lace as it is done in the cottage homes of Carrickmackross, and Mary Flynn, a little farther along, is hard the work when the first applications. at work upon the fine crochet stuff made by the poor women in the vicinity of Clones, County Monaghan, and already well known and much admired in Amer-ia. Ellie Murphy, one of the bouniest of the many bonny Irish lasses in sturning all rail, shows Low the pretty light Linerics rockiest is made, which is fast regaining it time popularity since Mrs. Vere O'Fige this and other ladies and gentlemen have made to improve the designs.

The Irish girls are so fresh of face, so winsome of manner and yet so earnest in their work that one dislikes to pass on, but there are many more cottages awaiting inspection. In the next one Bridget McGinley hums an Irish ditty as she makes her old-fashioned wheel sing also as it works, turning out the wool for Patrick Fagan from Donegal to weave into those delightful homespuns whose merits have been appreciated of late years by fashionable folk as well as by the sportsman and athlete. Maggie Denneby, buxom and smiling, sits near by plying her knitting needles, and showing how Miss Fitzgerald, one of the association teachers, taught the poor women of Val-encia island, County Kerry, to earn their

There are people who do not like butter-milk, but if they wish to overcome their distaste for it my advice to them is to visit the dairy in the Irish village and take a glass of the cooling beverage from the rosy hands of Johanna Doherty, Kate Barry or Maria Connolly, the three-dairy-malds. These girls were taught the art of maids. These girls were taught the art of buttermaking—which is a real art—in the Munster Dairy school, an excellent institution near Cork, where all branches of scientific agriculture are taught, to the great benefit of the people. In the dairy you may have not only buttermilk but may purchase pretty little pats of butter to eat with your luncheon on the tables which are waiting for you in the cool and shady court near by. While you are eat-ing a pair of Justy Irish boys come out upon the stage or platform in the center of the court, and give you an hour of refreshing amusement. Jimmy Touhy plays | made within 24 hours after delivery | Escanaba, the pipes and Patrick Brannigan, the crack jig-dancer of the South of Ireland, rattles off some very clever jigs. Willie Roche, smooth-faced and bright-eyed, as all these Irish boys are, comes out and

I am an Irish boy, my heart is full of joy, I owe my birth to famous Limerick city, I can handle well the twig or flitter an Irish jig, And give you stave of any Dish ditty.

Willie Roche is the finest singer in Ballynookeava, Miss Josephine Sullivan is a noted harpist in the Emerald isle, and she often brings tears to the eyes of those who sit here in Tara's hall, an excellent reproduction which serves as a music hall for airs of the old sod.

There are many other industries which we have not seen yet, and having finished our luncheon and heard the music and singing we pass on to see Mary Fagan make torchon lace on a pillow, and to watch Mary Cosgrove doing her pretty em-broidery. The latter is from Bagnals-town, where Mrs. Edward Ponsonby has founded a school for the teaching of this art. In another cottage, with its quaint, old-fashioned furniture and open roof, a great collection of Irish photographs is kept for sale at reasonable prices. The bog-oak bazaar is quite interesting. You will be surprised when you come here to see the immense variety of pretty articles which the nimble fingers of the Irish boys have turned out from this material. I can think of no better souvenirs of the exposition then these carvings of the oak of the bog land, and there is the sweet con-

people in that unfortunate land

Now we have come to Blarney castle. There is no additional admission fee, as There is no additional admission fee, as there would be in any of the purety speculative show-villages which posses ed such an attraction. We walk up and around the spiral stairway a seemingly interminable hight, and finally emerge on the roof overlooking the battlements of the castle and "all Ireland" spread out below. At one side a green rug has been thrown down on the floor, and there, set low and deep in the white wall of the castle we see a small, dark stone, about as big as a man's small, dark stone, about as big as a man's head. It is a piece of the genuine old blarney stone, famous in song and story. By its side sits a small Irish lad, clad in corduroy homespun, and his business it is to receive the dimes of the visitors who may wish to kiss the stone. He is a glum little fellow, who evidently has been chaffed so much, and compelled to answer so many questions, that he is tired. He has little to say, but is always ready to receive the bright silver pieces, and a steady stream of the white metal passes through his eager fingers into his green-lined pockets. Over the blarney stone is an inscription which reads:

And below is a tablet on which has been

BLARNEY STONE.

This stone of world-wide renown was placed in position and dedicated to the Irish-Americans of the United States by the Hon. Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of Chi-cago, June 17, 1860.

