A WORD OF EXPLANATION.

Inspector Long Gives a Detailed Explanation of the School Board's Acts.

As the Mirror has endeavored to create so much dissension and discord among a certain class of citizens, by its vicious and very often untruthful attacks upon, not only the individual members of the board of education, but upon the acts of the board as a whole, therefore I deem for. No other divisions were present as Ed. Erickson and Mrs. W. J. Anthony, the meeting first in English, afterwards it wise that a full explanation of our acts be submitted to the public for its criticism. and allow it to judge whether our acts have been prompted by high and lofty and sweet with the perfume of flowers. cream sold during the day. Early in the history of the present board, it was found necessary, in view of Wednesday and Thursday evenings to the fact that our high school had been placed on the State Normal and University lists, to make some improvement in the standing of our city schools.

> Superintendent Pattengill and the university committee, both advised that certain changes should be made in order trance examinations. Thus some means teachers possessing a higher grade of educational proficiency.

The board discussed many apparently feasible plans, but none met with the general approval of the board except the one so much objected to by the Mirror. The committee on discipline and instruction drafted a resolution that all teachers hereafter employed should possess either a university or normal school certificate, which was passed by 11 to 3 and has become a law. So far as I am aware no member thought of political or religious issues, further than separating them | class. from school matters which have been the source of so much trouble and discord in

As the school inspectors receive no remuneration for their labor, it is difficult Bay. to see what reason they could have for catering to any class, whether Catholic or Protestant, democrat or republican. prejudice which actuated the board is the fact that five of the former teachers not re-engaged are protestants. I will venture to say, that if any one of the old teachers will furnish the board with the necessary credentials that their applications will most heartily receive the favorable consideration of the board, and when the qualifications for such an important work are possessed, the board will always be ready to give home teachers the preference.

Now our graduates will be accepted at the Michigan State Normal School and receive credit for the work done here, and after one year of study can graduate and receive life certificates. Those who are not graduates of a high school, and applicants for advanced standing, are given an examination which if successfully passed. will permit them to graduate in the same period of time. It is surely not expecting stitution is flourishing. too much from our Escanaba teachers to ask for an educational equipment which is considered absolutely necessary in almost every well appointed city school in the country.

If the Mirror had any suggestions to offer in clean language, reputable manner, they would have been fully considered as suggestions from others were. But such untruth and vile abuse as he has heaped upon the board and any others who have supported it, in its efforts to block. raise the standard of education in our city to some extent equal to that in cities around us, simply warrant all lovers of our public schools in hereafter treating that paper with silent contempt. ### A MOST WONDERFUL MAN

JOHNSTONE, THE THOUGHT-READER, VISITS ESCANABA.

The Young Prschologist Gives a Highly Satisfactory Exhibition of His Powers on the Public Thoroughfares,-At The Peterson.

Paul Alexander Johnstone, the young psychologist, who has given such wonderful exhibitions of his powers throughout the country during the past few years, gave an entertainment at The Peterson on Saturday evening last before a small but appreciative audience. During the afternoon Mr. Johnstone performed a remarkable feat. A committee consisting of O. B. Fuller, P. C. McGowen, E. Van Valkenberg, O. V. Linden, P. M. Peterson and Lew. A. Cates, was selected to drive over any route it desired and then hide some article, which it did. Leaving the New Ludington Hotel the committee drove on Ludington street to Dousman, south on Dousman to Wells avenue, west on Wells avenue to Harrison, north on Harrison to Ludington, west on Ludington to Campbell, south on Campbell to Wells, west on Wells to Elmore, north on Elmore to Ludington, west on Ludington, to Charlotte, north prices which were obtained for iron ore on Charlotte to Thomas, west on Thomas to Mary, south on Mary to Ludington, east on Ludington to Georgia, south on Georgia to Wells, east on Wells to Elmore, north on Elmore to Ludington, and east on Ludington to Rathfon Bros.' store, where Mr. Fuller hid an alumimun key stone on top of an umbrella case, far out of sight and almost out of reach. Dr. Reynolds borrowed a pin from a young lady and after making a hole in the scenery with it he gave it to a another young lady in the audience. Mr. Johnstone, securely blindfolded, accompanied by the doctor, found the pin, put in the same hole made by Dr. Reynolds and then returned it to the young lady from whom it was borrowed. A duel was then enacted by the committee and Mr. Johnstone reproduced it exactly. Other tests of Mr. Johnstone's wonderful powers consisted of card-playing blindfolded, the hiding of various articles in the audience which he readily found, etc. Truly Johnstone is a phenomenon, performing almost supernatural things which utterly baffle science and nearly dely understanding.

How Cleveland Sees It. The Iron Trade Review, speaking of the strike of the Iron wood men, says: "It is well known that many of the men out, the miners principally, were adverse to striking, and the surfacemen and trammers, who took the lead in the movement, were brought out under erroneous representations as to the price latterly secured for ore. The story has gone that as high as $5.10 has been paid for the best ores. taken up. The demand of the men to be paid $2 for eight hours work is the most hopeless and ill-advised movement for higher wages that has been in the year. There is not a shadow of a chance for them to win. The chief producer on the range has mined practically all the ore it has sold and the others are well along with their contracts, so that a shutdown will be no hardship to the producers. All have their contracts written with a strike clause, and there will be more profit in shutting down than in paying any advance whatever. Its is unfortunate for the men that they have been so sadly. misled as to the real situation.

The Price of Iron Ore in '93. Mr. John Birkinbine, reporting to the chief of the bureau of mining statistics, gives the value of iron ore in 1893 as "The average value of iron ore for the United States as a whole was $1.66 per ton at the mine, as against a similar average of $2.04 in 1892, a decline of thirty-eight cents per ton or 18.63 per cent. The highest average value reported was $3.01 in Connecticut and Massa chussetts, and the lowest eighty-six cents in Alabama. In Michigan the value per ton fell from $2.20 in 1892 to $1.84 in 1893, a decline of thirty-six cents per ton, or 16.36 per cent., while in Minnesota the value was but $1.55 per ton in 1893 as against $2.46 in 1892, a decrease of ninety-one cents per ton, or 36.99 per cent. It is more than probable that the in these two states in the latter part of 1893 were insufficient to pay interest on the investment of capital, royalty, cost of mining, depreciation, etc. In fact, some mines are known to have been operated either to keep a force of men together or merely because it was found better to run at a slight loss than to close down entirely with fixed charges continuing.

