Burdick boasts of a new fence around his residence.

Rose Brothers are out with a new advertisement to-day.

A. M. Matthews and family moved to Gladstone this week.

Mechanics find plenty to do in Manistique this season.

Bad weather has had a depressing effect upon the campers.

Guess the docket for the next term of court will be a "fat" one.

Born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lundwall, a son.

If you want a house and lot cheap, call on Hixson & Carbaugh.

The Alleghany and barges left Wednesday evening for the east.

An "all around" man to do odd jobs is hard to find in Manistique.

Everybody seems bent on attending the World's Fair next season.

Considerable good has been done on the country roads this season.

Mr. A. J. Fox went on the Hart Wednesday night to Bay View.

Mr. Silverman has his room nearly ready for goods on Oak street.

The rain interfered with the dance at Lakeside Hall Tuesday night.

Work is progressing finely on the Danish-Norwegian church building.

Often a Democrat's anxiety for office gets away with his better judgment.

Commercial and American seem to enjoy a good patronage these days.

Prof. Graves says the institute this year was better attended than last.

C. W. Dunton, Esq., arrived back from Green Bay Wednesday morning.

Collecting money for church purposes has become very fashionable.

Harvest Moon Company will be at the Opera House next Thursday evening.

Schooner Anna Maria got away Tuesday evening with a full cargo of lath.

The men who build up a town are energetic and not given to much fault-finding.

The Bazaar for the Catholic Society opens at the Opera House Monday evening.

Walnut street needs grading, covering and sidewalks built from Lake street east.

Sheriff Heffron will soon be at work putting up a handsome residence on Lako street.

The town was very quiet yesterday—most of the boys and girls were off on a picnic.

Rev. J. P. Mills will preach at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening.

The township of Inwood was well represented in the late Democratic convention.

Some of the Lakeside streets are graded some distance east of the line of buildings.

Anderson & Co., of the Oak street furniture store, are doing a good business these days.

The wet weather the fore part of the week compelled most of the tourists to remain in-doors.

The Hart line of steamers are crowded with freight and passengers at this season of the year.

The rain of Wednesday prevented the Good Templars from going on their picnic, as advertised.

Don't make any promises what you will do in county matters until the time comes for action.

Steam-barges Hickox and Geo. Burnham, and the Schooner America left yesterday with lumber.

John Patterson, of Thompson, was in the city Wednesday to attend the Democratic convention.

Very little sickness to report, even if the weather is the hottest ever experienced in this locality.

A part of the PIONEER force were out on a picnic excursion yesterday. They report a grand time.

Col. Charles Fox, wife and children left on the Alleghany Wednesday evening for their home at Detroit.

The Hart line will land you at Bay View the next morning after leaving Manistique in the evening.

The Democrats had a little scene in their convention Wednesday, that created several sore spots.

It affords us great pleasure to know that the Democratic party in this county is hopelessly divided.

The Hiwatha Hotel is crowded daily with transient guests and the proprietor is always in good humor.

Messrs Stuart and Charles Fox returned from their Lake Superior expedition Tuesday afternoon.

We learn that the Northern Cedar Co. will erect a large saw mill at McDonald Lake, near White Dale.

Up to this time neither Republicans or Democrats have made a move to organize a club in this county.

The Episcopalians are talking of erecting a church building here at an early day—probably next season.

The Scandinavians we learn have a prosperous temperance society here and that weekly meetings are held.

Supt. Beggs is on deck again, after an extended visit east, to look after the school interests of this county.

The Bakers convention at Detroit was well attended. W. C. Marsh, of this city, was present at its sessions.

Mr. Archie Muirhead, of Ann Arbor, is here this week visiting friends. He was formerly a teacher in this county.

Several of the "sand" lots in the north part of town have been covered with productive soil.

Ladies are out soliciting votes—in order to secure some certain article at the Scandinavian fair.

The Thompson saw-mill is making a good record this season; notwithstanding the bad break of a few months ago.

One wing of the Democratic party in this county appear very jubilant over the temporary defeat of the other wing.

The Fannie C. Hart took an excursion party Monday from Petoskey to Mackinac Island and returned same night.

The Scandinavian Baptist and Temperance society and the Good Templars were out for a pleasure day yesterday.

Our Danish-Norwegian friends open their Bazaar in the new church Thursday evening, and they invite all to attend.

St. Alban's Guild meets this evening with Mrs. Johnson, on Walnut street. A general attendance of members is requested.

Farmers do not complain of the wet weather. Their prospects for good crops were never better than they are this season.