From $50 to $80 dollars a day is the size of the pile taken in by the day is the size of the pile taken in by the boy in the homespun. The women kiss it, too, though in order to do so they are compelled to get down on their hands and knees and stick their noses into a sort of a crevice in the wall a foot below the level of the floor. But even this is not as hard as kissing the original stone in Blarney castle, for there, they say, you have to be held over the top of the wall by your heels.

WILL START THE MACHINERY NEXT MONDAY WITH THIRTY HANDS.

A Good Start Made and Progress Assur ed-A New Line of Business Proposed Which Will Call For More Hands.

This merning an Iron Port itemizer paid a basty visit to the old Cochrane Roller Mills location to be able to say something of the progress made by the new occupants. He saw raw material coming in, a few men at work and a quantity of unfinished goods taking shape under their hands, more men engaged in placing machinery in position, and Mr. Neufeld making contracts for labor in the office. The engine was not running but will start up on Monday next, and about thirty hands will be employed at the start and others will be added to the force day by day until the contract number is reached, on August 1, and others thereafter as the business in,

It is probable that the manufacture of mouldings and frames will be added to the lines previously contemplated, and such addition, when made, will double the force at once. That work will give employment to boys of fourteen years and will be a godsend to many such lads in our city, to whom heretofore no employment except such as the railway company offered has been open. Messrs. Neufeld & Jacobs are making no flourish of trumpets but they are carefully and persistently laying the foundations of a permanent and profitable business; one which will become, year by year, of more importance and a greater benefit to Esca-

General Intelligence

The Wisconsin malleable iron works have shut down for an indefinite period on account of a disagreement with the men. On the Ist of July the works closed for repairs, and when they were ready to be started again the company wanted the men to accept a ten-per-cent. reduction in wages. The men refused and the works remain idle.

Edward Bellamy hails the present depression as the beginning of Nationalism; he says "the money problem will never be solved; it will be abolished. The new system will need no money because it will not measure men's rights that way. Gold will not conquer silver, nor silver gold, but men will conquer both and put them under their feet."

Mr. Kinner caught a curious looking fish near the Weston Lumber mill yesterday. The fish's body was fifteen inches. What distingushed it from an ordinary every day fish was a bill 5% inches long not unlike a saw. Perhaps the fish was anticipating pay day and brought its bill along.-Manistique Tribune.

Frank Lappen, who is under indictment at Milwaukee for complicity in the frauds perpetrated on the Plankington bank, is in the city of Mexico, where the sheriff can't reach him.

Not only our railway securities but our government bonds are coming home from Europe. The holders fear payment in silver if they hold on to them.

Minnesota farmers are getting a dollar for their wheat by feeding it to pigs. Grover's legs are all right again; his rheumatism has left him.

Among the Mines.

Ex-Mayor Hewitt, of New York, says theiron tradecould not be in worseshape. There is nothing left to do but to reduce wages. Ore can not be obtained any cheaper. Coal and everything else is as cheap as possible, and wages must come down. Sound, democratic, opinion. Abram S. Hewitt is a Cleveland democrat, an ex-member of congress a free-raw material man and all the rest. How do you like the declaration "wages must come down," you wage-earners who voted for Cleveland last fall? Wanted a eral things at once. If some philosophchange, did you? There you have it.

A telegram was received last Monday by Supt McGregor to close down the Millie mine, and all the men have been discharged but a few trammers, who will be retained until they have sent up the ore that has been broken. About forty men are thrown out of employment.

The Centennial copper mine has been closed down. It struck the lode but found it barren.

The working force of the Pratt mine was reduced to ten men this week.

Not Yet, Boys.

Our contemporaries, all over the peninsula, are congratulating McKenna, of the Mirror, over his appointment as deputy collector of interval revenue. They are a trifle previous; he has "the pole" in the race, but the appointment of collector for the district is not yet made and until that is done Phil's appointment is prospective only. We hope he may get it; we believe he will; but he has not, as yet. The republican still holds the place.

"Only Five Miles."

The Gladstone Tribune tries to poke fun at us because (it thinks) we are unduly elated over the prospect of another railroad, saying "it is only five miles long." Aye; but that five miles is the gap between this city and two systems of railway which cover the west and Northwest with ten thousand miles of track. That five miles is to us competi- | proposal to borrow $30,000 and spend tion for our trade and, of course, lower | it in a better water supply system.

