

ROAD PETITION IS DISMISSED

Metcalf Asks Delay to Permit Drafting of New Petition

Upon motion of Harry A. Metcalf, assistant attorney general, Judge Frank A. Bell in circuit court yesterday dismissed the petition of Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, asking for the appointment of commissioners to fix the valuation of property taken by the state in the construction of the concrete highway, US-2 and 41, west of the city to Ford River Switch. It was announced that a new petition would be drawn up to include additional property affected by the building of the road in question.

The case of the Grand Rapids Trust company, executors of the estate of the late A. R. Moore, and S. M. Matthews vs. the Hersey Gravel company has been continued until the April term of court because of the decision not to hold jury trials this term.

Want Pay for Sand.
The plaintiffs in the filing of a bill of particulars in the case state that the Hersey Gravel company, contractors who built the highway under contract of the state highway department, trespassed on their property, digging up and carrying away 60,000 cubic yards of sand and turf, valued at $15,000. A sum of $5,250 is asked because of the destruction of 70 elm trees, valued at $70 each, and $4,750 is asked for the permanent occupation of the plaintiff's property by the highway and drainage ditches. For the use and temporary occupation of the lands from October 1, 1925, to June 13, 1927, a sum of $50 per month is demanded. The total amount of damages asked is about $25,000, but in such trespass cases if a judgment is awarded, the plaintiff can collect treble damages, which would amount in this case to about $75,000.

The state highway department, in filing a plea in behalf of the Hersey Gravel company, defendant, sets out that the plaintiffs never filed any objections while the highway was being constructed, and that what they considered was a reasonable amount was offered to the plaintiffs for the use of the right-of-way.

Denies Land is Damaged.
It is further stated that the lands in question were of little value, and were being held by the plaintiffs for speculative purposes, hoping that on some future date the lands would have value for platting purposes. That the construction of the highway and draining ditches greatly improved the property of the plaintiffs is also the contention of the state highway department. Instead of causing damage to the property, it is pointed out, the value has been greatly enhanced, and that now the lands are most suitable for every possible use, including agriculture, pasturage or platting.

MUSIC STILL HATH CHARMS

Berlin—That music is stronger even than rigid railway schedules was recently demonstrated in the university town of Tuebingen.

When the Berlin-Switzerland express came to a stop there shortly after midnight, a beautiful Italian tenor's voice was heard to sing an aria from "Tosca" in one of the coaches.

Travellers, brakeman, the conductor, and baggage porters congregated before the coach and listened in rapt attention. The station master, nervously looking at his watch, was undecided whether to permit the singer to finish his aria, or whether to interrupt it with the shrill whistle giving the signal for departure.

The conductor reassured him. "There's an electric engine on our train. We can make up lost time. Please, please, do let the singer finish."

The station master assented. Four minutes late the train pulled out.

Napoleon's Pants Made Into Cravats

Paris—Historic wearing apparel of more or less authenticity is being cut up to make cravats for sale in an exclusive New York haberdashery. Thus Wall Street oil kings may shortly be wearing expensive neckwear made out of Napoleon's old breeches or the nightshirt of Louis XVI.

The American woman who is buying fragments of famous folk clothes for cravat conversion has no easy task. Authenticated garments of proper richness and substantiality are mostly in museums. The few available pieces, sufficiently well preserved to withstand renovation, require seeking after. Once found, however, the ancient silks are considered superior in quality and coloring to modern pieces. And their attractive history enhances their retail price enormously.

IN NEW YORK

New York.—In those grand old days, before chow-mein palaces had grabbed up the best Broadway corners, there existed in Manhattan certain individuals who looked upon eating as an art. Their fame spread far and wide. Presidents, in from Washington, were to be seen in their places; statesmen and gentlemen from every corner of the world knew of them.

Such a place was Jack's—behind the fame of which stood Jack Dunstan, the Irishman from Cork, who got his first job in New York waiting table. "He became head waiter of a famous old eating place, quarreled with the proprietor and walked out into the night saying: 'The next time you see me, I'll be back here buying this place out.'"

