

DENBY RESIGNS!

Just Between Ourselves

A LEVEL-HEADED PRESIDENT.

President Coolidge has been frequently characterized as taciturn, level-headed, conscientious and thorough but these traits were never appreciated and so welcomed as since the bursting of the Tea-Pot Dome bubble.

The vim with which the Democrats made campaign capital of the oil reserve disclosures was appalling, not by its very intensity betrayed a lack of sincerity and commendable purpose.

Whatever may come of the Tea-Pot Dome incident, the American people may rest assured that from whom it may come the politicians, President Coolidge will push the investigation to the bottom that the nation may know if it has been wronged or fooled and that the guilty may not go unpunished.

THE HERRIN FRONTIER.

If there is still a "frontier" left in America, it is probably in Williamson County, Ill. A frontier might be defined as a place where definite social organization ends and residents get along with make-shift substitutes for law and justice.

Certainly pitched battles, whether between union and non-union miners or between forces representing law and order and forces representing the liquor traffic, or between public officials and vigilance committees, have little to do with Anglo-Saxon civilization.

There seems to be enough regulative vigor in Williamson County to keep the inhabitants in order, if it were only better applied. The trouble comes from private organizations trying to usurp official public functions.

If the zeal which has led groups of private citizens to fight bootlegging in that county were only exerted through legitimate channels, the result might be clean government and triumphant morals instead of a new crop of murder charges.

If men in office will not enforce the laws, the reformers should see that men get into office who will enforce them, and should stand by them and keep them up to the mark when they get in.

MARQUETTE GIRL TAKES OWN LIFE; WAS DESPONDENT

Drank Carbohic Acid; Says Young Man Responsible.

Found Sunday Morning at Her Home on Spruce Street; Died Sunday Night in Hospital.

MARQUETTE. You can blame Henry for this, wrote Leona Nihil, 18 years old, in a note which she addressed to her sister before drinking two ounces of carbohic acid Saturday night. She died last night about 9 o'clock in the Marquette hospital.

She left two notes, one addressed to Mrs. Pearce and the other to her sister, Stella, employed as a maid in another Marquette home. The note to Mrs. Pearce read, in part, as follows: "I am tired of life, so I did this terrible thing. Tell my sister."

She also left a letter addressed to her mother, ready for mailing. "Henry" referred to in the girl's note is said to be a young man with whom she had been keeping company and who is believed to have been responsible for her despondency.

Miss Nihil left the Pearce home early Saturday evening and returned about 9:30 and went to her room. Yesterday morning she did not appear at the usual time and Mrs. Pearce went upstairs to call her. She knocked on the door of the room, but received no response.

Opening the door she saw the girl's body on top of the bed. The electric light in the room was turned on, indicating that the girl probably drank the carbohic acid soon after going to the room Saturday night.

It was learned that Saturday afternoon Leona told her sister, Stella, she intended to commit suicide, but the sister did not believe she would carry out the threat and told no one about it.

Miss Nihil was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Nihil, of Herman.

BOYS WILL HEAR NEWSPAPER MAN AT CONFERENCE

James Schermerhorn Is to Be One of Principal Speakers at Ishpeming Boys Meeting.

George Cathart, secretary of the Boys' Conference, has been advised that James Schermerhorn, newspaper writer and lecturer, will be in Ishpeming Friday evening and will deliver the principal address at the big conference banquet.

It is unfortunate that the government already has been forced to face two transport strikes but the government is undoubtedly wise in allowing the maximum amount of freedom of negotiations between the two parties in the present dispute.

Conference delegates will be well pleased to know that the program committee has been successful in securing the services of Herb Steger, captain of the University of Michigan football team, to be one of the banquet speakers.

"BLUE TICKET" DOCK MEN ARE READY TO WORK

Bival British Union May Help Out in Shipping Crisis.

Newspapers will Soon Run Out of Print Paper; First to Notice Great Strike.