Values have undergone a further depreciation and the average value for the current year is probably lower by twenty

Painters and carpenters are in possession of the court house, and when the building committee dispenses with their services the interior of that structure will present an altogether improved appearance. Hardwood floors are being laid throughout the offices on the first floor and the entire interior is being painted and calsomined. Leonard Gonhue is doing the carpenter work and Wm. Duncan the painting and calsomining.

Here's Another Chance For Escanaba. Early in July a call will be issued for a convention of representative Catholics of Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana for the purpose of taking initiatory steps to build a Catholic summer school. The proposed school will be built in one of the three states mentioned, and The Iron Port would suggest that Escanaba makes an attempt to secure it. That we can offer a desirable site for such an institution there is no doubt, besides we have the right to ask for its location here on account of our large Catholic population. Let our Catholic citizens, and others, begin work immediately to secure the school. Our geographical position is most favorable for the establishment of a summer school. Who will set the ball

CARNOT STRUCK DOWN

THE PRESIDENT OF FRANCE ASSAS-SINATED LAST SUNDAY.

While Visiting the City of Lyons He W Attacked by an Italian Anarchist and Killed by a Single Knife Thrust.

President Carnot was stabbed by an assassin June 24, and died at 12:45 o'clock the following morning: A young Italian named Cesare Giovanni Santo wielded the knife and inflicted a ghastly wound in the region of the liver.

The president was visiting Lyons in connection with the international exhibition. Upon his arrival at Lyons he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the exhibition, After spending some time at the exhibition he proceeded to the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor. At 9:25 o'clock Sunday night resident Carnot started for the theater, there a gala performance was to be given ecause of his presence in the cityeveral carriages were in the procession, e first one being occupied by the presient. M. Carnot's carriage was driven owly along in front of the Palais de commerce, and then turned into the Rue te la Republique, still following the facade of the palace.

When half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of lic life as a rich man, and also as a young people who were loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprang upon the step of the president's landau. Just at this moment M. Carnot was waving his right hand and saluting with his hat in his left hand in responce to the ovation that was being given him by the crowd.

The people close to the carriage saw that the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand. By the glare of the electric lights they saw the bright blade gleam in the air as the assassin's arm descended, and then President Carnot was seen to fall back in his seat, his face deathly pale, One of his hands was pressed over his heart where the steel had entered his body.

Surgeons were instantly in attendance and all that could be done was done, but the assassin's blow had gone home and the president died three hours later.

Santo was with much difficulty saved from the fury of the populace and is in custody, When questioned he gave his age as twenty-two years.

He refused, however, to answer any of the many questions put to him regarding his motive for stabbing the president, declaring that on this subject he would speak only before a tribunal. When he was searched by the police a book was found in one of his pockets, in which it was written that he had been born in a village in the province of Milan, Italy.

He was born at Limoges August 11, 1837. and comes of a distinguished family. He is the grandson of Lazare Nicholas Carnot, Minister of War in the first republic from 1793 to 1797. The greatness of this first Carnot's genius raised and maintained the army that repelled the allied enemies of the republic, and earned for him the title of "the organizer of victory."

The Gogebic Strike.

It was hoped that the lack of unanimity among the men in the Gogebic mines-'the reluctance of the miners to go-outmight serve to prevent the threatened strike or reduce it to small proportions. but that hope has faded. The trammers and timbermen went out of the Ashland Norrie, East Norrie, Aurora, Pabst and Newport mines and the mines must be closed unless an arrangement can be arrived at in a few days. The fear now is that the disturbance will spread until it involves all the mines of the range. Frank L. Notton, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, is on the ground addressing and encouraging the men.

The Plague in China.

The records of the department of State throw light on the singular plague which is now ravaging China and make it evident that this most fatal disease is really Ludington street, wery similar to the black death or plague | We again announce to the public that which devastated London as told by Defoe. It has its origin in Yunan, a Chinese province, where it is epidemic. The catholic missionaries there held that it was really a pestilence emanation slowly rising in equable stratum from the ground, and as it increases in depth all animals are, as it were, drowned in its poisonous floodthe smaller creatures being first engulfed, and man, the tallest of all, suffering last.

. Its approach often may be foretold from the extraordinary movements of the rats, which leave their holes and crevices and issue into the floors without a trace of their accustomed timidity, springing continually upwards from their hind legs, as if they were trying to jump out of some-successively die off. In man its approach is indicated by the eruption cone or more minute red pustules, generally in the arm pits, but occasionally in other glandular regions. If several pustules appear the case is not considered so hopeless as when they are few. The sufferer is soon seized with extreme weakness, followed in a few hours by agonizing aches in every part of the body, delirium shortly ensues and in nine cases out of ten the result is fatal.

A Misunderstood Man.

Of the public career of Wm. Walter Phelps, whose lamp has just gone out, we find the following brief sketch in the Inter Ocean:

"Mr. Phelps was for some years one of the most misunderstood men in public life. He had the misfortune to enter pubman of superior education and culture. Twenty years ago there was more of a disposition to sueer at such men as dilettante than there is now, and Mr. Phelps had the further misfortune to wear his hair over his forehead in a style then popular with the shallow-pated idlers of the world. But to those who knew the story of Mr. Phelps, and the ugly scar which that hair concealed, this was a constant reminder of a young man's heroism and a narrow escape from death.

"Mr. Phelps was first elected to congress in 1872, and on the floor of the house he soon demonstrated his ability to handle the questions of the day in a clear and forcible manner, which attracted such general attention as is rarely bestowed upon a new member. His judgment as a lawyer on the civil rights bill, and his vote against it because he regarded it as unconstitutional, lost him a re-election to congress, but he became one of the most influential politicians in New Jersey, and in 1880 President Garffeld appointed him minister to Austria. He remained there until 1885, when a democratic administration came into power, and then resigned. He was re-elected to congress the next year and for three successive terms.

