DEBT FUNDING SITUATION IS UNCERTAIN YET

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington, Dec. 30.—Developments in the American-French debt funding situation were confined today to White House quarters where it was announced that President Coolidge had not as a result of the general discussions current in Paris and Washington of possible repudiation of the debt by France, reached any definite conclusions of his own, nor had he received any report that such discussions had reached a stage where they justified official consideration.

At the same time, however, it was made clear that the president was keeping fully advised regarding all phases of debt funding and that it was not improbable but that he would, in event discussions of repudiation developed to the point where official recognition became necessary, see fit to influence the attitude of the Washington government regarding the floating of loans for foreign governments by private financial agencies in the United States. Without Comment. Statements from Paris officials and from French embassy quarters here that M. Clementel, French minister of finance, had not ignored the debt funding situation when he failed to include the debt total on the balance sheet he prepared, and that France recognized its obligations to pay, were noted by Washington officials but provoked no comment.

It was expected that the French authorities have not suggested that they ever considered such a move as repudiation of obligations to the United States. No French authority, with the exception of Ambassador Jusserand, who was said to have acted entirely on his own initiative in taking up the question with Secretary Mellon, has communicated to any representatives of this government any word whatever regarding the debt situation.

Mme. Herriot, the wife of the French premier, has given up a large part of her life to philanthropic work and to the advancement of the cause of women.

SPRING COLORS. Lettuce silks are very much used among the smartest of spring colors. Blue is also slated to play an important role.

Names of Givers Omitted from List

Names of organizations which contributed to the Christmas fund accidentally were omitted from the expression of thanks published yesterday by the Escanaba Woman's Club. Miss Martha Green, chairman of the club's philanthropic committee, said yesterday.

Organizations which contributed to the fund were the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, the Masons, the Rotary, Klwanis and Lions Clubs.

TRIXIE ABSORBS ADVANCED IDEAS

Chapter XXXIV.

Clarissa Moore, perhaps because of her own unfortunate experience, had a distorted idea of life, of people, especially of men.

Clarissa had watched the growing intimacy between Claude Crandell and Trixie, smiling at Trixie's belief in his friendship, her very evident ignorance that he would not long be satisfied with the mere friendly intimacy, and believing Trixie would not much longer be able to resist him.

Clarissa, like others of her class, was of living and thinking, a contentedness in others, a common enough trait incidentally.

While pretending to be fond of Trixie, he really disliked her, would be glad to see her get into trouble.

Not for a moment did Clarissa believe Claude serious in his attentions, not for an instant did she think he would marry Trixie if she were free. But he was compromising her, and from what Trixie had told her of Tom, Clarissa felt sure he would refuse to be the complacent husband.

Trixie, not feeling she was doing anything wrong, had told Clarissa of her frequent lunches with Claude, of the two or three motor rides she had taken with him, expressing her admiration of him, his cleverness, freely and frankly.

Clarissa had encouraged Trixie to have a good time, hinting that Tom was probably amusing himself with some pretty Western girl.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

Had Homer Wheeler known Clarissa Moore well he would have tried to break up her intimacy with Trixie. But to him she was just one of the studio crowd, amusing, but unimportant.

THE MAJOR REVIEWS 1924

By Ahern

A SEVERE LESSON.

The Christmas eve catastrophe at Hobart, Okla., when 33 persons were burned to death and 20 injured, following a Christmas tree fire in a school house, accentuates the need for eternal vigilance.

The upper peninsula still remembers a similar Christmas eve catastrophe recorded in the Copper country eleven years ago and the details of the Oklahoma disaster are but the repetition of a tragedy enacted in our own section of the country.

Few country schools are of fire proof construction but suitable exits can be provided in any building where public gatherings are to be held. The fact that such a catastrophe has not yet been recorded in Delta county does not prove that it could not happen.

THE GOLDEN RULE. The fact that M. J. Fox of Iron Mountain practiced the golden rule in his dealings with a railroad company has been made the subject of widespread newspaper comment.

AN HISTORICAL EVENT. This will be a sight worth seeing: Baron Aladar von Gedeon will move to western Canada from Hungary next spring.

Baron Gedeon and his army of followers, it develops, are disaffected with the way the map has been redrawn. In a sense, they are political refugees.

impose a terrific tax burden on peasants in particular.

This newspaper occasionally has predicted big-scale migrations of debt-worried Europeans to other countries. It stands to reason that especially in the former Central Powers, the people will not placidly continue to reside indefinitely where the economic pinch is so tight.

As time goes on and Europeans waken to the truth of their predicament and begin to depart in multitudes, governments will take drastic measures to keep them at home.

Estimate—Four hundred $2,000 children were entertained at a Christmas party given by the Kasanski Club.

