

The Stories the Dewdrops Told

(Written for the United States School Garden Army, Department of the Interior)

Part II. Dolly Meets the Bald-Headed Fairy.

Won't you tell me how you grow? All the other Fairies have told me, said Dolly.

"Yes, of course. We grow best from the seed. Some people put out what they call 'sets.' Of course, if you want very early spring onions, it is a good plan to put in the sets in the fall. But we grow very fast from seeds, and that is the best way if you want large, fine heads. Some people are too lazy to raise really good onions. You see, the ground should be worked up very fine and soft before we are planted. Then we should be hoed over quite often. And no weeds must be allowed to grow near us."

"Oh," said Dolly. "I saw the weed imp."

"Wasn't he a mean thing?" said the Onion Fairy.

"Well, and then we need a light fertilizer—wood ashes are good. And the ground must not be allowed to grow up around because our heads need a lot of air and we grow best partly out of the ground. Our seeds must not be planted deep, either."

"How deep?" asked Dolly.

"About as far in the ground as your little finger-nail would go," said the Fairy.

"Then, when our tops begin to get yellow, we should be pulled up and laid sidewise on the ground so we can ripen in the light and air. Then we can be stored in some dry place that will not get too cold in winter. Or we can be tied up in bunches and hung up in the cellar. In France, where many onions will be sent this year, the peasants—the people who live in the country, you know—hang us up in their kitchens. They eat a great many onions in different ways. Sometimes they make them into salads. And then they make onion soup."

"Is onion soup good?"

"There is nothing a hungry French peasant likes better than onion soup when he comes home at night tired from his work in the fields. They raise a great many onions with quite fancy names over there."

"Oh," said Dolly. "I wish you would tell me your name."

"My name," said the bald-headed Fairy, "is Silverkin."

"Oh, how pretty. Please tell me some other names."

"Well, one of my yellow brothers is called 'Yellow Globe.' 'Red Wetherfield' is the name of one of my red brothers. He is very popular."

"Thank you so much for telling me all about yourself," said Dolly. "I think I must go now. It is breakfast time and Maria wants her milk. But I will come again tomorrow morning."

BUILD SANATORIUM AND CHECK PLAGUE SAY STATE HEADS

Legislatures Have Laid Firm Foundation to Carry Out Such a Plan.

Ann Arbor, July 29.—The next step in anti-tuberculosis work in Michigan is in the direction of building sanatoriums, according to the officials of the Michigan Anti-tuberculosis association. It is the logical step in many other states, and it is the indispensable step here, it is asserted.

The last two legislatures have laid the foundation for a sanatorium building movement. In 1917 a law was passed allowing two or more counties to erect such an institution and providing for half of the maintenance expenses out of the state funds.

Law Was Amended.
In 1919 the legislature took up this law again and amended it in such a way that its operation would be made easier. The 1917 law was all right in theory but it did not work smoothly in practice. The 1919 amended law has removed these practical difficulties.

Already there are indications that counties in Michigan are going to respond to the invitation this new law extends. In more than one section of the state counties are taking the preliminary steps to join forces and build adequate institutions for the tuberculous.

The latest county to take steps in the line of tuberculosis sanatorium building is Berrien. This county has under consideration the proposition of erecting a sanatorium at a cost of $120,000. The board of supervisors expect to take final action in the matter at the October session.

Much Easier Now.
The erection of sanatoria is now several times easier than it was before the legislature took the matter up and passed the necessary legislation. Many counties have advanced far enough to investigate the proposition, and during the next few years it is believed that those investigations will develop into definite action in several sections of the state.

Miss Druding to Marry.
Miss Myrtle Druding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Druding of Superior avenue, Gladstone, will be united in marriage to John Beauchamp of Flat Rock some day this week, according to information in the Gladstone Reporter, the exact date being withheld. The marriage is to be performed at the home of relatives of the bride in Black Creek, Wis., where she is visiting. They will reside in Gladstone on their return.

CHILDREN ARE GIVEN CHANCE TO WIN GENUINE WAR TROPHY

Hand Grenades, Made for Fighting Purposes, Offered as Receipts for Funds to Be Used in Purchase of Thrift or War Savings Stamps.

TO BE READY FOR FREE DISTRIBUTION SOON

Thousands of Grenades Coming to Banks of Ninth Federal Reserve District to Be Given Out—They Become Property of Children Who Fill Them and Invest Contents in Thrift or War Savings Stamps.

School children throughout every part of the Ninth Federal Reserve district are to be given the chance this summer to win as a war trophy an actual hand grenade, made for fighting purposes. At the same time they will receive a direct and practical lesson in thrift and prosperity under the plan which has been evolved by M. E. Harrison, director of the district War Savings Organization and his aides.