"In 1889 President Harrison appointed him minister to Germany, and during Marie Francols Sadle-Carnot, who is his service at Berlin he accomplished American pork and the free entry of our food products into that country. In that treaty Mr. Phelps demonstrated to all Americans his ability as a statesman and a diplomat of the best order."

Queer Hold Up.

Bill Blunt, who carries the mail between Tower and Rainy lake, was held up on the Crane lake road in a novel manner last week. He met on the road a monster bear accompanied by two hall grown cubs holding the right of way. Bill is of persuasive temperament, and asked her queenship, Mrs. Bear, in the name of the United States mail, to betake herself and cubs to the ne% of sw% of some other township. The road agent was not well versed in the language addressed to her and only grunted and growled, but never moved. Uncle Sam's agent then tried to inform her of his desires in Chippewa, but with no better success. He then told Mrs. Bear in language more forcible than polite that she was no lady, and for all he cared she could stay where she was or go to the district where matches are unknown next morning when he safely made the

How She Crossed.

In Liverpool recently a sentimental young lady from town was on the Cunard steamship quay when she saw a young girl sitting on a trunk in an attitude of utter dejection and despair.

"Poor thing," thought the romantic lady. "She is probably alone and a stranger. Her pale cheeks and great sad eyes tell of a broken heart and a yearning for sympathy."

She went over to the traveler to win her confidence. "Crossed in love?" she asked sympathetically. "No," replied the girl, with a sigh. "Crossed in the Servia, and an awfully rough assage too."

OFFICE, NO. 803 LUDINGTON STREET

A favorite phrase of the populists and labor reformers is "Wage slavery"-a favorite epithet to indicate the man who works for wages, "the white slave." Judge Tourgee, the Inter-Ocean's "Bystander," won't have it. He says:

"The Bystander knows whereof he speaks. He is a wageworker of the most dependent kind. His daily bread today depends on yesterday s labor. He works under conditions less tolerable than many, and works longer hours than most of the manual laborers of the country. His earnings are sometimes more and sometimes less than theirs. He has literally no surplus or reserve. He is not physically robust, but it would be an unsafe business for any one to call him a slave while standing within reach of his cane. That is one of the things to which he will not submit. In public or private he always resents that imputation on his manhood. While he is free to speak his thoughts, co-operate with his fellows, and exercise the power of a voter no language can express the distance by which a citizen is separated from the slave. In the Bystander's opinion, those who speak of "wage-slavery' do surely encourage and cultivate the menial spirit which alone can make the free man a slave. There is no worse enemy of better conditions than he who labors to convince the wage-earner that he is a slave."

But the Judge should take another view; the wage-worker makes "white slave" of himself when he submits the control of his labor to any organization or union; when he allows any man or number of men to compel him to be idle when he prefers to work; when he lets any union stand between him and the man that pays him. Those are the "white slaves" and they forge the fetters for their own limbs.

As becomes a July number of any magazine, the the Atlantic for this month has its share of out-of-door papers. They show more than one way of getting a change of air and scene, for besides Mr. Frank Bolles Nova Scotia paper, "The Home of Glooscap," and Mr. Bradford Torrey's Florida sketch, "On the Beach at Daytona," an unsigned article, "The City on the Housetops," gives a vivid and sympathetic picture of the summer life on the roofs of houses in the most crowded quarters of New York. It is evidently the work of a man who has lived the life himself. Mr. W. R. Thayer has edited for the Atlantic the letters of Sydney Lanier to a Philadelphia friend. They are to appear in two installments, the first of which, in the current number, shows them to be of uncommon literary interest and biographical value. Professor Tyrell, of Dublin, takes one into the far past with his study of "Lucretius," and "The Red Bridal," a Japanese love story, by Lafcadio Hearn, goes as far into the remote east. Two political papers of unusual value are Mr. Harvey N. Shepard's "The Mayor and the City," and Professor J. Laurence Laughlin's "Monetary Reform in Santo Domingo," a subject of which the author, by his official connection with it, is remarkably well qualified to speak. "Philip and his Wife" proceeds in three stirring chapters, and Mrs. Catherwood supplies a French Canadian story, "Pontiac's Lookout." Some biographical reminiscences of beneck, the populist chairman, says: It is a remarkable fact that when the old party politician commits political suicide by deserting one old party and joining the other they would like to cast him off on the people's party. This will not work. We have men in Illinois in the populist ranks who are bigger and broader and abler to defend our principles than the gentleman at the head of Cleveland's cabinet." Walter Q. is in pretty bad odor when the populists won't use him.

Neither Gov. Rich nor any one for him sets up a "claim" to a second term for him. The custom of the republican party and the undisputed fact that the first servant of the state can give better service after the experience of a first term is the basis of our desire that Gov. Rich shall be renominated; that and a knowledge that if he is not the democratic warcry will be "they got an honest man, and turned him down."

It will not do to despise the enemy, even this year. The democracy, alone could make no show at the polls, but the combination of populists and democrats and that is what we shall have to fight-makes an unknown quantity, and the republicans must make no mistakes or they may find themselves "in the soup." If, as Chauncey Wisner says they will, the populists nominate Pingree and the democrats endorse him the nominee of the republicans will have plenty to do to win, and there should be no action by the convention which might leave heart-burnings; it is no good time to "amend the rules" or "revise the constitution" of the party.

Chairman Nichols of the populist state committee deludes himself if he honestly believes, as he professes to do, that there is a prospect of a bolting republican state convention this year. The republican party isn't ouilt that way. It may give birth to an occasional mugwump, but it is not a party of bolters by a long shot. Conceding even that there is a contest between Governor Rich, ex-Congressman Bliss and Mayor Pingree for the governorship, and that the one-term club is to be influential, admitting that the convention is to be spirited, the results of the convention, whatever they are, will be accepted gracefully by the party. It will go into the campaign united and harmonious and it will score a triumph in November, doctor, that will fairly take your breath away.-The Polti-

Anarchism dipped its hands in blood again last Saturday and we, in America, should take warning. It is not despotism alone at which the anarchist strikes, but at any form of order, any restraint of disorder. The anarchist hates a president as heartily as he does an emperor and it is easier to attack the president than the emperor because he is more accessible. The United States has been called the "refuge for the oppressed of all nations"-it is also the refuge for that class of criminals and the sooner it ceases to be such, the sooner severe measures of repression are adopted the better. It is inevitable that such measures shall be taken, let it be done before we lose a president as France has just lost hers.

