Parents, Teachers Blamed For High School Failures

Parents and teachers are more to blame for failures of high school students than are the pupils themselves, a University of Michigan educator believes.
George E. Carrothers, director of the University's Bureau of Cooperation with Educational Institutions, says that among major reasons for high school failures are the heavy load carried by teachers, parental unconcern for the education of their children and community misunderstanding of real education.
"Increasing the number of teaching and other duties merely spreads the teacher a bit thinner and makes the teaching less satisfactory to both staff and pupils," Carrothers comments. "When we turn to the schools for help on every conceivable type of community enterprise, it is no wonder that the teaching is not up to standard."
Nearly 100 per cent of the poor performance of children is the fault of adults, Carrothers charges. Parental indifference is demonstrated by the failure of parents to visit the schools and become acquainted with teachers, by their failure to supervise the study of their children, and by their unwillingness to stay at home evenings with their children to develop a satisfactory home life.
The community at large likewise shares in the blame for school failures, the University educator believes. Communities oftentimes do not realize or understand what education really is. They mistake diplomas or grades for education, and therefore insist that children receive passing grades to be graduated from high school whether or not they have learned anything.
Of course, there are other reasons for pupil failures, Carrothers admits. Among these are lack of interest on the part of the pupils, lack of understanding of pupils by the teacher, and lack of youth to do the work expected, "spoon feeding" in home and school, and rigidity of school curriculum and requirements for both teachers and pupils.
Mrs. Todd Binder and infant daughter, Annette, have been dismissed from the Shaw hospital to their home on Pearl Street.

TIPS FOR FARMERS

By JOSEPH L. HEIRMAN
County Agricultural Agent

Spraying of potatoes is a paying proposition. We have proved in experimental and test plots that spraying with DDT improves the quality of the potatoes and steps up production from 60 to 100 bushels per acre.
The time to start is when the plants are four to five inches high. Spraying every 7 to 10 days is recommended, and more frequently if the season is wet. DDT will control the leaf beetle very well. The potato leaf hopper, which causes the edge and tip of the leaf to turn brown and curl, also is effectively exterminated with the new killer. This hopper causes severe damage after haying time as it leaves the hay fields and migrates to the potato fields after hay is cut.
Contrary to the opinion of some, DDT can be used effectively with Bordeaux mixture or a fixed copper solution. The Bordeaux mixture or fixed copper solution will control blight. DDT should be added last and the solution sprayed as heavy as 125 gallons to the acre. The tractor operator should drive slowly to get adequate coverage.

Too often, farmers quit spraying too quickly. When the plants are large, spraying is difficult, but 60 per cent of the potato field is made in the last few weeks of the season. For this reason spraying should be continued until frost or harvest.
Proper formulas for spraying potatoes using the different ingredients can be had for the asking at the County Agricultural Agent's office.

SUMMARY SHOWS FOREST FIRE TOLL

Increase in Total Attributed To Several Fires During March-April

The figures apply only to lands over which the department of conservation has fire responsibility and does not cover those under U. S. Forest Service jurisdiction.

Every year the average American can use 225 pounds of paper and paper products — more than any other product excepting water or milk.
An upper peninsula forest fire summary by the conservation department for the week ending July 20 reveals that there were three fires totalling 15.5 acres in District Four, which includes the east half of Alger county, Schoolcraft, Luce, Chippewa and Mackinac counties.
In other districts of the peninsula the summary shows: District One, (Keweenaw, Houghton, Baraga, Ontonagon and Gogebic counties) two fires totalling 1.5 acres; District Two, (Iron, Menominee and Dickinson counties), two fires totalling one-half acre; District Three Delta, Marquette

★ About that old prescription Dr. Jones wrote for you two years ago. The bottle is on the shelf in your medicine cabinet, about one-fourth full. It would be safer for you and your family to discard it. Someone might take it by mistake, or a child may be attracted to it by the bright color and do himself harm. Many medicines deteriorate after exposure to light and air. On long standing, some compounds change their chemical structure. Yes, the safe thing to do is throw it away. If illness again overtakes you, see your doctor. Bring his prescriptions to us for accurate compounding.

