The Marquette Shriners were highly complimented by the visitors for the manner in which the meeting was carried out. The Chicago male quartette added much to the enjoyment of the event, singing a number of selections during the evening.

Parade Was a Feature.
Forming in line at the Hotel Marquette shortly after 7 o'clock last night, the candidates were escorted to the Masonic hall in the opera house block, where the ceremonial session commenced about 8 o'clock. Nearly four hundred members of the temple were in the line of march, which was headed by the Marquette City band. Large crowds had congregated on the downtown streets to witness the procession and the parade was watched with great interest.

A large number of Escanaba Shriners who attended the meeting at Marquette returned home this morning.

Five field goals in one big game—and by one man. 'Twill be some time before that record is broken and the setting of it has put Brickley with Eckersal, Coy DeWitt and the other Mighty Men.

Harvard has something else to be thankful for beside Brickley. Two 'hoodoo's have been broken. Harvard has never beaten Yale in her own stadium and has never been able to come out victor two years in succession. By winning this year's game, both 'hoodoo's were broken.

SHOULD PREPARE FOR SMALLPOX OUTBREAK

Escanaba Has Been Fortunate But Health Officer Doesn't See How City can Escape

That Escanaba cannot escape at least a slight epidemic of small pox is the opinion of Health officer Dr. Kitchen.

With epidemics existing at Gladstone, Manistique and other nearby cities Dr. Kitchen does not believe that Escanaba will be lucky enough to escape, owing to the fact that many visitors from both Manistique and Gladstone are here daily.

General vaccination is the only safe guard and the health officer is urging it strongly.

MERCHANTS NEVER SO WELL STOCKED FOR THE HOLIDAY TRADE AS NOW

HOLIDAY AIR IN EVIDENCE EVERYWHERE—SANTA CLAUSE HAS APPEARED IN A DOZEN SHOW WINDOWS

ESCANABA THE BIG SHOPPING CENTER

Merchants Have Stocked up With Unusual Amount of Stock for the Christmas Trade

There are but seventeen more shopping days before Christmas and if you can't convince yourself that Christmas is so near at hand just take a walk up Ludington street and gaze into the various windows.

Everything is taking on the holiday air. Santa Claus is on guard in a dozen different windows and stockings are hanging from as many show window mantle pieces.

Inside there is even more evidence of the nearness of Christmas. In addition to the holiday decorations attractive displays of appropriate Christmas gifts are there without number.

The unseasonable weather is in the main responsible for the fact that practically no Christmas shopping has been done as yet. In the Upper Peninsula the near approach of the Christmas season usually finds a mantle of snow covering the ground and without the snow it would seem that Christmas was coming earlier than usual. Dandelions blooming in your yards, pansies nodding their heads in the flower garden and arbutus hiding beneath the green foliage in the woods isn't overly suggestive of Christmas.

Merchants are Prepared
The merchants of this city were never better prepared to take care of holiday needs than at present. Escanaba has become the shopping center for a wide territory and the outside trade has been growing by such leaps and bounds that the merchants are prepared for even the most extraordinary demands. Never before have they offered such an elaborate variety of articles that appeal to holiday shoppers.

"Shop early" is appropriate despite its bromidic tang. All the rest of the near-Christmas bromides ought to be kept constantly before the shoppers now. "Remember the tired clerk;" "Consider the overworked delivery boy;" "The stock is uncalled now;" "Avoid the day before Christmas rush."

Get busy now and get first choice Christmas is just around the corner.

The liveliest interest is being taken by the voters of the city in the commission charter recently formulated here, which Escanaba voters will accept or reject on January 23. In addition to those distributed in this way 2500 copies will be sent through the mails to the voters of the city. The proposed charter is printed in rough but convenient form for the perusal of the voters. In the event of its adoption the charter will be printed on book paper and will be nicely bound.

...OF FURS...

Furs are the hardest thing in the world for the average man or woman to buy intelligently. At the very best, your knowledge of furs is superficial. In buying furs there is only one safe course to pursue. That is to select a store in whose reliability you have implicit confidence, and whose word of honor you will accept without qualifications. We sell furs here on honor, and are ready to stand back of every statement we make concerning every article of fur we sell.

Pre-Inventory SALE OF ORGANS

In a large business like ours, we often take a good organ in exchange, toward the purchase of a piano. These organs are immediately placed in our repair department, and thoroughly repaired and cleaned by experts. When ready to be placed on our salesroom floor, they are, to all intents and purposes, practically as good as new.