Jack died the other day, at the age of 74. His place had long been closed because he refused to sell out. He was afraid someone would get hold of it who wouldn't serve food as they did in "the old days." He gave up the ghost when he saw the chancing times bringing the great parade of drug store counters, quick-and-hasty bean emporiums, and sandwich carving stands where men dive and grab and knock off each other's hats. He was too old to change, he commented.

He began with an oyster bar. But even an oyster bar can bring fame. It was said that Albert, king of Belgium, once stood at this bar and paid Jack a most pretty compliment. When his oyster bar grew to a cafe you would be likely to meet there personalities such as Theodore Roosevelt, or Tom Platt.

The regular classes in Salem Evangelical church will be suspended during Rev. Doehler's absence. Sunday school will be held as usual Sunday morning but no preaching service will be conducted.

Wit Disappears in House of Commons

London—Wit has disappeared from the house of commons, compared with the old days, says Sir James Tynys Agg-Gardner, the oldest M. P.

As a whole, he believes, the behavior of the house has changed for the bad.

Sir James, chairman of the kitchen committee, is known as the "minister of the interior," thinks "it rather sad that while more wine is drunk in the house than formerly there is very little wit in the debates."

"In my early days," he remarked on his 51st birthday, "important debates were really impressive. Nobody would have thought of interrupting Disraeli or Gladstone in the way ministers are interrupted now."

or Richard Croker, or Booth Tarkington, or William Travers Jerome. In the gay nineties most night life soirees ended there for bacon and eggs. He could match hansom cabs with Sherry's, Delmonico's or Rector's.

A couple of years after prohibition, however, some prohibition agents interfered with his hundred thousand dollar cellar. That finished Jack. He said he refused to operate a bootleg resort. The old timers say of him that he was the last of the true restaurateurs.

It was in front of Jack's that Sam, the most famous of Manhattan's hack drivers, flourished. It was said that he seldom if ever actually drove a fare. His game was to "move in" on bibulous gentlemen, who generally paid him his fare in advance and then forgot about it over their next drink. Whereupon Sam would return to his seat, to keep an alert eye open for the next one. Invariably Sam would get at least one "set up" out of it for himself. When he had collected a sufficient amount, without leaving his stand, he would drive back to the stable, a night's work done.

Speaking of hack drivers, there is another Sam—this one colored—who still clings to Broadway after midnight. He is known to every member of the theatrical profession, particularly the old timers, and brings them a flavor of other times in a world cluttered with taxis and noise. Al-Jolson is the particular favorite of this particular Sam and few weeks pass without at least one hack ride from the theater home.

Sam invariably gives Jolson the first chance, camping almost nightly at the stage door. If Jolson does not care to ride, Sam goes elsewhere in search of customers. Meanwhile he picks up a few dollars from tourists who like to see the Gay White Way in old-fashioned style.

WHY DIDN'T HE?

Five handwriting experts, including three employed by William Randolph Hearst, testified in the senate investigation that the Mexican documents published in Hearst newspapers were "spurious."

It is quite likely that these same experts could have told Mr. Hearst that the papers were forgeries before he printed them in his newspapers. And he had plenty of reasons for checking up on them.

Peddling of forged correspondence and spurious documents is by no means a new business. It was a trade which was employed with more or less success and effect during the war, when publishers known to be considerably more cautious than Mr. Hearst were tricked by the "Willie-Nicke" letters, purporting to be personal correspondence of the Czar of Russia and the Kaiser of Germany, which had wide circulation in England, France and America. They were afterwards shown to have been forgeries of the most barefaced type.

Connected with this background, which certainly cried out for caution was the grotesque accusation that Senators Borah, Curtis, LaFollette and Heflin had accepted Mexican money. Mr. Hearst himself readily admitted that he did not believe these men had been bribed and freely declared that he accepted their angry denials. Dozens of other circumstances were piled up which would have aroused the suspicions of any layman, to say nothing of a man, like Mr. Hearst, who must be thoroughly familiar with the methods of the rats who fake news.

The American public scarcely will be satisfied with Mr. Hearst's explanation that he believed the documents genuine when he acquired them and printed them in his newspapers.

LUCKY CHICAGO.

