Gunner Depew
By Albert N. Depew
Ex-Gunner and Chief Petty Officer, U. S. Navy—Member of the Foreign Legion of France—Captain Gun Tower, French Battleship Casard—Winner of the Croix de Guerre about New York, and I figured the U. S. would not get into it for a while, anyway, so I just wanted to go over and see what it was like. That is why lots of us went, I think. There were five of us who went to Boston to ship for the other side; Sam Murray, Ed Brown, Tim Flynn, Mitchell and myself. Murray was an ex-garby—two hitches (enlistments), gunpointer rating, and about thirty-five years old. Brown was a Pennsylvania man about twenty-six years old, who had served two enlistments in the U. S. army and had quit with the rank of sergeant. Flynn and Mitchell were both ex-navy men. Mitchell was a noted boxer. Of the five of us, I am the only one who went in, got through and came out. Flynn and Mitchell did not go in; Murray and Brown never came back.

The five of us shipped on the steamship Virginian of the American-Hawaiian line, under American flag and registry, but chartered by the French government. I signed on as water-tender—an engine room job—but the others were on deck—that is, seamen. We left Boston for St. Nazaire with a cargo of ammunition, bully beef, etc., and made the first trip without anything of interest happening.

As we were tying to the dock at St. Nazaire, I saw a German prisoner sitting on a pile of lumber. I thought probably he would be hungry, so I went down into the oilers' mess and got two slices of bread with a thick piece of beefsteak between them and handed it to Fritz. He would not take it. At first I thought he was afraid to, but by using several languages and signs he managed to make me understand that he was not hungry—had too much to eat, in fact.

I used to think of this fellow occasionally when I was in a German prison camp, and a piece of moldy bread the size of a safety-match box was the generous portion of food they forced on me, with true German hospitality, once every forty-eight hours. I would not exactly have refused a beefsteak sandwich, I am afraid. But then I was not a heaven-born German. I was only a common American garby. He was full of kultur and grub; I was not full of anything.

There was a large prison camp at St. Nazaire, and at one time or another I saw all of it. Before the war it had been used as a barracks by the French army and consisted of stone buildings, comfortable two-story stone buildings, floored with concrete, with auxiliary barracks of logs. The German prisoners occupied the stone buildings, while the French guards were quartered in the log houses. Inside, the houses were divided into long rooms with whitewashed walls. There was a gymnasium for the prisoners, a canteen where they might buy most of the things you could buy anywhere else in the country, and a studio for the painters among the prisoners. Officers were separated from privates—which was a good thing for the privates—and were kept in houses surrounded by stockades. Officers and privates received the same treatment, however, and all were given exactly the same rations and equipment as the regular French army before it went to the front. Their food consisted of bread, soup, and wine, as wine is called almost everywhere in the world. In the morning they received half a loaf of Vienna bread and coffee. At noon they each had a large dixe of thick soup, and at three in the afternoon more bread and a bottle of vino. The soup was more like a stew—very thick with meat and vegetables. At one of the officers' barracks there was a cook who had been chef in the largest hotel in Paris before the war. All the prisoners were well clothed. Once a week, socks, underwear, soap, towels and blankets were issued to them, and every week the barracks and equipment were fumigated. They were given the best of medical attention.

CHAPTER II.

The War Breaks.

After serving four years and three months in the U. S. navy, I received an honorable discharge on April 14, 1914. I held the rank of chief petty officer, first-class gunner. It is not uncommon for garbies to be around a while between enlistments—they like a vacation as much as anyone—and it was my intention to loaf for a few months before joining the navy again.

After the war started, of course, I had heard more or less about the German atrocities in Belgium, and while I was greatly interested, I was doubtful at first as to the truth of the reports, for I knew how news gets changed in passing from mouth to mouth, and I never was much of a hand to believe things until I saw them, anyway. Another thing that caused me to be interested in the war was the fact that my mother was born in Alsace. Her maiden name, Dier-vieux, is well known in Alsace. I had often visited my grandmother in St. Nazaire, France, and knew the country. So with France at war, it was not strange that I should be even more interested than many other garbies.

