TOLEDO CHURCH TO ADVERTISE IN A NOVEL WAY

(By Associated Press)
 TOLEDO, Ohio, April 29—A church window which is said to have the distinction of being the first one in this country installed exclusively for its play to the street has been installed in the First Westminster church of this city.
 The church has provided a special lighting system to illuminate the window from within. A few church windows elsewhere are thus illuminated, it is said, but these show from within whereas this window is seen only from the street.
 The window which shows Christ preaching to the multitude contains many figures and will vary its message visually seven nights in the week to passersby.
 The window is hand painted, whereas the background in most church windows is worked out with small pieces of stained glass.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Bridge File Number 490,801
 Sealed proposals will be received on May 12th, 1922, at 1:30 P. M., Central Standard Time, at the office of the District Engineer, State Highway Department, Escanaba, Michigan, by Frank F. Rogers, State Highway Commissioner, for the construction of a 45-foot span reinforced concrete bridge located on Trunk Line Route No. 12 on T. L. Project No. 1222 at approximately Sta. 263, crossing Brevoort River in Section 13-14, Town 42 N., Range 6 W., in Moran Township, Mackinac County, about 9 1/2 miles north west of Moran, being bridge file Number 490,801.

Description—The general nature of the work to be done is as follows:
 Substructure will consist of two 11 inch plain concrete abutments and will contain about 149.5 cubic yards of 1:7 1/2 concrete and about 514 pounds of steel dowels.
 Superstructure will consist of one 45 foot reinforced concrete girder with 22 foot roadway on a 45 degree angle of crossing, and requires about 109.9 cubic yards of 1:5 concrete and about 18,500 pounds of reinforcing steel.
 Foundations—The nature of the material to be excavated for abutments is not known. The Engineer will decide as to the necessity for piling after excavations are completed.

WOULD MAKE UPPER P. HONEY HEADQUARTERS

Climate Is Right and Clover Is Best in the World.

(By Associated Press)
 MARQUETTE, Mich., April 29—An effort to make the Upper Peninsula one of the chief honey producing districts of the country, and to obtain the $1,000,000 that D. F. Keidig, apiaary inspector of the Michigan Agricultural College says is being lost annually to farmers in this part of the state, has been started by persons interested in development of "Cloverland."

Professor Kindig now is making a tour of the peninsula to investigate the further policies of bee culture. The college department head declares this part of the state is ideally situated for bee raising because of the large amount of clover afforded. Wild clover grows in greater quantities in this section than in any other part of the country, he asserts.

"Climatic conditions here are ideal for honey production," Professor Kindig said. "The peninsula is close to the marketing centers. The apiaary division of M. A. C. will endeavor to bring these facts to the attention of Northern Michigan farmers because they are losing at least a million dollars a year by not making greater strides in this direction. Our aim is to establish bee keeping as a distinct industry in upper Michigan, placing it on a par with general farming and dairying."

PETER WAISKA, PROUD CHIPPEWA DIES AT THE SOO

LAND CLEARING TRAIN IN U. P. ALL NEXT WEEK

Demonstration Work Will Feature Intensive Campaign.

MENOMINEE, April 29—The Upper Peninsula campaign to wrest 60,000 acres of land from the wilderness and break it to the plow will be in full swing next week. At that time a land clearing train will leave here for an eight week's swing around the circle in northern Michigan. The eight weeks will be employed in traveling from one community to another preaching the gospel of land clearing in virtually every district of the peninsula.

The train will travel over all railroad lines in Upper Peninsula thru arrangements with the various transportation companies. At the head of the delegation will be L. F. Livingston, land clearing expert for the Michigan Agricultural College and who for some time has been preparing the farmers and business men of the district for the drive against cut-over land forests thru which he had roamed thru out his life, but in a white man's cemetery. of Peter Waiska until the last maintained the same feeling of hostility, as befitting the final survivor of his race. His friends say his melancholy increased year by year as he saw the forest dwindle and disappear and the face of the land change from a wilderness to a manufacturing and farming district.
 At four o'clock on the morning of his last day of life Peter walked alone far into the country until he reached the forest. He sat beneath a tree and meditated upon the fate that had befallen his people. The cold finally overcame him and he sank into a slumber from which he did not awaken.