Mr. Eugene Joseph Tunney, who unselfishly sacrifices an after dinner speaking engagement now and then to chastise Mr. William Harrison Dempsey, declares that he expects to fight twice in 1928, but that Mr. James Mullen, the Chicago glove jobber, will not promote either of the bouts. He does not deny that Mr. William Gibson, who keeps Mr. Tunney's books promised that Mr. Mullen might act as host at one of the community picnics, but he avers that he does his own promising and that it is his manager's business only to see that prospective customers are directed to the proper department.

The Blazing Horizon

He reviewed the odd chain of circumstances that had brought him to his present position. What, he asked himself, would Titus Moore and Joe Craig say if they knew he had allied himself with the forces against which Moore, his benefactor, had been contending for years? A Boomer—word of anathema to Titus Moore! The man no doubt would think he had turned on him like an ungrateful dog. "I couldn't blame him," Tony told himself, "if he accused me of biting the hand that fed me." Two days before, he had written to Joe Craig, expressing his sorrow at Mrs. Moore's death and his complete sympathy for the colonel and Rita. About his plans or his whereabouts he had said nothing.

It hurt him more than ever, now that the tragedy of death had fallen on the Moore family, to think of the disgraceful spectacle he had made of himself before Rita's eyes in Washington. The memory of it invariably evoked in him a mood of terrible self-chastisement in which the old resentment against Rita vanished in a flood of pity for her. For himself on these occasions he felt nothing but contempt, but underneath it remained a stinging bitterness, a heaving restlessness. He felt the need of some powerful, wrenching antidote.

"Perhaps it's here," he told himself, thinking of the thousands of homeless camping outside of Wichita and along the Kansas border; the thousands clamoring for land, lifting their eyes daily toward the invisible barrier that stretched between them and opportunity. Each week saw a few of them, poverty-stricken, disillusioned, embittered, turn dejectedly back toward the places they had left. Others remained hopeful; many, their resentment fanned into rebellion, were waiting for a sign, for a leader, to swarm in and resist to the death any move to expel them.

Tony Harrison knew them and understood them from mingling with them in their camps at Caldwell and Wellington. There was riff-raff among them, true—crooks, petty thieves, and idlers who expected to find the mythical pot of gold at the rainbow's end; but in the main they were of the same pioneer stuff that had plodded westward over the Kansas plains in prairie wagons drawn by bull teams, when every few miles of the way had been contested by hostile Indians. Toward them all he felt compassion.

Pawnee Bill found him in the hotel lobby toward midnight. "The first step has been taken," he announced. "The Pawnee Bill Oklahoma Colonization company has been formed. There'll be branches, later, in other cities. Dues, two dollars to join and two dollars a year—but she'll be opened within a year. Tony, you can be on that." The younger man felt his enthusiasm. "And what are we to do—wait for it to open?" "Force the government's hand, by God! This winter we'll be busy organizing, but before spring we go in—and stay."

"Resistance?" "I hope it won't be necessary," he frowned. "If the troops—" "It's a serious thing to resist the government with a show of force. It's rebellion. If the soldiers fire on us—" Pawnee Bill chewed his lip thoughtfully. "But if they know we're ready to rebel—if they realize just how serious the situation is—they might do something. Bloodshed's bad business. Give me time. I'll have a plan."

"You can count on me in anything you do," Harrison grinned. "About our finances," he began. "I'm on a rock bottom." "Don't worry," said Pawnee Bill and patted his hip pocket. "I'm in funds once more. I've already wired to have our horses shipped on. Right now I'm hungry. That banquet didn't do me a bit of good; I was worrying all through the meal about the speech I'd have to make." The winter that ensued was one of cruel hardship on the Boomers encamped outside of several Kansas cities. In Wichita there were correspondents from many eastern newspapers, for the country at large was keenly interested in the Oklahoma land fight; and these wired back stories of privation and hunger and suffering from the cold. In December and January Ford will be parked.—Arkansas Gazette.