Measurements of School Children.

Superintendent Powell of the Washington public schools and Dr. Harris of the bureau of education wish to find by actual experience whether or not there can be established any certain relation between the physical and mental development of the children in the various grades, and for this purpose there will be taken a series of measurements of about 20,000 of the school children, under the supervision of the director of physical training.

Miss Stoneroad, the teacher, has made a study of the systems of physical measurement in use in the gymnasiums and schools throughout the United States and Germany, besides having done a good deal of experimental work in the same line, and the results of her experiments will be embodied in the series of nents to be taken in the re schools of Washington, which will include the height, weight, chest measurement and some cranial measurements, besides a series of experiments as to nervous sensibility. These last consist principally in ascertaining at what distance apart the child is able to distinguish between the points of a pair of calipers touching the wrists. The results in this experiment are interesting, some of the subjects being able to distinguish between points a very small fraction of an inch apart, while others require a distance of more than two inches before they can tell without looking whether one point or two is touching their wrist.—Washington Post.

Thinking of Many Things at Once.

What I would like would be a device to help me to forget things. If a man could absolutely forget all about his business when he locks the office door at night, his hair would not grow gray nearly so soon. The secret of the continued activity of such men as Chauncey Depew and Mr. Gladstone, who always seem able to talk about everything and anything at a minute's notice, and who have forgotten what it is to be tired, is their ability to forget everything except the one subject on hand. The little school child rhyme about "one thing at a time and that done well" applies to mental as well as physical labor.

No reasonable man ever attempts to do two physical acts at one time, but nearly everybody tries to think of sevwould arise and tell us how to school the brain the same as we regulate the muscles of our hands and legs, he would prove a benefactor to his race and be the means of causing a large number of vacancies in insane asylums and homes for people who are called weakminded, but who half the time are simply worked to death by trying to do several things at once.-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Two Interesting Shows at the World's Fair.

LOCATED IN MIDWAY PLAISANCE.

One Village Under the Superintendency of Lady Aberdeen and the Other of Mrs. Alice Hart-Blarney Castle With the Blarney Stone and Donegal Castle Beproduced-Bonny Irish Lassies.

WORLD'S FAIR, July 7. - [Special.] -There are two shows on the Midway plaisance which are not only interesting in themselves but worthy our attention and support because they are something more than mere private speculations. These are the two Irish villages, established here incidentally to show the progress that has been made in handiwork among the poor cople of Ireland under the patronage of wo associations, and more directly to earn a little money to help along that work of industrial education where it is so much seded and where it is doing so much good. Quaint and picturesque are the two villages, and they adorn the always interesting landscape of the World's fair as no other structures here do. One has for its principal entrance a reproduction of a part of the noted ruins of ecclesiastical buildings which stand on the rock of Cashel in county Tipperary, with Blarney castle as another attraction. The other building has as its chief architectural 'adornment a reproduction of Donegal castle. Its entrance is a great feudal gate with tower, and both villages, with their heavy walls and battlements, and their collections of peasants' houses with thatched roofs and walls of turf, carry the visitor over both

The first of these villages, the one with Blarney castle, stands near the entrance to the plaisance, and is perhaps the more popular of the two. It was founded by Lady Aberdeen, as president of the Irish Industry association, which has been in existence now some seven years and which in that time has taught thousands of poor Irish boys and girls how to work to best advantage with their hands. It has organized the working people of many counties, and taught them lace-making, dairyfarming, basket-making, wood-carving, shirt-making, knitting, weaving and many other trades. Moreover, it has helped the workers to find a market for their products, and has now two large stores, one in London and the other in Dublin, handling exclusively the handiwork of the pupils and dependents of the association. These stores are not only self-supporting, but last year were able to turn over to the association a profit of $25,000, and this money was used in extending the organization so people the benefits of its teaching and belp. as to give a much larger number of needy

The other village, known as the Drogheda castle, was built by Mrs. Alice Hart, for a similar purpose. Ten years ago two English women journeyed through parts of Ireland expressly to observe the condi-tion of the prople. They traveled not by railway, but by the familiar jaunting cart, which passed through the highways and atopped at the doors of the houses and humble homes of the poor. They saw so much poverty and suffering, so much willingness to work if only the opportunity could be found, so much heroism and selfsacrifice and at the same time so many deft fingers that could work to good advantage if they had but the chance, that the hearts of the English women were touched and they resolved to do what they could, be it much or little, to ameliorate the condition of those unhappy people. They returned to London, organized an association, sought assistance and found it, and speedily opened schools and factories and arranged for markets. In ten years they have been able to put thousands of idle hands to work and to bring peace and comfort into homes where poverty and hopelessness formerly reigned.