As I have said, I did not see much stock in the first reports of the Hun's exhibition of kultur, because Fritz is known as a clean sailor, and I figured that no real sailor would ever get mixed up in such dirty work as they said there was in Belgium. I figured the soldiers were like the sailors. But I found out I was wrong about both.

One thing that opened my eyes a bit was the trouble my mother had in getting out of Hanover, where she was when the war started, and back to France. She always wore a little American flag and this both saved and endangered her. Without it, the Germans would have interned her as a Frenchwoman, and with it, she was sneered at and insulted time and again before she finally managed to get over the border. She died about two months after she reached St. Nazaire.

Moreover, I heard the fate of my older brother, who had made his home in France with my grandmother. He had gone to the front at the outbreak of the war with the infantry from St. Nazaire and had been killed two or three weeks afterwards. This made it a sort of personal matter. But what put the finishing touches to me were the stories of a wounded Canadian lieutenant told me some months later in New York. He had been there and he knew. You could not help believing him; you can always tell it when a man has been there and knows.

There was not much racket around New York, so I made up my mind all of a sudden to go over and get some for myself. Believe me, I got enough racket before I was through. Most of the really important things I have done have happened like that: I did them on the jump, you might say. Many other Americans wanted a look, too; there were five thousand Americans in the Canadian army at one time they say.

I would not claim that I went over there to save democracy, or anything like that. I never did like Germans, and I never met a Frenchman who was not kind to me, and what I heard about the way the Huns treated the Belgians made me sick. I used to get out of bed to go to an all-night picture show, I thought about it so much. But there was not much excitement

THE THEATRES

AT THE DELFT.
Mary Pickford's picture, "The Little Princess," from the story by Frances Hodgson Burnett, which will be seen at the Delft tonight, is a reminder that Christmas is coming and that the well known shopping for the children must soon commence. Christmas trees, roast turkeys, presents, dolls and candy figure prominently in the incidents of the picture. When the Christmas tree is decorated in Miss Minchin's Lincoln boarding school, Mary Pickford as Sara Crewe is enacting the humble role of maid-of-all-work at the establishment, having been relegated to that position from that of one of the well cared for pupils when her father died and left her penniless. The story turns out all right in the end, however, because Sara is rescued by her father's former partner, who arrives at Christmas time with news of millions of dollars worth of diamonds from the venture of Sarah's father in India. Then Sara and Becky the slavery have a Christmas tree all their own, and things are not half as bad as they appeared to the friendless children.

AT THE STRAND.
Miss Ann Murdock, one of the late Charles Frohman's favorite stars and the last of the young American actresses he made famous before he went to his death on the ill-fated Lusitania and who will appear at the Strand theatre tonight has a first-class medium in her new Mutual production "The Richest Girl," a Frohman success of the Empire theatre list. The play has an excellent plot—one that affords Miss Murdock many opportunities. Its story involves the fortunes of Paul Normand, a young revenue office clerk of good family, who is engaged to marry the daughter of his chief, Commissioner Minzasson. Flora, Normand's fiancee, is invited with her father, to visit Paul at his little summer cottage over in Jersey, and the action begins with Paul's departure for the week-end, loaded with commuter's impediments, and accompanied by his friend Felix, an artist. Paul's housekeeper, a middle-aged woman, who is very devout, is playing solitaire after the two young men have retired, when Benjamin Downey, "The Richest Girl," daughter of a multi-millionaire chocolate manufacturer, seeks shelter, her automobile having broken down. Paul, much perturbed gives up his room to Benjamin, who is discovered in the house next morning by Flora and her father. This contretemps results in the breaking of Paul's engagement to Flora, and in his discharge from the federal service. But every cloud has its silver lining. The chocolate lady loved Paul on sight and he soon found her fascinating. There's only one finish to a situation like that. They were wed.

Miss Atkins' Work Meets With Success

Has Been Making a Survey of Children in Industry for Illinois Council of National Defense.