DELTA CHAPTER No. 118, R. A. M. Regular Meeting Third Thursday Each Month. ESCANABA LODGE NO. 98 Knight Rank Every Wednesday 7:30 P. M.

University Man's Annual Dinner Riotous Success

Approximately one hundred men representing thirty-one colleges and universities of the United States and Canada, participated in the annual "razzberry banquet" of the Escanaba University Club. The meeting was held in the main dining room of the Delta hotel and the dinner was followed by a program of music and short addresses.

Included were songs by The Campus Harmonizers—Quinn, Bowler, Degnan and Clark—far and away Escanaba's most popular singing organization; instrumental selections by Dr. Billy Peterson's excellent "Post Graduate Orchestra," and short talks by Ben P. Pattison of Michigan Aggies, John A. Lemmer of Notre Dame, W. E. Olds of Michigan, H. K. Rammel of the small college delegation and Bob Pryal.

Mr. Lemmer handled his subject, "A Western University Man's View of the East," poetically and he scored a tremendous hit. Mr. Pattison was riotously funny, as he always is. Mr. Olds proved a capable defender of Wolverine honors and Mr. Pryal's stories kept the crowd in a continual uproar.

Following the pre-arranged program, G. M. Mashek (Cornell), Rev. Fr. Tom Drenagac (Duquesne), J. E. Moran (Harvard), J. P. Norton (Kalamazoo) and others responded to requests for short talks.

At the close the assemblage re-elected this year's committee to arrange the 1925 annual dinner.

Mr. Lemmer's poem, "The East Against the West," follows:

THE EAST AGAINST THE WEST
There are many weighty problems that this world of ours must face, but one stands out above the rest. It holds the topmost place. A subway for Chicago is a problem small and slight. Beside the grave and serious one of which I speak tonight. The love affair of Uncle Walt or that of Uncle Bim.

The wooden poles on Tenth street, or the latest murders grim. The wide-spread cross-word puzzle craze that's swept throughout each state. Are all quite insignificant compared with this debate.

The question that so interests us, you probably have guessed, concerns the whole wide football world—the East against the West.

For years and years we westerners bowed humbly to the East. But now, at last, thank heavens, our worshipping has ceased.

Before patrician Princeton now no longer do we quail. Or envy haughty Harvard or that supercilious Yale.

No longer does "the Big Three" have a meaning that's sublime. But rather it's "the Prig Three" that has lived beyond its prime.

Eleven big games were played last fall between the East and West. The East won three, and modestly we say we won the rest.

Why even poor Chicago U., which claims a mystic crown For its pathetic championship, could wallop eastern Brown.

We are wondering why the Army cannot come west to play? We'd like to see the Navy, too—this is still the U. S. A.

It's to be feared that our next war must needs be fought at home For our cadets and midshipmen will be afraid to roam.

There's Walter Camp, you've heard of him? The critic without a peer. He's spoiled those eastern schools, in the past; he's favored them, we fear.

To Walter Camp, to all the East, let them stay there where they dwell.

For all that this mid-West needs care, the East can go pell-mell! In the football world the wondrous West now stands alone, supreme. When you want to see a football game, you pick the western team. No longer do you wonder where in football is the best.

The whole world knows the answer—in the West, the glorious West!

You must have heard that in the West is an institution grand. The Western Conference, it's called, it's like a county fair brass band.

It makes a lot of noise, but off on harmony it's weak.

Yet when the Big Ten lifts its voice, all others should be meek. The Big Ten has its champion, this year it's Chicago U.

If that team played in the M. I. A. A. I'd bet on Kalamazoo!

Oh, yes, Minnesota had a team, or maybe you'd call it a toy. In just one game did it play football, in the game with Illinois.

Wisconsin, too, has a lot to learn till success shall cease to frown. The coach is the man to run their team, not the students or the town.

And Michigan, old Michigan, how splendid were her days! But 'tis only of the distant past that we can speak her praise.

Though down in old Ann Arbor town the men still sing in song, "We're champions of the West," yet the world knows that they're wrong.

We smile at their quaint innocence, why M. A. C., so frail That most schools play it practice games, makes Michigan turn pale.

'Tis not the past that counts, we know, so Michigan awake, Or else Bryn Mawr, or Yps, dear, your championship will take!

Court Calendar to Be Brief, Session May Be Otherwise

The calendar for the winter term of circuit court which opens here January 13, is not as long as usual, only 43 cases appearing on the list, County Clerk George E. Harvey said yesterday. The calendar is now in the hands of the printers and will be out the latter part of the week.

The brevity of the file, however, does not indicate that the session of court may also be brief, for a number of the cases are expected to consume considerable time.

Nineteen criminal cases are listed, of which 14 are for alleged violation of the state prohibition law. There are 28 law cases and 18 equity actions, of which three are petitions for divorce.