LONDON, Feb. 18. The great dock strike, which was declared Saturday, and which affected 120,000 men in different parts of the United Kingdom is expected to reach full effect today.

No hope is based on actions of the "Blue Ticket" Union, a new and hitherto unrecognized rival of the Transport Workers' Union which has recommended a stay in strike, and which they would continue on duty but go slow on piece work and not work overtime.

This action is viewed not as embodying any altruistic view towards the public, but as the means of injuring the transport union and forcing recognition of the "Blue Ticket" by the employers who have hitherto ignored that organization.

The strike is already threatening to effect the newspapers, the Daily Chronicle today printing its paper in smaller form than usual, stating that print shortage was the cause.

Prices Going Up. Prices are already rising through out Great Britain in anticipation of an early shortage of food as a result of the strike of 120,000 dock workers.

There is a week's supply of foreign meat on hand and a fairly good supply of home grown vegetables is available, but England is wondering whether the strike will be settled in time to prevent a return of the rationing of war days.

Meanwhile, Premier MacDonald, who is already showing signs of strain, after four weeks of continuing the duties of prime minister with those of foreign secretary, faces a difficult situation.

Strike in Sympathy. The first indication of the spread outside the dockers' unions came Sunday at Liverpool, where warehouse men suddenly walked out, instead of continuing wage negotiations which had been under way. The walkout makes it impossible to withdraw food stores from storage there.

Simultaneously, dock and railway workers at Liverpool struck in sympathy with the regular dockers. The carriers and motorists at Liverpool remain on duty but are refusing to handle goods from the docks.

Frank Hodges, trade union leader, suggested in a speech in South Wales Sunday that the dockers seek the intervention of the trades union council, which assisted in ending the railway strike.

It is unfortunate that the government already has been forced to face two transport strikes but the government is undoubtedly wise in allowing the maximum amount of freedom of negotiations between the two parties in the present dispute.

Real Showdown Monday. "It is inevitable that such a strike should occur sooner or later," he added. "It is clear that men in many industries reached rock bottom in the matter of wages a year ago and have been waiting for an opportunity to send them up."

Sunday passed quietly, on the whole, as both employers and workers were waiting for the real showdown today. Nothing but mails will be removed from ships today and these will be handled by postoffice employees.

So far there is every evidence of solidarity on the part of the dockers and other transport workers are standing by them in refusing to handle goods to and from ships.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS ARE PROMISED

Examination of Brokerage Books May Add New Names.

Harry Payne Whitney and Others May Be Summoned to Appear Before Oil Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. Despite the ten days' recess of the investigating committee, developments in the oil scandal whirled along today in their customary break-neck speed.

Coincident with the resignation of Secretary Denby, there were predictions by some of the senators that important disclosures of a new and sensational character were imminent.

These predictions revolved for the most part about the inquiry that experts are making into the books of various brokerage firms in search of evidence of oil stock speculation by government officials.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, of Montana, who has taken a hotel in the inquiry in the absence of his colleague, Senator Walsh, declared that Harry Payne Whitney and members of various brokerage firms in New York would undoubtedly be summoned before the committee as the result of information that has reached the capitol.

Lenroot Denies Rumor. Washington, Feb. 18. Chairman Lenroot denied today the widely circulated and published story that sensational developments had led to the calling of a meeting today of the senate oil committee.

The chairman said there had been no change in the committee plans, and so far as known the situation remained just where it was when the

DETERMINATION TO FIGHT IT OUT WAS GIVEN UP AFTER AN HOUR'S TALK WITH COOLIDGE

Secretary Denby Tenders Resignation on His 54th Birthday; Some Look for Daugherty Resignation to Follow Soon.

Resolution Asking President to Oust Denby Was Voted on February 7; One Now in Senate Framed on Similar Lines Asking for Resignation of Attorney General Daugherty.

Washington, Feb. 18. It is expected that the official date of Secretary Denby's resignation will be March 4th.