French Deputies Get Free "Coffee"

Paris—Free breakfasts enable the French parliament to start work promptly every morning. Enough deputies to form a quorum always are on hand at the chamber bar where everything is free for the deputies. This buffet or canteen is supported by an assessment paid by all deputies, but much of the expense falls on the government. Being free, it is well patronized. It is only this year that the breakfast business has been developed. Many bachelors and provincials who came to Paris alone, started the bartender making their morning coffee. Most of them, all their lives, have had "cafe au lait" and a roll for breakfast but under the free system their appetites have grown enormously. Few deputies enter the chamber before the session is called to order but now the presiding officer sends the sergeant-at-arms out to round up the free breakfast crowd and never fails to get enough members to organize the session. Once things get started officially the deputies can go back and finish their coffee. "Why, no; I don't know. I'd been doing some thinking, though. Can you tell me," remarked Tony, ranging closer to Pawnee Bill. These were gunmen undoubtedly, he was thinking, and capable of anything—even murder in broad daylight. (To Be Continued).

THE JOY OF LIFE.
The joy of life is joy
In youth.
And yet you'll learn, my boy,
The truth:
That joy is not the joy
We live,
It comes, my boy, from joy
We give.
When joy grows old, as joy
Will do,
When joys return, my boy
To you,
Then you'll be proud, my boy,
And glad,
For joy you gave, not joy
You had.
Yes, he the greatest joy
Will find
Who learns one simple joy—
Be kind.
Yes, he the greatest joy

Talks on Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE IS PUZZLE TO SCIENCE

It is generally known that many diseases appear constantly in certain families. Physicians believe that the disease itself is not hereditary but that the person inherits a certain type of body structure which makes him especially susceptible to the condition concerned.

High blood pressure has been investigated in many laboratories, but thus far no definite cause has been found for it. All sorts of theories have been held and have been investigated, but the results have in general been negative.

There are persons who assert that the disease is due to eating too much meat to the taking of alcohol, to the use of tobacco, or salt, and indeed that worry plays a considerable part in its onset.

Some say that excesses of all kinds are primarily responsible. On the other hand, there does not appear to be a scientific evidence to indicate the exact proportion to which any single excess may be responsible.

There are already accumulating in medical literature numerous records of entire families who suffered with hypertension and who die of brain hemorrhage, chronic inflammation of the kidneys, or other conditions associated with high blood pressure. An investigation made by Mortensen led him to the conviction that high blood pressure is definitely hereditary, and that there are associated with the peculiar type of body structure certain changes in the manner with which the body digests protein substances.

These facts should not cause anyone to despair of the usefulness of good hygiene. Perhaps it will not add greatly to the length of life of a person who is a member of a notoriously short lived family. It will, however, make him feel a good deal better during most of the short period that he may have to live.

Endurance Flyers Will Sleep in Air

Daytona Beach, Fla. (AP)—Daring feats in the air now have become so commonplace, William Brock and Edward F. Schiele, around-the-world flyers, are anticipating "plenty of sleep" on their attempt to break the world's record for continuous flying.

With the hope of passing the 60-hour mark, sleep becomes a matter of precaution and necessity with them, but in many of the long flights of the recent past most of the pilots have been too excited to catch even a wink of rest.

"We will alternate at the controls," Brock said, "and since we hope to bring the endurance record back to America each pilot should be as fresh as possible when at the controls."

Coffee, soup, chicken and beef sandwiches and fresh fruits will comprise their diet while in the air. The cabin of "The Pride of Detroit" is spacious, but most of the room will be taken up with gasoline cans, as 650 gallons of fuel will be carried. The plane will carry a load of 6000 pounds.

"We have two purposes in view," the flyers explained. "One is to bring back that record to the United States and the other is to prove the reliability of aviation. It stands to reason that if a plane can stay in the air 50 or 60 hours, functioning properly, long and short flights can be made safely."

YOUTH FACES OLD PROBLEM

Their's Is the Task of Saving Society, Says Head of University

Boston—The youth of today faces the age-old problem of "saving" society, says President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston university.

In order to accomplish its task the rising generation, he asserts, must succeed in rejuvenating a moral and social conscience which, despite the best intentions of society, shows unmistakable signs of "petering out" periodically. It is education, he believes, that will help in the saving process.

"Education bears a vital relationship to the maintenance of a rightly ordered society," President Marsh says. "It is the indispensable means by which society shapes its ends and its progress. It is impossible to capitalize the good things of each generation so strongly that the accumulated moral strength will not subside and ultimately end in bankruptcy unless its strength is renewed with each generation. That means that each generation is faced with the necessity of saving society."

