SHERIFF CURRAN FEELS INSULTED

 If the prosecuting attorney were permitted to hire detectives the chances are that the greater part of our court calendar and the time of our courts would be taken up with criminal cases at the expense of the taxpayers. Every person who is familiar with the criminal practice knows that the prosecuting attorney is obliged to endorse the names of all the witnesses on the information when he files it so that the attorneys for the defense know just who the people's witnesses are. As far as witnesses are concerned, the prosecuting attorney is supposed not to have any secrets because he represents not only the people but the defendant in every case, to see that justice is done.
 No deputy has ever served a criminal subpoena since I have been sheriff until this last term of court, which was necessary on account of my sickness with ptomaine poisoning. It has always been customary until recently for the prosecuting attorney to have all criminal subpoenas in the possession of the sheriff at least one month before court convenes to give the sheriff an opportunity to have them served in time, and look up the proper evidence if necessary. I only had one week in which to serve the subpoenas for this term. There is no occasion for any criticism to be made in reference to the office of sheriff and if there is any criticism to be made it ought to be directed against the office of prosecuting attorney.—T. J. Curran, Sheriff of Delta County.

The Death Pain.

A reporter asked a well known surgeon whether his experience as a medical man had led him to believe that death is painless.
 "Speaking generally," he said, "the death agony is very rarely attended by pain, because the system is always prepared for death by a weakening of the vital forces, by the circulation of impure blood through the brain and by the obtunding of the nerves. Of course some people have more pain than others, and this is very largely determined by temperament. A nervous man—all other things being equal—suffers more pain than a man who has enjoyed robust health, because the nervous man's sensibilities are stronger, but the pain of death is more in the anticipation of it than in the reality. Men of education face death with greater fortitude than men who are not educated. Women are almost always pluckier than men. They endure pain much better."—London Globe.

"WALLINGFORD" NO CREATURE OF MYTH

 Under An Innocent Name.

"In Escanaba "Wallingford" operated under the innocent name of Kamp, while he had a smiling assistant named Hayner. Both of these obliging gentlemen, who were so eager to give everybody the "gladhand," finally bade adieu to this city last September, carrying with them a roll of 'long green'—only a little matter of about $20,000, money paid out for county rights by local get-rich-quick-investors in kitchen cabinets.

Over at the Soo, the Escanaba Wallingford and his genial and obliging partner, Mr. Hayner, cleaned up something like $34,000 in county rights.
 Turned Out a Dead Loss.
 Escanaba investors after paying prices ranging from $300 to $600 for a county right, found out in due time that the average housewife balked at paying $16.75 for an article which cost from three to five dollars to manufacture. Besides, many householders declined to buy them at half the price with the result that so few cabinets were sold by merchants and those holding exclusive county rights to sell cabinets, that the money paid out for county rights turned out a dead loss, and the rebate of one dollar on each cabinet sold, promised by Kamp and Hayner, proved a bait in trapping the unwary. It was explained that this would recompense investors for money paid out for county rights, and if a county right cost $500 and 500 kitchen cabinets were sold in a week or two, the amount in rebates would cover the cost of the right, and besides this, it would also mean a profit of eight or nine dollars on each cabinet sold.

"A sucker is born every minute," said the prominent resident at the close of the interview with him. "I was one of the suckers who swallowed the hook, bait and all, when 'Wallingford' fished in the still water of Escanaba last summer."

CHAPTER XVIII CONTRABAND.

SELDON did not mention the subject again, nor did his conduct change from what it had always been. There was nothing of the pining lover, nor of the lover at all, in his demeanor. Nor was there any awkwardness between them. They were as frank and friendly in their relations as ever.

The labor situation in Berande was improving. The Marha had carried away fifty of the blacks whose time was up, and they had been among the worst on the plantation. Five men recruited by Johnny Be-blowed, men who had come through the old days of terrorism when the original owners of Berande had been driven away. The new recruits, being broken in under the new regime, gave better promise. Joan had joined with Sheldon from the start in the program that they must be gripped with a strong hand.

