MANISTIQUE, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY APRIL 10, 1914

$150 PER YEAR

678 TO 145 THE VOTE

People of Manistiquette Place Them selves on Record as Being in Favor of Water-power Bond Issue

One of the most agreeable surprises that have occurred in a Manistiquette election for years, was the well nigh unanimous vote given in favor of the water-power bond issue of $85,000. Every ward in the city gave it a big majority, the total being 678 to 145. The vote by wards follows:

Ward	For	Against
First	97	12
Second	102	10
Third	198	34
Fourth	381	62
	678	145

The opponents of the proposed issue conducted a campaign of vilification and misrepresentation and assailed the character of the members of the board of public works. That this attack materially assisted in swelling the majority is now a conceded fact. "Hobbs's Pet Bonding Scheme Meets With Little Favor From the Taxpayers," was the way in which the opposition distorted the message. While the caption above quoted was misleading yet it did not have the desired effect, and the signal victory shows that the bonding scheme, no matter who fathered it, was a very popular proposition with the voters.

Manistiquette took a long forward step Monday when it endorsed the idea of erecting a water-power site, a short gravity main. No longer will the city be at the mercy of a conscienceless corporation, it will be in a position to go into business for itself the minute the thrust servers are applied, and the pain becomes intense.

While the voters of Manistiquette have taken the first degree, there are more to follow, and the board of public works, the mayor and the city council, should exercise every precaution in this future. The city council should give the Consolidated Lumber Co. a long and hard squint, and there is no question as to the rights the city shall have to the river and its banks that a very large amount of the water power of the Manistiquette river shall be available for all time to come, and that the material, cheap and easy to be had, of everything appropriate to the position shall be used and conserved, by these in authority. Manistiquette has made money in the past in occupying time work, and the present water system will no doubt profit by the mistakes made at the time the present water system was constructed.

HOME BURNED

Farm Home of Wm. H. Wood Destroyed with Contents Wednesday Morning

The farm home of William H. Wood of Doyle township, was, with its contents, destroyed by fire at an early hour Wednesday morning. The fire was caused by defective wiring. Nearly all of the hot stove effects were also destroyed, including a new range and a cream separator.

Due to the lack of equipment for fighting the blaze little effort was made to save the structure, but all efforts were directed toward saving furniture.

Miss Nels Paines who is teaching in that district, lost her clothing, and personal effects.

The loss is a heavy one and Mr. and Mrs. Wood have the sympathy of their friends in their loss.

Mayor Middlebrook Did Much For City During His Long Tenure of Office

After having served his constituency faithfully and well for seven terms as mayor of Manistiquette, Mayor Middlebrook reached the turn in the political road and was defeated last Monday. The tenure of Middlebrook's long tenure of office are everywhere in evidence about Manistiquette. It has better streets and sidewalks as the result of his activity as an official, and that he has given the city faithful service at the expense of time and money cannot be denied. There are reasons why he reached the parting of the political way this year. His determination not to be a candidate, so plainly expressed through the medium of the local press, and his reluctance to again take up the cross of office was taken at par by many. It will be remembered that he consented to make the race again only after he was petitioned by a large number of voters. This vaccination for which he cannot be censured was the cause of a long deflection. Now, too, the fact that it was believed that no effort had been made during the past year to compel the liquor dealers of the city to observe the laws governing their business was another vital factor in the result. Pattison's stand in the matter is well known and was known before election and the fact that he was elected would lead one to believe that even the average citizen favors a change in local conditions and that he is dissatisfied with the wantonness with which the saloons of the city have been violating the laws.

Esenamba is infested with a bold highwayman that is plying his nefarious business seemingly without fear of the officers. The Soo Line depot at North Esenamba has been robbed for the third time, and several classes of business were robbed at the same time.

Leg Broken.

Given Four, employed in the grocery department of the Consolidated Lumber store, sustained the fracture of his left leg Tuesday afternoon. He was at work in the basement of the store when he slipped. The bone was broken about the ankle. Dr. Waight was called to render the fracture.

Mr. Fred Miller of Thompson, has purchased a half interest in the business of Joseph Boncher, and is now in Manistiquette. Mr. Norton Miller will personally look after his share of the business. The firm of Boncher & Miller is certainly a strong one, and the business will be aggressively pushed. This firm manufactures harness, wagons, buggies and sleighs, and also handles a full line of wagons, buggies, farm implements, cream separators, etc., and it is their aim to carry in stock only well known and guaranteed makes of machinery of all sorts.