Washington, Feb. 18. Edwin B. Denby has resigned as secretary of the navy, and his resignation has been accepted by the president.

After repeatedly declaring he never would quit the cabinet under the fire of those who had criticized his actions in the oil program, the secretary notified President Coolidge this morning that he was ready to step out.

His decision followed a telephone conversation between President Coolidge and Mr. Denby in which all of the latest aspects of the situation were talked over in the light of information which had been passed out to the White House by Republican leaders in the senate.

Friends See Situation. Recently a number of Denby's friends, also have been contacted by Mr. Coolidge and they are understood to have advised the president that these fully understood the embarrassment which might result in retaining Mr. Denby in the cabinet while the oil lease trouble was in progress.

Was Firm in Statements. Not only was he a party to the oil lease, having affixed his signature along with that of Albert C. Fall, but he is reportedly has defended his part in the proceedings and has declared publicly since the present controversy arose that he believed the contract legal and would be willing to pay for the same on the same terms.

Look Towards Daugherty. The retirement of Edwin B. Denby, secretary of the navy, has received much attention in the light of Attorney General Daugherty's resignation which would follow within a few days.

Resolutions relating to him and somewhat similar to those adopted several days ago, asking for the resignation of Mr. Denby are pending in the senate and their sponsors are looking for quick action on them.

The resolution in which the president was addressed to ask Secretary Denby to leave the cabinet, introduced on February 11th, when the republican organization leaders opposed it, but being out by a vote of 67-20.

His Birthday Today. Mr. Denby was born in Knoxville, 54 years ago today.

He passed through the public school of that city and afterward graduated from the University of Michigan.

In 1902, Denby was elected by the Michigan house of representatives. He was chosen in the 59th congress as a member of the house from Michigan. He later was a member of the Detroit charter commission and when the United States entered the war, in April, 1917, he promptly enlisted as a private in the Marine corps.

TWO DREAMS OF WORLD PEACE ARE LEGACIES OF THE NATION; HARDING AND WILSON BOTH IN FAVOR OF ENDING ALL WARFARE.

Short Time Before His Death Harding Spoke of Plans.

Commented Sympathetically on the Plans of Woodrow Wilson Along the Lines of Peace.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN.

(United Press Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Two presidents of the United States have gone into the beyond within a year. Two dreams of world peace remain as legacies to the nation—those presidents served.

Wilson and Harding had different visions of the means to prevent war. Both of them were called away before their dreams came true, though Mr. Harding had the greater satisfaction of seeing his program partially adopted. But ere he died, the senate which balked Mr. Wilson had turned a hostile eye upon Mr. Harding's second step—the participation of the United States in the world court.

These two men had very different ideas about the peace program proposed by the other.

Mr. Wilson, for example, thought the arms limitations conference called by Mr. Harding was pretty much a waste of time.

Mr. Harding thought the United States ought to remain out of the League of Nations, which was Mr. Wilson's plan for peace.

But though they differed on methods, both men regarded as their chief mission efforts to make the United States the chief agency for ending war.

After he became president, Mr. Harding viewed with much greater sympathy than previously the Wilson program because he came to touch himself with the influence which sought to defeat and ultimately did defeat American participation.

This was one reason he determined to go on through with his own efforts to establish some means of preventing ing wars. He was so committed against the League of Nations that it was impossible for him to espouse Mr. Wilson's program and he believed this country was against that. But it was not in on him exactly as it was on Mr. Wilson, though in less than a year that America must do something to prevent new wars.

"I am very sorry that Mr. Wilson's program was not accepted with reservations that would make it conform to American principles," Mr. Harding said one day while his ship was near Alaska in the summer of 1923, a few weeks before his death.

"The longer I am president, the sorer I become that our full influence for peace has not been exercised. Peace does not realize the dangers that beset it. War is so easy to start, and right now it would not take much to start one."

Mr. Harding knew also that he faced a fight just like the one that broke Mr. Wilson.

