FOR DAILY PRESS READERS--

The World's News in NEA Pictures

DAY after day readers of The Press see in its pages pictures which illustrate the current news—pictures with the symbol "NEA" down in one corner.

That symbol means that these pictures come from NEA Service, the world's greatest newspaper feature service, which serves The Daily Press exclusively in Escanaba.

You doubtless have noticed that the news pictures of unusual public interest almost unfaillingly appear FIRST in The Press.

Let's turn back the pages of newspaper history for a moment. Long years ago, the immortal "Teddy" Roosevelt came back to the United States from an African hunting trip.

The editors of NEA had photographers meet the boat. The photographers "shot" the Colonel, members of his party and his trophies.

In the drawing room of the Pullman car a makeshift photographic "dark room" had been set up, with developing tank and other apparatus suspended from the ceiling.

Enterprise!

As the Twentieth Century sped to Cleveland, where the home office of NEA is located, the pictures were developed and printed.

In this way NEA put over a picture "beat" that was talked about for months.

Today, with one of the NEA producing plants located in New York, with the air mail flying day and night, and with the wires transmitting photographs as speedily as they do telegrams.

Do you remember the more recent flight across the Atlantic by the British dirigible R-34? It was the first time a dirigible had flown the "big water."

These are two of the more historic examples of NEA enterprise. There have been countless others—with NEA always speeding up its service as time went by and improved facilities became available.

A few months ago Tunney whipped Dempsey at Philadelphia. Once more, by utilizing airplanes, special trains—one of which raced to New York at 90 miles an hour—and telephoto in addition to its regular equipment, NEA achieved a countrywide "beat."

On New Year's Day

On New Year's day, 1927, a great football game between Alabama and Stanford universities was played at Pasadena, Calif.

This time a relay of motorcycle couriers engaged by NEA turned the trick. From Pasadena they shot at breakneck speed over treacherous mountain roads, through a severe storm, in an all-night dash for San Francisco.

Simultaneously, NEA was giving its client papers similarly sensational "scoops" on pictures of the Nashville flood and the Mexicali earthquake.

So it goes. Photographers working for "NEA" are stationed around the world. They are "on the job" 24 hours every day.

Such is the story of the NEA news pictures which you see FIRST in The Press virtually every time a big news event "breaks."

DAVIES MAKES 1300 MILE TRIP

District Engineer to Give Public Daily Road Report.

H. I. Davies, district engineer for the Michigan State Highway Department, has just returned from a 1300-mile automobile trip over the roads of the upper peninsula and in a statement issued yesterday made it plain that unless automobile owners of this section of the state make use of the ideal winter roads being provided by the state highway department, winter road maintenance cannot be expected to remain a permanent activity in this territory.

Mr. Davies has now completed plans for supplying the public with a daily telegraphic road condition report, which will be published in The Press each day, showing the condition of all trunk lines in the peninsula during the period of winter maintenance.

Mr. Davies covered 1300 miles of upper peninsula trunk line highways in his automobile in four days and brings back the report that, in general, an auto can travel the trunk line highways safely, at a speed closely approaching that of the summer time.

"I have just completed four days of 1300 miles during four days of last week," throughout the entire northern peninsula," said Mr. Davies yesterday.

"I find that in general a person can travel the trunk line highways safely at a speed practically equal to that of the summer time.

Must Use Roads.

The justification for the state's snow removal program lies in the use made of the highway when it is kept cleared of snow, and regardless of all the claims that the Northern Peninsula should have snow removal on its highways, we will be unable to justify such work unless use is made of said highways when the snow removal work is done. In other words the gas tax receipts, plus consideration of a portion of the weight tax, say 25 per cent, for the reason that heretofore a car owner in the Northern Peninsula has not been able to use his car for approximately that portion of the year, should come somewhere near "paying the bill." The State Highway Department does not expect that this condition will be obtained in the Northern Peninsula this winter, but we do hope that eventually the general traveling public will make sufficient use of the highways to at least approximately pay for the work we are doing for them. I do not wish to convey the impression by the above facts that I am opposed to snow removal because I am in favor of it, especially since we are better equipped now to handle it and a real service is being provided.

We desire to install a service to the public, which, in our opinion, will give publicity to the work we are doing in the nature of giving accurate information as to road conditions, so that by merely reading the daily newspaper, anybody can be informed as to the condition of the highways.