Norton Miller, received his education in the county schools, and is also a graduate of the Soo Business college. He is well known here, and his many friends are pleased to learn that he will become a permanent resident of the city.

Base Ball Meeting.

Edwin Lemstra has called a meeting of base ball enthusiasts, to be held at the fire department headquarters, next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. At this time the question of organizing a base ball team will be discussed, officers elected, and plans perfected to place a strong nine in the field for the season of 1914. The boys are desirous of organizing a team, and will ask permission of the agricultural society to construct a good diamond on the grounds owned by the society. They also contemplate making the business men of the city for financial assistance. Manistiquette has a number of good ball players, and it is hoped that a club will be organized and that it will be given the financial support it should have.

Complete your dairy equipment by the purchase of an International Harvester cream separator—Lily Bluebell or Dairymaid. These separators skim closely—leaving barely a drop of cream in a gallon of milk—and they will do it for years. These machines are furnished with pulleys for the use of power. Bitted to a small IHC engine, you have the best outfit it is possible for you to buy. Note the low supply can on IHC separators, the height of the milk spout which allows a 10-gallon can to be used for the skim milk, the strong frame with open base which can be kept perfectly clean, and the dozen other features which make these IHC machines the best.
Your local dealer should have one of these machines on sale. If he has not, write us before you buy and we will tell you where you can see one; also send you an interesting book on separators.

FOREST FIRES IN UNITED STATES IN 1913 MANY, BUT WELL CONTROLLED

Government Forces Fought 4,520 Conflagrations in That Year, or Nearly Twice as Many as Started in 1912—Total Loss, Due to Damage From Flames, Estimated at $192,000 for the Entire Period.

Washington.—During 1913 the forces on the national forests fought 4,520 fires, or nearly twice as many as started in 1912, the best year the forests have ever had.

Notwithstanding the great increase in the number of fires, Forester Graves considers that the showing made by the forest service was quite as favorable as that in the preceding year, because the damage done and the cost of fire fighting were no greater proportionately than in 1912. In both years practically 50 per cent of all fires were detected and extinguished before they burned over a quarter of an acre, and 25 per cent of both years' fires were put out before they covered ten acres. Of last year's fires, 2,278, or considerably more than the whole number of fires in 1912, were confined to areas of less than ten acres, and in 1,059 additional fires less than one hundred dollars' damage was done by each. In only 25 fires did the damage amount to $1,000.

The aggregate loss in timber is estimated at nearly fifty million board feet, valued at about eighty-two thousand dollars, and the damage to young growth and forage is estimated at about one hundred and ten thousand dollars, making a total of about one hundred and ninety-two thousand dollars. About eighteen per cent of this loss, however, was incurred on private lands within the forests where 15 per cent of the fires had their origin.

One encouraging feature is that the total number of fires not by railroad locomotives was scarcely more than in the preceding year and represented only 12 per cent of all fires, as against nearly nineteen per cent in 1912; also the proportion was by sawmills and other engines in the woods was considerably less than in 1912. This indicates very plainly, Mr. Graves says, that the public is awakening to the need of spark arrestors and care with engines in the woods.

Looking for the reason of the increase in number of fires, the forester finds three main causes:

First of all, the unprecedented electric storms which swept the whole state of California at the end of a long dry season and set, almost simultaneously, about seven hundred fires. The 504 fires set by lightning in California formed nearly 75 per cent of the 1,628 fires on the national forests of the state from all causes, and were more than half of the one thousand five hundred and seventy-one lightning-set fires in all the 21 states reporting.

In the second place, there were 767 fires which started outside the forests, of which 644 were stopped by the government's fire fighters before they reached the forest boundaries, as against 414 which started on outside areas in 1912. However, the proportion of such fires to all those which the service battled with was about the same for 1912 and 1913, but this increase was confined to three states, Arkansas, California and Oregon, all others showing a marked decrease. Of the 422 incendiary fires, 128 were in Arkansas, 132 in California and 142 in Oregon, where two hundred were known to have set 72 on one forest alone. These two and other incendiaries were, of course, severely dealt with by the law. On the Arkansas forest, too, it has been reported that the 351 fires classed under the general heading of "origin unknown" were mainly incendiary. In California the incendiary fires are largely attributed to what is known as the "light-burning theory," which advances the argument that forests should be burned so frequently to prevent the accumulation of debris. The forest service considers this a pernicious theory because it sears the standing timber and thus reduces its value; it robs the forest soil of its ability to retain moisture, and effectively prevents the reproduction of the forest, since such fires destroy all tree seedlings before they have a chance to get a good start.