The county jail has several occupants now. There will be a thinning out when circuit court convenes in September.

People like to see their neighbors "roasted" in the papers; but if they are the victims then there is no bounds to their madness.

No OTHER Sarsaparilla has the merit by which Hood's Sarsaparilla has won such a firm hold upon the confidence of the people.

All of our clothing dealers are well supplied with goods, and at the prices they sell at no one need go ragged, unless it be the printers.

Teacher's Institute closes to-day, after a very successful week. Every teacher in the county ought to have attended its several sessions.

County politics seem to be in a state of great uncertainty just now. Candidates are nowise sanguine of their chances for nomination.

Max Lowenthal, business manager of "The Harvest Moon" Company, was a caller last evening. His troupe will be at the Opera House next Thursday night.

None but legal voters appear to have any rights in a democratic convention. That is bad, when the Presidential nominees of that party wear a British collar.

A gentleman said to us yesterday, "I can name the winning county ticket this fall." We did not ask him to do it, simply because we did not believe his statement.

The extension of the east pier is nearly completed. Mr. Norton has used a great quantity of stone in its construction and it will no doubt stand the test.

The Ossawinamakee has been crowded full of people all the week. Certainly that house is too small for the summer season, and should be enlarged to double its present capacity.

Garrett Israel is chopping out a road from near the Gulliver Kilns to a road running north from White Dale. That will shorten the distance from here to that village considerably.

The following applicants were successful at the examination last week: Second Grade—Miss Jennie Simmons, Mr. Ervin Ulaaver; Third Grade—Miss Maud Smith, Lechl Overton and Stella Dodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, James and George, Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt and Mrs. Kneel left for Gladstone yesterday. Mr. M. has rented the "Central Hotel" there. Call on him.

The examination papers of the applicants last week will be kept on file until September 3d, the next public examination.

S. S. BEGGS, Com.

"The Harvest Moon" has the name of being a beautiful, romantic drama, and the Company that has the full charge of the play are first-class artists. They will be here only one night—Thursday the 18th.

"State Socialism" was the subject of Prof. Graves lecture at the school house Wednesday night. There was a fair attendance, and we have heard the lecture well spoken of. Our reporter was unavoidably absent.

We answer many questions by saying that the Republican Central Committee of this county is made up of the following named gentlemen: W. H. Hill, Chairman; Gilbert Olson, A. C. Hubbell, Edmund Ashford, J. F. Chisholm, and Thomas Gray.

Our friend J. F. Black, of Cooks, celebrates his own birth-day, and that of two of his children on the 27th. He will be 39 on that day, his son 6 on the 29th and his daughter 4 on the 26th. So near together, as to date, that he has concluded to have a general party at that time, and cordially invites his friends to it.

Portus H. Brown, of White Dale, was in town on Tuesday last, and while here he concluded a bargain with Ramsey & Co. to erect a large hotel building at that place. The lumber will be all on the ground this week and the carpenters will begin work next week. That village is now getting a start and promises soon to become a place of considerable importance.

Tuesday evening was a bad night for a social; a steady rain held the field, and still it did not prevent a fair attendance at the social given by the ladies of the Episcopal church at the residence of Mrs. Lewis. The program of concert-dramas was nicely arranged and proved a source of great amusement. The refreshments were all that could be wished and everybody seemed happy. The society cleared $24.70.

Beneficial Convention.—Wednesday afternoon the Democracy of Schoolcraft county held a convention to select delegates to attend the State and District Conventions. The meeting was called to order, A. Representative—Geo. K. Moody, R. L. Barnes and Dennis Kingham, Manistique, and Lemuel Rice, of Thompson. Adjourned.

MAKING ONE OUT OF TWO.

QUEER WAYS OF TYING THE MARRIAGE KNOT.

Just as long as this old world of ours goes on, so long as there are youths to woo and maidens to be wooed, courtship and marriage will be subjects of perhaps greater interest than all other things put together.

In America, where in the case of every thing else there is so much freedom of action, can better appreciate the sanctity and beauty of the marriage tie by comparing our customs, forms and ceremonies with those of other countries.

It is known, of course that in all European countries women, particularly of the upper classes, have very little to say in regard to this life step.

Among the Turks marriage is a civil contract and the union of the parties is registered by the cad or magistrate.

The marriage contract particularly enumerates the dowry to be settled on the wife in case the husband dies or is divorced.

In India, it is the poor bride who has the hard work, but the woman of India from the time she gives up her childhood to the day of her death, is the very worst kind of a slave.