Browning Suit is Given Four Day Intermission

Court House, White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 26-AP-The separation suit trial of Edward W. Browning, New York realtor, was given a four-day intermission today, with the realtor himself reserved as the "man of eccentricity." If not of mystery, for the fourth and fifth acts Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Peaches' Peaches' Heenan Browning, the 16-year-old heroine, ended her side of the case this afternoon with the exception of testimony from one witness. That witness, believed to be an alienist, will not go, it was announced in court, until all the rest of the testimony is in.

Monday will see the real beginning of Browning's case when his witnesses will take the stand in rebuttal of Mrs. Browning's charges of cruelty. During the day, a girl friend, Marian Tushey, formerly a restaurant cashier, testified in support of Mrs. Browning after testimony offered by Mrs. Carolyn Heenan, mother of Mrs. Browning, and a Mrs. Mayer, a friend and house guest of Mrs. Heenan.

"Peaches" Suffered Fright.

The middle-aged woman, talking with a tendency to prolixity, which brought admonitions from counsel on both sides, told of occasions when Mrs. Browning had suffered fright at her husband's actions. The young suburban haired ex-cashier, slightly older than the girl wife of the realtor, was a surprise witness, testifying that last Saturday Mr. Browning told her he would "make it interesting" for her if she could "recollect," and testify to something adverse in the life of her friend, the then Frances Heenan, before the marriage. She said she could not remember any acts such as Mr. Browning suggested she try to "recollect" and after leaving the Browning office she called up Mrs. Browning and told her what had happened.

Another witness—the only man called during the day—was a newspaper reporter, Arthur LeDuc of New York.

"Are you a friend of mine or of my wife's?" he said Browning had asked him when he responded to an invitation to call.

"I'm a friend to both of you," he said he answered.

"How many times has Peaches kissed you?" he said the real estate man asked.

"Not once," he answered.

Would Not Testify.

"Would you testify to that?" he testified he was asked.

"No, I would not testify to anything," he said he responded.

On the stand he asserted that his acquaintance with Mrs. Browning had been formal, and that he had interviewed her and had her picture taken.

Mrs. Heenan, who followed her daughter's hour on the stand—an hour dedicated to the proscription of love letters written months ago to Mr. Browning—resented the tone in which questions were addressed to her by John E. Mack, chief counsel for Browning.

"Look here," she said suddenly

OBITUARY

MRS. WILHELMINA PRIESTER.
Funeral services over the body of Mrs. Wilhelmina Priester, widow of the late Matthew Priester, and one of the pioneer residents of Escanaba, who passed away at the family home, 426 South Eighth street, on Tuesday night, will be conducted at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Solemn requiem high mass will be celebrated by Rev. Father Bertrand, pastor of the church, assisted by visiting priests. Five sons and a son-in-law of Mrs. Priester will serve as pallbearers. They are Charles, Edward, Fred, Gerald and Clinton Priester and Lawrence Feldhausen.

Mrs. Priester had resided in Escanaba continuously for nearly a half century and was known and beloved by a host of people in this city. For many years she was an active worker in St. Joseph's congregation of this city and enjoyed the acquaintance of a large number of people, to whom her death has come as a severe shock.

Mrs. Priester was born in Berlin, Germany, and came to this country first with her parents at Oaksh. Later she came to Escanaba and was married to Matthew Priester in this city 44 years ago.

Mrs. Priester had not enjoyed good health for the past year, but her condition did not become critical until two weeks ago. Late in last week her condition was believed to be markedly improved and relatives who had been called here were permitted to return to their homes. She suffered from a severe sinking spell late on Monday night and passed away shortly before 12 o'clock.

Mrs. Fred Domka, a daughter, of Minneapolis, and Fred Priester, a son of Chicago, will arrive in the city this morning to be present at the funeral.

The members of the W. C. O. F. will meet at St. Joseph's clubrooms at 8:30 Friday morning to attend the services in a body. The Married Ladies' Altar society will meet at 7:30 o'clock this evening to recite the rosary.

Explosion Causes Fire in Elevators

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Jan. 25-AP- A spectacular fire which threatened the Quaker Oats mills tonight was conquered by firemen after a three-hour fight. The loss will not exceed $50,000.

First reports that one fireman was killed and two missing later were proved erroneous. Two workmen were slightly injured.

The fire followed a dust explosion on the sixth floor of the old feed house, only remaining building of the original plant which in late years has been rebuilt.

Concrete wall of the new grain elevators prevented the spread of the flames.