In 1912, lightning caused more fires than any other agency, followed by railroads, campers and incendiaries, in the order given. In 1913, however, the fires caused by lightning outnumbered the next nearest cause by more than three to one, but the order—railroads, campers and incendiaries—remained the same as in 1912. A considerable decrease in the proportion set by railroads and campers indicates, according to forest officers, a growing carefulness on the part of the general public.

Last year, as in 1912, California led all others in number of fires, this lead being natural because California has such a long dry season. It was followed by Arkansas, Arizona and Oregon, in the order named. Kansas, which had only one fire in 1912, except without any in 1913. North Dakota repeated its record of 1912 and had no fires on its one small forest. Not a single severe fire occurred during the year in District 1, which includes Utah, Nevada and southern Idaho, and in which a large proportion of the forests reported no fires at all.

There was proportionately greater loss on private lands within the forest boundaries than on the public lands. It is pointed out by the forest officers that these lands cover approximately 11 per cent of the total area included within the forest boundaries, yet the area burned over on these private lands was more than twenty-five per cent of all. The forest service expended more than thirty thousand dollars in protecting the private lands within the forests and lands adjacent to and outside of the forests. In addition to this cost, services and supplies to the value of more than seventeen thousand dollars were contributed by co-operators for fire-fighting on these areas.

Ranger's Cabin in National Forest. fires as against 2,479 in 1912, with about sixty thousand acres burned as compared with 230,000 in 1912 and 780,000 in 1911. At the end of the month, however, the electric storms in California and one or two outbreaks of incendiaries changed the whole situation.

But even in the face of these disturbances, the fire-fighting force, with its equipment and experience from preceding years, was able to cope with the situation.

SURE DEATH TESTS

Easy Ways to Know When Life Has Fled.

Simple Methods That Will Prevent Possibility of Premature Burial—Injection of Fluorescein Only—Unfailing Plan.

New York.—When the doctor pronounces the patient dead, to be sure. And if not, what tests can remove all doubt? These questions, though not asked, are probably present in the minds of friends and relatives at every death bed.

As death is the worst of all diseases and no mistake could be more costly than premature burial, it is not merely interesting but important for people to know what tests are conclusive and what are not. When the breathing stops and no sound of heart beat or pulse can be detected, there is little doubt of death. But the little doubt is in itself so dreadfully that these common signs are not enough. If the body grows slowly but steadily cool the doubt is lessened, but by no means removed. Nor is it a sign of life if, after dropping, the temperature suddenly rises again.

The placing of a mirror in front of the mouth and nostrils is a weak test. The theory is that even the faintest breath will dim the mirror. This test is not only worthless, but likely to cause false hopes. Gases generated in the body very frequently issue from the mouth and form a mist upon the mirror.

Steel needles are sometimes thrust into the muscles for a period of an hour and then examined. If the person is alive the oxygen of the blood should rust the needles. If dead, it should not. This test in actual practice is unreliable, and no faith can be placed in it.

Another cause of false hopes is the custom of placing a glass of water filled to the edge on the breast. The slightest movement of the lungs will cause a drop to spill. This, too, is valueless, because after death there are invariably certain movements of the muscles known as "cadaveric spasms" which are frequent enough to spill the water.

Probably one of the most infallible tests is the opening of an artery. In life the arteries are full of blood under pressure. In death the arterial blood runs to the veins. This is a very fortunate fact, as it prevents the undertaker from making any mistake. The embolizing fluid is collected by opening an artery. Should blood flow he knows that life still persists and is warned in time.

Cutting the skin to see if blood will flow from the veins proves nothing, as it often flows as late as three days after death.

The X-ray, when it is available, provides an excellent proof of death. A photograph of a live being shows the heart with a blurred outline. This is caused by even the faintest movement of the heart. The X-ray exposure of a dead person reveals the heart clear and sharp.