These Irish villages are so much alike that to describe one of them is to describe both. Taking the one nearest the gate, we pay a quarter for a ticket which admits us to everything in the enclosure. First we enter a charming reproduction of far-famed Muckross abbey. Here the cloisters are cool, the grass grows green in the church yard, a tree stands within, and one's thoughts are of the graves and the heroes of bygone days. But the Irish vil-lage is nothing if not practical, and the visitor must not linger long in the cloisters. There is much else to see. Emerging from these sacred precincts one finds himself confronted by an array of real Irish cottages in which the inhabitants of this busy little community ply their in-

Here is one large room which takes us across the sea to the shores of the Emerald iale. There is a turf-fire in the chimney, and over it hangs the potato pot. The bare wood floor is scrupulously clean. Neatness but not luxury are visible everywhere, In one corner, near a latticed window, sits Ellen Aher, who was trained window, sits Ellen Aher, who was trained at the Presbyterian convent of Youghal to make the fine needle point lace which is perhaps the most admired of all the products of Ireland. She works as fast as ale can from early morning till late as night, but is unable to supply the demand. In the next one Bridget McGinley hums an Irish ditty as she makes her old-fashioned wheel sing also as it works, turning out the wool for as it works, turning out the wool for Patrick Fagan from Donegal to weave into those delightful homespuns whose merits have been appreciated of late years by fashionable folk as well as by the sportsman and athlete. Maggie Dennehy, buxom and smiling, sits near by plying her knitting needles, and showing how Miss Fitzgerald, one of the association teachers, taught the poor womer of Valencia island, County Kerry, to earn their own living.

There are people who do not like butter-milk, but if they wish to overcome their distaste for it my advice to them is to special excursion tickets, Escanaba to visit the dairy in the Irish village and take | Chicago and return, for $18.75 as follows: a glass of the cooling beverage from the rosy hands of Johanna Doherty, Kate Barry or Maria Connolly, the three dairymaids. These girls were taught the art of buttermaking—which is a real art—in the Munster Dairy school, an excellent institution near Cork, where all branches of scientific agriculture are taught, to the great benefit of the people. In the dairy you may have not only buttermilk but may purchase pretty little pats of butter

While you are eat-ing a pair of lusty Irish boys come out upon the stage or platform in the center of the court, and give you an hour of refreshing amusement. Jimmy Touhy plays the pipes and Patrick Brannigan, the crack jig-dancer of the South of Ireland, rattles off some very clever jigs. Willie Roche, smooth-faced and bright-eyed, as all these Irish boys are, comes out and

I am an Irish boy, my heart is full of joy,
I owe my birth to famous Limerick city,
I can handle well the twig or fifter an Irish jig, And give you stave of any brish ditty.

There are many other industries which we have not seen yet, and having finished our luncheon and heard the music and singing we pass on to see Mary Fagan make torchon lace on a pillow, and to watch Mary Cosgrove doing her pretty em-broidery. The latter is from Bagnalstown, where Mrs. Edward Ponsonby has founded a school for the teaching of this art. In another cottage, with its quaint, old-fashioned furniture and open roof, a great collection of Irish photographs is kept for sale at reasonable prices. The bog-oak bazaar is quite interesting. You will be surprised when you come here to see the immense variety of pretty articles which the nimble fingers of the Irish boys have turned out from this material. I can think of no better souvenirs of the exposition then these carvings of the oak of the bog land, and there is the sweet consciousness that every penny you spend here will go to lighten the day for some needy

Now we have come to Blarney castle.

There is no additional admission fee, as there would be in any of the purely speculative show-villages which posses-ed such an attraction. We walk up and around the spiral stairway a seemingly interminable hight, and finally emerge on the roof overlooking the battlements of the castle and "all Ireland" spread out below. At one side a green rug has been thrown down on the floor, and there, set low and deep in the white wall of the castle we see a small, dark stone, about as big as a man's head. It is a piece of the genuine old blar-ney stone, famous in song and story. By its side sits a small Irish lad, clad in corduroy homespun, and his business it is to receive the dimes of the visitors who may wish to kiss the stone. He is a glum little fellow, who evidently has been chaffed so much, and compelled to answer so many questions, that he is tired. He has little to say, but is always ready to receive the bright silver pieces, and a steady stream of the white metal passes through his eager fingers into his green-lined pockets.

