Without any fanfare and while there was much discussion about it, Charles Kauppi of Gay and Copper Harbor proceeded to boat service between the Keweenaw peninsula and Isle Royale. Now he has decided to put another boat into operation, having ordered a 42-foot cabin cruiser designed along the same lines as the vessel he operated during the 1937 season.

Poems In Snowstorms

THIS is a work-a-day world and most of us are so engrossed in the business of making a living that we fail to see the charms around us on every hand. Fortunately for us a poet exists here and there who make us pause in spite of ourselves while he interprets the message of our surroundings to us. He may possess money enough to keep the breath of life in his body, or he may starve in a garret as many poets have, but at any rate he exhibits a discerning eye and a magic pen.

Professor Cissel, consulting structural engineer of Ann Arbor, will meet with officers and directors of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau at Marquette this week end. He will probably ask the bureau to go on record as favoring the release of a $75,000 fund for study of the proposed Mackinac Straits bridge and will probably get the bureau's endorsement.

WARM WEATHER BRINGS SLUSH

Numerous Accidents Are Reported in City; Walks Cleared

A second consecutive day of January thaw brought every evidence of spring to Escanaba, especially sloping streets.

Cars and pedestrians waded through slush yesterday afternoon after the warm weather had melted most of the snow on the streets.

A large number of property owners and business men, encouraged by the thaw, took time off to clear the ice and snow from the sidewalks in front of homes and business establishments.

The large number of accidents, due mostly to kidding when drivers are unable to stop because of the cover conditions, brought a warning to drivers from Chief of Police M. F. Ettenhofer.

County Schools Lose $17,624 By Reduction In Revenues Of State

Schools of Delta county, excepting Escanaba and Gladstone, have lost $17,624.96 from estimated revenues as a result of recent additional reductions in state aid, according to figures released yesterday by C. P. Titus, county commissioner of schools.

In commenting on this loss, Titus said: "These figures point out three things very clearly: First, when school authorities ask for a given appropriation that amount is needed. This is in contrast with certain departments which ask for twice what they need with the hope of getting half of what they ask. Secondly, is the education of school children a state function or not, as stated in the ordinance of 1877 and the constitution of Michigan? Thirdly, if education is a state function which all agree it is, schools must have some method of support in the future which is more or less stable, so it will not be necessary for school authorities to go to Lansing every two years and participate in a lobby to get enough money to run the next two years."

Cheney Does Work
In 1933 after the passage of the 15 mill amendment, the Thatcher-Sias bill was passed which supplemented the local funds allocated to the district out of local taxes and the primary fund to the amount of fifteen million dollars. This state aid was distributed under the heading of two funds, Primary Supplement Fund and the Equalization Fund. The latter fund was added to the bill after the successful campaign waged by former superintendent of schools, R. E. Cheney, and the Upper Peninsula Association of School Board Members. This fund was designed to help the poorer sections with a low valuation based on a minimum school program of $40 per elementary child and $65 per high school child.

In 1935 the Thatcher-Sias bill was amended and became the Thatcher-Saur bill. This appropriated $36,400,000 for the year ending June 30, 1935 and $37,400,000 for the year ending June 30, 1937. This appropriation was cut five percent by Governor Fitzgerald in order to balance the budget. The distribution of these funds was based on a minimum program of $48 per elementary child and $65 per high school child. This bill proved better than the preceding bill in the sparsely populated sections due to the fact the minimum program was stepped up but was not adequate for running schools in the northern part of Lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

In 1937 the Thatcher-Saur bill was again amended appropriating $43,000,000 to the schools of the state minus the primary fund which was pegged at fifteen million for the year ending June 30, 1938, and each succeeding year thereafter.

Fund Cut Again
The appropriation was cut this year by Governor Murphy to balance the budget. Due to the fact that the attorney general ruled the primary money could not be cut, the cut was placed on $25,000,000 making the total appropriation $40,200,000 including the primary money. The minimum program was stepped up to $55 per elementary child and $75 per high school child. After the state educational department got all of the districts estimated according to the minimum program they found that $40,200,000 was insufficient money to fulfill the needs, therefore, it was necessary to pro-rate the money to the districts, which amounted to the same thing to the districts as an additional cut of six percent even though the $40,200,000 was not cut further by the governor.

It will be remembered that school officials throughout the state were asking the legislators for $47,000,000 to support the minimum program of 55-75 which they felt sure was the minimum needed. However, it was necessary to accept a compromise of $43,000,000 due to the fact that such institutions as the state hospitals, home for the feeble minded, the boys and girls vocational schools were in such an over crowded and deplorable condition. Also the state highway department was asking $5,000,000 to supplement their funds.

It was pointed out by some lobbyist at the time that the schools were receiving more money than they ever had before. This, however, is not true, and was advanced to suit their particular arguments. In 1930-31 the schools of the state received $98,851,130 from all sources of revenue; in 1936-37 the schools received only $79,398,362 from all sources of revenue. This is approximately $19,452,768 less than in 1930-31 even though the school enrollment has increased by twenty-five thousand.

LOCAL SCHOOLS GIVEN HONORS

Escanaba Debaters Win Way in Elimination Contests

Escanaba high school debaters, coached by Bertrand Henne, have been entered in the annual elimination debating series in the Upper Peninsula according to information received by Principal Edward Edick.

The local debaters won the right to compete in the elimination series by victories over Menominee, Mackinac and Manistique. But one defeat, that at the hands of Ishpeming, marred their record.

Other Upper Peninsula schools which scored at least 11 points and won the right to enter the elimination series are Gladstone, Bessemer, Marenisco, Kingsford, Alpha, Ishpeming, Hancock and Wakefield.

Escanaba, like the eight other schools, will receive a complimentary plaque donated each year to teams entering the elimination series.

Members of the Escanaba team during the present year were

A rousing pep session for the George Ramspeck, Frank Bender, Beatrice Morton and Allan Earle. The local team won the right to enter the elimination series during the first year of Henne's regime as coach here. However, the honor is not a new one to the local mentor, whose teams at Gladstone in the past several years have won peninsula championships and progressed to the finals in the state championships.

Escanaba-Ishpeming game was held Friday morning during the activity period in the auditorium, presented by homeroom 106. Master of ceremonies was Lawrence Bjarquist.

After a number from the basketball band, a court scene was enacted with Lloyd Jensen as attorney and Jack Eitenhofer and Kenneth Buckland as jurists. Stanton Abrahamson, Robert Barron, Ray Bennett, Robert Boyle, Ray Els, Kenneth Frederickson, Wesley Hanson, Iver Olson, Elmer Swanson, and Gordon Hurley, who are team members, were "tried" with many questions.

Norma Lou Burns representing Escanaba and Phil Cunningham as Ishpeming in grotesque, old fashioned array, tap danced an amusing burlesque. Cheerleaders led the student body in a new yell and Dale Boes, with his mandolin, and Wilbur Leonard, accompanying on his guitar, entertained with two numbers.

The program closed with comical skits on the general theme of the team members ten years from now.

The camera club under George Ruwitch took pictures of the program which they will sell to the students for purchasing more photography equipment.

Profit realizing appeared at the start and continued throughout, although volume never was sufficient to enliven the ticker tape.

Early quiet strength in air-crafts, rubbers, oils and specialties faded subsequently.

The president's remarks at his press conference expressing satisfaction over his meetings with business chieftains engendered some hope the economic stalemate would soon be broken.

While individual rails developed weakness, prominent members of this group held fairly well.

Bonds and commodities offered little assistance to stocks.
