

CIRCUIT COURT PLEAS CHANGED

Only Civil Cases Remain for Jury Trial at April Term

Pleas of guilty were made yesterday in all criminal cases before Judge Frank A. Bell in Delta county circuit court. The jury has been excused as far as the calendar of criminal cases is concerned, but will serve at the hearing of several civil cases this week.

John Uzo, charged with assault, changed his plea to guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon. Adam Eklinen, charged with breaking and entering, changed his plea to guilty of larceny from a building.

Uzo was brought into court on charges of assault arising out of a fight at Indiantown, near Nahma, in which Alec Youkenovich suffered severe head wounds as the result of a blow with a double-bitted axe. Esklinen was charged with the theft of $20 from the Rock tea room on April 6.

Clyde Ducheny, charged with bastardy, changed his plea to guilty. Sentence was suspended upon his promise to pay $5.00 per month to the county poor commissioner, commencing May 1, for the support of the child. The payments are to continue for 5 years, and Ducheny is to remain under the supervision of probation officer John Judson.

The district parole supervisor, Emery E. Jacques of Marquette, was in the city yesterday to investigate violations of parole in Delta county.

A chancery case, Roeser vs. Anderson, was completed yesterday afternoon. In a decree issued by Judge Bell, foreclosure of a mortgage was authorized on a judgment totaling $2,440.20.

A Proclamation

Friday, April 15th, 1938, being Good Friday, preceding Easter Sunday, the day that the Christian world commemorates the suffering and death of Jesus Christ, the founder of Christianity, the custom of suspending all business and industrial activities between the hour of 12:00 o'clock noon and 3:00 o'clock p. m. on Good Friday is now a nation-wide observance.

Therefore, as Mayor of the City of Escanaba, I respectfully request the observance of Good Friday during the above mentioned hours and earnestly support the movement for cessation of business and industrial activity during these hours.

First Of Season's Ore Loaded At Virgil Mine

Preparations for the opening of ore-carrying operations through the docks at Escanaba got under way yesterday as the first loads were dumped into ore cars direct from the pockets at the Spies mine, Iron River. Word has been received at the C & N W docks here that the first vessel of the season will probably arrive next week.

RACING BOATS NEED NUMBERS

Federal Regulations Require Use of Certain Gear

Marquette, Mich.—Because of numerous violations of the motor boat act in and about Marquette in the last two years, A. F. Pittman, commander of the United States coast guard patrol boat Nansumond, pointed out yesterday that if a boat under 16 feet in length is designed for outboard motor use, it must have the required equipment of a Class I motorboat.

Pittman also said that if such a boat is designed for outboard motor use, it also must be numbered: "If the boat is under 16 feet in length and not so designed, it does not have to be numbered," he said.

Failure to comply with the equipment provision requirement involves a penalty of $100 against the owner, it was said.

Violations have been many here lately among the small boats that put out from Middle Island point and Presque Isle harbor, Pittman reported. "The coast guard and other departments enforcing navigation and motorboat laws of the United States are not allowed to give warning even in a first offense, and a boat being reported will be held liable for the fines in the U. S. courts, or as advised by the secretary of commerce or collector of the customs."

In cases of violations for not having fire fighting apparatus and proper life jackets, the fines will not be remitted. Among equipment required in a Class I motorboat are an approved life jacket, fog whistle, fire extinguisher and a copy of pilot rules.

Anyone seeking more detailed information regarding the motorboat laws may contact the United States coast guard station or the coast guard patrol boat Nansumond in Marquette, Pittman said.

ROTES TO HEAR DR. WIGGAM

Noted Author Scheduled to Speak at Antigo Meet May 9-10

One of the outstanding numbers on the program for the district conference of Rotary International to be held in Antigo on May 9 and 10, is Dr. Albert Edward Wiggam noted author and lecturer.

When Dr. Wiggam published his "This New Decalogue of Science" in 1923, and sprang overnight into world wide fame, not only as an interpreter of science but as a social and political philosopher, there naturally came an enormous demand for him as a lecturer. Audiences immediately discovered that he was one of the most gifted and polished public speakers of our time.

Other books followed these, each of which had an immense sale and added to his position as a sound student of both science and public affairs. These were "Exploring Your Mind with the Psychologists," "The Next Age of Man," "The Marks of an Educated Man," "The Marks of a Clear Mind"; and Dr. Wiggam is now writing two books: "How to Live More Abundantly" and "Who Shall Inherit America?"

In addition, in collaboration with Mrs. Wiggam, who likewise collaborates on all of his books, he writes a daily illustrated, popular social science newspaper feature, "Let's Explore Mind," which reaches a circulation of ten million every day throughout the United States and Canada. He is also a constant contributor to popular magazines—Good Housekeeping, The American Magazine, Cosmopolitan, Readers Digest, etc.