The boycott ordered by the Railway Union against Pullman dining, palace and sleeping cars is a measure which will test the strength of that organization severely. It is young, yet, and antagonized by some of the older organizations. Yet it invited a fight with every railway company which has a contract with the Pullman company as well as with the Pullman itself. It would seem more likely to result in the dismissal of such of its members as obey the order than in the coercion of Pull-

On the Fourth of July, ninety years ago, when the Lewis and Clarke exploring expedition was pushing westward to the Pacific, it reached the country which is now Kansas, and the "Baroness Tautphoeus," by Mrs. they celebrated at a camp near which is now the city of Atchison. After mentioned in direct connection with firing guns, enjoying patriotic songs and spread-eagle speeches, they sat down to a feast of buffalo and prairie No such luck for Mr. Gresham, chicken. At the same camp the com-speakers will tell of the wondrous changes on the plains since the time of the explorers; but there will be no buffalo meat at the banquet.

Is it impossible to punish crime when party politics is a factor in the case? It would seem so, taking the case of Ellis as a test. The jury was discharged on Monday last, having failed to agree on a verdict, dividing on party lines-seven democrats and populists voting "not guilty" from first to last and five republicans insisting, from first to last, on a con-

In view of this result, leaving out of consideration the right and indulging in no criticism of the jurors, is it not evident that for the trial of such cases some substitute must be found for the jury? Does not this result and that in the case of Jochim show that the jury is impotent to do justice, in either direction?

The call for the republican state convention for July 31 marks a notable epoch. It marks the completion of forty years since the organization of the republican party in Michigan. Among those who signed the call for that historic convention were Zachariah Chandler, Jacob M. Howard, Henry P. Baldwin, Franklin Moore, Hovey K. Clarke, John Owen, John J. Bagley, Eber B. Ward, C. M. Croswell, Austin Blair, Isaac P. Christiancy and Charles T. Gorham. Of these Governor Blair and General Gorham are still among us, but all the others named have gone over to the majority. But what a galaxy it was; what strong, sterling men. And what a record they made.-Tribune.

Speaking of the disagreement of the Ellis jury, the Free Press says: "It is a fact not to be ignored that politics and justice will have to be more completely divorced in this country before justice can prevail and the rights of the people be protected. The judge whose mind is warped by partisan bias has no proper place on the bench. The juryman who permits his political preferences to dominate his honest convictions, violates his oath, prostitutes his manhood and does the community an irreparable injury. In this instance the state has been put to an immense expense and nothing has been accomplished in vindication of the law."

This is how the American Railway Union proposes to bring Pullman to terms. Trains will be made up as usual but the switchmen will refuse absolutely to handle a Pullman car. Should the railroads manage to get Pullman cars on any train the train crew, including engineer, fireman, conductor and brakeman, will refuse to take the train out; and should any railroad company discharge any switchmen for refusing to handle Pullman cars every man belonging to the union and employed on that road will be called out within six hours.

You'll taste the democratic tariff tinkers' work, when it's done, in every cup of tea and coffee you drink, unless you take them plain; in every glass of lemonade, unless you go it sour; in every "sweet cake" and mouthful of preserves that gets on the table, and in every pound of candy and confections that you buy. Fifty or sixty million dollars in taxes to be taken from the pockets of the people and put into the pockets of the sugar trust is what "Cleveland and tariff reform" are doing .- Schenectady Daily

The assassin, Prendergast, seems to have a good chance to escape the rope; the experts pretty much all agree that he is insane and his appearance on the stand as a witness tends to strengthen that opinion. It comes, then, in Illinois, to this, that to safely commit murder one must assume that the act is right and proper, and stick to it; that makes insanity enough to keep the rope from the neck, and a billet in Illinois inrecovery and pardon in sight.

It is not impossible—it is hardly improbable, even-that the assassination of President Carnot may serve to bring on the European war so long looked for. The relations between France and Italy have long by Lewis and Clarke in 1804. The Italian residents because of Santo's cured (in one year) ninety per cent. act, may serve to disrupt them and bring on hostilities, and that would mean the "dreibund" against France and Russia and the great struggle.

> It is admitted by every newspaper that is supporting Governor Rich for a re-nomination, that the one term idea is right and best for the party. but that the adoption of this principle ought to be postponed till some future time, after Governor Rich has been given another term. - Saginaw Courier-Herald.

Beg pardon; note an exception; The Iron Port does not admit "that the one term idea is right and best for the party" or right or best for the state. It cares little upon whom the honors and labors of the office of governor shall be conferred, but it does insist that the office shall not be degraded by any such restriction as the "one term" pretext for turning down John T. Rich. That is all there is to it, now; a departure from the custom of the party maintained for thirty years, to satisfy a pique.

Judge Tuley, in deciding the suit of Sturges against the Farwellsgiving Sturges $75,000-says: "I shall not comment upon the acts of the parties further than to say, if much of the conduct of the principal actors in this case is justifiable in a business point of view, it is under a code of morals far below that which influences a court of chancery in administering justice and equity between litigants," His words, translated into the vernacular, mean about this: "It was a big steal, all the parties were in it, and Sturges' fair share of the swag is $75,000."

At last that pestilent fellow Kelley, found a municipality which he could neither cajole nor frighten. When he got his crowd of vagabonds up the Ohio as far as Louisville, Ky. he and his right-hand man Baker were arrested as vagrants and, when released on bail, forbidden to speak in public. If the authorities of any California city had taken that course the tomfoolery of his so-called 'march" would have ended there instead of at Louisville. The same course should have been taken with the originator of the business, Coxey, at the outset.

British radicals are demanding the abolition of the house of lords or, if for "John Bull dearly loves a lord"), more nearly in touch with the popular provision by which its opposition to any measure which has passed the house of commons may be made of no effect. It will hardly go; when the Englishman is ready to do that he will be ready to drop royalty, too, and make of the United Kingdom a united republic, and there is no evidence that British sentiment tends in that direction. It was nearer to it in Cromwell's time than now.