The men always eat first, the women waiting on them, then the older wives eat what is left, and the poor bride, often a little girl, picks any crumbs that may come to her.

Among the fashionable people in Russia it is customary to solemnize marriages in a drawing room and by candle light.

Her father still has dominion over her, can summon her from her husband if he is ill or needs her, can, if he loses his wife, claim her services for three months and very often does so.

In houses where old customs are still observed, at this last feast a new satin slipper of the bride's is brought out. This is used as a drinking cup by the friends of the groom, who pass it round and drink the bride's health in it until it is thoroughly soaked with wine and will hold no more.

In Australia the mother and aunts do not speak to the husband all the rest of his life. If by chance they meet him, they squat down, covering their faces with their hands and are obliged to speak in each others' presence as a funny kind of lingo called "turn tongue".

In Iceland a bride is known by her dress, which is finer and more costly than that of her sisters, and the weds around the head dress also to her face a silver gilt crown, chains are suspended from her neck, and to one from the groom, in which some kind of perfumes are put.

In Lapland the lover, when going to propose to the girl of his choice, arms himself with two bottles of brandy. One he presents to the father, the other he drinks himself.

No business is discussed till the bottles are finished, when, both being in a happy, social state of mind, it is presumed the contest is gained without much difficulty.

FOR THE LONG TIME WHICH THE LADY...

For the long time which the lady had been waiting for a husband, she was not at all impatient.

The husband then, before she was married, was not at all impatient.

In Borneo the bride and bridegroom are brought from different ends of the town to the spot where the ceremony is to be performed.

After all, our own custom of "heart's not hands" is best, and while this is occasionally perverted by the social ambition of mother- or daughter's majority of our girls are true to the teachings of their grandmothers who believe marriage without love to be a sacrifice.

TIRED OF HIGH LIVING.

How General Grant Enjoyed Corned Beef and Cabbage.

An unpublished story of General Grant was recently told at the Grand Pacific by Paul Gores, states the Chicago News.

"I was steward at the Palmer House," he said, "when the ex-president stopped there on his return from the tour of the world. One noon I was all but stupefied at seeing General Grant creep in at the kitchen door as though escaping from some one.

"I am sorry to trouble you," he said, as though asking a great favor, but may I have a little corned beef and cabbage?" "Certainly," I replied.

"But shall I not send it to you out in the dining room?" "No," he answered. "I'll eat it right here if you let me sit down at this table."

So I cleared away a place on the rough board table, where the cook had been fixing the meat. DREW UP A STOOL, and the way he got away with that corned beef and cabbage made my eyes bulge.

When he had finished he laid down his knife and fork with a funny sigh of satisfaction, put one hand on my shoulder and said: "Young man, I suppose you don't care for that at all, but if you had to eat what I have for the last few months it would taste like a dinner for the gods."

The California newspaper men say that an earthquake can make more pi than the whole graduating class of Vassar college.

Dark trimmings at the bottom of skirts are stylish just now. No bits of burgundy need be put of this fashion after walking two blocks.

A movement is on foot to build a railroad in Siberia from Tcheliabinsk to Sretinsk. What a great chance for the unintelligible brakeman!

"What's your son Josiah doin'?" said a neighbor to Furmer Jegosh. "Wall," was the reply, "he thinks he's dignin' bait, but he's makin' garden."

Admiral, who was vanquished by Derasha at a rural spelling match, said that she was the most fascinating girl he ever met as he fell beneath her spell.

Patient—"Oh, doctor, you don't know how it worries me to think that I might be buried alive." Doctor—"Calm yourself, Mrs. H. You need have no fear of anything like that. Trust to me, and I assure you that you are in no danger."

Mrs. D'Avnoo (indignantly)—"What! Move out of the city and live?" Mr. D'Avnoo (who wants to economize)—"My dear, a pretty woman like you never looks so charming as when sitting in a phaeton at a suburban railway station waiting for her husband."

The prominent citizen walked out to his barn the other morning under an umbrella and said to his old darky hostler: "Well, Samson, ain't you praying for this rain to stop?" "No, your honor," said it's no use prayin' to de Lord to stop the rain when de wind ain't in de east."

The tooter for a hotel at Niagara Falls cried out, as the Sunday afternoon throng passed him on the way to Prospect park: "All ready inside, ladies and gentlemen; dinner's all ready inside!" "Well, if it's already inside, what the dickens are you yelling at us for?" asked Fickley. "What I'm looking for is a dinner that ain't inside yet."