In recognition of his distinguished achievements a number of honorary degrees have been bestowed upon Dr. Wiggam by colleges and universities.

Main Street

Interesting Items of Day Picked Up Around Town

Seagulls milled and wheeled over the water at the east end of Ludington street yesterday afternoon, their cries attracting the attention of people for several blocks around. Nobody seemed to know the reason for their disturbance. Fishermen suggested that there might be a school of smelt near the surface of the harbor, but the birds didn't dive and bring anything up. One suggestion was that the milling around and calling of the flock might be a part of their mating ritual.

Heard on the street yesterday was the story that the silvery smelt run in the Ford river is of such great proportions now that the fish are also running to the spawning beds in the day-time. Big catches are reported to have been made between 9 and 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The Escanaba Chamber of Commerce office is receiving newspaper clippings of Escanaba Smelt Jamboree stories from all parts of the country. A large scrapbook is almost filled with clippings already.

SCHOOL IS BROKE

Menominee—Unless the state approves an application of the Stephenson township school board for a $6,000 loan advance on its next year's state aid budget, it is questionable whether the township will be able to finance a complete school term this spring.

Travers Osterhout, Stephenson school superintendent, said today. The school district scraped together enough money to pay its teacher's salaries last Friday, but there is not any left for future expenses, the school superintendent said. Unless the state meets the board's request for an advance payment in state aid, the school year will either have to be curtailed or other means devised to meet expenses.

SEAL CAMPAIGN REPORT GIVEN

Sale of Stickers Will Close in County on Sunday

A total of $302.52 has been realized from the sale of Easter Seals in Delta county with but four days left, it was announced yesterday by William Warmington, campaign treasurer. This amount is slightly below that of last year but there are many returns left to be made.

The sale will end Easter Sunday. Children who started life with the enormous handicaps of crippled limbs can gradually be absorbed in the normal pursuits around them. These children can become happy and contented.

But such a picture as this can not be made simply by building a volley ball court. Only years of research, months of skillful manipulation and treatment of crippled limbs and a determined effort to make the public conscious of the problems of the crippled child can do that.

The Michigan Society for Crippled Children was formed for the sole purpose of focusing public attention on this problem, long neglected or ignored, and urging the public through its local organizations to help solve the problem.

The annual Seal campaign of the Society and its affiliated local committees helps to provide some of the money for this undertaking. The Society is offering for sale its Easter Seals to help finance this necessary work.

The Seals, yellow and blue and white, show a girl with a crutch under her arm watering a lily plant. They will be on sale here until Sunday. The slogan is "A Better Life for Crippled Children."

TEACHERS WILL HOLD MEETINGS

Two Conferences Planned for Week End of April 22-23

Two important meetings for teachers of this district will be held in the peninsula on the week end of April 22 and 23, it was learned yesterday from Supt. of Schools John A. Lemmer.

The first will be a conference staged on Friday evening by the state vocational department. This meeting will be held in the junior high school here and will be conducted by George Fern, of Lansing, director of the state vocational department. He will be assisted by George Gilbert, regional supervisor of the Marquette office. It will be open to teachers from the area surrounding Escanaba.

The second meeting will be held at Northern State Teachers College in Marquette on Saturday and will be a curriculum conference. Several local teachers are planning on attending this confab, the subject of which will be: "Adjustment to Subject Matter to Different Mental Abilities."

The morning session will be devoted to elementary school curriculum and the afternoon to high school problems. Mrs. Barbara Semer, principal of the Franklin school, will speak at the morning session.

Jury Employed by Probate Judge in Delinquency Trial

A jury impaneled for trial of a juvenile case at Judge Frank Mileski's Delta county probate court last week, for the first time in many years. Allegations against a boy accused of being delinquent were proved to be unfounded.

It was charged by the petitioner and his custodian that the boy was unmanageable and beyond the control of those in authority, and the request was made that he be committed to an institution. After the trial Judge Mileski remarked, "Had I known the facts as they actually were, the lad would not have been brought into court at all." The charges against him were proved completely unfounded at the trial, at which twelve witnesses were heard. "The complaint could not prove the charges as alleged," Judge Mileski stated, "and the boy was discharged."

Those serving on the jury of six were N. Carr, J. O. Moberg, Earl DeLisle, Walter C. Bisher, Norbert J. Reidy and John S. Gauflin.

Erie Fishermen Fight For Boost Of Fish Tariff

BY PAUL MAY
Washington, D. C.—Representative Jesse P. Wolcott said today that he would appear before the reciprocity board on Wednesday to support the fight being brought by Erie fishermen for a 50 per cent increase in tariff rates on Canadian fish.