Over the blarney stone is an inscription

And below is a tablet on which has been

BLARNEY STONE.

This stone of world-wide renown was placed in position and dedicated to the Irish-Americans of the United States by the Hon. Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of Chi-cago, June 17, 1883.

Ten cents each person to kiss the blar-ney stone. And the people do kiss the blarney stone. From $50 to $50 dollars a day is the size of the pile taken in by the boy in the homespun. The women kiss it, too, though in order to do so they are compelled to get down on their hands and knees and stick their noses into a sort of a crevice in the wall a foot below the level of the floor. But even this is not as hard as kissing the original stone in Blarney castle, for there, they say, you have to be held over the top of the wall by your heels.

While the capitalist manufacturers of against the prosperity of the agricultural that labor driven off the land might be chesper to the manufacturers, Cobden ascorn laws would give such a start to British agriculture that so far from dying out It would spring into fresh life and become, like their manufactures, unrivaled in the world. The British agriculturists believed this, just as many of our laborers believed that we can increase our imports of foreignmade goods by some $130,000,000 annually for free-trade in wheat, just as our labormore right a "ubt that the sun will rise not be wanting." in the heavens a morrow than you have glorious era of commercial freedom, every civilized commercial community will be free-traders to the backbone." Mr. Cobden seems to have been mistaken in his predictions. Other civilized commercial communities are free-traders very far from the backbone, and during the twenty years ending with 1892 the arable land in England has decreased 1,165,000 acres -from 18,428,000 to 16,327,000 acres, or 11.4 per cent. Even the mugwumps are not low enough to pay honor to British agriculture. But every farmer over fifty years of age remembers that all our agri-

Cobden and his backers were really after low wages, which is the true inwardness of all free-trade agitation, and he seems to have secured such low wages as follow a less of fourteen million dollars in the "spendable income" of farm laborers. But these low wages are not altogether acceptable to the British manufacturer in their results. The £42,800,000 loss of spendable income, amounting to $218,864,000 in our currency, or about $53 for every inhabitant of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. Or, to put it in another lights . The total exports from the United Kingdom for 1892 were valued at £227,-060,224, so that the lost spendable income of those supported by agriculture amounted to 18.8 per cent, of the British exports or very nearly one-fifth, and if England could add one-fifth of the value of her exports to her consumption she would approximate in prosperity to the United

But the policy of Cobden was of great benefit to the manufacturing capitalists of Great Britain. The British peerage was enriched by a long line of "Great Midland Cotton Lords," to be followed by a large number of other wealthy manufacturers that have been ennobled.

The same forces which "grub-staked" Cobden, and at the close of the contest gave him £40,000 of the boodle raised but not used, to pass their bill, are now and for some time have been "grub-staking" native and foreign-born citizens of this. country in a contest waged with much more bitterness than that fifty years ago in England, and waged with the intention and hope of ruining both the agriculture and manufactures of this country in the defence of the "Bland dollar" and free interest of the manufacturing capitalists | coinage thereof and there's to be the bigwho have found the lavish expenditure of gest kind of a fight within the democratic money so effective in the past.

"It has been learned from high Russian sources that the Russian government has decided to maintain a permanent fleet of war ships in the United States waters and that the port of New York will be made Russla's western naval center."

So says a dispatch from New York and the writer goes on to forecast hostilities between England and the United States and an alliance between the United States and Russia; all which is lunacy. If it be true that the Russian government intends to make use of the harbor of New York as a naval rendezvous it is only that its fleet need not be locked up in the Baltic during the winter, and is an arrangement possible only while there is peace. Even the democratic administration is not idiotic enough to be drawn into European rows by an alliance of the kind suggested.

DR. WASHINGTON INTERVIEWED. Dr. Washington, Threat and Lung Surgeon, 78 McCaul Street, Toronto, interviewed, in which the following important answers were elicited to the foltowing questions; L.—How long have you been pursuing your specialty?

Ans.—Fifteen years.

2.—What diseases do you treat?

Ans.—Throat and lung diseases, viz.:—Catarrh,

Consumption, in the early stages, Loss of Voice, Enlarge Tonsils, etc. Nasal obstruction removed, no

3.—What percentage of catarrh can you cure? Ans.—From yo to So per cent.