The grenades, in accordance with the idea of a thrifty soul in Washington who was unwilling to see so much good material go to waste after fighting stopped, have been made into savings banks. Just a slot cut at the top and a screw inserted at the bottom, and presto—the bomb that was to have clinched things in tight trench and dugout fighting has become a weapon against the forces of extravagance.

The grenades are being bought from the treasury department by banks everywhere in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana and the Michigan and Wisconsin counties in the Ninth district. The banks, in turn, loan the grenades to all children under 17 years of age who apply. The child, must, however, pledge himself to have regularly, to put his savings in the grenade, and, when it is full, to bring the grenade to the bank which loaned it to him and to buy Thrift or War Savings Stamps from that bank with the contents.

The reward of the child who borrows the little grenade bank and saves systematically will be twofold, for he will receive the grenade as his own property as soon as he has saved enough to buy one of the War Savings Stamps of $5 maturity value, and at the same time he will be receiving training in the habit which will be more valuable to him in later life than any other.

"We want every child in the states of this district to go to the bank their parents use, sign the thrift pledge there and borrow a hand grenade savings bank," Ray C. Teuscher, executive secretary of the War Savings Organization said yesterday. "We want every child to realize that by saving now he is placing himself on the highway to prosperity and independence in later life. At the same time he is proving himself, or she is proving herself, to be a little patriot, the kind of an American we are proud of, such an American as the whole world is praising today."

"Banks of the district are purchasing the grenades freely. The cost to them is but a few cents each and they can afford to give them to the child who saves and buys a War Savings Stamp, for it is probable that each child will grow up to become a steady patron of that bank. If the thrift habit takes hold of him he will be so thankful in later life that he will be likely to patronize the bank which did him so great a favor as to start him right."

M. E. Harrison, director of War Savings, added a word to convince children that the grenade savings banks they are to receive are real war trophies, even if they have been made over a little. Hundreds of thousands of them were all packed ready for shipment to Europe when the armistice was signed. They stood around for a long time and war department officials got tired of seeing them, they were so darned explosive and everything. Then a treasury department man got the idea of removing the powder and caps and remaking them into saving banks. "So," said Mr. Harrison, "every bank is a real trophy of war and if the war had continued each one would have exploded in some enemy trench or dugout."

What is thought about the hand grenade savings bank plan by banks of the country districts was proved three days after a first announcement was sent out. Orders, accompanied by cash, for more than 50,000 of the grenades were received from banks in a single morning. And all these are to be given to children as soon as they save for and buy one War Savings stamp. In all, War Savings headquarters expects that at least 200,000 of the grenades will be distributed.

That will represent the neat saving of more than $1,000,000 by Ninth district children alone between now and the time school starts.

Children who are members of school savings societies may go to banks when school opens and get a certificate showing how much they have saved during the summer. They will be credited with the amount in their standing in their schoolroom War Savings Society.

ORGANIZATION UNDER WAY

Directions for the organization of War Savings Societies under the United States treasury plan in every industrial plant in the Ninth Federal Reserve district have been sent to all county directors of War Savings. In many counties the work is already under way. In these the county chairmen are now to complete the work with all speed by forming War Savings Societies in the remaining industries. M. E. Harrison, district director of War Savings, has urged county chairmen in the other counties to start forming societies at once.

A force of specially trained organizers of War Savings Societies is now busy forming societies in the larger cities of the Ninth district. As soon as that has been done these experienced men will be at liberty to finish the work of organizing industries in all other counties.

The plan under which War Savings Societies are being formed is simple. A meeting is called in the plant during which the importance of thrift and investment in War Savings Stamps is explained to all employees. Those willing to take part, usually everyone, are then asked to sign a membership pledge, sometimes promising to buy a fixed amount of stamps weekly or merely to buy stamps. A president of the society is appointed and one or more secretaries named. The secretaries each have a fixed number of persons on whom they call each payday, giving them an opportunity to buy Thrift stamps or War Savings stamps.

It is desirable to have plenty of secretaries, according to Ray C. Teuscher, executive secretary of the district War Savings Organization. The secretary who has but 15 employees to call on each week is more likely to finish his work than the one with 30 on his list. If there are 30 employees two secretaries should be named so that every earner may be given a chance to become a saver through investment in War Savings stamps or Thrift stamps.

"The Ninth Federal Reserve district has responded 100 per cent or better to every national effort and we purpose to do the same this time," Director Harrison said yesterday. "We are using Minneapolis as a model and there is every indication that every industry in that city will have one or more War Savings Societies by August 1. St. Paul and Duluth are to be organized with the same thoroughness and by fall we intend to attain the same result in every Ninth district county. Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, western Wisconsin and northern Michigan are all to receive the same thorough attention."