"As a result, education must play its part and each generation must be taught certain fundamentals essential to an orderly state of society."

"Among other things, America's youth must be taught to place only good and worthy men in positions of power, to enact just and equal laws and to enforce the laws upon all alike, without delay and without fear or favor for delay causes fermentation of unsocial propaganda.

"They must be taught to obey and reverence all laws as the political religion of the nation, for disrespect for law is a sign of social disintegration; to respect property as a divine institution, for by means of it the material wealth of mankind may be increased, the intellect developed and innumerable virtues exercised, and to recognize human rights as more important than property rights."

"America's youth must learn to think straight so that liberty shall not be confused with license, nor public opinion with mob psychology; to appeal to reason instead of to physical force and violence as a means of settling disputes, and to rise above all class and racial fear and hatred and jealousy and animosity."

"It is important, too, that they come to appreciate solid attainments and national character, for it is the tollsome evolution of ages that crowns itself with our federal union. They must be tolerant of progressive change, for the surest way to avoid revolution is to encourage evolution."

Public Lends Aid to Families Who Lost All in Fire

Demonstrating again their willingness to help in times of need, Escanaba folks responded generously yesterday to the appeal for food, clothing and household goods for the unfortunate Duncan and Nicholson families, who lost all their belongings in the fire at the Hutte Motore Service building on Tuesday.

The Women's Home Foreign Missionary society of the First M. E. church collected a large amount of wearing apparel and household articles among its members, and delivered them to the stricken families. Numerous telephone calls were received yesterday at the office of Carl E. Anderson, city poor commissioner, from folks offering to lend assistance. City cars yesterday went around to the various homes of contributors, gathering the various articles.

The two families were amply provided for late yesterday as contributions continued pouring in. Mr. Anderson said that all surplus goods would be turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy persons.

Mexico Planning 300-Mile Highway

Nogales, Ariz.—Mexico's road building governor, General Faus to Topete, of Sonora, has embarked upon the most ambitious state highway construction program in the southern republic. His plan for building a $1,250,000 highway to traverse Sonora from north to south, laying down a pavement approximately 300 miles long, already is underway.

The highway will extend from Nogales on the American border south through Hermodillo, capital of the state, to Guaymas, on the Gulf of California. The Mexican government is to pay half the cost and a state appropriation is to be raised for the balance.

Governor Topete, at 35, is Mexico's youngest state executive. His program of progress is undertaken to open new trade possibilities to foster native commerce and industry, and to encourage investment of American capital in Sonora mining and agricultural industries.

"The construction of a highway from Nogales to Guaymas at an expenditure of 2,500,000 pesos," Governor Topete, "is first on my program, understanding that public highways are one of the principal means of progress for our towns and cities. I shall direct all my activities and energies to the end of leaving this enduring remembrance to my state."

Baldwin's election was well received by the members of the entire student body of the school.

Engineers now are working out of Hermosillo northward on the new highway, which has been re-lined and staked for many miles. The principal thoroughfare of Hermosillo is paved, and the work of surfacing all the city's streets is going forward continually. Governor Topete declares his intention of similarly paving the streets of Guaymas, Nogales, and Navajoa.

Beggars Protest Child Labor Ban

Tokyo—Beggars of Tokyo have protested to police against the plan to prohibit the use of children in the begging business.

There are some 400 professional beggars in Tokyo and most of them use pathetic-looking children—either their own or rented ones—to tease ten-sen pieces from the pockets of soft-hearted citizens. If they are not permitted to use children, the beggars claim, their business will be ruined. The police plan to place the children in a government home where they can be educated and cared for.

The police say some beggars have made small fortunes at their business, but most of them live in doss houses or in the slums.

Japan Importing California Rice

Tokyo (AP)—Japan is one of the great rice producing nations, but it is importing large quantities of the grain from California in order to feed its growing population. Government reports show that nearly a million pounds of rice have come to Japan from the California fields during the past year. This amount is the largest imported since 1922.

The first major importation of rice from California started in 1921. In 1922 the amount reached approximately a million pounds. Then there was a slump for four years, but since November of last year imports have jumped markedly.