Peter Waiska, born an Indian, reared an Indian and an Indian at heart until the last, except that he had adopted the white man's religion, went to his last resting place, not in the forests thru which he had roamed thru out his life, but in a white man's cemetery. A simple cross marks the grave

Insula Development Bureau.
 Actual demonstration work will feature the work to be carried on. Explosives and stump pulling machines will be carried and the farmers will be instructed how to obtain the best results with a minimum of expense and danger.
 The land clearing campaign has been conducted vigorously during the winter months, with the result that organizations pledged to assist the drive have been formed in virtually every section.
 While preparations for the tour have been going on this spring farmers in all sections have not been idle. They already have begun their work of clearing the lands, with the result that many acres of the 60,000 quota will be turned under the plow for the first time this season. It is proposed that each farmer in the peninsula clear on an average of five acres this year, thereby adding to his holdings and the possibilities for more profitable farming operations. It is believed by Mr. Livingston that the drive also will bring additional settlers into the north country.

 There are 124 officers and 1,322 enlisted men of the United States army stationed in posts along the Mexican border.

A E 3,000 CHILDREN FROM DEATH, APPEAL BY MRS. E. L. CHAPIN

Mrs. Elie Lines Chapin

The order of the Eastern Star, which Mrs. Elie Lines Chapin, of East Tawas, Michigan, is one of the prominent members of, is sponsoring the appeal to save the lives of 3,000 children in the Transcaucasian zone, stricken by a recent famine in Near East appropriations.

It is estimated that there are 3,000,000 children in the Transcaucasian zone, of whom 2,000,000 are in the bread belt of the Near East. It has been kept alive on a scanty diet of a pound of bread a day. Should the women of America forsake them, they will starve in the ranks of thousands of children in every age who are seen begging for bread, wandering the roads seeking for refuse or lying dead in Transcaucasia. Surely we women can afford to make some sacrifice, however small, in order that they shall not perish.

Sponsorship booklets, each representing the life of a child, ($5 a month, $50 a year), have been sent to women's organizations throughout the country.

Please send contributions to Women's Emergency Committee, Near East Relief, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Chairman, 151 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The Cost of a Home To-day

WITH almost every city in America feeling the pressure of high rents and inadequate housing facilities it is interesting to know that it still costs on an average of 75 per cent more to build a home now than it did before the war. The peak of cost was in 1920, when the nationwide housing shortage which always follows a cessation of building was felt keenly. But the present cost is only about 25% lower than in 1920. These facts are brought out in a recent bulletin issued by the Chemical National Bank of New York, based on an estimate of costs of three types of residences. A 2-story frame 7-room house 30 ft. by 34 ft. cost in 1914 $5,529; in 1920, $12,815, an increase of 125%; and in March of this year cost $9,502, which is 71% more than in 1914 and 26% above 1920. A 2-story Colonial 8-room house 23 ft. by 41 ft. cost $4,176 in 1914 and $9,767 in 1920 which is an advance of about 133%. At present it would cost $7,374 which is 76% above 1914 prices and 24% below the peak in 1920. In 1914 a 2-story shingle 8-room house 26 ft. by 35 ft. cost $4,701. By 1920 it had risen to $10,913 or 132%, and today costs $8,112 or 72% above the 1914 figure and 26% below the peak cost. The prospective builder is interested in knowing whether he may look for further declines, and whether he should wait for them before starting his new home. It is, of course, difficult to forecast the building costs of the future but many of the elements which build larger building costs, such as freight and wage rates, are less susceptible to downward revision than commodity prices in general. The general housing shortage and the increasing volume of building at present are factors that serve to strengthen building material prices. So while it is possible that building prices may decline further, it is not probable that they will decline very much.