The work in which Miss Atkins of this city is engaged this summer is meeting with much success. Miss Atkins, who was engaged as a teacher in the Minneapolis schools, secured a leave of absence early in April to work for the Illinois Council of National Defense and has been traveling about that state making a comprehensive survey of children in industry. It is the aim of the council to have continuation schools established that children who are obliged to enter industry at an early age may have the opportunity of finishing their education. The fact that these children are obliged to take up unskilled labor because of the handicap of being poorly educated makes the work of these vocational schools valuable, as a child is given the opportunity to take up the work he is best fitted to do. Miss Atkins is particularly fitted for this task and is meeting with much success, enthusiastic meetings being reported from all the cities she has visited. Her tour will end the latter part of August before resuming her duties in Minneapolis.

COLORS OF MARINES

These standards of victory are the flags of the marines who added renown to the already famous corps by the gallant attack on the Maroa.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incalculable material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomain-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

LIBERTY CABBAGE, NOT SAUERKRAUT

Soldier at Camp Custer Teaches New Select the Proper Name of That Particular Food.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Battle Creek, Mich., July 9.—"I had a heaping dish of sauerkraut," said the newly-uniformed select at Camp Custer by way of making conversation with a soldier he had just met.

"Yes?" said his companion with that bored air of an infantryman of six month's training. "What was so good about it?"

"Well," said the select, "there was a heaping dish of sauerkraut—"

"What?" almost screamed the infantryman, his languor changing to undisguised anger and amazement. "Sauerkraut?"

"There was a skirmish, short and in a snappy American fashion. Blow answered blow. The infantryman showed a blue-black eye and a crimson nose when they paused for wind and let their anger cool.

"Bo," said the infantryman, "your taste in food is traitorous. Come with me."

The soldiers walked to a lunch counter nearby. They straddled stools, rested their elbows on the counter and the infantryman said: "I'll do the ordering." He turned to a waiter and said:

"Two orders of Liberty Cabbage, and don't keep us waiting. I just been battering a German spy and I'm famished."

HOW TO CART HAY IS TOPIC OF MEET

Adequate Transportation of Year's Crop is Discussed by Delegates to National Hay Association.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Cleveland, Ohio, July 9.—The question of obtaining adequate transportation facilities for the expected big hay crop this year was the most important matter before the annual convention of the National Hay Association which opened here today with nearly a thousand delegates present.

Despite the reported large acreage, some delegates declared the market price would soar as it did last year unless enough freight cars are provided. Railroad congestion prevented movement of thousands of tons last year, it was said.

B. W. Boyden, of the National Food Administration, and George S. Bridge, of the United States quartermaster's department, are on the program for addresses on "the needs of the army and navy."

Why Rattlesnake is Dangerous.

The danger from rattlesnake poison lies in the fact that 95 per cent of it goes to the destruction of blood and tissue, while 5 per cent goes to nerves, shock. The venom of the Anelatrodon snakes, the moccasin and copperhead, is not so dangerous, as it does equal, so less violent, damage to men.

Some authorities attribute greater danger to the bite of Elaps, the coral snake, than to the rattler, but as the habitat of these snakes is limited in this country and their habits nocturnal and subterranean, the danger is small.

Invention of Doors.

Who invented the door no one knows. It is, however, an invention of comparatively modern times. All the ancient houses, even the houses containing doorways, had no doors. Fabrics or skins of animals were hung across the doorways to keep out the elements. In the great Roman Coliseum there is but one door—that is the door behind which lay the lions that ate the gladiators. From this and other similar uses it is believed that doors to houses probably first came into use as a means of defense.

REJECTED AT CUSTER.

Rejection cards for the following men at Camp Custer were received today by the secretary of the local exemption board: John Sharkey, Alfred Weberg, Louis H. Wils, Edward M. Hirn, Oscar A. Johnson William J. LaFond, Charles P. Brandenburg, J. W. Henrietta and William Sillers.

Disqualified for military service because of physical defects, Dr. E. M. Hirn, Charles Brandenburg and John Henrietta, of this city, have returned from Camp Custer. The men went to Custer in June.