If discoveries of gold mines con tinue the "parity" between it and silver may be restored, without any international agreement, by the increased production of the yellow metal. A new find in the Cripple Creek field is thus described. "The new find consists of an eight-inch streak of decomposed quartz and tale, which averages sixty ounces of gold to the ton, being very much the same character as the other three veins found in the property."

'trouble in its innards." Trying to make a constitution it discriminated against the negro. President Debs (to his honor be it remembered) opposed the discrimination but the fight is on and is hot. Saginaw Courier-Herald "booms" Col. Bliss in an article headed "Reward the Soldier." Certainly, give him a pension; he does not need it, having "made his pile" sane asylums is not a bad thing, with in pine, but the United States can afford to "reward" every one who made good record as a soldier. The position of governor of Michigan is not, however, a "reward of merit."

Unlike Koch, Backer conforms to the ethics of the profession and gives freely to the world the secrets of his marvelous discovery. Live beer yeast is the basis principle. It is injected under the skin hypodermically. The chemical change to the blood is said to be instant death to the bacilli of consumption. It may be that Dr. Backer is the Columbus of the medical world we so long have been awaiting.

The Iron Port is disappointed; it has always held Mayor Pingree in high esteem, but it can not escape the conviction that it has overrated him. Just now, perhaps because of the hot weather, he is acting like a crazy man, assuming to know more and to be more patriotic than all those with whom he is associated and acting as though he was dictator of Detroit instead of merely its mayor. While Luce and Turner are grooming him for the gubermatorial race he is making it impossible that the republican party can nominate him.

That the chief magistrates of the reatest republics in the world, Garfield and Carnot, should meet death at the hands of assassins within so short a time is of itself calculated to cause all thinking people to consider whether free speech and personal liberty may not sometimes degenerate into too great license.

No matter how good a law may be the democrats are resolved to repeal it if the republicans passed it. They are having a hard time, however, in getting rid of the McKinley law. It was so nearly perfect that they can't construct a tariff law without embodying more or less of its provisions .-The Louisville Commercial.

The Turners want a little change in American ways; at Detroit they adopted a resolution in favor of abolishing the United States senate and the presidency, and electing the members of the cabinet by the people, the cabinet to elect the executive officers of the nation. They are a modest folk, certainly.

Jeering at the measures taken to secure the safety of President Cleveland is in bad, taste. It would be a that be not practicable (and it is not, calamity as great as though he were feeling did the knife of the reach him. Republican though it is, The Iron Port says "God save the JOHN G. > If Ellis can be believed pretty much all the people in Gogebic county and about half those who live in Lansing have been lying about him. He did some of the tallest swearing on record when he took the witness stand in his own behalf.

STUB ENDS OF THOUGHT.

There is probably no other man living who is as capable of writing from personal recollection a history of the early made by Moebs & Co. receive days of Escanaba and this immediate section of the upper peninsula as the Hon. Eli P. Royce. Such a work from the pen of this scholarly gentleman would be by far the most elaborate and authentic historic chronicle of Escanaba ever attempted, and would certainly prove invaluable years hence. Mr. Royce was one of the first settlers. He "laid out" N. Jones and son Howard, the town early in the sixties, and has been closely identified with it ever kince, taking a paternal interest in its prosperity and its advancement, and that an undertaking of the character indicated would be appreciated there is no room for doubt.

> It is said that the recent democratic county convention furnished more genuine, unadulturated, blown-in-the-bottle amusement to the disinterested spectator than all the stopendous aggregations of representative disciples of the lamented Mr. A. Jackson ever before assembled beneath one mammoth, snowy pavilion. There was a factional fight between the administration and anti-administration democrats, and each party professed to have the convention, like the proverbial fifteen dollars, in their inside pocket, don't you know; but the outcome of the meetting's deliberations resulted in practically relegating the antis to political oblivion temporarily. The administration democrats could not afford to allow the other fellows to control the convention. civil service reform or no civil service re-

Probably comparatively few people residing in this city are aware that Escanaba can boast of a thoroughbred thought-reader, but such is nevertheless a fact-one which takes no back ground for the somewhat distinguished psychologist, and whose powers in this direction have only recently been developed. Each day at regular intervals this local mindreader gives manifestations of his abiliities to interpret the human mind, and unheard of. An illustration will suffice to convince the most skeptical that the performance is genuine in ever particular. Fred Hodges is generally the individual who mind is read and the exhibitions are given three times each day in this manner: Fred's elongated form is seen to move about in a mystifying way, his facial expression changes constantly, then suddealy and altogether unexpectedly he darts into the street and his dog Bum reads his mind and knows that he is going to Bittner's after a bone.

A ROMANCE OF EARLY DAYS IN CALIFORNIA.

Judge Lynch Outwitted By a Woman The Sandiest Little Woman In the West" By the Verdict of the Court Itself.

Sage Bar was excited. Six horses were missing from Bill Hines' drove. Fifteen minutes after Bill had reported his loss at the Bar a party had found the trail and ridden off toward the southwest.

Presently, as they were crossing a wet bit of land in a hollow, Bill, who led the party, looked sharply at the hoof prints sunk deep in the soil and reined up quickly.

"Look at the shoe mark! he exclaimed, pointing down at the trail.

"By guns! It's the Easterner's hoss shoe !" ejaculated Sam Pike, after an in stant's scrutiny of the hoof prints, among which were several larger than the rest, showing the clear impress of a shoe. The others were those of unshod horses. Then the men looked at each other with ugly

"Well," said Bill, tentatively, at last, No one answered for a moment. Then Sam remarked:

"It looks bad for ther Easterner, sure Th' hain't any one, got hoss shoes like them in the district 'cept him. I'm sorry 'f th' feller's put his head in a rope's end, boys. But we'll have ter foller him up Who'll go back ?"

A couple of the party volunteered. The men separated. Part of them moved forward on the trail. The others turned their horses at right angles to the former line of march and loped on toward the Easterner's cabin.