DECORATING THE ROOM

This must always be borne in mind—the walls do come first for permanent effect even if we are to think first of covering the floor. The wall paper—and there are tints and textures of every conceivable variety—a floor covering the four walls and the ceiling, if desired, for a fraction of what a floor covering costs. The choice of tint or design gives tone to the whole room—the way in which framed pictures catch the eye, to the general arrangement of furniture, and even to the floor covering—Helen Taft.

RAILS CLAIM WAGE HAS DECLINED FOR THE LAST 20 YEARS

Engineers Issue Bulletin Telling How Other Increases Have Been Greater Than Wages.

In a noteworthy discussion on the subject of wages, particularly wages of railroad employees, in the United States Senate on February 9, 1922, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, had down the proposition which he declared were economically true and admitted as follows:

(1) The nominal wages of railroad workers today is not only less than in 1914, but is less than in 1900, and is less than the rate prevailing in 1880, when they were 50 cents a day.

(2) The nominal increase in wages has always followed and has never preceded the increase in the cost of living.

(3) Whenever nominal increases in wages there has been since 1911 has been proved by the increase in cost of living, which has surpassed the public by wage producers. Wage savers have been able to take advantage of high prices and get the credit of high prices.

(4) That the actual wage of railroad workers today is not only less than in 1914, but is less than in 1900, and is less than the rate prevailing in 1880, when they were 50 cents a day. During all that period the standard of living has been steadily increasing.

(5) That the actual wage of railroad workers today is not only less than in 1914, but is less than in 1900, and is less than the rate prevailing in 1880, when they were 50 cents a day. During all that period the standard of living has been steadily increasing.

(8) That the actual wage of railroad workers today is not only less than in 1914, but is less than in 1900, and is less than the rate prevailing in 1880, when they were 50 cents a day. During all that period the standard of living has been steadily increasing.

Taking 1900 as the base for wages and 100 as the base for the cost of living in 1914, the union wage rate in 1914 had advanced to 100. From that year onward the gap between wages and living costs constantly widened.

In 1915 the union wage rate still stood at 100, but the cost of living had advanced to 105.

In 1916 the union wage rate had advanced from 102 to 106, but the cost of living had advanced to 118.

In 1917 the union wage rate had advanced to 112, but the cost of living during that period had advanced to 142.

In 1918 the union wage rate had advanced to 120, but the cost of living had advanced to 195.

In 1919 the union wage rate had advanced to 129, but the cost of living had gone up to 216.

The yearly 6% price rise was reached in 1920, when the wages of union labor had increased 59 per cent, while the cost of living had increased 116.5 per cent over 1913.

As the men's constantly rising living costs, the workers' declared Senator LaFollette, "had succeeded in gaining only such advances as prevented actual starvation of millions of persons."

Railroad Workers Lose Ground. The decline made by the federal government, aided Senator LaFollette, revealed the astounding fact that railroad workers as a whole had barely kept pace with the increased cost of living, while a number of groups to which they were members, so far as the buying power of their wages is concerned, that they were before the war.

"We find," Senator LaFollette said, "that the only groups whose earnings have increased as fast as the increase in the cost of living are those who in 1900 were earning $2 a day or less. These workers were shamefully underpaid then and they are shamefully underpaid now."

"The earnings of the engineers and conductors, whom the railroad propagandists constantly denounce as men whose wages have been exorbitantly increased as a result of the war, have, as the official figures show, fallen far behind the increase in the cost of living, and they are actually in worse condition today so far as purchasing power is concerned, than they were at the beginning of the century."

The average wage of all railroad employees in 1900, was $566. The average wage in 1921 was $1,575.

"This," says Senator LaFollette, "seems to be very substantial and sufficient to compensate for every change that has taken place. But this impression is dissipated when we see the enormous increase in the cost of living that has taken place in the same period."

"One feels a distinct shock," said Senator LaFollette, "when he discovers that the engineers, who began the century with $1,161 a year, now have a buying power in terms of the same value of $999. The conductors, from a buying power in $1,001 in 1900, have now declined to a buying power of $909."

decision of the Railroad Labor Board cutting wages 12 per cent "as one of the most cruel and indefensible acts ever perpetrated by a government institution."