California growers, who are largely Japanese themselves, are making efforts to create a regular demand for their product here. It is understood that they never expect to compete with Japan itself in rice growing, but that they have a high quality product to offer and desire a foreign market in addition to the domestic demand in the United States.

California rice is generally conceded to be superior to any product grown outside of Japan proper except some varieties of Korean rice. When it is shipped without being bleached and polished it can scarcely be distinguished from home-grown rice. Heretofore it has been imported into marketable form in the United States, but shippers are now sending it in large quantities for milling in Japan, just as wheat is now being shipped here.

The installation of huge elevator systems for loading and unloading is expected shortly so that rice may be poured into the hold of a ship at American ports, sent directly across the Pacific and unloaded by fast conveyor systems here.

Japan annually consumes some 240,000,000 bushels of rice among its 60,000,000 of population. Of this amount about three per cent now must be imported.

Paris—"Red Tape, the Patron Saint of France," has a new charge laid against her and "all Frenchmen who have not lost their sense of humor" are asked to laugh.

A watchman at the government's Mazarin library was changed and to approve his installation in the little living quarters in the building, Edouard Herriot, minister of public instruction, drafted a 300-word decree, citing all proper legal references and arguments which required hours of work, had Premier Poincare consider and approve it and finally had it signed by President Gaston Doumergue.

Stork Defeats One Child System

Berlin—The German stork won against the one-child system by bringing twins, triplets and even quadruplets to 15,904 families, according to statistics just published for 1925.

Of the 15,741 pairs of twins, mixed twins were most frequent, with boy twins second. But the stork equalized that by bringing three girls to 44 families and three triplets to only 31 homes. Eighty-six sets of triplets were mixed, bringing the total up to 161.

Two homes received families of an old fashioned size when they were blessed with quadruplets, in one case all girls.

"The EPIC of the AIR" coming to you

THE ONE AND ONLY AUTHENTIC STORY OF THE GREAT WORLD HERO
LINDBERGH
Written by "The Lone Eagle" himself
With an introduction by Ambassador Myron T. Herrick

MILLIONS of people have cheered him; endless pages of words have been said, sung and written in his praise but LINDBERGH—the modest, unassuming, lovable boy—could not be spoiled by applause or acclaim.

But how HE felt through it all—his own true story—that is what no one knows but Lindbergh himself.

And that is what he tells in this thrilling story "WE" that recounts his early life, his adventures both in and out of the AIR MAIL SERVICE, his own conception of the flights from San Diego to New York and Long Island to Paris, the instruments he used to guide him, and the pomp and pageantry of the receptions abroad and at home, and his own ideas as to the future of aviation.

NO AMERICAN WILL REALIZE THE FULLNESS OF THE HEROIC AGE HE LIVES IN UNTIL HE HAS READ THIS FOREVER-MEMORABLE STORY THAT APPEARS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN ANY NEWSPAPER.

BEARS CONTROL STOCK MARKET

STOCK SALES AVERAGES. Twenty Twenty

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The stock market broke sharply today under the weight of heavy selling inspired by the unexpected large increase in stock exchange member loans.

The day's sales totaled 3,404,100 shares, which have been exceeded only once in the history of the exchange.

The announcement of record-breaking loan figures came at a time when the market was in an impaired technical position.

Impressive recoveries took place in several issues during the late trading, but final quotations were generally lower.

The New York federal reserve rediscount rate was announced as unchanged at 3 1/2 per cent.

The weekly statement of brokers' loans made public by that institution after the close of the market showed an increase of $92,401,000.

U. S. Steel common fell 3 points and General Motors 4 3/8, with subsequent rallies of about a point each.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits with no chances of consequence.

Bob! So simple! Hadn't she known, deep in her heart ever since she had married Bob?

Faith took the three bottles of poison out of her handbag and ranged them in a straight line before her on the writing table.

With a low, gasping moan she laid her head on the slanting top of the writing table, knocking over her precious bottles without knowing that she did so.

She knew now that this thing that had been lying in wait for her was determined that she should realize her tragedy to its uttermost before she could be freed.

There was no use being bitter when you faced death. Chery was selfish and wilful and irresponsible, but not hard-hearted.