Mrs. James Riedy and family have returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Casco.

GET NEW KIDNEYS

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in GOLD MEDAL, Haslem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.

Scientists Find Wheatless Loaf

Wheat Substitute Bread is Found by Department of Agriculture After Experiments.

(Special to The Mirror)

Washington, D. C., July 9.—The wheatless loaf has been found. While the whole country has been seeking the 100 per cent wheat substitute yeast bread, a recipe has been developed in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture and the United States Food Administration that may mean the saving of thousands of pounds of wheat flour before flour from the next wheat harvest is available.

The directions for making the wheatless bread are as follows:

All of These.

- 1 1/4 cups liquid, 1 tablespoon corn syrup, 1/4 cake yeast, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 whole egg, 2 3/4 cups barley, 2 3/4 cups ground rolled oats, 2 1/2 cups corn flour, 2 1/2 cups rice flour, 2 1/2 cups sweet potato flour, 2 1/2 cups (scant) tapioca flour.

Make a sponge of materials under 1 (except egg) and 1/2 of ingredients used from 2 and 3. Sponge should stand in warm place until very light, at least two hours. Work in balance of substitute mixture when sponge is light. Work in egg beaten slightly. Shape into loaf. Place in pan. Brush top of loaf with melted fat. Let rise to double bulk and bake in loaf pan in hot oven for one hour.

After completing a two weeks' technical course at the University of Chicago as a part of the Naval Officers' training school, John Lemmer returned to his home here on Sunday. He will remain here awaiting his call to complete the remainder of the course.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

I hereby announce, to the citizens of Delta County that I am a candidate at the August primary election for the office of Prosecuting Attorney. I served Delta County as Assistant Prosecuting Attorney without salary during the years 1915 and 1916. I believe my record during this period will disclose that I rendered Delta County service; that I treated all matters given me for attention with honesty and sincerity, and without favor to any one.

I shall conduct a clean campaign, and seek election on what merit I have, that qualifies me to successfully perform the duties of the office.

The present incumbent has served Delta County for six years as Prosecuting Attorney, and this fact has largely influenced me to determine to seek election at the will of the voters. I shall, if elected, give my full time and attention if it is necessary to the duties of the office. I shall enforce as vigorously as I am able, the Prohibition Statute as well as all other violations of criminal statutes. I shall at all times be ready and willing to serve any person who has complaint to make of a violation of law. I shall deal with all fairly, and without fear or favor to anyone. With this statement, I urge the support of my candidacy from the voters.

Respectfully, THOS. J. RILEY.

PRAISES CLOVERLAND.

That Cloverland is an ideal country for sheep raising is the opinion expressed today by A. J. Basel, of San Antonio, Texas. Mr. Basel is in Cloverland as a representative for sheep raisers of the southwest and according to him Cloverland has before it a great future in its new industry.

According to Mr. Basel Cloverland is the possessor of an ideal climate, and if it has not already won fame as a country endowed with all the qualities necessary for sheep raising, then it has not a long time to wait.

Where Soy Bean Flourishes.

North Carolina claims rank as the largest soy-bean production state, with an estimated crop for 1917 of 1,500,000 bushels, an increase of 20 per cent over 1916. Despite this large crop, the oil mills of eastern North Carolina imported 200,000 bushels of soy beans recently from China. A soy-bean harvester has been invented by North Carolina farmers. This harvester thrashes the beans from the vines in the fields.

Ineffectual Camouflage.

Pearl White, the movie star, said at a tea: "If a girl is nice, you can easily tell it, and if she isn't nice, no matter what camouflage she uses, you can tell it more easily. 'I met an actress the other day who claimed to be very nice indeed—Vassar graduate, planter's daughter, unfortunate speculations, and all that sort of thing. 'Well, this girl and I got into a taxi cab to hurry to a rehearsal, and as she settled back in her seat she absently said: 'When you ride in a taxi, dear, it's a good wrinkle to breathe on the windows if you don't want to be seen.'"