Stock Company Has Big Crowd, Opening

Playing to a large crowd, the Clifford Young Stock company opened its week engagement at the Delft theatre last night and was greeted with the same enthusiasm as of the previous engagement with the same enthusiasm as of the previous engagement here when the company packed the theatre. "Believe Me Xantippe" furnished a splendid opening feature.

"For The Man She Lived" will be the bill tonight. While little advance matter has been given out regarding this play, the management declares it is one of the best on the bill of the week. No plays which were shown here during the previous engagement of the stock company will be repeated.

The vaudeville acts between curtains continue to prove popular as ever and give the patrons no time to "fuss and stew" between acts.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't Stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HUGHES ON THE LEAGUE

In answer to a letter from Senator Frederik Hale, Judge Charles Evans Hughes, presidential candidate in the race against Woodrow Wilson, gives the following views on the League of Nations, saying here that he is in favor of it.
"I do not state at the present the point of view from which I think the question should be approached. There is plain need for a league of nations.
In order to provide for the adequate development of international law for creating an maintaining organ of international justice and the machinery of conciliation and conference, and for giving effect to measures of international cooperation which from time to time may be agreed upon. There is also the immediate exigency to be considered. It is manifest that every reasonable effort should be made to establish peace as promptly as possible and to bring about a condition in which Europe can resume its normal industrial activity.

I perceive no reason why these objects cannot be attained without sacrificing the essential interests of the United States. There is a middle ground between aloofness and injurious commitments.

I share the regret that suitable steps have not been taken for the formation of international legal principles and to secure judicial determination of international disputes by impartial tribunals, and that the hope of the world in the determination of disputes has been made to rest so largely upon the decision of bodies likely to be controlled by considerations of expediency.
There is merit enough in the proposed plan to make it desirable to secure it,
if proper safeguards can be obtained,
but it is just as futile to exaggerate its value as it is to see nothing but its defects. One must take a light-hearted view of conditions in the world to assume that the proposed plan will guarantee peace, or bring about a cessation of intrigue and of the rivalries of interests, or prevent nations which cannot protect themselves from being compelled to yield to unjust demands where for any reason great Powers deem resistance inexpedient. Rather, the proposed Covenant should be viewed as a mere beginning, and while it is important that we should have a beginning it is equally important that we should not make a false start.

I think that the prudent course is to enter the proposed League with reservations of reasonable character, adequate to our security, which should meet ready assent, and thus to establish a condition of amity at the earliost possible moment.

As to the validity of reservations:
This question has two aspects: first,
with respect to the action on our part which is essential to the making of reservations; and second, as to the effect of reservations upon other parties to the Treaty.

Over five hundred women from all parts of New England are registered

Good principles, good men and good

Bootblacks Back to Old Status in Berlin

Berlin, July 29.—One more of the practical "fruits of the revolution"
has been the appearance of bootblacks in the downtown streets of Berlin. They are especially welcomed by the hotel guests who since the dawn "of new freedom" and the shortage of footwear are steadily discarding the once proper right custom of placing their boots in front of the door of the apartment where they awaited
the porter's early morning round.

Greater Berlin has just licensed 100 public bootblack stands. Operators will wear a number and a Prussian eagle band on their caps.

VIRGIN ISLES ARE GETTING BACK TO FORMER LIMELIGHT

Regaining Former Maritime Importance; Yank Ships Beginning to Call.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, July 5. (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—This American port is beginning to regain some of its former maritime importance. Owing to the war, improvements in this direction have been slow since the Virgin Islands were purchased from Denmark but now, after considerable agitation by business men of St. Thomas, American steamers are beginning to call here. This is the result of representations which have been made to Washington in behalf of the inhabitants of the islands.

Overlooked Facilities. The Islanders feel that American steamship owners and especially the Shipping Board at Washington have heretofore overlooked the facilities of the harbor of St. Thomas for providing coal, fuel oil, and other stores. While few American steamers have been calling at St. Thomas for supplies, many have call at the neighboring British islands where facilities are not considered as good as here. The price of coal is cheaper at St. Thomas than at the British island.

To bring this matter before the Shipping Board and to obtain all the help possible from the American people inhabitants of the Virgin Islands was and Congress, a meeting of the island held here. Resolutions were adopted calling the attention of the Shipping Board to the facilities of the port, such as a pier 3,000 feet long with 31 feet of water along side and up-to-date appliances for the quick dispatch of vessels wanting coal, water, fuel oil and other stores.