A TRAGEDY IN HIS LIFE.

SAD MEMORIES WAMANT THE OLD ENGINEER.

He had been a member of the Grand Old Party for many years.

"This here State I work at by my own self in mind of me I was in Kansas City Journal man."

"I was on the W. Road 'long about '88 and I was runnin' extra freight."

"I was goin' down Wildcat Hill and foot of the grade was an open bridge about to catch the grade. The hill was about three miles long, and we used to run her pretty fast when there was no slow order for the bridge."

"That night it rained pitchforks, and was as dark as could be."

"We had orders to slow up at every place where there was any danger of washouts or bad tracks so when I struck the top of the hill I shut off and called for brakes."

HE KNEW NO BETTER.

A Hint That Will Fit a Good Many Men.

He was trying his best to be agreeable, but there was apparently something that displeased her. She walked along in silence, paying little attention to all the clever and pleasant things he was saying.

"Mr. Wills," she said at last as pleasantly as she could, "are you afraid that I will get away?"

"You are not afraid that I will suddenly start and run?"

"Certainly not! I know of no reason why you should."

"Perhaps, then, Mr. Wills," she suggested, growing a trifle more haughty, "you have been ill and are weak."

"No, indeed, Miss Mabel. I was never in better health."

"You are really not afraid of falling?"

"Not at all."

AS COOL AS A CUCUMBER.

Why One Young Woman Felt Like Hitting a Census Taker's Head off.

"I've answered more questions of the census takers and the business directory agents in my two years in New York," said a pretty typewriter, "than ever in my life before. The last time it was the state census man and in Harlem. My brother just sat there and let me answer the questions while my young sister looked on and grinned. He was a very fly young man and he went through it with the sort of nonchalance which is best of all things. He never asked our ages—suppose women told so many stories about their ages that he wouldn't believe them. He just looked at me and put me down 22. He looked at my sister and put her down 16. He looked at me again and said 'any children?'"

"W-h-a-a-a!" said I, completely upset.

"Children?"

"I'm not married," said I.

"I didn't ask you if you were married," he said. "The last time I had any children."

"You could have blown me over, don't you know. Before I could stop him my sister—she's awfully stupid—too—explained that he took me for my widow. I went blushing and all running from the house, census and all."

"I never was married," either said I. "Isn't that sufficient?" For she was just hopping mad.

"Then why not answer my question?" said he, getting up and coming plugging around to see where the door was. "Now what do you think of that impudence. To ask a young woman such a question as that! What did I tell him? Why, to get out of course—and he got!"

Distressing Ignorance.

A young lady graduate of Vassar college got married last week.

She said she wanted a delicatessen so that they could have good milk. Her husband bought a cow and hired a man to milk her, but she said she was satisfied, now, her dear one—she had plenty of good fresh milk!" he asked her one morning at the breakfast table.

"No, Charles, I want another cow, but not one like this one."

"What sort of a cow do you want?"

"One that will supply us with nice fresh butter."—Texas Siftings.

Under the branches they went together.
The blossoming branches that break the sky.
All in the moon of the young, sweet, wondrous.
Who sat the green on the hillside both he
And Dorothy thought it was over the meadow.
And Dorothy said it was over the spring.
But Polly was sure that the woodland's shadow
Showered that magical fairy ring.

So over the meadow they swiftly hid them—
Oh, the bird in the blue haze with
They are not the bluish of the better beside
The violet smiling beneath their feet.
Loose to the spring they lingered and listened;
Twas a diadem set in a mossy ring.
And oh the beauty that clustered and glistened
In faint fern falling about its ring.

They sought in the wood for a wonder reveal-
And saw not the leaves in a net overhead.
Oh, the song through the pine-tops steal-
And that that hush down the dim ways shed
Then, when the sun leaned lower to find them,
Hemward they wandered a sorrowful way,
And knew not the land they were leaving be-
And them.

The sun, new land of a young day!
But Dorothy thinks it is over the meadow,
And Dorothy says it is close by the spring;
While Polly is sure that the woodland's shadow
Showered that magical fairy ring.

Loved by All.