There are numberless so-called tests of the grave—a shiver in the skin, the dimming and fogging of the transparency and other signs. These signs are not sufficient proof, nor is the test of finding a bright light in the eye to see if the pupil contracts.

Brenn atropine dropped on the eyeball brings no evidence. It has been proved that the drops will dilate the eye some time after death.

Many persons think electricity applied in the form of shocks is a test. It is of no avail, as the muscles usually respond to the current for three hours or more after death.

Proof beyond question is supplied when the stiffening known as "rigor mortis" sets in. Rigor mortis is a condition and other states often stimulate that stiffness. Rigor mortis begins in one part of the body, usually the muscles of the throat and gradually extends throughout the body, while the various living forms of muscle stiffening come on instantly and belong to all of the muscles.

The so-called "diaphanous" test is unreliable. If you hold your hand close to a candle or other bright light the fingers show a certain rosy transparency, the bones appearing as dim shadows. After death the fingers usually become as opaque as if made of marble. But exceptions are frequent enough to make the test worthless.

A harmless but very powerful dye called fluorescein will settle all doubts very quickly. If a hypodermic syringe is used to inject a little of this dye into the skin it has no result on a dead person. But if this is done to one in whom there is the slightest trace of circulation there follows once an unmistakable and startling result. The entire skin becomes a gold-on-yellow and the whites of the eyes turn an emerald green. The effects wear away soon after the pulse and breathing are restored. This and the test of opening an artery are probably the only infallible death tests.

THIS wonderful new incandescent mantle lamp gives more than ten times as much light as the common coal oil lamp. At the same time it burns less than half as much oil as the old style open flame, center draught lamps. Beats electric, gasoline or acetylene. The is equipped with the adjustable extension chimney and boiler generator which make it the most reliable incandescent mantle lamp ever made. For evening reading, writing or sewing there is no light that can compare with the powerful, steady white light of the Aladdin. Safe, durable and economical, beautiful in design, no noise, no odor. Women and children can operate it. You can't appreciate the great difference between the light of this lamp and the common coal oil lamp 'til you see it. It has all the good qualities of the high priced system but with the advantage of being as simple as the ordinary coal oil lamp.

WINS THE RIGHT TO BATHE
French Court Decides That Bathing is No Luxury—Man Can Wash at Home.
Paris.—By French law a prodigal son or daughter or even father or mother may be provided with a conseil judiciaire, or legal guardian, whose consent must be obtained before the prodigal can spend any money except for what are the actual necessities of life. The prodigal can obtain all the credit he likes, but his signature is not sufficient, and those who give him credit cannot collect unless the guardian's signature has also been obtained. A curious case in this connection came before the court this week.
A youth, son of rich parents, provided with a conseil judiciaire, installed a bathroom in his apartments at a cost of 700 francs ($140). The legal guardian refused to pay the bill, arguing that it was not necessary to bathe at home nor to bathe all over at the same time, when wash bowls could be used and public baths offered their services. On behalf of the tradesman it was argued that hygiene is no luxury and even a prodigal has the right to wash at home. The courts adopted this view and ruled that the expense was justified.

INVENTOR'S WEALTH TO SON
George Westinghouse, Jr., to Receive Bulk of $35,000,000 Left by His Father.

New York.—George Westinghouse, the inventor, who died here, left an individual estate estimated at $35,000,000. His business associates and that under the terms of his will the bulk of this fortune will go to his son, George Westinghouse, Jr., although ample provision is made for Mrs. Westinghouse. Charles A. Terry, Westinghouse, Jr.'s attorney, is president of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company.

George Westinghouse, Jr.

and one of the trustees named by Mr. Westinghouse in his will to carry on his large business interests said that Mr. Westinghouse never even intended in accumulating a fortune. He said that Mr. Westinghouse had derived less profit from his inventions than had gone to his business associates and employees. "He never cared for money for money's sake," said Mr. Terry. "He regarded wealth only an instrument for accomplishing things, or in the same light as he did new tools in one of his shops."

BARS WOMEN IN FRENCH ARMY
Minister of War Cuts Sanitizers From the Active Service Declaring Them a Detriment.

Paris, France.—The petroleuse sanitizers, or women who take charge of the French regimental caissons, and who have played many heroic parts in French military history, are no longer to share the dangers of active service with the troops, according to the minister of war. The women, one of whom is commissioned to each company or battery of artillery, are in future to be retained simply in times of peace.