It was Bob who had been insisting that she "give herself to love." Faith, sitting very still, her eyes black and enormous in the chalky whiteness of her face, felt the agony which she had held at bay swooping down upon her.

"I know, I know!" Faith moaned. That homeless voice took up its taunt: "That's not why you want to die! You're going to kill yourself so that they will be sorry. You know they can't go away together if you commit suicide. You know that's the sure way to keep them from marrying and being happy. Don't fool yourself, Faith!"

That outside voice jeered at her: "He lost his respect for her, but she was in his blood. He wanted her all the time. He has been in torment because she was his wife's sister. And now he doesn't care if she is taboo. He loves her too much, wants her too much, to care about anything but her. You heard him pleading with her not to be a coward, to give herself to love."

THREE BLAZES CALL FIREMEN

$500 Damage to Wellman Home; Peltin Store Endangered

Damage amounting to about $500 was done to the Simeon Wellman home, 421 South Nineteenth street, and the Peltin Second Hand store was seriously threatened by another blaze yesterday.

Firemen were called out to the Wellman home at 7:35 o'clock last night, finding the doors locked as the occupants had gone down town. The rear end of the one-story house was ablaze, but the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the fire within a few minutes. Much damage was done to furniture in the kitchen and a bedroom of the home, and the interior of the two rooms were considerably damaged by fire and smoke. The damage to the building was covered by insurance, but no protection was carried on the furniture.

It is believed that the fire was caused by an overheated stove-pipe.

The department responded to a call to the Peltin Second Hand store, 511 Ludington street, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A new table, wrapped in burlap and paper, which had been resting against a stove pipe in the upstairs storage room of the store, had caught fire. Benjamin Peltin discovered the blaze, and attempted to carry the burning furniture downstairs. The heat became too intense, however, and he dropped the burning table on the stairway, which also was ignited. The firemen arrived a few moments later, and put out the fire with chemicals.

Peltin received slight burns about the hands and face, his hair being singed, while carrying the table down the stairway.

The fire department also was called early last evening to the John Lindgren home, 406 South Twelfth street, to extinguish a chimney fire.

Columbia, S. C. (NEA)—Said the governor of Maine to the governor of South Carolina. "Here are the flags we captured in 1863," or words to that effect. In any event, five Confederate flags taken in the heat of battle were returned with expressions of friendship and good will. They had been captured by the Ninth Maine Volunteers from the Twenty-first South Carolina Volunteers, in battle at Morris Island, July 11, 1863.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. Daugherty, 2363 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

HABIT KILLS GIRL

New York—The habit of putting a paint brush in her mouth to point it for better work, is held responsible for the death of a girl employed in a radium plant. The girl's job consisted of painting watch dials with luminous pigment. It is believed that the habit of moistening the end of her brush with the lips allowed the radium to poison her system.

RESTRICTION OF PARKING ASKED

"900" Block's Business Men Protest to City Council

Fifteen owners of stores and business places in the "900" block in Ludington street voiced a protest against the parking of automobiles for lengthy periods in front of their establishments in a petition presented to the city council last night. The matter was referred to the chief of police and city attorney, who were requested to make a report on this particular traffic situation at the next meeting.

"Many of our customers desiring to enter our stores are turned away and inconvenienced because of their inability to find a parking place," the petition read. The petitioners further stated that they desired some regulation of the parking between 7 p. m. and 11 p. m. on the evenings their stores were open for business. The petition was dated November 23.

Mrs. S. W. Brennan and Mathias Peterson were reappointed as members of the library board by a unanimous vote of the council.

A total of $714.20 was collected by Justices of the Peace James E. Doherty and Henry E. Ranguette during the month of November, according to a report read before the council. Justice Ranguette disposed of ten cases, collecting $482.50, and Justice Doherty collected $231.70.

During November, the fire department responded to 18 fire calls. The total fire damage during the month was $11,630, most of this amount being caused by the fire in the United Cigar Store, where the loss was $10,500. There were 20 fire calls in December, but the damage done amounted to only $400.

The council authorized the removal from the city treasurer's books of certain unpaid personal tax accounts, accruing during the last five years, which City Treasurer Manley considers uncollectible. The accounts total $1091.69.