The Easterner, otherwise Jack Craig of whom they had been speaking, had been in Sage Bar only a short time. He was a tenderfoot, out and out. When he came to the Bar he brought his wife with him. She was a bright, pretty little woman, but they hardly knew her in the settlement.

Sage Bar had come to consider the pair a "queer lot," and to designate them as "the Easterner an' his wife," which was intended to be anything but complimentary.

When the trailing party reined up in front of Craig's cabin they found the object of their search sitting on a log before the door smoking. From his dress, bespattered with mud, it was evident that he had just returned from riding. The party exchanged glances of understanding.

"Sam Pike came to the point at once, "Craig," he said, "yer wanted down ter th' Bar."

"What's that?" demanded the Easterner, angrily.

"Yer wanted down ter th' Bar !" Sam repeated. "For hoss stealing!" he added. Craig's face was aflame in an instant. He sprang from his seat, throwing back him covered, and his hand dropped loosely by his side again. "Is's a sald, "and you know it !"

Just then a woman's figure appeared in the cabin doorway. It was Craig's wife. "What's the matter?" she questioned anxiously, seeing her husband's attitude. Craig spoke up quickly: "Go back Dolly. They've got up a dirty story about me and want me to go to the Bar. But I'll come back in a little while."

Sam had a great fear of women's tongues and tears, and immediately ordered Craig to mount a horse which another man at word secured from a stable near by.

The woman had looked on dumbly, seeming hardly to comprehend what was taking place, but as she saw her husband walk over toward the borse, she ran to him. and threw both her arms about him, holding him tight to her.

Then they rode away, and after they had gone a piece, Sam looked back and saw the woman still standing there, her hands loosely locked before her, watching them with wide-open eyes.

All Sage Bar was crowded around the party when they drew rein in town, and there were some who would have strung Craig up on the spot when Sam had told Sage Bar was in that stage of progress where horse stealing was a capital offense, and a short shrift was granted to offenders. But Sam's protest that nothing should be done until the Hines party returned, was heeded, and the prisoner was put in an empty cabin, tied hand and foot, several of the men agreeing to stand guard.

The afternoon waned away, and evening came, and the Hines party did not make its appearance. So Craig was given games, excursions or pic nics on that something to eat and then was fastened tightly once more, and the men rolled themselves up in their blankets in front of or the services in the churches. Stetson sat himself down on a stump and lighted a pipe, and with his rifle across his knee, fell to thinking about some "mayericks" he had branded that day.

Presently he imagined he heard a soft step from the prairie. He raised his head and listened. Just then the moon showed a rim beyond a sailing cloud and its light fell on a woman-a woman's figure-making its way toward the cabin. It was the Easterner's wife.

"But they say they're going to try him tomorrowand I mayn't get another chance." She looked at him so sadly, and yet so bravely withal that Stetson wavered and

"For five minutes, then, no more!" he said, half repenting his words the instant they were uttered.

But he unlocked the cabin door for her, and locked it behind her again. Then he stood outside the door cursing himself.

Presently there was a rap from the inside of the cabin, and, much relieved, he undid the door. But he kept his finger on the hammer of his rifle as he stood aside to let her pass.

She came out quickly. Stetson turned and bent to fasten the doos. As he did so he felt a tingling cold metal against his head, and he heard in her voice, now with-

"Put up your hands, and do it quickly!" The order was so distinctly put and so emphatically backed up by the cold melal, which Stetson knew only too well was the dashed out and melted in the darkness on the prarie. A moment more and the hoof beats of a horse came back, sounding clear and sharp on the still air.

The men who had been asleep till now, awakened by the noise, sleepily raised themselues on their elbows.

The woman had not moved the pistol from Stetson's head. But she now dropped the weapon quickly and started to run In an instant Stetson was after ker, and, wild at being outwitted, had run her down and caught her before she had gone fifty yards. As he grasped her by the shoulders the hoof beats were dying on the air, and the woman looked into her captor's face with an exultant smile.

Despite their chagrin at having been worsted by a woman, the men could not but admire her pluck and skill. After arguing as to what they should do with her they finally decided to take her into town as soon as it was light. They felt were just a bit fearful that the woman would escape them unless they kept a sharp lookout.

When morning came a big party set off in pursuit of Craig. But they had scant hope of overtaking him with a horse under him and his many hours' start.

The Easterner's wife still remained locked in the cabin. Sage Bar for once found itself nonplussed. Law and order had been reversed by a woman, and the town had the offender in custody.

But smoke and ponder as it migh, Sage Bar was at a loss to know how to proceed. All the laws of the settlement, unwritten as they were, had sprung from an acute his hand to his hip. But the other had sense of frontier needs, and referred to men. There was an undefinable feeling among the Sage Bar solonst that these laws could not be appiled with propriety to women, so they talked much, smoked and drank much more and did nothing.

When the Hines papty came in, tired, hungry and empty handed, no solution of the difficulty presented itself, and so, with admirable judgment, the town decided to free itself of further responsibility by setting the woman at liberty.

Two days later, just as Sage Bar was preparing its evening meal, two men were seen riding over a swell from the northeast. Five horses were driven loosely be-

When the men got nearer the town one of them was recognized as the Easterner. He was riding bareheaded, and beside him rode another, dark and swarthy, his arms bound to his sides, his horse led by Craig.

All Sage Bar assembled while Craig told the story of how he had ridden away that night, had struck the track of the horses, and, following it, had brought the Mexican thief to terms with a shot from his rifle and then came back.

And when he had done there were cheers for the Easterner such as the town hadn't had a chance to relieve itself of for a long time, and to this day there is not a man in Sage Bar but touches his slouch hat to the Easterner's wife, who Jo Stetson declares, is "th' sandiest little woman in th' west."

They Must Do Their Own Work. We risk nothing in saying that the law and order gentlemen must do their own work as to base ball and other amusements on Sunday; that the police force of the city will not be used to prevent day, if they shall be orderly and not so conducted as to disturb the public peace must "make a case" by complaint and evidence and take their chances with a jury. How much chance they will have of procuring a conviction and the infliction of a fine they can only find out by a trial. The course suggested of taking the case to the governor and asking for the removal of the mayor and marshal, for dereliction of duty, is equally unpromising we fancy. A Cheerful Man.