"I suppose the way they will get the way they get after Wilson. We've got to do something, and I don't see how."

And now his world court plan is stumbling in the senate foreign relations committee.

Use Water Wagons to Make Storm Movies

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (United Press Staff Correspondent) —It may be a wonder how the movie makers of Los Angeles supply their studios with water. The city's water works are not equipped to supply the studios with water. It is not until the water is pumped into the city's water works that it is available for use.

But though they differed on methods, both men regarded as their chief mission efforts to make the United States the chief agency for ending war.

Buried Boy Alive to Collect Ransom

RHEINE, Germany. (By mail to United Press Staff Correspondent) —A 15-year-old boy, Willy Krause, was buried alive in the police station here today. The boy was charged with carrying a letter for the police in the house of a woman named Krause. The boy was buried alive in the police station here today.

Mr. Nolden explained that for the very first time in his business, except he had not returned his books and papers to the safe before going home that night because he had been working hard and was very tired. He said his live-in, many accounts due him and other important records were on the top of his desk and he had to have them.

STUBBORN FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT CAUSES DAMAGE

John Nolden Suffers Greatest Loss With Small Insurance.

Firemen Fought Fire From 11 O'clock Until 4 Sunday Morning; Boy Is Hero.

Last Saturday night a fire, starting in a room in the basement, it is believed, caused a loss of nearly $10,000, not even more than that amount to John Nolden, who occupied the first floor of the building at 1215 Ludington street, and considerable loss to Dr. J. C. Bartley, owner of the buildings, and occupied offices on the second floor, as well as the other tenants in the building.

It was stated yesterday that on Saturday a man had been engaged in cleaning the furnace and may have left some hot ashes in the basement, causing the fire later in the night. When the firemen arrived, the smoke was so dense that it was impossible to enter the building or find the seat of the conflagration.

Three streams of water were turned into the basement and first floor, but the flames had crept up through the walls and were hard to reach. The giant pump saw its first long service and it was necessary to replenish the gasoline supply during the night. Two of the fire fighters were nearly suffocated by the dense smoke, but managed to get out of the building in time to save their lives.

For more than three hours street at Ludington street was cut up, owing to hose lines which were stretched across the street.

Boy a Hero. Mr. Nolden was called from his home and came down with his daughter and son, "Jack". Seeing his store full of smoke, he attempted to rush in, but was held back by his son and daughter.

Mr. Nolden explained that for the very first time in his business, except he had not returned his books and papers to the safe before going home that night because he had been working hard and was very tired. He said his live-in, many accounts due him and other important records were on the top of his desk and he had to have them.

"I'll get them for you," said Jack, and regardless of the protests of the bystanders, the youth rushed into the dense blanket of smoke and disappeared from the sight of those on the street. He was gone some time, it seemed hours to the watchers, and then they saw him coming out of the door, the bills, books and papers tightly clutched in his arms.

Basement Pumped Out. In the early hours after the fire had been conquered by the firemen, it was found the basement was flooded with about four or five feet of water. In this condition it was impossible to shut off the gas service, so Chief Johnson hooked the big fire truck up to the rear basement window, threw down the big suction pipe and in less time almost than it takes to tell about it, hundreds of gallons of water were spouting into the alley. It took but a little while to empty the basement, saving a considerable loss in further damage which would have resulted if the water had remained there and frozen.

Odorless dry cleaning - no airing necessary

A party or a dance but a couple of days away, and the dress that makes you look your best must be cleaned before it can be worn again. To you this may seem a hopeless dilemma, for a garment dry cleaned by ordinary methods must usually be "aired" for several days before it can be worn again.

Our customers know that we are in business to help them out of just such difficulties as this. They know that a dress or suit cleaned by our advanced method is ready to be worn as soon as returned. It is free from the odor which has been the cause of so much dissatisfaction with ordinary dry cleaning. It has the appearance and "feel" of a brand-new garment.