That decision, he explained, had cut the wages of track laborers and other workers, numbering more than 200,000, to a point where they are now able to earn only $909 a year if they work full time.

In terms of the purchasing power of 1900, the Senator declared, the $909 which these men may earn will buy only $741 worth of food, shelter and clothing when measured by the purchasing power of a dollar in 1900.

"In other words," declared Senator LaFollette, "in terms of actual buying power of money, these men are reduced to the level of $1 a day. But this is a foretaste of what the railroad workers will do to labor to their will. They hope and expect to reduce the wages of these workers to an actual rate of $1.50 for a 16-hour day, which will be equivalent, in the purchasing power of 1900 to only 50 cents a day.

Coolie Standard for Americans. "In terms of actual buying power," added the Senator, "this $1.50 which the railroads desire to pay their work-ers, would be worth only what 85 cents would buy in 1913. This would be less than Chinese coolies were paid in the days when the Pacific railroads were permitted to import them freely and to exploit them unmercifully."

Testimony presented to the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, said Senator LaFollette, shows wide discrepancy between the wages received by workers and the same as alleged by railroad executives to have been paid them.

Senator LaFollette pointed out ten instances where payroll accounts had been padded, to establish the impression upon Congress, as well as upon the public, that the workers were getting an exaggerated and unwarranted portion of railroad revenues.

These various items included in the wage bill but which should be omitted, the Senator declared, reached the enormous total of $1,250,000,000. Deduct that from the whole wage bill, and divide the result by the number of workers employed, he added, and the result will be vastly different from the impression the railroad executives have sought to create.

All Classes Hurt by Wage Cuts. The "deflation" of labor, while most injurious to the workers, has had a correspondingly injurious effect upon all our people, declared Senator LaFollette. He traced the existing paralysis of business to wholesale wage-slashing.

"When the workers are well paid and steadily employed," he said, "there is prosperity and a good market, not only for merchants, but for farmers and manufacturers as well. When half the workers are on the streets seeking employment, and the other half are being paid wages insufficient to maintain a decent standard of living, there is commercial and industrial stagnation and depression."

Constituting as they do more than half the population of this country, the industrial workers and their families must consume the greater portion of the products of our farms and the output of our factories, said Senator LaFollette. All that they have to exchange for food and other necessities is the reward of their labor.

When workers are unemployed, or their earnings curtailed, they inevitably must consume less. That condition is immediately reflected on commerce and industry. To it can be attributed almost entirely the prostration of agriculture and the impoverishment of our farmers, declared Senator LaFollette, who added:

"This is the great economic truth which every statesman must realize. It is so self-evident that a child in Prussia could see it as clearly as it. And yet it is ignored and violated every day."

"Let's Make Escanaba A Better City"

NOTHING TO DO BUT LET HER FLAP.

The effort to write the flapper to death has been energetic if not subtle. Could that young person be drowned in a sea of acid ink, she would be as extinct as the dodo, her prototype among birds by reason of its inability to do anything with its wings except fan the air.

There isn't much of anything to be done except to accept the situation as gracefully as may be, and hope that time in its benignity, may ameliorate the symptoms and tone down the raveness a little. Because whether one happens to like it or not, the fact remains that the American flapper is as much a part of the genius of the time, as is the slang she slings.

Though they may not wish to believe it, the earnest woman who fought through the decades of the Nineteenth century for suffrage, and who insisted upon economic and legal freedom for the members of her sex, are primarily responsible for the flapper, they and the "advance" female persons who rave about "self expression" what that thread-bare expression may mean.

The flapper is, in short, a child of emancipation; not the only child, for emancipation is more ferend than are some of its results, but a strong, self assertive and impudent one withal. There are times when she does not visualize or behave in a manner precisely edifying, and when she induces thoughts earthly rather than spiritual.

For the flapper trips before the gaze, a salutary warning against the absurd, million times exploded and perilous belief, that Mr. Kipling to the contrary notwithstanding, the female of the species is inherently more refined, more virtuous, and wiser than the male; and generally superior; and that the salvation of the world waits merely upon her assumption of a control of things.