As the time for our annual inventory approaches, we find that we are overstocked with these instruments, and have therefore decided to close them out at the lowest prices ever offered in Michigan. No house, school, or church can afford to be without music, when a reliable instrument can be procured at such a low price. Below we hand you a partial list of the wonderful bargains we are offering:

- MOLINE—5 octaves, 12 stops, 2 knee swells, high top walnut case; price ..... $22.00
- CHICAGO COTTAGE—High top walnut case, 5 octaves, 13 stops, 2 swells, 2 mirrors; price ..... $27.00

We also have several organs which we will present FREE to any church or school who will pay for the expenses of repairs on same. The prices quoted include a good stool, and if purchased by out of town customers, we will crate the organ and deliver it to the railroad station. The freight charges will be a small item. As these instruments will go quickly, it would be wise to make your selection at once, and in ordering by mail, specify first and second choice. You will then be reasonably sure to receive just the instrument you want. These instruments are sold for cash or on monthly payment plan.

MARTIN DIDN'T DO ALL POSSIBLE FOR BARGE

Captain Casey of Fairport Believes Crew of Tug Might Have Saved Plymouth

Captain P. Casey of Fairport, who brought the rescued members of the steamer C. C. Hand to this city, after that vessel had been wrecked off Big Summer Island and who is a frequent visitor to this port, is of the opinion that the members of the crew of the tug Martin did not do all that was possible to save the barge Plymouth which went down with all on board. In a letter to the Sturgeon Bay Advocate he says: In regard to Barge Plymouth, which was wrecked on Lake Michigan, left by the tug Martin, I saw the Martin on Saturday. She came in Big Summer Passage on that morning and laid until Tuesday and I don't see why he did not take his barge down in the lee of Washington Island which was only six or seven miles and fair wind. I think the tug Martin was seaworthy enough to take the crew off the Plymouth. I believe if I was in his circumstances I would have made an effort to save the crew. The tug Martin had all kinds of chances to make a lee behind the islands. CAPT. P. CASEY. That the Plymouth may have gone down near Gull Island is indicated by the finding of an oar marked "Plymouth" near the St. Martin Island Light station.

Of course many of the youngsters have never witnessed the production and as their education can hardly be said to be complete without having had a glimpse of "Little Eva" as she makes her rather uncertain way into the mysteries of the stage loft.

ONLY ONE NOVEL IN VACATION

Scott's Idea of Rest Was to Produce "Guy Mannering" in Six Weeks.
Scott had some strange ways of seeking relaxation from the strain of work. On Christmas day, 1814, he wrote Constable that he was "setting out for A'botsford to refresh the machine." During the year he had written his first great novel, "Waverley," one of his longer poems, "The Lord of the Isles," nearly the whole of his "Life of Swift," two essays for an encyclopedia; a two-volume family memoir for a friend; and kept up a voluminous personal correspondence—amount of industry which is best described by Dominie Sampson's word, prodigious. Surely the "machine" needed "refreshing," and it consisted in producing, in six weeks' time, another great novel, "Guy Mannering." In the same way, while dictating "Ivanhoe," in spite of severe bodily pain which prevented the use of his pen, he sought refreshment by starting another novel, "The Monastery."
"It was a relief," he said, "to interlay the scenery most familiar to me with the strange world for which I had to draw so much on imagination."
—From Charles S. Oloott's "The Country of Sir Walter Scott."