Insecticide Carelessness Cause Serious Accidents

The old story about the biscuits that were heavy last because the cook mistook "bug powder" for baking powder is not so ridiculous as it sounds since many serious accidents have resulted from carelessness with insecticides used in the home and garden. Observe the following safety rules when using insecticides: Keep all dusts and sprays in tightly sealed containers in a closet or tin, and keep them away from food and out of reach of children and animals. A high speed electric insecticide sprayer or carburetor may be the safest container. See that all containers holding insecticides are labeled as to contents and use. Take special care with the more poisonous insecticides and know them by name. They include the arsenicals—calcium arsenate, lead arsenate and Paris green; the fluorine compounds—sodium fluoride, sodium fluosulfate and cryolite; and the nicotine compounds—such as nicotine sulphate.

Obtain Shellac From Bug

The insect of India, after being hatched from one of the more than 1,000 eggs laid by the female of the species, migrates to the tree of its birth another tree, traveling slowly at first, but finally attaining a speed which may reach 10 feet a day. The insect, which is about one-twelfth of an inch long, punctures the bark of trees and draws out sap. Fine tubes, the insect exudes and encrusts itself with the resin which finally is processed into shellac. It is estimated that there are 88 known kinds of trees on which they may be found. About three-quarters of the shellac exported from India (about 20,000 tons leaves Calcutta annually) finally is used in the United States.

Steel Exports

Although during World War II the United States became the leading exporter of iron and steel in the world, in the years before the war this country was outranked by three European nations. In 1938, a representative prewar year, the United States supplied only 8 per cent of the international trade in steel plant products, despite the fact that then, as now, it operated virtually half of the world's steel capacity. World trade in steel plant products that year totaled nearly $600,000,000 and included 1,400,000 tons of which less than 1,000,000 tons were shipped from this nation. That total put this country in fifth place among nations which had shipped with nearly 4,000,000 tons; Belgium - Luxembourg, 3,800,000 tons; the United Kingdom, 3,300,000 tons; and France, 1,700,000 tons.

Agriculture Main Industry Of Mountainous Korea

Korea is a mountainous peninsula shaped like a lobster claw, reaching south from Manchuria toward Japan. With 83,000 square miles of area, Korea is almost once and a half the size of Florida which it roughly resembles in shape. It moved to the east coast of the United States, the country would stretch from Portsmouth, N. H., to Charleston, S. C. A rugged mountain chain parallels the east or Pacific coast, dominating in a general form of magnificent Alpe-like granite peaks. The land slopes gradually west and south, forming small plains on which most of the farming population is concentrated. Rivers are short and rapid, and only three are navigable for any distance. The east coast is jagged and forested, with only a few good harbors on the sea of Japan. Forty-foot tides which race in and out of the Yellow sea on the west coast, entering the straits of the Yellow sea. Through level land is rare, Korea is still chiefly an agricultural nation. Irrigated rice fields, the valleys, and the small plains are patched with fields of grain. Silk-cocoon cultivation thrives in southern Korea, and fishing villages dot the long coastline. Temperatures range about six degrees cooler than comparable areas along the American east coast, and the two regions require about the same amount of rainfall. But not nearly all Korean rain falls in the same season as ours.

THE ROAD TO WAR

According to a recent nation-wide survey, 62 percent of the American people now believe that we will have another world war within 25 years. Only 24 percent believe that we will have a lasting peace.

The diminishing faith of the American people in man's ability to prevent wholesale murder and destruction on an incredible scale is in itself a terrible commentary on the state of the world. Its origins are obvious enough.

What nation wants this? What government, no matter how greatly it distrusts its neighbors, will assume the awful responsibility for another war? What differences are so important that they cannot be reconciled in the interest of a lasting peace?

The Hobbs bill is the result. It simply makes it unlawful for unionists, along with everyone else, to interfere with interstate commerce by extortion or robbery. It does not interfere with labor's rights to strike or picket. It is in no sense a "class" measure.

It is a remarkable fact that some labor leaders vehemently objected to the passage of this bill by congress, and its signing by the President. To all intents and purposes, those objectors were saying, in effect, that union labor has a right to racketeer, to threaten, and to use violence to gain its ends.

At long last the upper peninsula is getting a share of publicity in all sections of the United States—publicity that is being given without charge by trade magazines, newspapers and national reading media.

Latest of many articles appearing in recent issues of magazines is a feature on the birthing tournament held annually in Gladstone and which appears in the current issue of "Holiday" magazine. It describes adequately the sport that attracts thousands to Gladstone and is accompanied by several color pictures.

The plain fact is that such a measure should have been enacted long ago, and congress' long delay in passing it is indefensible. The Hobbs bill is not designed as the answer to all our labor difficulties. It simply puts unionists on the same basis as all other citizens so far as the observance of ordinary rules of law and order is concerned.

Upper Peninsula Getting Publicity All Over Country