"Is there any particular portion of the Scriptures you would like me to read at the funeral?" asked the clergyman.

"Well, you might try that bit about Samson and the foxes," he exclaimed, finally. "I guess that's about as funny as any of

How Grant "Caught His Rabbit,"

During the siege of Vicksburg there had been a good deal of friendly sparring between the soldiers of the two armies, on picket and where the lines were close together. All rebels were known as "Johnnies;" all Union troops as "Yanks." Often "Johnny" would call, "Well, Yank, when are you coming into town?" The reply was sometimes: "We propose to celebrate the fourth of July there." Sometimes it would be: "We always treat our prisoners with kindness and do not want to hurt them;" or, "We are bolding you as prisoners of war and while you are feeding yourselves." The garri-

The Vicksburg paper, which we received regularly through the courtesy of the rebel pickets, said prior to the fourth, in speaking of the "Yankey" boast that they would take dinner in Vicksburg on that day, that the best recipe for cooking rabbit was, "First ketch your rabbit." The paper at this time, and for some time previous, was printed on the plain side of wall paper. The last was issued on the fourth, and announced that we had "caught our rabbit."

Turn In the Tide.

Those people who have been worried about the large immigration to this country in recent years may be able to find some consolation in the article we reproduce from the New York Sun and they may also come to the conclusion that one virtue has been discovered in the democratic policy. The Sun shows that it was useless to attempt to trail Craig by interviews with agents of the steamin the dark, and, to tell the truth, they ship lines that at last we have reached that condition which the Chicago Herald held up as an ideal one for correcting the abuse of immigration. The democratic policy has reduced the earnings of the people in this country to the point that not only discourages immigration but has started a tide of emigration from America to Europe. This is an unprecedented condition on this side of the Atlantic, and such organs as the Chicago Herald may fine in this the great wisdom of the democratic party.

All the agents of trans-Atlantic steamship companies show that their greatest steerage traffic is from New York eastward this year, rather than from Europe westward, as it has ever been since the Mayflower brought over the pilgrin fathers to plant civilization on American soil.-Inter Ocean.

The Working Girl.

Just a line in behalf of the working girl. She is the drudge of this world. Many are the burdens that are placed on her shoulders. She is engaged in an unequal struggle. Frequently she does man's work-all too frequently-for one half his pay. When I think of all the dainty tastes of women, all the love of the sweet surroundings of life inherent in woman's heart, and contrast this with the dull routine of the poor working girl, who, however faithful, however devoted to her duties, gains but a meagre reward, there comes to me a picture of heart-aches, yearnings and abasements that are infinite and pathetic. She must-I know she must -long for a thousand bright things which are never to be hers. We all do, for that matter, but to me a weak woman, putting her strength against the world, must feel the touch of these aspirations even in a keener degree than those she serves, who are on the other side of the shop counter, and whose fat purses can in some measure at least' encompass their desires-Chevalier Cadillac.

A new series of postage stamps is in process of engraving by the Mexican government, and will make its appearance for sale in September. This is the first issue of pictorial postage stamps ever issued in Mexico. They will be in the usual denominations-one-cent, two-cent, fourcent, five-cent and ten-cent-and will represent by cleverly executed drawings the various stages of Mexican mail transportation, showing the motive power of man, burro-stage and steam train.

A Tower's Freak.

The correspondent at Atlantic of the London Times lately visited Chalcis, the capital of the northern part of the island of Euboea, which island was greatly affected by the recent earthquakes. A peculiar incident noted by him was the action of the lofty Venetian tower in the center of the town. It swung to and fro so violently that it knocked down an adjoining wall, though it remained standing itself and sustained no damage.

A DEALER IN HEATERS TELLS HOW THEY CAUSE TROUBLE.

Tribulations of People Who Think They Rnow About Their Staves, but Find When They Desire to Repair Them That Their Ignorance Is Appalling.

The life of a dealer in stove repairs is not one of unalloyed bliss. He has all classes of people to deal with, and the greater portion of them seldom know what they want. They think they do, but they don't. This will be readily understood when it is known that there are manufactured today betweer. 70,000 and 80,000 different stoves. As each variety has from 8 to 15 component parts this will make a total of between 560,. 000 and 640,000 different pieces. It will be seen that unless minute details are given there are possibilities of having a mixed stove on your hands. A visit to one of the largest repair shops in the country was productive of some interesting information as well as some

"It is singular," said the manager, "how little the general public knows about stoves. People will handle a stove for years and still be a stranger to it. Then, when something happens to it, they come to us and expect us to know what part is wanted by a general description. We carry supplies of about 80,000 different stoves. There are about 800 stove manufacturers in this country, and they turn out on an average 9,000 new designs every year. As we are called upon to supply the different parts of all of them, we have to keep a pretty large stock on hand. We have four stories full of supplies, which weigh 2,500 tons. Besides these we have 300 tons of patterns and pay $10,000 yearly for new designs. Our stock is an accumulation of over 29 years. Some of our supplies are for stoves that haven't been man factured for years. One would think that people would want the latest pattern in stoves, but they don't. They will hang onto a patch up. Why, only the other day we that was made in 1836. You see, there are lots of people, especially in the country, who use the old fashioned wood stoves, and although one of the new stoves would save them enough in one season to pay for itself they stick to the

"Then there is the 'handy' man, who comes in with a piece of string or a stick. There are knots in the string and nicks on the stick to show that the stove is 'so long and so deep.' When we tell him what is necessary before he can be accommodated, he beats a hasty retreat. And there is the lady who thinks we are 'just horrid,' when we tell her that we don't know what kind of a stove she has, that there are between 70,000 and 80,000 for which we have repairs, and that hers might be any one of them.