A PLAN FOILED

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Martin Borland, a man of wealth, having lost his wife, married again. The new connection was especially unfortunate for him and his only child, Mildred, who was sixteen years old at the time of her father's second marriage. Mrs. Borland was no sooner married than she laid a plan to secure her husband's fortune. He was suffering from an incurable disease when she married him, and this enabled her to work her plan more easily.
Her first move was to make the house so unpleasant for her stepdaughter that she was forced to leave it and go to live with an aunt. This enabled her to have her husband to herself, and as soon as his daughter had gone the stepmother began a systematic nagging upon her husband to compel him to make a will leaving his property to her.
Had Mr. Borland been in good health he might have withstood her prodding; but, affected as he was with a nervous disease and made a virtual prisoner by his wife, it was not long before he broke down under the strain and signed a will leaving all his possessions to her, except some swamp lands that were nearly worthless.
Previous to his marriage Borland had willed everything he owned to Mildred. Mrs. Borland knew of this will and would have forced it from her husband that she might destroy it, but it was in Mildred's keeping. The only thing that Jezebel could do was to torture her husband into making another in her own favor. As Mr. Borland grew worse his wife kept every one from him except his physician and an occasional friend, her brother giving as a reason that the invalid was not in a condition to see any one. She realized that Mildred's friends after her father's death might advise her to try to break the will, but the schemer relied upon her being able to cut off any proof that any undue influence had been brought to bear on the testator. She changed the servants frequently in order that they might not get an inkling of what she was doing. She once a week introduced into the sickroom friends of her husband, but never permitted any of them to remain alone with him a moment.
At last Borland died. His wife produced the will he had made in her favor, and a lawyer to whom she had paid a large retaining fee stood ready to enforce it against any demands that might be set up by poor Mildred, who had not a cent in the world to prosecute with and no one to take an interest in her case.
Soon after her father's death Mildred asked permission of her stepmother to take away a few belongings she had left there. She was permitted to do so, was denied nothing she claimed and went away with a boxful of odds and ends, among them a few books. On getting them to her home she looked them over tearfully before putting them away. Some of the books she had loved when a child. One of these she took up and was reading a familiar passage when she noticed a daub on a word. Turning the page, she noticed another daub on another word. A few pages farther was still another. Turning over the leaves, she found the book full of these daubs that had evidently been made with different substances. Scrutinizing them closely, she found that some of them might have been made with a drop of coffee, some with the juice of a berry, and on one so much of the substance had been left that she was able to examine it closely and surmised it to be potato.
Mildred was puzzled. She tried to remember from what room she had taken it, but could not do so. A suspicion came to her that these daubs might mean something. Two words that were daubed "wife" and "will" directed this suspicion. She wrote the words down in the order in which they came, but they were a jumble. If they had been daubed to tell something the person who had done the work had not been able to find consecutive words for the purpose.
Then Mildred cut out the words she had written and began trying to arrange them so that they would mean something. Several times she gave up the puzzle, but always returned to it. She made certain sentences, but found nothing intelligible for the whole. Finally she hit upon two words—"my" and "wife" for a beginning—which, after many transpositions, solved the puzzle. The final reading was this:
My wife is holding me a prisoner. I cannot communicate with any one except her and her brother. She has forced me to make a will in her favor. It is not my last will and testament. That instrument is possessed (ed) by my daughter, to whom I give all my property.
There was no date or signature. Mildred's theory was that her father had managed to keep the book near him and when his meals were brought to him had used bits of food in lieu of a pencil. She carried the book to a lawyer, who took up her case in the courts and by skillful management succeeded in getting the cipher message accepted as evidence. The case dragged a long while, and in time Mrs. Borland's lawyer offered to compromise. But Mildred's counsel advised her to hang on for all or nothing. Finally a judgment was obtained setting aside the will made under duress and validating the one held by Mildred.

YOUR KIDNEYS
Escanaba Residents Must Learn the Importance of Keeping Them Well.
Perfect health means that every organ of the body is performing its functions properly.
Perfect health cannot be enjoyed if the kidneys are weak and disordered.
Thousands testify that Doan's Kidney Pills have a reviving action on weak kidneys.
What this remedy has done in so many cases of this kind is the best proof of its merit.
Read the following. It's testimony gratefully given by a resident of this locality:
N. DeBeck, Rock, Mich., says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a valuable kidney remedy. I have taken them for backache and kidney trouble with good results. I don't hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone, as they act just as represented."
The above statement must carry conviction to the mind of every reader. Doan's simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. DeBeck had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores, Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WEATHER CUTS DOWN EARNINGS
Open Fall Sets Back Timber Movement and Railroads Have Little Coal to Haul.
Railroad officials in the Northwest report that the mild weather is having the effect of seriously decreasing traffic. So far no timber has been hauled from the lumbering districts, as until there is snow the timber cannot be brought to the sidings. As a rule, timber shipments are fairly well advanced at this time of the year.
The fine weather has also decreased the demand for coal and other fuel, and the reports for the railroads in the northwest show a falling off in the coal movement of several thousand cars, compared with former years.
The Upper Peninsula railroads have not yet started to handle timber from the lumber camps, but it is said that a great quantity has been cut and will be hauled as soon as there is good sleighing. Many railroads now have much idle rolling stock, whereas usually there is a shortage at this time of the year. The shortage becomes more acute as the winter advances and the heaviest demand for cars for the lumber trade occurs in January and February.
It is expected that the movement of timber from the district south of here will be exceptionally heavy as soon as there is good sleighing.
C. L. Kennedy, an official of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company is quoted as follows:
"Is the quietest season that I remember. The timber movement is practically nothing at all, while the coal movement is away behind the tonnage of the last year. Not only that but the weather has effected other lines. Business in general is very quiet."