Though the flapper never dreams of such a thing, though she may think only of nose and beaux, valuing the one because it attracts the other, she is a notice to womankind, taking its place in politics, in business, and in public life generally, that the first problem of the sex is not how to save and embellish and exalt the world, and precociously induce the millenium; but how to save, embellish and exalt itself; how to save itself from the result of giddiness brought on through sudden introduction of the kingdoms of the world, the riches and glories thereof, and more particularly, the opportunity to have a gay and festive time therein.

TOUGH DIGGING FOR THE STRIKERS.

It is quite easy to believe that the United Mine Workers officials in Pennsylvania were staggered when they learned that the United States Steel Corporation has five million tons of coal on hand and is still receiving eleven thousand tons daily. For this means that the task of "starving out" the steel industry is going to be a desperate one at best, and that the miners are likely to starve themselves before the industry they would see crippled, begins to suffer.

On the surface at least, nobody is worrying about coal, and apparently there is not even a normal demand for it, because no effort is being put forth to keep the non-union fields producing to capacity. In fact, there never was a big strike in this country which attracted as little interest and attention as the present coal miners' strike is attracting; and the situation does not seem to augur very well for the success of those who have quit their jobs.

Lady Astor's observations about the desirability of the eagle of Nations for America would be more interesting if they indicated that at some time or another she had read the constitution of the land where she was born.

Sadly we are coming to the conclusion that Conan Doyle will go down in history as the creator of Sherlock Holmes rather than as the prophet of a new spiritual revelation.

Senator King is the only man who wants to blockade Mexico. The rest of the country prefers to get in with a full line of American manufactured goods.

STILL DEBATE ON NAME OF SHOALS

Question of Whether Is Should Be Spelled "Muscel" Still Vexes Purists.

FLORENCE, Ala., April 29—From 1818 till about 1876 the shoals on the Tennessee river here were known as "muscel Shoals," according to maps of original survey and historical data of original and authentic character possessed by John B. Weakley, Birmingham lawyer and capitalist and former resident of this community.

Mr. Weakley's parents and grand parents resided here and handed down to him a wealth of historical information, which he has displayed to set at rest a controversy that has arisen over the original spelling of "Muscel Shoals."

This data, according to Mr. Weakley shows that the Cypress Land Company purchased the land about Muscel Shoals from the government Mar. 15, 1818, and the first white settlements were recorded that year, followed by an influx of settlers the next year. At this time, the survey showed the shoal section of the river as "Muscel Shoals," the name being given the rapids by reason of the great quantities of the edible bivalve, muscels, found in and along the stream, these records appear to indicate.

Muscels By Wagonloads "I have often heard my grandfathers tell of muscels being hauled out by the wagon loads," declared Mr. Weakley. "This was the same muscel that was once so abundant on the Mississippi river and from the shell of which in earlier days many 'pearl' bightens were made."

Mr. Weakley accounts for the partial disappearance of the muscel from the stream as a result of floods and the encroachments of civilization.

When the government undertook to complete the Muscel Shoals canal about 1876, the data on Mr. Weakley's possession shows, engineers changed the name from "Muscel" to "Muscel" on government records and it has so stood. This was not by design, but by accident, in Mr. Weakley's opinion.

Map 100 Years Old Mr. Weakley possesses a map which he said was made 100 years ago. This shows the spelling, "Muscel." Several copies of this map are matters of record in the community, Mr. Weakley said.

Government records, insofar as they are available, show the spelling "Muscel Shoals."

Since Muscel Shoals became a national concern, it has been the subject of numerous reports.

It was contended by army engineers that the name never had been altered and that it originated from an Indian story, "heap, big Muscel," required to pull canoes over the rapids in the river at this point.

Another story that came from the Indians was that the shoals at that point in the river resembled the humps, or muscels on the arm.

BRING NEWSIES INTO BOY SCOUT ORGANIZATION

Plan Is Being Fostered in Detroit by American Legion.