The resolution was carried to Washington by Darwin O. Curry, Collector of Customs, who laid it before the Shipping Board. Mr. Curry has since returned and reports that that board, members of Congress, and American business men have promised to do all they can for the island. Erecting Oil Depot. Another oil depot is being erected here to meet increased demands. The people of St. Thomas believe it possesses far better facilities than most other West Indian islands and are determined to make known its availability as a port on call for supplying steamers.

Animals On Track; Forgotten, Dead

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) Berlin, July 29.—The government troops guarding the Lichtenburg station in the east end of Berlin, had discovered several car loads of livestock which were sidetracked to the freight yards and apparently forgotten. Most of the animals were dead from starvation.

Meanwhile the shortage of meat in Berlin is one of the most difficult problems facing the food authorities.

The Rev. Herman Lind, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, Gladstone, Ore., has been called to Portland, Ore., by the serious illness of a son, Phillip, who is to undergo an operation.

FLYER IS HELD AS TRESPASSER

Forced to Descend in a New York Park.

PINCHED FOR SPOILING GRASS

"Catcha See Them Signs: 'Keep Off the Grass'" Demanded Irate Patrolman—"You Should Have Written Letter to Park Board Asking Permission to Land There," Declares the Judge—Sentence Suspended.

The deplorable lack of landing fields, or even places where airmen can land with any degree of safety about our largest cities is the biggest obstacle in the way of flying becoming common. Airplane enthusiasts are agreed upon this, and until some way out of the difficulty is found the sport will always rank as hazardous, unsafe, but extremely thrilling.

New York had an example of this a few days ago when Phillip A. Bjarklund, a civilian aviator, landed in Van Cortlandt park and tore up a few feet of turf. His engine had "conked" while flying to Albany and he was forced to descend hurriedly where he could. Van Cortlandt park happened to be it. It might have been the Woolworth tower or Forty-second street and Broadway, or Brooklyn bridge, so far as the pilot's ability to control his destiny was concerned. He landed, got out and was ruefully contemplating his machine. Up walked Hard Luck in the bulky shape of Patrolman John T. Shields.

"Hey, watcha mean by tearing up that grass?" queried the exponent of law, order and fat feet. "Catcha see them signs: 'Keep Off the Grass?'"

Bjarklund explained that he had a forced landing, and that so far as he was concerned it was unavoidable, that he certainly hadn't wanted to land in the park et cetera. But the law was obdurate.

"Tain't my fault," said the mountain in blue. "Them signs say 'Keep Off the Grass' and I'm here to see that they're obeyed."

Arrested for Trespassing. He thereupon handed the aviator a summons to appear before Magistrate Ten Eyck for "unlawfully disturbing the grass in a grass plot of Van Cortlandt park without a permit from the park authorities, against the peace and dignity of the state of New York and the municipal ordinances in such cases duly made and provided."

"Phew!" said Bjarklund as he read the charge sheet.

Magistrate Ten Eyck promptly adjudged him guilty when he appeared. The court was stern. Justice fairly beetled from his honor's brows.

"Didn't you see the signs?" queried the court in a deep bass voice.

"No, your honor, I was 1,500 feet up," Bjarklund then explained to the court that his motor had quit and that he couldn't very well tie up to a cloud while he tinkered with it. Neither could he throw out a sky anchor. Inasmuch as the motor wouldn't go up, he had to come down, and he had only about the split part of a second to decide where he was going when he got down.

Judge Suspends Fine.

"Well," said the court, "you should have written a letter to the park board and asked authority to land there. Of course, it being Sunday, no one would have been at the park board office to answer it. And, of course, you might have been killed in the meantime, but you should have stayed within the law anyway."

"You're guilty as charged," boomed the court. "But," with a twinkle in his eye, "the sentence is suspended. Next time when you're got to come down fast write a letter to the board and ask for permission to land. Next?"

"Well, he was guilty anyhow," said the cop triumphantly, as he stalked out to resume his watchfulness of the park squirrels.

HOUND FINDS GIRL

She Was Lost for a Long Time in the Hills.

The five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Reneau of Coyote valley, California, has a narrative to relate after spending a day and a night alone in the hills several miles from her home.

The little one was picking wild flowers on her father's farm when she wandered away and night overtook her. Efforts of the parents to find the girl proved unavailing, after which a searching party was organized among the neighbors and all night they scoured the hills with lanterns, but no trace of her was found.

On the evening of the second day, when she had been away from her home for 28 hours, the searchers were led to her whereabouts by a blood-hound. The little one was found asleep under a large manzanita bush several miles from the Reneau home. She is now little the worse for her adventure.

Miner Received $5,000 for Year's Work. One miner in South Wales, Eng., received more than $5,000 last year, while another paid income tax on $4,750 in wages. The mine is said to be so easy to work that the men can earn what they like. The coal only has to be "tickled" to bring it down.