4.—That seems a very high percentage when it is considered that many allege that it cannot be cured Ans.—That percentage is in a class where there is no other disease—no complication—catarrh pure and simple.

Frank Carpenter, the Washington correspondent of the Free Press, says of Hokesmith that "he is as straight as a lake Superior oak." Rather a left-handed compliment; our plnes are straight and tall, our elms and birches are beautiful, but a "Lake Superior oak" is a scrubby, valueless thing. 7,—Then you look upon catarrh as the forerunner of consumption in from 70 to 80 per cent?

Ans.—Decidedly.

8.—Your system is by inhalation?

Ans.—Yes,

9.—Will you explain?

Ans.—Well, there doesn't seem to me much to explain, but I might just say it means the conveying "of medication in vapor form" by the act of inhaling directly through the 'air passages' in the simple act of breathing, thus bring ng in contact directly with the diseased surfaces the medicinal proprieties of drugs most specially adapted to heal the diseased mucuos membrane in which the catarrh is located instead of dosing the stomach under the old system.

Am.—I am not disposed to give up the "inhalation" for a theory based on a foundation of sand in its application, not only accelerating death and aggravating all the symptoms of the original disease, but as Prof. Virchow, the great German pathologist (world renowned) has said is the medium of conveying the disease to other organs previously healthy and not affected by the disease. 13.—Can you give any reasons why the system laid wan did not accomplish the end intended by Dr.

Ans — Firstly, its mode of preparation was kept a profound secret-and in my opinion for no other reason than simply it was a "rigantic fraud." Secondly because its application was not to prevent the tuber-cular formation but to relieve the image of the deposit after its formation in the blood. It therefore can be easily seen by a grain of common sense that unless this discovery when crystaltred into a practical lasse could prevent the formation of "new matter" no real permanent good could possibly follow. No one can conceive in the present state of the advancement of science in this particular branch how a refuedy injected into the blood could revolutionize or check the constitutional tendencies, inhore, inbred and inherited in many instances and forming part of the person's physical legacy. The whole thing is growly absurd 14.—Do you intend establishing your specialty in

RAPID BIVER. And now, what is the matter with a idewalk entension to the schoolhouse, What are you afraid of, gentlemen of the township board? Are all your past acts so invulnerable before the law that you now hesitate on a little red tape? True, last spring there was voted no road money of which the law specifically allows you to appropriate ten per cent of that levied in any road district for sidewalk purposes, but it was a mere oversight. Our township has an abundance of funds, there being nearly five thousand dollars of license money, sixty-five per cent of which is available for township and road purposes and four thousand of which has been paid in by patrons of the Rapid River school. I safely pledge the honor of these eight gentlemen and firms to stand between the township board and any harm prior to the next annual township meeting if they will at once appropriate the necessary one hundred and twenty five dollars for this much needed piece of sidewalk. THE MINING SCHOOL

THE SCHOOL HAS ALREADY TAKEN THE LEAD OF ALL OTHERS.

It Has Now Ninety-three Enrolled Pupils and Its Graduates Are Eagerly Sought By Mining Companies-What It Needs.

Michigan's great mining school is steadily growing, as is shown by the last report in the basement are a constant menace to of its director, Dr. M. E. Wadswort. This life and property, and the assay laboratory report contains a large amount of informa- as now situated is a source of danger from tion of interest to the people of the state. fire. It might be added that since the As last year, it still leads the list in the doctor made his report the senior class ing. It has ninety-two, Lehigh University sixty-four, Columbia School of Mines fiftytwo, and the others even less. These students come from nineteen different states than might be expected, but each man lost and four foreign countries, and Michigan from ten to fifteen pounds in weight in furnishes fifty-seven, of whom twenty- two weeks, and several became slightly ill three are from the Lower Peninsula. This from the great quantities of water drank. brings the school to its limit of capacity, and it will be uncomfortably crowded till the new building is completed and equipped. Its complete success and the wisdom of its location are now demonstrated beyond doubt, and the young school finds itself among the very leaders in engineering education. No school exists on the continent with such a wonderful record of growth, and few schools have an equal number of students in any technical course as this school, which teaches nothing but mining engineering.