Tip to everybody: Why not write something?

The French "brulot." In many parts of my country, France, a "brulot" is a sort of a fruit cake, sometimes a plum pudding, over which a plentiful quantity of rum or cognac is poured, then set afire, thus affording great joy to those around the table, writes a correspondent.

The immediate result is the burning of the whiskers of those who have whiskers and get too near the dish, then the partaking of the cake, which leaves in the mouth a not altogether pleasant taste of cake, rum, sulphur from the combustible French matches used to light the thing, and a general sensation of having swallowed a burnt whiskey bottle cork.

I am aware that my description of a "brulot" is far from being as poetical as that of the picture of a bowl made of an orange peel and flaming aesthetically like the urn of the Vestals. It is true, nevertheless.

GOOD ROADS DEPT.

R. P. MASON, C. E.

AN EXPENSIVE ROAD.

Highway Through Mountains of Norway 3,715 Feet Above Sea Level. In some parts of the United States the geographical conditions make the building and maintenance of good roads almost an impossibility.

ROAD ON DYRESKARD PASS, NORWAY. drifts upon Dyreskard pass, in Norway. This road is 3,715 feet above the level of the sea, and the workmen were compelled to dig through snow, soil and rock in order to make it passable. In certain sections of the United States roads have been built through the mountains, but in most instances they are poor and impassable, especially in severe weather.

The roads in the mountains of North Carolina are perhaps the poorest, but are being improved. This section is sparsely populated, and the inhabitants are no longer willing to put up with the poor roads and live shut up in the great mountains, frequently having every approach to the nearest town cut off by absolutely impassable roads.

INDIANA IN THE LEAD.

Hoosier State Has More Miles of Improved Roads Than Any Other.

Rhode Island may have fewer square miles than any of her sister states; but, according to the Good Roads Year Book, she is the only state in the Union whose improved roads amount to half of her total roads. Delaware, her closest rival for smallness, has only 6 per cent of her roads improved.

It then disposes of Massachusetts by the remark that, except for some hills through which only state roads run, that commonwealth is practically one big town. This process of elimination leaves Indiana at the top in the percentage of improved roads.

A New Road Material.

With a view of obtaining a road surface which will give a better resistance to automobile traffic, experiments are being made again in France with a roadbed material consisting of an intimate mixture of "iron straw" or iron in the shape of a wiry or fibrous mass, such as is commonly used for cleaning and scraping purposes in this country.

Private William McDermott, better known to his comrades as "Lucky Bill," was being examined by the regular army surgeon in order to have his claim for a pension verified.

"What's the matter with your leg?" asked the surgeon.

"Shot, just below the knee," returned "Lucky Bill."

The surgeon examined the injured limb, winked at his assistant, and turned again to the applicant.

"Why, man, there's nothing wrong with your leg," he said.

"Oh, yes, it will," argued Bill.

"But how?" asked the surgeon.

Bill hesitated a moment. Then his face brightened. "I'm a song-and-dance artist," he said.

"I would if I had been injured," answered his friend.

A WOMAN IN CAMP

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

No man of us who was there can ever forget the afternoon a party of hunters and Indian fighters rode up to our mining camp with a lone woman in their midst.

It had been twenty-two months since any of us had seen anything more resembling a woman than a pair of spectacles and a red cotton handkerchief, and to say that we were knocked down, stepped on and crushed into the hard soil with astonishment is saying little enough.

The woman was a widow, who had been captured by the Indians from an immigrant train and then recaptured by the hunters. She was about forty years of age, had taken the situation coolly, and instead of making an effort to restore herself to the train and to her relatives with whom she was journeying had asked to be set down in our camp until she could make up her mind what course to pursue.

"Say, you diggers arter silver, here's a woman who wants to stop here for a spell till she gets rested. She's educated, and she sings like a south wind blowing over prairie flowers."

And this was the way we received her:

"Ahem—yes—ahem—jess so—hats off, boys—no swearing—glad to see ye—hope yer well—ahem—exactly!"