"I think it would be a good idea to get all the gangs at work close to the house this afternoon," she announced one day at breakfast. "I've cleaned up the house, and you ought to clean up the barracks. There is too much stealing going on."

Joan and Sheldon, both armed, went through the barracks, house by house, the boss boys assisting.

A wealth of loot was recovered. There were fully a dozen case knives, backing weapons, with razor edges, capable of decapitating a man at a stroke, but most astonishing was the quantity of ammunition—cartridges for the Mefords, for Winchesters and for the 38 caliber. Joan's two boxes of 38 cartridges of prodigious size for the ancient Salders of Malaita, boxes of black powder, sticks of dynamite, yards of fuse and boxes of detonators. But the great find was in the house occupied by Gogoomy and Port Adams recruits. The fact the boxes yielded nothing excited Sheldon's suspicions, and he gave orders to dig up the earthen floor, ripped in matting, well oiled, free of rust, and brand new, two Winchesters were first unearthed. Sheldon did not recognize them. They had come from Berande; neither had they any of the powder found under the corner post of the house; and he could not be sure, he could remember no loss of eight boxes of detonators. The absence of any cartridges made Sheldon persist in the digging up of the floor, and a fifty dollar tin was his reward. With shining eyes Gogoomy looked on.

Sheldon took from the tin a few rounds each for the two Winchesters and fully as many rounds of nondescript cartridges of all sizes and calibers. Contraband and stolen property piled in assorted heaps on the veranda of the bungalow. A space from the bottom of the heap were grouped the forty odd cut-throat blades, in solid array, several hundred blacks of the plantation.

PARADES.

"ME FINISH ALONG YOU, YOU DIE ALTOGETHER."

At the head of the steps Joan and Sheldon were seated.

"Look at it," Sheldon said to Joan. "We've been sleeping over a volcano. They ought to be whipped."

"No whip me," Gogoomy cried out from below. "Father belong me too fella chief. Me whip, too much trouble along you, close up, my word."

"What name you fella Gogoomy?" Sheldon shouted. "I knock seven bells out of you. Here, you Kwaque, put 'm irons along that fella Gogoomy."

Kwaque, a strapping gung boss, plucked Gogoomy from out of his following, and helped by the other gung bosses twisted his arms behind him and snapped on the heavy handcuffs.

"Me finish along you, close up, you die altogether," Gogoomy, with wrath distorted face, threatened the boss boy.

"Please, no whipping," Joan said in a low voice. "If whipping is necessary, send them to Tulagi and let the government do it. Give them their choice between a fine or an other whipping."

Sheldon nodded and stood up, facing the blacks.

"Manonmie," he called. Manonmie stood forth and walked. "You fella boy had fella too much," Sheldon charged. "You steal 'm plenty. Me cross along you too much. S'pose, you like 'm, me take 'm one fella pound along you in big book. S'pose you no like 'm me take 'm one fella pound, then me send you fella along Tulagi catch 'm one strong fella government whipping. Plenty New Georgia boys, plenty 'sabel boys stop along all along Tulagi. Them fella do like Malaita boys also hit 'm 'm word, they give 'm one strong fella whipping. What you say?"

"You take 'm one fella pound along me," was the answer.

And Manonmie, patient, stepped, stepped back, while Sheldon uttered the fella in the plantation labor journal.

Boy after boy, he called the readers out and gave them their choice, and boy by boy each one elected to pay the fine imposed.

Gogoomy and his five tribesmen were fined three pounds each, and at Gogoomy's guttural command they refused to pay.

"S'pose you go along Tulagi," Sheldon warned him; "you catch 'm strong fella whipping and you stop along all three fella year 'sabel."

Gogoomy watered. "You take 'm three fella pound along me," Gogoomy muttered, at the same time scowling his hatred at Sheldon and transferring his stare to the scowls of Jean and Kwaque.

"Me finish along you, you catch 'm big fella trouble, my word. Father belong me big fella chief along Fort Adams."

"That will do," Sheldon warned him. "You shut mouth belong you."

"Me no fright," the son of a chief retorted, by his insolence increasing his stature in the eyes of his fellows.