The director says that it may be thought that this increase of pupils is due to lower requirements for admission, or easier work afterward, but such is not the case, for the school increased its requirements and lengthened its course in 1889, and will do so again in September of this year.

gineering schools usually find that one year in those schools will only count for a half year here. Out of thirty-four men who less than three years ago were in line to graduate this year it is morally certain that only seven or nine will get through. Since September, 1890, there have been dismissed, suspended, requested to leave or gotten rid of intentionally in some other way, twenty-seven pupils, or about one-seventh of all the students who have been enrolled in the school from its commencement to the present time. In the number of its required hours of work, its four terms a year, its short vacations, and its practical work, its present three-year course is the equivalent of the four-year courses in many other schools. No student has ever left this school to study mining at any other school before finishing his work here, and every graduate is now employed in work for which he was prepared here except two, who cannot take employment because of ill-health.

This coming September several changes will go into effect. The length of the course will be increased from three to four years because it has been found that the present course is too difficult for the average student to cover in three years. At the end of three years students may be graduated with the degree of "B. S.," capable of now, and forward it. Let us have some loing all work which falls to the lot of an ordinary engineer; the fourth year will contain the higher professional studies, and will give the successful candidate the E. M." degree. force should be increased, particularly in the line of comparatively, low pay assistants. He points out with considerable emphasis the great defects and annoyances in the present business organization of the school, and asks that it be remedied. He says that the higest standard never will and never can be obtained while the school is at the entire mercy of the political winds, and more than bints for the liberal-minded to endow the school. A gymnasium would do mere good here than its cost sent to the heathens. Hard-worked boys must have relaxation, and if there is none at hand of a pure and healthful sort, then they will turn to the saloon and gambling table.

The fact is pointed out that the boilers have been doing their assaying in this bar ment room and the temperature during working hours ranged from 130 to 150 degrees. They stood this terrible heat better

For the best interests of the school the salaries of the full professors should be increased. Good facilities for doing work and larger salaries are the only means of retaining men of superior attainments, as the surroundings are hardly congenial to such men, and it is the surroundings which drive them away. The freshman class are now here doing their regular summer work in surveying. The seniors are also here. They do two weeks of assaying then four weeks in the school stamp-mill. They will work on the mechanical treatment of gold, silver and copper-bearing ores, and the students have the entire running of the mill, take care of all the machines and manage them, and also run the engine and make the necessary assays for the proper regulation of the work. A junior will be detailed each Students coming from other mining en- day to fire the boiler. The juniors will be here in a few days to take up their work in the machine and pattern shops. N.WASHINGTON M.TO.

Dr. Washington, whose portrait appears above, was born on Sept. 18th, 1844, near New London, Canada. His mother was an American, born in the state of Vermont, and, out of a large family, Nelson Pratt, her brother (who lives in Sanilac county, Mich.) is the only surviving member. The doctor's father was born in Westmorland county north of England, and, with his family emigrated to Canada in 1829, settling in Scarboro, county of York. The doctor was brought up on a farm, and, like a good many young men with limited means, was deprived of the advantages of an early education; however, at the age of twenty-one he made a break, spent two years in the arts department of Victoria university, graduating with honors in 1872.

He spent last summer in London visiting the leading hospitals there, such as Golden square throat hospital, formerly presided over by the late Sir Morrell McKenzie, and the Brompton hospital for consumption.

OUT PROTECTION AGAINST FIRE.

Forty-one Business Establishments and Many Residences Destroyed-Loss Exceeds $100,000-Little

The Mining Journal of Friday morning said: The town of Ewen, 100 miles west of here on the South Shore road, was almost entirely wiped out by fire yesterday afternoon. . At 1:30 a blaze was discovered in the near of the Snyder House. The flames soon spread to the adjoining buildings and despite all efforts to stay the march of the fire six o'clock found every business house a heap of ashes, the only buildings north of the railway left standing being Hargrave's general store, the depot, water works building, a church and railway tank and a few new buildings on the outskirts of the town.

At six o'clock (the town being gone) the entire efforts of the citizens were directed toward saving the Ontonagon mills. After two hours hard fighting they managed to beat the flames and now the mills and lumber piles stand almost alone in a great stretch of blackened ground heaps of ashes and charred timbers.

Several persons were injured during the course of the fire but their names could not be learned. One woman is reported missing. Hundreds of people are homeless and a great deal of suffering and hardship will probably follow the destruction of their homes and property.

Ewen is a town of about 1,200 population in Ontonagon county, thirty miles from the county seat. It was settled in 1889 as a lumbering place, was built eutirely of wood and made easy prey for the flames. It is not known exactly how the fire caught but in all probability in the kitchen of the Snyder house.