There were thirty of us standing around there, mouths open, hats off, knees wobbling and more coming up from the diggings every minute, and something in the situation made the widow grin as she looked us over. I filed my claims as follows:

First.—I assisted her off the horse.

Second.—I said I hoped she was well.

Third.—I remarked that it was a melodious afternoon.

Fourth.—She accepted my arm as we walked to camp and then accepted my slumby as her headquarters.

If a tidal wave six feet high had come rolling up the valley it wouldn't have produced half the flutter occasioned by the presence of the Widow Fleming. There were eighty or ninety of us, rough, brawny and more or less wicked, some married, some divorced and some old bachelors, and to have a dumpy little black-eyed widow with a pretty mouth and a voice as sweet as sixty-cent molasses pop in upon us at 3 o'clock in the afternoon was excuse enough to stop work.

Several curious things happened right away. Colonel Taylor, who had never been known to wash his face or comb his hair, started out in search of a clean shirt and a pocket comb.

Bill Gooden, the ugliest looking man in camp, offered $5 for a piece of looking glass two inches square, and, not being able to find one, he went and washed his feet as the next best thing.

There was a general washing up and combing and scrubbing and hunting out clean shirts and neckties, and the old man Payson, who had been sick in bed for a week, got up and began to chew tobacco and call for his clothes, and he observed:

"Gentlemen, who knows but what this widdler heard I had $50 saved up, and she has come here to ask for my hand in marriage?"

I have further claims to file, as follows:

Fifth.—I was chosen guardian of the widow by a unanimous vote.

Sixth.—The widow seemed perfectly satisfied with the choice.

Seventh.—I had the only clean white shirt in that whole camp, and only five buttons were missing from the garment.

Other claims were intrusted to me to be filed, as follows:

Seven different men had their hair cut.

Six others shaved themselves with jackknives.

Over a dozen of our band let up a notch or two on swearing.

Well, it was curious what a change that widow wrought in our camp, in our way of living, and upon the manners of the men. Each made an effort to clean and slick up, and in most cases with marked success.

Before her advent we could count on two or three quarrels per day. After her coming such a thing was never known. Indeed one day, when Peter White so far forgot himself as to insult Charles O'Gay, Charles took him aside and whispered:

"Peter, I kin turn ye wrong side out in six ticks of a clock, but I'm not the sort of a gentleman to kick up a row and upset a lady's nerves. I'll lay it up agin ye, and arter she leaves camp I'll wallop ye or die tryin'."

And the widow, she sewed on buttons and mended rent garments for the whole of us, and she taught this one how to cook, and that one how to patch and darn, and before we knew it she was a godmother and an idol. A queen could not have commanded deeper respect, nor an angel greater reverence.

She was with us about six weeks and then went away with friend who came for her. Each man was taken by the hand and given a goodly word, and as she was lost to sight down the trail the awful silence among our crowd was broken by the thundering report of the judge blowing his nose, followed by the husky observation:

"Wah, I swan! Hanzed if I've not so much like cryin' in about forty-seven years!"

Made the Library a Laundry.

The Public Library affords many conveniences of which its patrons are not slow to avail themselves, but it is doubtful if any other visitor has gone to the length of one woman, who arrived there after a morning's shopping, wearing a dirty pair of white silk gloves.

The abundance of soap and hot water in the library washroom was a temptation not to be resisted. So the woman washed and rinsed her gloves and hung them over a nickel rod to dry, trusting in an honest public to leave them there.

While hunting near Gladstone recently James Hetck of that city saw two prairie chickens his dog flushed. The birds, which had not been seen before in that region were evidently a pair and Mr. Hetck believes they nested between Gladstone and the river. As they are desirable game and scarce they have been protected by law for many years, in the hope that they might increase. The birds are darker and larger than a partridge, being the size of a small domestic fowl.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The southwestern storm is now centered near Oklahoma and is causing moderate to heavy precipitation from the middle Mississippi Valley west to the middle Rocky Mountain slope. Except in the region of Wyoming and Colorado, where snows fell, the precipitation was in the form of rain. Elsewhere over the country the weather has remained fair since yesterday morning, but with the north-eastward advance of the storm area it is becoming unsettled over the Lakes and Ohio Valley. Temperatures continue moderate throughout the country, and have risen over the western mountain sections. Indications now point to unsettled weather in this vicinity during the following 36 hours. Snow or rain is probable. The winds will be moderate to brisk northeast to north.