It is interesting to know that the girl who posed as the model for the Goddess of Liberty which is familiar to the sight of this nation from its position on the face of the many silver dollars of the land should have been born in the City of Brotherly Love, the "Cradle of American Independence." It is not only an interesting but a fitting historical coincidence that this should be so. Anna Willams, the original of this pictured goddess, was born in Philadelphia during the civil war. Early in 1876 the Treasury Department secured the services of George Morgan, an expert designer and engraver, who had previously been connected with the royal mint of England. In the pursuit of his duties Mr. Morgan had been thrown into the society of Thomas Eckins, an artist of considerable reputation, and the similarity of their interests became the foundation of a warm friendship between them. It was through Mr. Eckins' influence that Miss Williams, a friend of his family, was induced to pose for Mr. Morgan for the designs of the Goddess of Liberty. The sittings took place at the residence of Mr. Eckins on Mount Vernon street in Paris on the eighteenth, in November, 1876. It was some time before the cap, with its tassets, was decided upon as the ornamentation for the head.

For nearly two years after the issue of the Blaud dollar the model's identity was kept a secret. In the summer of 1878, however, an indefatigable newspaper man discovered and proclaimed Miss Williams' connection with the coin.

Been's Courtship.

When I thought I had found the beautiful daughter of Pastor Thorenson how to make known the fact to her was what troubled him for weeks. At last he resolved to write to her. He would come and fetch his answer the same afternoon or night. The lady accepted him she would be "at home," otherwise she would not. He presented himself, and the maid asked him to go into the best room. He was very hopeful and was glad to have time to collect himself before he met the lady. But when he had waited half an hour and doubts began to assail him. After an hour had passed he imagined the letter had not reached the young lady. Some fatal mistake was making a fool of him. Still he waited on. After two hours he began to be ashamed of himself. She would learn that he had sat two hours in that deserted house and would laugh at him. At last he jumped up in a rage and ran to the door. He was opening it when a loud peal of laughter arrested him. He turned and saw the fair head of his secret one emerge from under the sofa. Her mouth was laughing, but her eyes were filled with tears. "O, you dear, good fellow! to wait all this while!" she said. "I wanted to see how many minutes a lover's patience lasts. How hard you are! Now, help me to get out, and then we will talk." In less than a week the marriage was arranged.

Was Booth-Tucker.

To many people the most interesting of the Booth family is Mrs. Emma Booth-Tucker, better known as "Bessie," formerly the head of the Indian camp in the Salvation army. She led in the Indian jungle by Mr. and Mrs. Booth-Tucker was highly interesting. They dressed and lived exactly like the poorest Indians around them. When they came to England Bessie and her feminine companion were the most striking figures on the platform occupied by the General and family. Then, too (although so trivial a matter should hardly be mentioned in this connection), the Indian robes are extremely beautiful. It is said that Bessie's beautiful face and attractive countenance attracted much of her audience. Her health is now very good, and she has been obliged to give her Indian mission work. She and her husband live in a tiny house near London with their two children, but spend their days in town engaged in what they call the home office army work.

French Women Artists and the Academy.

No woman has been elected a member of the French Academy of Fine Arts since the time of Mme. Vigee Le Brun, who drew a portrait of Marie Antoinette and through royal favor found her way into the charmed circle. Recently Mme. Leon Bertaux, who is president of the Union of Women Painters and Sculptors in France, has aspired to a similar honor, and the efforts she is making to forward her fortunes are viewed with great interest in Paris. Under the old monarchy, when fifteen ladies were admitted to the Academie Royale within a century, the claims of women artists to public distinction were much more favorably regarded than they have been under the succeeding regimes or under the republic.

A Gilt from Queen Margherita.

Not many weeks ago Queen Margherita of Italy summoned that sweet young Italian songstress, Signorina Palloni, to sing for her at the royal palace; and now, on the eve of her majesty's departure for a summer outing at Naples, she has presented the monarch with the pendant of the royal crown, surmounted with the royal crown, under which is an oval of blue enamel bearing the Queen's own initial, "M." in diamonds. Accompanying the pendant there was a beautiful little Venetian chain, and the kindest of messages, in which she bade the young singer adieu, for she should desire her assistance at the court concerts of the coming season.

Blumarch's Shown Gallantry.

The Governor's epistolary flirtation with a Spanish one, too, for that matter—"I kiss your hand," is much affected by Prince Blumarch in actual performance as well as in letters. He was asked some time ago why he kissed the hands of young ladies, and he answered: "My master, the Emperor William, used to say that when a lady kisses one's hand it is an official intimation that you are an old man. As long, however, as you are allowed to carry their tiny hands to your lips, depend upon it there is a drop of young blood somewhere in your veins."

Susan in Boston, Susanne in Paris.