"Lock him up for tonight," Sheldon said to Kwaque. "Sun be come up put 'm that fella and five fella belong him along grass cutting. S'vae?"

"There will be trouble with Gogoomy yet," Sheldon said to Joan, as the boss boys marshalled their gangs and led them away to their work. "Keep an eye on him. Be careful when you are riding alone on the plantation. The loss of those Winchesters and all that ammunition has hit him harder than your cutting did. He is dead ripe for mischief."

"I wonder what has become of Tudor. It's two months since he disappeared into the bush, and not a word of him after he left Binu."

Joan Lackland was sitting astride her horse by the bank of the Balesuna, where the sweet corn had been planted, and Sheldon was leaning against her horse's shoulder.

"Yes, it is a long time for no news to have trickled down," he answered, watching her keenly from under his hat brim and wondering as to the measure of her anxiety for the adventurous gold hunter. "But Tudor will come out all right. He did a thing at the start that I wouldn't have given him or any other man credit for—persuaded Binu Charley to go along with him. I'll wager no other Binu slinger has ever gone so far into the bush unless to be kai kai."

"Look! Look!" Joan cried in a low voice, pointing across the narrow stream to a slack eddy, where a huge crocodile drifted like a log awash.

"Ugh! The filthy beast! I hate them! I hate them!"

"And yet you go diving among sharks," Sheldon chided. "Just the same, I wish I could swim as well as you. Maybe it would beget confidence such as you have."

"Do you know I think it would be nice to be married to a man such as you seem to be becoming," she remarked, with one of her abrupt changes that always astounded him. "I should think you could be trained into a very good husband—you know, not one of the domineering kind, but one who considered his wife was just as much an individual as himself and just as much a free agent. Really, you know, I think you are improving."

She laughed and rode away, leaving him greatly cast down. If he had thought there had been one bit of coyness in her words, one feminine flutter, one womanly attempt at deliberate lure and encouragement he would have been elated. But he knew absolutely that it was the boy and not the woman who had so daringly spoken.

Joan rode through twenty acres of uncleared cane. The grass was waist high and higher, and as she rode along she remembered that Gogoomy was one of a gang of boys that had been detailed to the grass cutting. A little farther on she heard voices and reined in and listened. It was Gogoomy talking.

"Dog be stop 'm along house, night time he walk about," Gogoomy was saying. "You fella boy catch 'm one fella pig, put 'm kai-kai, belong him dog along one big fella fish hook. S'pose dog be walk about catch 'm kai-kai, you fella boy catch 'm dog alike same one shark. Dog be finish close up. Big fella marster sleep along big fella house. White Mary sleep along pickaninny house. One fella Adamu be stop along outside pickaninny house. You fella boy finish 'm dog, finish 'm Adamu, finish 'm big fella marster, finish 'm white Mary, finish 'm altogether. Plenty musket be stop, plenty powder, plenty tomahawk, plenty knife fee. Sun be come up we long way too much."

"Me catch 'm pig sun be go down," spoke up one whose thin falsetto voice Joan recognized as belonging to Cosse, one of Gogoomy's tribesmen.

"Me catch 'm dog," said another. "And me catch 'm white fella Mary," Gogoomy cried triumphantly. "Me catch 'm Kwaque be die along him quick."

This much Joan heard of the plan to murder, and then her rising wrath proved too much for her discretion. She spurred her horse into the grass, crying:

"What name you fella boy? 'm? What name?"

PROPOSED LAKE CARRYING MERGER

Persons concerned in the merger of a number of independent Great Lakes vessels have decided to begin next week on plans of organization. There is a general disposition to get the fleets under one management for the reasons of economy, but no practical steps can be taken until a definite course of action and organization has been agreed upon. The situation is strained and complex. There are ships without bonds or indebtedness and those which are heavily bonded. Many producers of ore, those who are shippers, many of them receivers of ore, and consumers, are interested in ships. There is also the question of the Sherman law and the measures being taken by the government against mergers of corporations under this law. Everything seems to be in a whirl of uncertainty with many of the managers desirous of seeing a merger perfected, not only for themselves but also for the benefit of their stockholders.