Such dry cleaning results are not to be had everywhere. Only after years of experience and the perfecting of an entirely new system of cleaning, can we guarantee them to you.

We are always ready to help when you are in a hurry. But it is far better to send your clothing here regularly so that it will always be kept in perfect condition. Shall we have our delivery car call?

A Tribute To Service

IN the February 3 issue of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, Mr. Arthur Brisbane says:

"Henry Ford said to this writer a couple of years ago—'Standard Oil is the most ably managed concern in the United States.'"

Naturally such sweeping commendation is gratifying but if, as we suspect, and want to believe, Mr. Ford's remark was prompted by his knowledge that this Company is succeeding in rendering a superior service to the public, then it is doubly pleasing.

For service in its biggest, broadest interpretation is the principle governing all the activities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Management of this Company construes the perfunctory manufacture and delivery of products as something less than service.

It is the whole-souled, enthusiastic performance of these functions that constitutes real service.

To gain a new and useful product from a single base—crude petroleum—without in any way affecting the quality of other useful products—that is service.

To maintain, unfailingly, a superior standard of quality—that is service.

To make it possible for the man in the remote places to get Standard Oil products with dependable regularity—that is service.

To produce an oil that will increase the revolutions per minute of machinery in other essential industries and thereby increase their output—that is service.

To manufacture petroleum products of a quality that will prolong the life and add to the power of the modern internal combustion engine—that is service.

To maintain a fair and equitable price for its products—that is service.

Skill in management of any business is mirrored in the service rendered. An organization which puts profits ahead of service cannot endure.

Firm in its conviction that the greater the service, the greater the profit, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) looks to service as its chief concern.

British Labor Party Has Great Power

DELEGATED POWERS GIVE THE LABOR PARTY GREATEST SCOPE EVER ACCORDED IN HISTORY

Recognized Russia and Can Sign Treaty With Germany.

They Can Also Grant Self-Government to the Dominions Without Asking Parliament.

EDITOR'S NOTE: People in the United States, not fully understanding the operations of the governmental machinery of the British nation, may have a wrong idea of the powers of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and his fellow ministers in the Labor cabinet. The fact that Labor cannot muster a parliamentary majority in any controversial point where Liberals and Conservatives can unite has been wrongly construed as meaning that Labor is at present powerless to carry out its reconstruction plans.

The London bureau of the United Press put C. T. Hallinan on the job to find out just what Labor can do and he has presented the subject in a three-story series, with quoted authorities. We believe it will give the people of the United States an entirely new idea of the powers of Labor, even without a parliamentary majority.

By C. T. HALLINAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
CHAPTER I

LONDON, Feb. 18 (By mail to the United Press). Not in the House of Commons, where it is liable to defeat at any moment, but in the great freestanding government buildings along Whitehall, is where the new Labor government will bring about its "revolution."

That, at least, is the expert view of Professor J. H. Morgan, professor of constitutional law in the University of London, who discloses, with almost dramatic abruptness, the extraordinary powers, free from the slightest parliamentary or judicial control, now passing into the hands of Ramsay MacDonald and his associates.

Here are some of the things which he says the new cabinet can do with out even consulting Parliament:

1. Recognize Russia (already accomplished).
2. Draft and sign any sort of treaty with Germany.
3. Grant complete self government to any or all the colonies and dependencies, a power strongly upheld by Gladstone as one of the prerogatives of the government without regard to Parliament.
4. While India is under parliamentary control, the new secretary of state for India could, with a stroke of the pen reduce the Indian viceroy to impotence and give Gandhi the run of the place, practically speaking.

These are merely some of the things they could do; what they will do remains, of course, to be seen.

Thirty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb, encouraged by an occasional cheer from Bernard Shaw, started out to teach the British labor movement something about the way England is really governed.

Labor Learns.
Today, according to Morgan, the Labor party has learned the lesson thoroughly for better, indeed, than the ordinary citizen who still thinks that the House of Commons runs the whole show.