Formerly the women, wearing the uniform of their branch of the service, marched into battle with the troops, serving often as nurses or carrying soothing drinks to the wounded. They were the wives of noncommissioned officers or musicians.

"The minister of war has decided that the women are a tax on the food supply of the army and interfere with the rapid movement of troops marching to the front after mobilization. He says, too, they are a source of distraction to the soldiers."

Nonetheless, he paid a high tribute to the sanitizers for their service during his many campaigns. Several of them were made chevrons of silver or bronze by him, one of them, Josephine Thequet, for saving the life of her colonel by killing a Cossack who had attacked him during a retreat from Tossouk another. Marie Theodora, who served in seventeen campaigns with the emperor and met her death at Waterloo.

YUAN SHIH-KAI WINS
President of China Knows Views of His People.

Oriental Executive Succeeds Because of His Ability to Wait in a Strong Factor.

Peking, China.—One frequently hears the question asked: "What is the secret of President Yuan Shih-kai's power?" Admirers and critics alike ponder over the success and say: "How does he do it? How does he get away with it?" Some say that his power depends mainly on the support he receives from his army. While part is undoubtedly true that Yuan's ability to control the army has been a great factor in the shaping of his career a closer study of his methods will show that it is not the principal factor.

Another secret of Yuan's success is his ability to wait. For two years the vice-president Li Yuan Hung was the only man who could possibly become a rival of Yuan Shih-kai. He was the idol of young China and the hero of the revolution against the Manchus. Yuan was repeatedly urged by his advisers to invite Li Yuan Hung to take up his residence in Peking. Li Yuan Hung, however, was indispensable to the peace of the Yangtze valley. Revolutionists were continually plotting and Li's departure would have been the signal for an uprising. It was also feared that should the vice-president do so and that he himself might be forced to join the movement. It was a very delicate situation.

Before Yuan could move Li to Peking it was necessary for the central government to retake complete control over the Yangtze valley. In pursuance of this policy President Yuan dispatched northern troops to the Yangtze provinces last summer. The result was a rebellion headed by Liu Yau Sen and Huang Hsing. In spite of tremendous pressure put on him by the revolutionists, Yuan Hung cast his lot with the president. The revolt ended in a fiasco and Sun Yat Sen, Huang Hsing, and many other southern leaders were eliminated from the political life of China. Li Yuan Hung was rewarded with the title, "Pillar of the State."

Nevertheless, there were signs that Li Yuan Hung's presence caused the government considerable uneasiness. The president up and about trusted Li Yuan Hung, but he seems to have had fears that the followers of the vice-president might force him to break with the government. The problem was to get Li away from his army and to be ready to cope with any uprising which the southern soldiers might start upon being deprived of their chief. Large numbers of northern troops were dispatched to Wu-chang and the Yangtze valley. The war minister's own division, the Sixth, was sent to Hankow, which lies just across the river from Wu-chang. When everything was in readiness the minister of war, Yuan Chai, himself proceeded to Wu-chang and relieved Li Yuan Hung of his duties as governor of the province, which act deprived him of command of the troops at Wu-chang.

Li Yuan Hung was then ordered to come to Peking. He did so in the greatest secrecy and without making the customary farewell calls on the consuls in Hankow. He was received in Peking with great pomp and ceremony. A magnificent military escort conveyed him to Yuan's palace.

On arriving at the palace of the Three Larks Li Yuan Hung was given quarters on the island where the late Emperor's tomb was transferred in 1838 by the grand eunuch—his manager assisted by Yuan Shih-kai.

THE ELECTION

Joseph Pattinson Elected Mayor by 46 Majority, Bond Issue Carries.

The result of the election Monday surprised more than one person, for the unexpected happened not only in the election of Pattinson for mayor, but the phenomenal majority rolled up for the water bond issue. While it was conceded that Pattinson was a strong factor in the race few thought that he would win over Middlebrook. Everyone figured that the bond issue would receive a bare majority, but as a two thirds majority was required, few were sanguine of its success.
The election of Pattinson cannot be credited as a Democratic victory, for the party lines were entirely obliterated temporarily, and staunch, lifelong Republicans voted or Pattinson because they believed that a change would be beneficial to the city. The vote in the various wards follows:

FIRST WARD

Mayor—Mid Hebrook 57, Pattinson 51
Clerk, Christensen 92,