Wolcott said that Michigan fisheries have been widely victimized, not only by competition from Canadian fishermen, but from the Canadian government which has on many occasions seized American nets in boundary disputes.

A revision of the tariff treaty, setting up a definite boundary in order, Wolcott said. The representative has written to the state department, making that suggestion, which will be made to the board on Wednesday.

Michigan fishermen cannot compete with Canadians due to cheaper labor and equipment costs in Canada, but it is felt that the tariff increase will alter that situation to the satisfaction of the American side, and that a revision of the treaty with respect to boundaries will eliminate present disputes.

Wolcott added that any revision of the treaty with respect to boundaries would have the effect of protection to the fish in international waters. Such protection is much to be desired, he said.

Detroit-Cleveland Tour Bureaus Open

The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau announces that a Michigan tourist information bureau has been opened in Detroit and is now serving the public. The location is at 133 W. Adams street, and George Cushing is in charge.

A Michigan tourist bureau will also be opened April 15th at the Hotel Statler in Cleveland, with W. F. Peterson in charge. These bureaus, as well as others maintained by the state and the larger tourist associations, will handle the local resorting literature of Michigan communities, hotels, camps, etc., without charge.

SCOUTS HOLD MEET APRIL 19

Theatres

Every once in a while something comes along that revives a jaded oldest's faith in youth and love. Such a heart-warming piece is "Love, Honor and Behave" which opened yesterday at the Delft theatre. Two of the most engaging youngsters ever to step before a camera, a true-to-life love story, rollicking with human comedy, fine understanding direction, and a love song which has already taken the country by storm are the component parts of "Love, Honor and Behave." But, seeing the picture, you won't bother to break it up into its parts—you'll just laugh, shed a tear or two, live the story through and be awfully glad you came.

The present year marks a further step forward in the working out of a national measuring stick to determine the skill of the more than 15,000,000 Americans who play contract bridge in some form. For a number of years the national bridge organizations have determined the standings of tournament winners through the award of Master Points.

the national ranking of America's greatest sport. One of the first players in New York to win National Rating Points was Harold Chase, who made a daring game contract in no trump on the West hand, while others were content with a part score in hearts, or went down at a game contract. Despite South's great strength, only an opening club lead would have beaten the contract. West was permitted to win the first trick with the jack. As he ran his six hearts, South was forced to find four discards. He gave up one club, one diamond and two spades. West then led his spade king, and South cashed the ace and queen of spades and the two high clubs, but was then forced to give up the last two tricks.

Houghton, Mich.—The Copper Country Vacationist league of upper Michigan has issued two exceptional tourist folders which cannot fail to make a strong bid for summer patronage.

Keweenaw Land and Isle Royale are fittingly portrayed with maps and pictures of a high order and copper-colored inks are used with pleasing effect. The Brockway Mountain Drive, Keweenaw golf course, club house and cottages, wild life and fish, Isle Royale national park, Michigan Tech, and the lovely wooded area and bold lake shores of Keweenaw and Houghton counties are portrayed in a striking way.

One of the booklets carries no advertising, while the cost of the other is partially defrayed by local concerns. "This is our invitation to you to spend your vacation among the many places of interest and beauty in Keweenaw Land—Houghton and Keweenaw counties," says one of the booklets. "Keweenaw Land, like a gleaming star in the northern heavens, set a wave of immigration surging northward a century ago. To those adventurous ones who were lured here by the discovery of virgin copper, Keweenaw Land was a land of fabled wonders, of beauty and charm beyond the vision of those who had not yet glimpsed her vast green forests, fertile valleys, streams and lakes, her shore line with Superior's surf lapping and murmuring on the sands.

Florida has about 90 electrical storms every year.

Michigan In Washington

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty
If "reform" bills are sidetracked to give way to relief and recovery legislation, the controversial Wage-Hour bill may not be considered this week as anticipated before the defeat of the reorganization bill suggested that perhaps this was not an auspicious time.
Now if the Treasury billion dollar "inactive fund" is used to help finance the huge public works program, as a relief need, it is not unlikely that the backers of the Mackinac Straits Bridge will see what can be done.
The tentative plan is to make it possible for states and communities to borrow from the government without interest and with 50 years in which to pay the loan.

Michigan's most prominent bride, Betty Vandenberg Pfeiffer and her good looking husband, Edward J. Pfeiffer, New York advertising man, are back from a 10 day honeymoon in Bermuda. They were welcomed in New York by Arthur Vandenberg, jr. and Mrs. Barbara Knight, brother and sister of the bride.
After a week of getting ready, the young Pfeiffers leave New York for a three or four months' business trip across the country for the Macfadden publications, with whom Mr. Pfeiffer is connected.