The Labor party, he says, knows that in the old days when the House of Commons was "the finest club in Europe," it fell into the habit of delegating powers to the various ministries and government departments, chiefly from sheer intolerance and dislike of being bothered with "details." Those government departments have grabbed every tiny scrap of power thus given them and built up an immense trade, free from parliamentary or judicial control, and it is behind that citadel that the new Labor government intends to bring about the revolution.

For example, says Morgan, Parliament passed 82 laws in the year 1920, but these powerful government bureaucrats during the same period issued nearly 2,500 regulations, rules and orders, "all having the force of law, less than one per cent of these came under parliamentary review or the notice of the courts."

"It would be a great mistake," says Mr. Morgan drily, "to underestimate the intelligence of Mr. Sidney Webb."

(End of Chapter I)

Woman of 103 Has Memories of Great in the Last Century

LONDON (United Press). Miss Elizabeth Underwood Lisle will celebrate her 103rd birthday, if she lives until March, 1924. Her memory and digestion are almost perfect, but she has not walked for two years.

"I once stayed in the same hotel as Disraeli and his wife," she said. "They were a most devoted couple. Once when Disraeli was going to the House of Commons to make a speech, a foot man closed the carriage door on his wife's fingers. She did not mention it to her husband for fear it should spoil his speech. Wasn't that splendid?"

Then she spoke of Tennyson. "His character was as remarkable as his poetry. When he was asked out to dine it was always understood that he should be regaled with a bottle of the best port. On one occasion he dined with some friends of mine and was given some wine from the cellar which was not 'too good' and Tennyson said so. His host was greatly upset and explained that he was taking care with the house and immediately sent out for a bottle of the best wine of the house."

Miss Lisle also numbered Charles Dickens among her friends and she often heard him read extracts from his books.

One day occasion she wrote to Cardinal Newman saying she would like to visit him, but the Cardinal replied that he was too old to see anyone.

MARINETTE BOY LOSES FOOT BY "FLIPPING" CARS

Lost His Hold While Trying to Steal Short Ride; Foot Had to Amputated Saturday.

MARINETTE, Feb. 18. "Flipping" a freight train on his way home from work, George Miller, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Miller, Carleton avenue, Marinette, slipped and his right foot catching under a wheel was so severely injured that it requires amputation.

Young Miller, an employee of the Wells Lumber Company, Menominee, attempted to catch the freight string of flatcars, on the St. Paul tracks at Michigan avenue, Menominee, near the Ford garage. Another man with him successfully boarded a car but Miller was unable to get a handhold. With his elbows on the edge of the flat car and foot braced against the forward truck he tried to get on top of the car, but was jumped about by snowbanks which in places crowded almost onto the track.

Loses His Hold.
A witness of the accident states that Miller was jumped off and landing alongside the train again, he lost his hold. When the next snowbank struck him he lost his hold.

MISS BROWN TELLS OF GRAND OPERA GOWNS IN GOTHAM

Buyer for Ed. Erickson Company Had Delightful Trip to Eastern Markets.

Miss Mata Brown, buyer for the Ed. Erickson Ready-to-Wear department, has returned from her early spring trip to New York and declares it was one of the pleasantest trips she ever made.

During her visit she attended grand opera and some of the leading New York people were pointed out to her. When asked what she saw of interest in gowns, Miss Brown said:

"Searching for new styles at the Metropolitan opera is like searching for a needle in a haystack. Diamonds, pearls, silks and satins, ermines and chinchillas are there in astounding numbers but have been since time immemorial. Each year we search among the wealthy gathering of social celebrities for a change of hair do, a startling silhouette, a new color note. And each year we find them quite unchanged."

Two years ago the leading color were red and green. Last year the leading colors were red and green with a slight emphasis on the red. This year we find the leading colors are red and green. By red we include shades of rose, coral, vermilion and pink, and it is quite safe to say that often one-half of the audience is gowned in these tones. Green has been fading into the background of late. Yellow and white look up in a and then on the younger misses, red black is the occasional choice of the matron.