GLADSTONE TEAM IS SLAUGHTERED

The Ishpeming High school team, swept everything before them in a big victory over the Gladstone high by a score of 21 to 6 at Union park Saturday afternoon. The Ishpeming boys played with vigor and rare precision. The Gladstone eleven in their ignominious defeat lost their laurels, namely, the proud record of not having been scored against this year. The immense superiority of the Ishpemingites was to be seen soon after the opening of the game. Within the first five minutes of play the Ishpeming lads had rushed the ball down the field by brilliant forward passes and line bucks for the first touchdown.

ORIGIN OF "BOOSTER."

Everyone knows what a boom is, as applied to a town. Charles Dickens described it seventy years ago in the "city" of Eden, although the actual word had not been coined. But for a long time—indeed, until lately—things were managed very unscientifically. The art of booming was a most one-sided affair, chiefly worked by the real estate owners or agents. "Cities" so made—arising in a single night—showed a lamentable tendency to "bust up" or "move on." There was an absence of local pride, which is such a conspicuous feature of the new order of things—the origin of the "boosters."

"Boost" is a common American term meaning to "push upward." In 1898 the first Boosters' club was formed at Escanaba, Mich., for the purpose of converting the place into the place which it naturally was. The club, which comprised practically the whole population of the town, drew up rules in which every soul pledged himself to regard Escanaba for conversational and advertising purposes "as the center of these United States and God Almighty's creation, and never to let a day pass without having done something in word or deed to boost this town."

Booster clubs began to spring up all over the west. They spread to the east, to the north and to the south, and now the prevailing sentiment has grown so local as to find expression in the phrase, "Cuss America; give me Oshkosh." Americans who formerly went about with the American flag in their hats and the American eagle in their button holes have now substituted photographic views of their own towns or local emblems, in default of regularly granted municipal coats of arms.—Strand.

THE PROPER TIME TO MARRY.

According to the presidents of several woman's colleges in the west, the proper time for women to marry is between the ages of twenty-three and twenty-eight years, and it is not until this period of life that women have developed sufficiently, intellectually and physically.

This view is undoubtedly full of sound common sense. No one can deny the logic of this bit of academic opinion. Statistics show that there are fewer divorces among couples who have married between the ages mentioned, than among those who have married at a much earlier age.

Thus the old idea is exploded at once, and the girl who weds at sixteen, as our grandmothers used to do, is making a radical mistake. It may have been alright to do so in the old days, but at the present time we are strongly inclined to the opinion that such marriages are destined to turn out complete failures. Modern economic conditions, coupled with other aspects of our complex civilization, are bound to be more or less adverse to making early marriages felicitous.

WAR IN AIR AND ARBITRATION.

A report, emanating from French military circles, states that the French government is seriously intending to put a great fleet of aeroplanes afloat in the event of a war with Germany. At least 200 aerial war crafts will be at the government's disposal, it is said, by the end of the present year.

The practicability of airships in the time of war cannot be underestimated by militia men. Aeroplanes will figure tremendously in the conflicts of the future, and very probably the decisive battles will be fought up above and not down below. This will make war still more terrible and sanguinary than heretofore.

It is hoped, however, that by thus making war full of unspeakable horror, that the desire for this method of settling disputes between nations will be frowned upon by the great powers, and that the same and peaceful method, namely arbitration, will grow in favor continually.

RECOMMENDATIONS

BY W. C. T. U. HEAD

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. URGED TO COOPERATE WITH OTHER WOMEN'S BODIES FOR NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 30.—Urgent recommendations that the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union cooperate with Woman's organizations for laws for national prohibition were made by Lillian M. N. Stevens, national president at the thirty-seventh annual convention here Saturday.

Other recommendations by Miss Stevens were: "That we continue with renewed energy to appeal to congress for a law that will furnish provision for the protection of prohibition territory from the nullification of its laws through interstate shipment of liquor."

"That we ask for legislation to prevent the use of the United States mails for the purpose of advertising alcoholic beverages."

"That we continued to oppose efforts for the restoration of the sale of liquor in the army canteen or in any place from which it has been banished."