The bright particular star of Mme. Marchesi's annual concert in Paris of her pupils this season was Miss Susanne Adams of Boston, whose high soprano voice is said to have notes that ring like trumpets and others that are as sweet as the tones of a flute. It is a pity that Miss Adams has Frenchified her good old biblical name, which has long been celebrated in song, and which a generation ago was a favorite appellation for New England girls.

Notes for Women.

The richest heiress in Berlin is said to be Fraulein Hildegard von Locton. She is worth $2,000,000.
Miss Constance Bache has translated Albert Heintz's analysis of the music of "Tristan and Isolde," with the numerous leading motives and other extracts in music type.
Mme. Callroth, a farmer in edifice of the Epithemetic Kurort, a weekly woman's paper published in Athens. The journal has been in existence five years and has a large circulation among Greek women.

Duchess Karl Theodor of Bavaria always assists her husband, Duke Dr. Karl Theodor of Bavaria in his practice as an ophthalmic physician. The Duke had 1,253 patients in his season from April 3 to June 6.

Business women of Buffalo have formed a club. They began with a membership of seventy-five. Among other provisions is one that a class shall be opened in any subject of education on request of ten members.
The Comtesse du Narasol, Miss Etta Hughes and Fraulein Paula are the Spanish, English and Austrian governesses of the Infantas of Spain. Each of these ladies receives $4,000 a year from the royal exchequer.

Mrs. Todd, one of the very few women who were present at the battle of Waterloo, is still living—but in great poverty—at Spitalfields. Her father was killed in the battle and her mother appears to have died of a broken heart.

The old House of Commons was much more liberal than the present house. There was an open ladies' gallery in a rather awkward place in the roof of the building, but still the best place for hearing in the house. "I can remember," says Lady Verney, "being taken there on a chair to see the debates and seeing the ministerial and opposition ladies keeping rigorously to their own side of the hole."

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

A MISTAKE OFTEN MADE IN GROWING CURRANTS.

The Small Currant Worms are the most common of the Currant Worms. They are found on the Currant Bushes. The Currant Bushes are the most common of the Currant Bushes. The Currant Bushes are the most common of the Currant Bushes.

Except in large nurseries and fields of currant bushes, one generally finds none of the bushes almost entirely bare of foliage.

As soon as they ripen, and are spread upon the ground to dry. Then the seeds are broken out of them with a small stick by whipping over a sieve. Finally, the seeds are dried in the sun, or kiln, and are stored by means of screens into different sizes. Some plants, with seed-buds, yield 3,000 seeds of all sizes, and others 500 seeds of all sizes. The seeds are produced by Russian galls.—Journal of Agriculture.

Stock Notes.

It is possible that we feed our horses too much grain, and it is a matter of enough importance to lead us to inaugurate experiments to see if our horses would not do better on less food. Some years ago a Boston doctor published the results of his experiments on this line and he declared that our horses were injured by being fed too much. Many horses, it is well known will eat more than they need. They are ravenous eaters. All that the horse needs is to be kept in fair condition, and having been put in that condition, if he maintains it while at work, he is getting enough to eat however little it may be. That is, if he is in fair condition, he will attempt experiments to see if our horses get entirely too much hay. The stomach of the horse being small, it really requires food and drink more frequently instead of large quantities at a time. It is being impracticable, however, to feed more than three times a day, the question to settle is, will the animal do as well or better on less food three times a day than it does upon a greater quantity.—Farmers' Voice.

Stock Notes.

Cattle will not thrive any better for feeding them more than they will eat up clean.

At no time should too much dependence be placed upon breed, good feed is equally important. Experience is the best way of testing a theory, but the test should usually be made on a small scale. In growing cattle a hearty thrifty condition is as important as the production of fat. Get growth first and fat afterwards.

Cattle will thrive better and make a more rapid gain in arrangements can be made to give them frequent change of pasture.

A change of feed will often improve the appetite; stock must be thrifty eaters if they make a rapid gain either in growth or flesh.

Variety in feeding belongs to profitable stock raising. It will be cattle, sheep, horses or hogs and in summer as well as winter.

Raising beef cattle of the common grades at least has not been very profitable for sometime past. Will it be any better soon?

One advantage in keeping plenty of milk is that the cattle can help themselves in that way in no danger at any time of their eating too much.

A good bull bred to poor cows will get better calves than the dam, yet it is best to select the best dams we can especially when breeding to improve.

The best evidence we can have of the value of well bred cattle against scrub is secured in the way that the two sell in all of the leading markets.

Growth can be pushed to a better advantage during the summer while there is plenty of good grass to a better advantage and at a less cost than any other time.