DETROIT, Mich., April 29—An Americanization movement designed to bring nearly all newsboys in the various cities of the state into the Boy Scout organization, under guidance of members of the American Legion, has been started here and soon will be extended to other Michigan Municipalities. It is announced by Dr. Frank R. Broderick, the Legion's state welfare officer.

The plan provides that the Legion posts in each city of the state organize the newsboys in their localities into Scout troops, buy uniforms for them and give the troops the names of Legion posts. It is pointed out the move.

MEN GIRLS LOVE

By Laurel Gray

GIRLS marry SUAVE men. Don't stare. It's so. Suave men are calm men, cool men, sure men, positives. They meet the flutterings of the feminine heart and the doubts and fears or romantic intercourse with a certain manliness, a strength and sureness, which arouses the strongest admiration of the feminine heart and mind. Suave men are never noisy, never agitated—unless it be in the tender passages of love-making, and they are firm as a rock. Suave men are invariably the masters of any situation. Politeness, smoothness, courtliness, are the essentials of suave men. All big business men are suave. All great lovers of our literature are suave. Misuse of the word has brought it into disrepute. Suaveness is not shrewdness. Suaveness is assurance of the right kind. Suave men are amazingly successful with the fair sex.

AT THE DELFT

Tears sometimes symbolize sadness sometimes gladness. To little Florence Egan they symbolized gladness, even though they were shed in a moment of sadness. This strange statement, paradoxical as it is, will probably bear explaining.

It was Mary Pickford who made Florence Egan cry. And it was the first time in her life that "America's Sweetheart" ever made a child shed tears. She felt so badly about it, did Little Mary, that she, too, cried.

The tears, however were quite necessary—that is, the little girl's tears—Mary's were not. A sad scene was being made for "Little Lord Fauntleroy," to be shown at the Delft theatre, May 12 and 13. Florence Egan, playing the part of a little, oppressed tenant on the conscienceless old Earl of Inconart's estate, just simply had to cry. Now it isn't always easy for a child actress to cry. For Florence it was exceedingly difficult. Everybody tried to make her cry—especially Jack Pickford and Alfred E. Green, who were directing. Even Charles Rosher, the cameraman, took a hand. But it was no use.

Then in stepped Little Mary, just like the heroine in a movie play at the psychological moment, and told Florence Egan a story. It was about a little girl who had lost her daddy; about the hardship and suffering this caused. She told this story in a low, tense voice, vibrant with emotion and deep with appeal. And Florence Egan cried, not for one scene but for three.

The story Mary Pickford told was of her own early life. And it carried a double-headed heartache because Florence Egan's daddy, too, had died. But sadness quickly gave way to gladness, for Miss Pickford gave the child a beautiful hand-embroidered dress with real lace on it—all because she did the scene so well. And the following Sunday, Florence Egan wore it to mass.

License issued

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Henry Laforest of Gladstone and Miss Martha Kisitzke, of Escanaba.

ORIGINAL 'NICK CARTER' AUTHOR ENDS OWN LIFE

NEW YORK, April 29—Frederick Van Rensselaer Dey, 70 years old, said to be author of the first of the "Nick Carter" series of detective stories, and many boys' stories of adventure, committed suicide here yesterday. His body was found in a room at a local hotel by a newspaper man to whom Dey had written of his intention to "Go West over the quick route."

Peace societies, for the prevention of war, were first established in 1816.

VIOLA DANA WELCOMES BUNNY TO HOLLYWOOD

When the little Metro star returned to her home near Los Angeles, she found two surprises: one a surprise costume party in honor of her return; and the other a burro, from an admiring fan from Utah. The burro she immediately christened Bunny, because, she held, any animal with ears that size must have rabbit blood in his veins.

TRIPLETS, 3 TWINS, IN 13 YEARS, WOMAN'S RECORD

By Associated Press. OMAHA, Neb., April 29—Mrs. Frank Golda, 25 years old, of near Laplatte, Neb., is the mother of triplets and four pairs of twins, all born since 1909.