AT THE PETERSON.

Great care has been taken by Manager D. L. Martin in selecting artists to create the different roles in the dramatization of Gene Stratton-Porter's famous novel "Freckles" which comes to the Peterson on Tuesday, Dec. 9. The most difficult role to fill was that of "Freckles," as it not only required an exceedingly young handsome actor, but one who possessed an excellent singing voice as well.

At least one hundred different applicants were interviewed before one was selected. There are very few Scotch artists in America at present disengaged, therefore it was necessary to send to England for actors to interpret the delightful Scotch characters. The other parts are portrayed by American actors and actresses, all of whom are thoroughly familiar with the types prevalent in great Lumberlost region, the locale where the story is laid.

LUCKY NUMBER SOCIAL WAS AN ENJOYABLE ONE

Proved Such a Success That Another One Will be Held in the Near Future

The lucky number social, given last evening in the basement of the Presbyterian church by the Knights of King Arthur proved such an enjoyable success that those in charge have acceded to the demands of those present last night and already planning for another function of a similar nature.

There were seventy-five young people present at last night's gathering and "the best ever" seemed to be the general verdict.

As each one entered the room in which the social was held he was presented with a number. Later numbers selected by a disinterested party were read out and the holders of those numbers each received a box of candy. The lucky ones were: Doris Hines, Leta Shaw, Marlon Norton, Tobias Peterson and John Perron.

Bounteous refreshments were served and games were played.

CHILDREN'S CANTATA FIRST M. E. CHURCH

"Sleepy Santa" Will be Given by the Children—Mrs. F. L. Brooks in Charge

What is Christmas without the children. The adults can best enjoy Christmas by seeing the joy of children in that happy and sacred time. The Children of the First Methodist Episcopal Church are preparing to help you realize the joy of Christmas by giving for you a Children's Christmas Cantata, entitled "Sleepy Santa." They have already had several rehearsals, and are doing so well that all are very enthusiastic over the prospect.

It might seem at first thought that this children's cantata might interfere with the one to be given by the choir of this same church, assisted by leading musicians of Escanaba, which has been announced for the Tuesday before Christmas, Dec. 23d. The Children's Cantata, however, given by adult musicians that there would be no conflict were they to be given the same week; but since they are to be given in different weeks, there can be no way in which they could interfere. You will want to come to both.

CLAIM SPARROW BOUNTY

One Youngster Gets $2.40 for the Slaughter of 120 Sparrows

The youngsters of the city are taking full advantage of the bounty on sparrows. Several youngsters have claimed the bounty offered by the state, bringing in from two to ten sparrows at a time. The banner kill was taken to the city Clerk's office this morning when one youngster claimed the bounty on 120 sparrows.

The odor emanation would not permit of a careful count and the birds were delegated to the furnace in short order. The insinuation of the clerk that some of the birds must have been killed last Christmas was indignantly denied by the youngster, who said he killed the first one on Monday.

Miss Irene Servant left for her home at Negaunee today, following a visit in the city with her brother, Alex Servant.

DRAG BAY FOR BODY OF A MEMONIEE MAN

Martin Olsen Has Not Been Seen Since Thursday Noon, and Search For Corpse is Started.

Marquette, Dec. 6.—Shortly after noon on Thursday, Martin Olsen, works for the J. W. Wells Lumber company, was seen heading toward the top of a lumber pile overhanging the bay at Menominee. Olsen has not been seen since, and men are combing the bottom of the bay with grappling hooks in an attempt to find the body.

It is thought that in climbing the lumber pile, Olsen, a man weighing in the neighborhood of 250 pounds, lost his footing and fell into the bay. He was 50 years old and had a wife and baby living at 919 Michigan avenue in Menominee.

It is thought the accident occurred about noon. Employees of the We company punch a time clock at 10 o'clock and Olsen had not registered on this instrument on Thursday. Working with the man noticed his absence from his accustomed place and notified the superintendent, who in turn told the police department the affair at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Olsen was seen to go into the engine room after his lunch box and then to walk along a tramway to a lumber pile, which he started to climb. It was said he could not swim.

The theory that the man might have taken his life was scouted because no motive for such an act was apparent. It was said his domestic life was happy and that his health was good.

Miss Lottie Lusardi of Trompsburg visited in the city today.

Miss Leona Carlson of Larch Street underwent an operation at the hospital this morning. She is getting along nicely.