"That we work a law that will forbid issuing tax receipts for liquor sold within five miles of any army post or naval station."

"That we use our utmost influence to secure laws for the suppression of the white slave traffic."

"That we continue our efforts to secure an amendment to the United States constitution forever prohibiting polygamy."

The speech of the president was a review of all the accomplishments during the last year.

THE PETERSON—Estell Colbert, the dainty comedienne who is playing the "Yama Yama Girl" in "The Three Twins" this season, which will be at the Peterson on Tuesday evening, October 31, is not only clever and artistic, but really ingenious. People who have seen her act say it. Those who have seen her dance, echo it, and those who have heard her sing re-echo it.

THE PETERSON—Few plays presented on the American stage in the past ten years have attained and sustained the vogue that has been monopolized by George M. Cohan's comedy, "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," which is to be presented at the Peterson on Friday evening, November 3, beginning at eight o'clock. Originally staged at Cohan & Harris' Gaiety Theatre, New York city, on February 12, 1911, when it was transferred to the new George M. Cohan theatre, a few blocks down Broadway, where it stayed without interruption until September 23 of the present year. A Chicago company, formed in December, 1910, presented "Wallingford" at the Olympic Theatre in that city for more than 375 times. These two runs constitute a record, in so far as straight comedy productions are concerned, and is a distinct tribute to the dramatic genius whose creative pen fashioned this comedy structure, which is commended by all amusement seekers who have had the privilege of viewing it.

OCTOBER IMPORTS ARE VERY HEAVY

The business of the Superior customs district, which includes the upper peninsula and a part of Wisconsin, has been larger during the present month than during any previous month. The duties collected, in October will amount to over $35,000. The increased imports are due to the active movement of Canadian grain this month and to the importation of the seamless steel pipe, made in Germany, which is being used by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company on the Cary river pipe line. The duty on this pipe alone amounted to about $9,000.

"NOT GUILTY" FINDS THE JURY IN THE STANNARD CASE

VERDICT IS REACHED ONE HOUR AND TEN MINUTES AFTER THE READING OF THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

WOMAN THANKS THE JURORS.

Sensational Trial of Mrs. Laura Stannard of Greenland on the Charge of Poisoning Her Husband is Ended by Woman's Acquittal After Short Deliberation by the Jury.

Ontonagon, Mich., Oct. 30.—Mrs. Laura Stannard was on Saturday found "not guilty" of murdering her husband, Charles S. Stannard of Greenland last March by strychnine poisoning. The jury was out one hour and 10 minutes. The case was given to the jury at 8:20 o'clock Saturday night. The prisoner rose to her feet when Foreman Rudolph Stindt of the jury announced the verdict and she followed the jurors when they retired to their room and thanked them warmly.

Returning to the courtroom Mrs. Stannard was affectionately congratulated by a number of women friends and relatives, to whom she said:

"Thank God; this is what I have been praying for all the time."

Throughout the trial, which began October 16, Mrs. Stannard professed the greatest affection for her husband and declared that he was always affectionate to her except when he was drinking, and that then he became cruelly abusive. Her four children clung to the prisoner during her trial with marked devotion.

Largely Circumstantial. Mrs. Stannard was arrested May 13, after a chemical analysis at Ann Arbor showed strychnine in her husband's stomach.

In his charge to the jury Judge Flannigan pointed out that the state's case rested largely, if not entirely, upon circumstantial evidence.

"To find a verdict of guilty," said the judge, "you must find that these six facts are proved beyond a reasonable doubt:

"That the respondent placed poison in the cup; that she knew it to be poison; that she intended Stannard to take it; intended it to cause his death; that Stannard drank it; and that this poison caused Stannard's death.

"If no motive for murder is shown, you should consider that circumstance with all the other evidence, but it is not absolutely essential that proof of a motive must be shown."

State's Closing Argument. Mr. Burritt's closing argument for the prosecution occupied the time of the court all afternoon, up to six o'clock, at which time a recess was taken for supper. Judge Flannigan reconvened the court at 7:30 and then began the reading of his charge to the jury. This consumed fifty minutes.