"Of course it is to be taken into consideration that the names for the box holders of the House of Representatives are those of ancient lineage. 'The one and the many' who 'about occasionally from the fields of Bradstreet.' Recent fashions of dress is not one of their hobbies. They do cause comment from the audience on the main floor. But after one has stared at them for several seasons, one wonders why they don't occasionally blossom out in more individual styles. After all, clothes that are costly aren't always stunning and gems that are set in the usual diam fashion can even become tiresome. Gowns of Operatic Stars. At the Sunday evening concert presented by the Metropolitan Opera, one has an opportunity to see the operatic stars as they are in real life. There are no stage costumes, no wigs, no fur-bows to detract from the personalities of the singers. Madame Matzenauer was garbed in a gown of coral velvet made on straight lines and studded throughout the skirt with pearls. About the low waist line was placed a wide girle of pearls which clasped with a huge pearl cabochon in front. Marie Tifany followed her also wearing a gown that chose coral velvet as its material. Her gown train was attached in an unusual manner, falling from the right shoulder in long, graceful effect and draped over her arm. Her gown was embroidered in rhinestones and glittered enticingly as she sang. "Rosa Ponselle, the most youthful star of the Metropolitan, came on the stage in her usual buoyant manner, wearing a quaint, old-fashioned taffeta frock with a yellow back ground flowered in red roses. Her bodice was simple and form fitting, sleeveless and with rounded neckline. The skirt was very full and made with circular insets. Two rows of brown marabou were placed one above the other near the hem. Her last season's "bob" was drawn into a tiny knot at the nape of her neck from a center parting. It seemed strange that the wholesome looking, bobbed haired person of last year, could become so entirely changed by a crinoline effect frock and a simple hair dress.

"Renée Chene, the fascinating little French violinist, who is taking New York by storm, wore a bright green net gown with a tunic overskirt of green net embroidered in silver. Her bobbed auburn tresses were clipped in the latest cut."

TAXES PAID BY MICHIGAN TOTAL $400,000,000

Delta County Pays All Told the Sum of $941,305.

Chairman Lord of State Tax Commission Urges Economy in Many of the Counties.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 18. (By the Associated Press)—Michigan residents are paying taxes of all descriptions at the rate of nearly $400,000,000 a year, according to George Lord, chairman of the state tax commission. Of this total the direct state property tax, for state purposes, was only $17,305,381, for 1922, the last year for which complete returns have been made. The total direct property tax was $160,222,824, of which $142,917,410 was for local levies.

Mr. Lord declared today that economy, particularly in local affairs, is necessary. He scored public officials who "in an effort to keep the tax rate low for campaign talking purposes, lead their communities, with huge bonded indebtedness." The tax for state purposes, he asserted, is the least part of the taxpayers' burden. This year it will be less than 10 cents on the dollar of direct property taxation. He also asserted that the interest charges alone on the bonded indebtedness of both state and local governments are usually more than the entire cost of running the government 20 years ago.

The average state tax per capita in 1922 was $4.72, as compared with $3.96 for local taxes. Of the average direct property tax dollar, 10.8 cents was for state government and 89.2 for local.