Household Hints.

Peroxide of hydrogen diluted with ammonia will bleach the hair.

Naphtha is good for cleaning kid gloves, but keep it away from the fire.

Ordinary sickening plaster makes a good remedy for cuts as it keeps them soft and prevents the rubbing.

Wash whiteannels in cold water with suds made of white soap, and they will not shrink much nor look yellow.

For chafing, try fuller's earth pulverized; moisten the surface first when applying it. Oxide of zinc ointment is also excellent.

To make pie or biscuit a nice color, moisten the top of them with a little sweet milk just before they are put into the oven.

For iron rust lay in kerosene oil and let it remain covered for some time. The oil has to be loosened the rust so that it will come off.

One of the most effectual injections for constipation in young children is equal parts of glyceric acid and water. It is harmless and healing.

Never sweep dust and dirt from one room to another, nor from upstairs to the lower part of the house. Always take it up in each room.

A good dentifrice is made of two ounces of pulverized borax, four ounces of precipitated chalk, and two ounces of pulverized castile soap.

A tablespoonful of powdered borax dissolved in the bath will prove very invigorating as well as softening the water so that it will feel like velvet.

To take oil out of carpets or woolens, put on buckwheat flour, and brush it off very carefully into a dustpan. Keep on applying until all the grease has been absorbed.

A HORRIBLE INDUSTRY.

The Manufacture of Cigarettes a Common Practice in Spain.

The Paris Ginghamed hats of its called, which is sold every year in the quantity of 20,000,000. An enormous quantity of waste ground in the country of the Miracles of former times. Every year says a correspondent in the London Standard, their number has been greatly increased by the arrival of about twenty cut-de-jatte, who are wretchedly looked upon as a class of waste ground in the country of the Miracles. These cripples whose limbs are shriveled up legs are curled up on the boards on which they sit, form a colony which calls to mind the court Miracles of former times. Every morning they all issue forth, propelling themselves with their hands, to take up their places at the fair, there to await the pence which may be thrown to them by the compassionate passers-by. Their respect is so pitiful that it is said many of them make a right harvest which, however, of course goes to the beggar-farmer. It appears that twenty or thirty years ago the cut-de-jatte were almost unknown in France, and that these miserable looking cripples are the product of what may be called an industry. Almost all these numerous deformed little creatures come from Spain, and more especially from Tolosa, or the neighborhood situated at about fifteen miles to the South of St. Sebastian. They are the outcome of the abominable practices of beggar-farmers, who seek their victims among the children of the peasants. When there is a very boy in the family they persuade the parents that he can never be anything but a burden to them unless they consent to have him transformed into a cut-de-jatte, and promise to pay them a trifle a day so long as the cut-de-jatte is left with them. The operation to which the unfortunate creature is subjected is as effectual as it is simple. The legs of the child are so tightly compressed that the circulation of the blood in them is stopped. Little by little the legs wither away, and the cut-de-jatte is manufactured. In 1887 Waldeck Rousseau, the minister of the interior, prohibited the introduction of these Spanish cut-de-jatte into France, but it is estimated that recently 300 or 400 of the poor creatures cross the frontier every year. They are now seen in almost every town in France, and have got as far north as Belgium. To be a cut-de-jatte must be a profitable trade for the beggar farmers who manufacture them and bring them from Spain, as these traders pay the parents of the poor cripples a pittance of only 50 centimes to 1 franc a day for their hire.

The Potawatamie Indians, of Wisconsin, have sent a delegation to Washington asking a slice of the money the government is to give to the Michigan section of the tribe. Their request was not heeded.

The Washington Post says that there is danger of Mr. Cleveland's being (New York) Sun-attack, and tells him to ask Gen. Butler about it. The Sun enjoys slobbering over its victim as the lion constrictor undoubtedly enjoys covering his with saliva before swallowing him.

The reference to him in the American newspapers have determined Henry M. Stanley never to set foot in this country again. Henry shouldn't mind a little thing like that. If he really wants to know what people over here think of him he should come over and run for office here.

The state pays the Schaffer family $4,000 for running the land office at Lansing. The father is boss, two daughters are clerks and the son is assistant. The Winnans family gets $7,300 out of the treasury each year and the Democrats are not beyond endurance at the household tendency of things.

"The Harvest Moon" is a good play. The theme of the drama is a most interesting one, skillfully interposed with comedy, (which predominates) and pathos. The company is so well balanced that even the minor parts have importance.—AMERICAN, PHILADELPHIA. This troupe will be at the Opera House next Thursday evening.