The latest addition to her family came yesterday morning with the arrival of twin girls, born at the home of a friend in Omaha. Their coming increased the number of children to 11, as Mrs. Golda has also had one single child, but one of the triplets has died.

The father, 28 years old, at work here temporarily, said he lived on a farm because it was easier to rear a family in the country. "Up in the city," he said, "people quarrel and fight and get divorces. Then what happens to the children?"

HALL CAINE'S LATEST BOOK TO BE REVIEWED

Rev. Staver Has Splendid Topic for Sunday Evening.

Attendants at the popular Sunday night services of the First Presbyterian church will have the privilege of hearing a review of Hall Caine's latest novel: "The Master of Man." A gospel song service is held at the opening of the meeting and lasts for fifteen minutes. Special music is given by the organist and members of the choir. The book-review follows in which the Rev. Harry W. Staver tells the story of the books under discussion, and draws from it in a brief way the great lessons of the book. That people enjoy these special services is amply vouched for by the increasing popularity with which they are being received by large congregations.

Regarding Hall Caine's "The Master of Man," which is the book to be reviewed tomorrow night, many favorable opinions have been expressed. Joseph Parker says of the author: "the author prepares to be great, really means to be great, and in my judgment, always succeeds in being great." Sir Wm. Robertson Nicoll (British Weekly) says: "The author has respected, and that deeply, his message his art, and his readers." Joseph Cowan (New Castle Chronicle) pays this tribute: "The novel is a great effort, splendid in emotion and vitality, a noble inspiration, carried to noble issues, an honor to Hall Caine and to English fiction." Such comments could be multiplied by the score. These are sufficient, however, to give an idea of what others, competent to judge things of Hall Caine, and his work.

The Rev. Mr. Staver advertises that seats are free, and that every one interested is cordially welcome to come and enjoy these evening inspirational services.

The Employment Bureau will thereupon send some deserving party to take the job.

I. S. COMPANY TO START UP THEIR SOFTWOOD MILL

Resumption Order Is Announced for Monday Morning.

Here is more good news for the workmen of this community. The big soft wood mill at the I. Stephen Co. Trustee's plant in Wells, is to be reopened Monday, and will provide employment for between 75 and 100 men. The resumption of operation by this mill will put the I. S. Co. on a 100 percent basis of operation for the first time in nearly two years and affairs in the vicinity of the mill will resemble peacetime days. The operation of the mill now seems assured for at least four months by the big cut of logs ready for the saw.

While not on a normal basis by any means, the lumber market is showing a steady and gradual improvement as indicated by the company's sales, the demand for hardwood flooring, being unusually heavy and exceeding the monthly production at this time.

The company's shingle mill will be kept in operation as long as the cut of logs lasts and the hardwood mill and flooring mill will be kept going all summer, as they have been all winter, despite the curtailed demand for these products during the winter months.

All in all, mill workers at the Wells plant may feel highly encouraged by the outlook and the general public will be highly gratified at the full resumption of activity by this big industry.

Proclamation By the Governor

Fifty years ago the State of Nebraska instituted the observance of a day set apart for tree planting. This day was known as Arbor Day, and its observance has become general throughout the nation. It is a day of sentiment, reverence and faith—sentiment in the acknowledgement of the tender susceptibility of man toward all the living things of the outdoors; reverence inspired within us by the sturdiness of the oak, the majesty of the pine, the beauty of the maple with its seasons of changing color and form; a well grounded faith in the productive energy of nature's generous creative forces.

To us of Michigan, Arbor Day is of particular significance. Time was when our forests outshone in splendor and magnificence those of any other State. Today, thru the utilization of this natural product and the devastation wrought by forest fires, these forests have to a large extent disappeared, though we still have many thousands of acres of beautiful forest land.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I do hereby designate Friday, May Fifth, 1922, as Arbor Day and I request that exercises appropriate to the day be held in all our schools.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this twenty-first day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, and of the Commonwealth the eighty-sixth.

ALEX J. GROESBECK Governor.

By the Governor: CHARLES J. DE LAND, Secretary of State.