The proportion between state and local taxes varied in different counties according to whether the local tax was high or low. Wayne paid a local tax of $26,950,294, as compared with a state tax of $7,936,326, or 11 per cent of the total. Kent counties paid a total direct property tax of $7,177,440, of which 12.15 per cent was state tax. Ionia paid $497,429, of which 8.6 per cent was state; Bay, $2,349,902, of which 8.9 per cent was state; Berrien, $2,428,177, of which 10.8 per cent was state; Calhoun, $2,347,161, of which 12.4 per cent was state; Chippewa, $2,277,587, of which 8.4 per cent was state; Delta, $941,265, of which 7.18 per cent was state; Dickinson, $826,161, of which 7.4 was state; Genesee, $5,510,862, of which 10.16 per cent was state; Gogebic, $2,821,471, of which 7.6 per cent was state; Hillsdale, $926,132, of which 12.8 was state; Houghton, $1,881,867, of which 12.3 per cent was state; Ingham, $2,756,271, of which 12.7 per cent was state; Ionia, $1,064,784, of which 11.7 per cent was state; Jackson, $2,718,544, of which 12.8 per cent was state; Kalamazoo, $3,148,412, of which 11.19 per cent was state; Lenawee, $1,916,945, of which 13.5 per cent was state; Marquette, $2,042,565, of which 9.81 per cent was state; Mason, $392,650, of which 8.42 per cent was state; Menominee, $857,072, of which 7.63 per cent was state; Monroe, $1,322,721, of which 11.6 per cent was state; Muskegon, $2,723,558, of which 8.9 per cent was state; Oakland, $5,298,679, of which 10.13 per cent was state; Saginaw, $2,821,071, of which 10.11 per cent was state; Shiawassee, $1,238,152, of which 11.15 per cent was state; Washtenaw, $2,257,064, of which 13.86 per cent was state.

In many the blood is beginning to turn to water, an illness which German knew directly after the war with its hunger blockade.

Tuberculosis is claiming for its own a ghastly number of victims constantly. Lack of coal to heat means in many German homes that fresh air is not admitted, but that the entire family breathes foul air because it is warmer; the same lack means no hot water for bathing. And that helps the white plague and the ravages of skin disease.

All in all, it is a pitiable tale that Emerson's findings tell. Germany, according to Mrs. Fritz Kreisler, wife of the famous violinist, relies too much on figures to tell the story of her babies' misery. Read it rather, she says, in the eyes of babies and children and in the souls of little ones.

Does It Pay?

Those in a position to know, tell us that it pays big to make your own wearing apparel, and they say that money can never buy the individuality you build in the clothes you make yourself, or have made to your order.

Another thing they tell us that you can save fully three-fourths the cost of all ready-mades where you do your own designing and tailoring, and one-half where you design and have them made up at your dressmakers.

As for wear—there is no such a thing to last as flimsy, gaudy ready-to-wears on the market. Good fabrics plus some of your own individual self, plus some of your handy work will serve you best and wear longer for way less money than any ready-made you can ever buy.

Marshall Field fabrics lead the world for tried and proven worth. Let us supply you then at prices which are extremely hard to beat.

The Transportation Act Does Not Guarantee the Railroads Any Return

The Interstate Commerce Commission in 1921 (64 I. C. C. Rep., 95) and again in 1922 (68 I. C. C. Rep., 681) said:

"Determination of the percentage implies or carries with it no guaranty. Read in connection with the provision for recapture of one-half of the excess above six per cent it is, instead, a limitation." "It has been erroneously assumed that the Act undertakes to guarantee railway earnings."

President Coolidge, in his message to Congress on December 6th, said:

The railroads admit that failure to earn a fair return is their loss and that the United States is in no sense liable to reimburse them therefor.

The Interstate Commerce Commission shows that the net return of Class 1 railroads on the value of their property used in transportation service was as follows:

For the 12 months ended
August 31, 1921	2.88%
August 31, 1922	4.19%
August 31, 1923	4.90%

The Commission has decided that a fair return is 5 1/2%.

The difference between the foregoing returns and a fair return is the loss of the railroads.

There is no guaranty.

Health Insurance for the Whole Family

Without counting the daily utility of a Chevrolet for going back and forth to work, shopping or taking the children to school, etc., its value in saving doctor's bills, broadening your mental horizon and keeping the whole family physically fit, amounts to more than the cost of the car and its upkeep.

It is more of an essential to the modern family than anything else but a home.

Chevrolet meets the requirements of the modern family because it is economical to buy and maintain, because of its excellent appearance and riding comfort, because it is so easy to drive that any member of the family can use it.