It is reported that the editor of this paper is "committed" in favor of the nomination of certain Republicans for one or the other of the county offices. We never presume to do such a thing prior to the holding of the convention. We always speak well of men as candidates, when we can; but never pledge support. It is enough to ask of a newspaper man that he will support the ticket nominated.

Most men in political life have to content themselves with having their official actions approved by members of their own party, but ex-Speaker Reed is a most striking exception; he has had everyone of the innovations he was responsible for having introduced in the last House approved by his political opponents of the present House, with the single exception of "counting a quorum." The Democrats not only approved, but they actually adopted the very rules they had abused the Republicans for adopting at Mr. Reed's suggestion. The cloture rule, which was refused the free silver men, had to be reported and adopted before the World's Fair appropriation could be put through the House, which was another evidence of the hypocrisy of the democratic leaders in dealing with legislation of national importance.

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

A Pretty Surprize. A beautifully illustrated and charmingly bound edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," the most popular long poem ever published by an American author, and one of the most famous poems in the language, just published. It is a pretty surprise for book-lovers. It is in large type, numerous and excellent illustrations, very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkable and handsome cloth binding, with gilt title and ornaments. No illustrated edition has ever before been published at less cost than $1.50, and that is about what you might "guess" the price of this to be, but it isn't—it sells for only 19 cents plus 6 cents for postage, if by mail. This covers only about the actual cost of manufacture by the 100,000, the publisher's object being, not profit, but to show the book-loving millions what he can do. His publications are not sold by dealers, but only direct; catalogue over 100 pages, a literary curiosity in its way, is sent for a 2-cent stamp. Every home in the land ought to have a copy of this Evangeline, so charmingly beautiful, as a poem, as a collection of artistic illustrations, and as a product of the book-making art. Address, JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 57 Rose St., New York.

Ask your friends Who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla what they think of it, and the replies will be positive in its favor. One has been cured of indigestion and dyspepsia, another finds it indispensable for sick headache, others report remarkable cures of scrofula, salt rashes and other blood diseases, still others will tell you that it overcomes "that tired feeling," and so on. Truly, the best advertising which Hood's Sarsaparilla receives is the hearty endorsement of the army of friends it has won by its positive medicinal merit.

A franchise has been granted the St. Mary's Fall Water Power Co. at Sault Ste Marie after two years' delay. Work will be at once resumed on the water power canal.

The executive board of the general relief committee in charge of the $20,442 for the benefit of Bay City fire sufferers has decided to give each person owning a lot $100 material to rebuild. Other heads of families have $25 given them for house rent.

Five thousand two hundred and eighteen dollars is the price of the democrat gerrymanders. That is a fact which the taxpayers of the state of Michigan ought to paste in their hats or smoke in their pipes, as individual preferences may decide. At any rate they should not forget what it cost to rectify the bungling attempt of the democrats to disfranchise the voters of the Republican counties. The cost of the extra legislative session is the price of dishonest legislation and partisan disregard of the commonest political rights. It represents the bill which disreputable politicians presents to the taxpayers as the expense account of their illegal operations. The taxpayers will foot the bill, but they will take good care not to incur another of similar nature.—Tribune.

As a general liniment for sprains and bruises or for rheumatism, lameback, deep seated or muscular pains, Chamberlain's Pain Balm is unrivaled. For sale by Thompson & Putnam.

The "Old Bachelor Girl club" is said to be in a flourishing condition at Coldwater, Mich. It is said that they draw lots, as to who shall be the next victim, and then soon after they miss him and know he has done the fatal deed.

Frank Cooley and Jack Ramsey, members of the Cooley gang of outlaws, attended divine service at Smithfield, Pa. Sunday night. They would not permit any of the congregation to leave the church until the services had been concluded. After contributing freely to the box they quietly rode away.

Merit is the measure of success. Geo. Meels & Co.'s Cigars sell by the million.

Port Huron: It was in an electric car. He was whistling sweet nothings in her ear, when she suddenly commenced to wriggle. She stood it as long as she could and at last asked Charlie to take the nasty bug from down her back. Charlie, his face red as a beet, complied, much to the amusement of the other passengers, who were awfully interested by this time, and while she was almost ready to faint and was exclaiming: "Oh, the horrid thing has bitten me again," Charlie triumphantly drew forth a hair-pin.

Millions smoked annually—Geo. Meels & Co.'s great Cigars. THEY ARE MADE ON HONOR.