The judge's charge, was read entirely from manuscript, excepting the latter portion, devoted to the subject of a motive.

Mrs. Stannard left today for her home at Greenland, accompanied by the congratulations and best wishes of the friends who so faithfully stood by her in her trouble.

SOUGHT $5,000; GETS $50 DAMAGES

Fifty dollars damages was awarded Mrs. Nannie Byers of Gladstone by a jury in circuit court Saturday night. She brought suit against Louis Cretons, a former saloonkeeper of Gladstone, to recover damages from him for selling liquor to her 17 years old son. The jury returned with their verdict in twenty minutes. Mrs. Byers sued for $5,000 damages.

Mrs. A. Bydecast, one of the witnesses for the plaintiff, was sharply reprimanded by the court, for hurling a tirade of abusive words at the defendant as she was leaving the witness stand. Judge Cooper took her in hand, telling her that, but for her sex, he would have fined her for contempt of court or have ordered her to jail at once.

FORD RIVER CO. WILL CLOSE MILL

NO MORE TIMBER AVAILABLE FOR CONVERSION INTO LUMBER AND INDUSTRY WILL BE NO MORE.

The Ford River Lumber company's mill at Ford River will conclude its commercial career, begun in 1860, this week, when its final cut will be made. With no available timber to be obtained for driving on the Ford River, the last chapter in the history of the concern was reached, and before another week rolls around, the hum of industry in the huge mill in the town of Ford River, will be silent forever.

Following the closing of the mill, the affairs of the company will be settled, but it is figured that approximately a month at least will be necessary to go over the books of the concern. With the dissolution of the firm's business, the fins will no doubt be written for the cillage of Ford River, unless some other enterprise is started there, or some other concern buys the property and continues the old activities on a minor scale.

The company has cleared entirely its large acreage of timber, adjoining the Ford river and its tributaries. Every year tremendous rafts of timber were floated down the river. With the supply of timber extinct, the demise of the company was inevitable.

L'ANSE IN LINE FOR PROSPERITY

COMPANY IN WHICH ESCANABA CAPITAL IS INTERESTED WILL OPERATE BIG LUMBERING PLANT THERE.

According to the Houghton Daily Mining Gazette, the L'Anse Bay Lumber company has shipped a crew of men to Grand Marais to take part in the machinery of the sawmill recently purchased by this company. The mill will be shipped to L'Anse within the next few weeks and set up at once that no delays will be met in starting operations early next spring.

The coming of this plant to L'Anse is the realization of one of the many dreams which the residents of that village have enjoyed during the sleep of the municipality during the past ten years or more. Ever since the memorable fire which practically wiped the village from the map in 1896 the town has fought stubbornly against reverses. Its townspeople have been hopeful and even though brilliantly painted pictures of what was to come seemed to fade in the distance, they never lost heart but have persisted in their belief that some day a problem would be solved in their favor.

The L'Anse Bay Lumber company is a corporation in which Escanaba capital is a potent factor. Its ultimate formation is due largely to the efforts of Hon. John O. Maxey of L'Anse, former member of the state legislature, and at present village president of L'Anse and supervisor of that township.

The mill will employ close to 100 men and with a virgin forest of 30,000 acres, there will be a sufficient amount of timber at hand to keep the mill in operation for several years. The above acreage is already owned by the company and there are several thousand acres accessible.

GLADSTONE EAGLES ENJOY A "BOOYAW"

Gladstone Delta: The Eagles exemplified the jank of "booyaw" Friday night at Wasa hall. The great piece de resistance this year was partridge. Captain Al Gauhin and his men were victorious, with 805 points, representing thirteen rabbits and forty-five partridges. Captain Louis' men will have 750 points, largely partridge, although six ducks and four plover are included. This is very much larger than the scoring in last year's hunt. There was a sound of revelry by night, and when every Eagle was too full to fly, there was dark meat left to the extent of many pounds.

Look at the "prices of things" as advertised in today's paper. If you know values, and have a care for your purse, these prices will interest found on every page of this paper.