"The other day a German who keeps a secondhand store was in here for some parts to two stoves that he had bought. He could not speak English very well, and as near as the clerk could make out the names of his stoves were, the 'Sausage' and the 'Maggots.' As no such stoves were made to our knowledge, we were somewhat puzzled. Finally the catalogue was resorted to, and the German triumphantly pointed out the names of his stoves. They were the 'Success' and the 'Magnetic. "Occasionally a man of the Spoopendyke order comes in. He wants a water front. He has the name and the details all right, and we give him the part and suggest that we send a man to put it in for him. He declines our assistance; says he is used to these little jobs. He enjoys them. Besides he isn't as big a fool as some people, who pay a man to do a simple little piece of work when they could save the money by doing it themselves. Next day he comes in crazy and wants to know what we mean by giving him the wrong front. Upon investigation it appears that he has taken out the firebrick all right, but has neglected to remove the shell, which makes the water front too large by about an

SHE WAS HELD UP. And Yet, After All, the Little Tot Made No Trouble About It.

"This highway business is getting so bad that something must be done soon," said the stout man to a reporter as he looked over his free paper and read of another holdup. "Why, just the other day my daughter was going home about 8 o'clock, when she was stopped by a man who said he wanted her money. She just yelled as loud as she could and ran. There was no one in sight or hearing, but the fellow evidently got scared and quit, and she got home all right." "That was terrible," said the lean

"What was it?" asked the stout man as the gang began to listen.
"Well, I hate to tell it, but if you insist on the story I guess I'll have to tell it briefly. It happened in the presence of at least 20 people. I am sorry to say I was one of them. A little girl not over 5 years of age was held up, and 10 cents and a child's car ticket taken from her, and never a soul to offer an objection.'

A Somnambulistic Fisherman.

A Pittsburger, who is a fisherman, told me a strange story about a guide who attends him on his excursions on stove as long as there is anything to Lake Eric. The old guide lives at Putin-Bay, and every night when at home were asked to supply a grate for a stove | he was accustomed to put out a night line for a catch of fish. One summer it was a regular occurrence for a long period for him to get up and find the fish removed from his hooks and placed in a basket in his cabin. He was at a loss to account for these strange proceedings, knowing of no person so kind as to save him the labor.

One morning some of his friends happened to be near his place very early, when they found the old fisherman out in his boat getting the catch of the night from his lines. He apparently paid no attention to the salutations of his friends, but proceeded with his work. After he had completed the round of his lines he rowed slowly back to the landing, making fast his boat and removing the basket of fish from it. As he came toward his friends with the The ould woman's been lackin for s basket upon his shoulder they noticed a strange expression on his face. He passed them by without noticing their presence, when one of the party ran after him and caught his arm. This seemed to bring the old fisherman out of his strange state, and he looked around of a lot of coal. Sure, it takes the bes' as if awakening from a dream. He could not explain why he was there and concluded he had been getting up every morning in his sleep and performing his work without knowing it. Thus the strange incident was explained.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Talked the Roof Off.

Natural aptitude to grasp a situation has been turned to account more than once on the stage, and in one case, if the veracity of a favorite comedian goes sible loss of life.

"We were playing one night stands," said he, "in Kansas during the terrible period of cyclones and found ourselves in a large, dilapidated building called by courtesy a theater.

"The low comedian was on the stage in the part of a drunken husband receiving a vigorous lecture from his wife. 'Madam,' he had just observed, 'if you keep on, you'll talk the roof off,' when there was a roar heard, followed by a tremendous crash, the building swaying like a tree in a storm. Everybody jumped to their feet, for they saw the roof had been carried away. They were about to turn and make one dash for the exits when the comedian, coming down to the footlights, looked up into the air, and quick as a flash turned to the lady and said, 'There, what did I tell you?' The audience howled with laughter, and the quick witted comedian was undoubtedly the means of preventing a serious calamity."-Exchange.

Personages In Novels. Reading several well known hovels, noticed a considerable diversity in the number of characters introduced and was induced to calculate the number, with the following results, which are curious and worth recording. I have admitted as characters all who join in and help on the action, omitting those who are only mentioned in the conversation of the actors. It will be seen that I have taken sight novels of eight well known writers: Besant, "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," 28; Trollope, "Barchester Towers," 88; Lytton, "Night and Morning," 42; Scott, "Heart of Mid-fothian," 49; G. Eliot, "Middlemarch," 59; Disraeli, "Tancred," 59; Thackeray, "Vanity Fair," 66; Dickens, "David Copperfield," 101.-Notes and Queries.

One Kind of Railroad Pass

"The postmaster general of the United States has at his command a greater number of railway mileages free of cost than perhaps any man in the world," said L. N. Tinsley, a railway passenger conductor. "My ignorance of this came very nearly costing me my job a few "Over in Illinois one midnight the through train, of which I had charge, was flagged at a little way station, and a red faced man climbed aboard the front passenger coach. The stopping of my train at that hour of the night made me mad to begin with, and I was in no good humor when I approached my new passenger to collect his fare. Then, when he shoved at me a much handled piece of pasteboard, signed by the postmaster general and commanding in imperious language that the holder be carried free of charge on all trains carrying United States mails, I lost my temper completely. I was so mad that I would listen to no explanation from him, because I considered him either a train robber or an impostor and made him pay his fare in the coin of the realm, for which I gave him a receipt. "I soon heard from my mistake after I reached St. Louis. The postoffice authorities and the railway people came down on me like a thousand of brick. I learned from them that my midnight passenger was a postoffice inspector, and that every man in this service is provided with a card from the postmaster general commanding the conductors of all railroad trains which carry mail to pass the bearer free. The name of no railroad company or official appears on the card, but the holder of it can travel on any road in the United States as far as he wants to go without paying a cent." -St. Louis Republic.

Like the Japanese and most other ancient nations, the Aztecs evidently considered the fan an emblem of authority, for they generally placed it in the hands of Ometeuctli, god of paradise, and of Totec, the military disciple of Quetzalcohuatl.-New York

Watchmakers.

The term "watchmaker," as it appears upon the signs of small shops all over town, long since ceased to be a truthful indication of the business transacted within. Most of the watches carried by Americans are made at great factories, and most of the so called watchmakers of the little shops are merely watch carpenters. Doubtless the making of a watch would be as much beyond the power of many of them as the making of a shoe would be beyond that of the man that passes his life in making only heels. - Philadelphia Press.

The migrating instinct is uncontrollable in birds that have it at all. Geese hatched from the eggs of the wild variety, though they have had no opportunity of learning, take wing in the fall and fly off to the south. If their wings be clipped, they will walk off as fast and go as far as they can.