The Cleveland Outlook. Nothing has developed to change the policy of masterly inactivity which or producers have been following. To make sales at this juncture would be to accept prices which would not afford a profit and would entail the outlay of cash sufficient to move the ore, with no chance of realizing on the paper they would receive from the furnaceman. There is a smaller working force in Lake Superior mines today than at this time one week ago, and PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST the end of laying off miners is not yet. The developments at the Schlesinger properties, at Negaunee, are not a result | Store and office 1203, Ludington of the Corrigan, Ives & Co. receivership as some dispatches putit, but, as appears elsewhere, spring from the same causes that led to the receivership. Thus far operations are continued, and it is said arrangements have been made to pay wages for which the men have been waiting for several weeks. There are reports of small sales of Mesaba ores here and there, but mostly in trial lots. These have no connection, however, with the transaction noted in Pittsburg market reports, in which $3 is quoted on Bessemer ore. Such a price has been named on a certain second-grade Bessenier running 60 in iron and .05 in phosphorus, but it is not known that any sale has those of other states) bave pandered to been made. The freight market is still the "unions" and their nonsensical pro- lifeless, although the extreme low rates of last week are not made. Ashland tonnage is still taken at fifty cents in preference to grain at 11 cents. The Escanaba rate is also fifty cents, while Marquette tonnage, owing to the better railroad rate from the mines to that port, has been in demand at fifty-five cents .- Iron Trade

Gladstone Notes. The body of Andrew Anderson was found on the beach at South Gladstone last week Friday. The new dock, constructed by the Gladstone company is a daisy. It has a length of over three hundred feet, out to deep water. The end is formed like a book with a slip for a yacht, slides for row boats, a shelter for them from the sun, and steps for the people to get into the boats with ease Surveyors, under Fred Merriam, of Escanaba, are determining the grade of our streets, for the location of sidewalks.

A STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

CROOK CITY, E. D., Jan. 22, 1883.

The Owen Electric Belt and Appliance Co., Chicago, Ill .: GENTLEMEN—I have been for some time considering the propriety of writing to you a few lines, relative to my experience with the Owen Electric Belt and Appliance obtained from you about eighteen (18) months ago. Justice to your company, and a desire on my part to make known to others who may be suffering from a similar affliction the relief I obtained from your institution, prompt me to send to you a voluntary tion the relief I obtained from your institution, prompt me to send to you a voluntary statement of my case.

I am a gold miner by occupation, and have been for many years. I crossed the plains to California in 1852, and since then have been in most of the prominent mining camps in the then territories of Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, and at present in Dakota. Leading the rough and exposed life incidental to my occupation, caused me to fall a victim to rheumatism which finally utterly prostrated me in Helena, Mont., in "65." I was under the best medical treatment obtainable in Montana for one year, with but slight improvement, and was finally advised to live among the Indians, and subject myself to their "sweat" treatment. This I did and remained with them about a year, obtaining only temporary relief.

Since that time I have been a chronic sufferer—suffering pain and torture indescribable almost continually. It would be useless to attempt to describe my sufferings. It must be sufficient to state that I suffered from rheumatism in its worst form. I had spent large sums of money, changed climate, visited Hot Springs, lived alternately in

It must be sufficient to state that I suffered from rheumatism in its worst form. I had spent large sums of money, changed climate, visited Hot Springs, lived alternately in high and low altitudes, and employed the best medical advice obtainable, hoping to alleviate, if not cure my complaint. It was all to no purpose, and I had about despaired of ever recovering fully my shattered health, when my attention was called to the Owen Electric Belt by a fellow miner, Mr. J. C. Johnson, of Creek City, who was also suffering from rheumatism, and who claimed to have derived great benefit from a belt obtained from you. I had tried so many remedies that I was fairly discouraged and skeptical about obtaining relief from any source, but finally determined it was my duty to give your appliance a trial. I will also state right here that, since coming to the town, I have also suffered greatly from kidney disease.

At last I sent for one of your belts, and applied it carefully, according to the printed directions accompanying the same, and can now truthfully say, as I now do to you, that I am no longer troubled with my kidneys, that I am entirely free from rheumatism, and I consider my health as perfect. All this I consider is owing to your valuable and priceless Owen Electric Belt, and I feel I am only performing a duty and paying a deserved tribute to Dr. Owen in sending this unsolicited statement of my case for his information.

Sincerely your friend,

Crook City, Lawrence Co., S. D.