It was good and unexpected news to Senator Vandenberg that his daughter has decided not to give up her career as a pianist, as she had earlier announced. In fact, on this trip she plans to get in many hours of practicing in preparation for some tentatively arranged concerts.
Probably her first return to Washington will be to play with her former teacher, Kurt Hetzel, sometime in June. An appearance with the Grand Rapids symphony is also now in prospect.

As anticipated the 22 million dollar bill to continue the work of some 300 about-to-be-abandoned CCC camps was approved by Congress. This means life to ten camps: Raco, Kenton, Bitley, Iron River, Watersmeet, Wetmore, Atlanta, Harrison, Manistique and Kalkaska.

A growing sentiment is seen in the House to make the CCC not only permanent but to enlarge it.
The route of the new airmail service between Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie to the Upper Peninsula will be from Detroit to Sault Ste. Marie, via Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Cheboygan covering approximately 310 miles. Bids, already advertised, will be opened by Farley in Washington on May 3rd. The approval of Congress for such an appropriation is a special triumph for Representative John Luecke, of Escanaba.

No drastic change in wage rates is to be made to sugar beet laborers in production, cultivation, or harvesting of the 1938 crop by producers who qualify for federal payments under the Sugar Act of 1937. Under the act the Secretary of Agriculture sets up the "fair" wages.

In Michigan, as in Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin, $11 per acre will be paid for blocking, thinning and hoeing. Pulling and topping $7 for 7 tons or less per acre, plus $1 for each ton per acre in excess.

10,976 Elk Escape Yellowstone Hunters

Yellowstone National Park (P)—There are approximately 10,976 elk remaining in the huge Yellowstone National Park herd, James A. Weaver, game warden, estimated after a recent count. The census was taken by Weaver, park rangers and forest service officials who spent three days at the task.
Hunters killed 3,500 of the animals during the 1937-38 open season but officials said the herd still was considered too big to graze comfortably on the available range.

Easter Cruise

BY MARION WHITE Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JOYCE MILNER, heroine; she took an Easter Cruise. DICK HAMILTON, hero; he bumped into the heroine.

Yesterday, Dick goes ashore at Hamilton on some special mission and Mr. Gregory asks Joyce to go with him. She declines, hoping Dick will call her instead.

CHAPTER VII

Dick was waiting at the ship's rail when Joyce came aboard. "I tried to see you this morning," he said, "but Dr. Gray chased me off. Joyce, are you all right?"

"Of course I am, Dick." "You might have caught pneumonia." "Nonsense. The whole thing seems nothing at all in daylight."

"Here, let's sit down a moment." He led her over to his deck chair. The whole row of chairs was deserted now, with most of the passengers just returned from shore or watching for late arrivals.

"Believe me, we won't try any more tricks like that. I was all set to suggest another happy two-some in Havana Friday night, but I don't dare. We'll tag along with the sheep. You'll come with me, Joyce?"

Her eyes twinkled. "I even dared to hope you'd ask me." For a moment he regarded her speculatively. "I still can't be sure of you. First I thought it was perversity that wouldn't let us get together—your perversity, if you remember yesterday morning. But after last night, I'm willing to believe that it must be destiny..."

"Don't talk like that! I'll expect an earthquake in Havana—or at least another revolution." He laughed. "Then we'd better stick close to Mrs. Porter. I do believe she could manage a revolution."

"Undoubtedly. You saw what happened last night to the first two rebels." He took out a cigaret, lit it slowly and leaned back in his chair, watching a group of small fishing boats off shore.

Suddenly Joyce straightened in her chair. "I wonder what's going on," she said, looking astern. The passengers were grouped at the rail now, staring intently down at the water, and there was a great shouting and commotion.

"It's a sea!" Dick jumped to his feet and pulled her out of the chair. Standing at the rail, they saw two small launches drawing up to the unsteady floating platform of the companionway. The first was bringing back a happy but unsteady Mr. O'Hara, and watching him, one wondered how he would ever be able to accomplish the rickety steps under his own power.

They were narrow steps, with only a flimsy hand-rail for a steady arm to grasp. In the second launch, Mrs. O'Hara sat in grim and arrogant determination, oblivious to the comments and the commotion.

"That's my bridge partner," Joyce pointed out. Dick laughed. "The old man certainly waited to finish his last rubber."

As the first launch drew up to the platform, Mr. O'Hara stood up confidently and managed to lift himself over the launch and landed securely on the platform was nothing short of a miracle. Now a seaman steadied him and started him on his way up the steps, where another member of the crew came forward to meet him.

The first launch backed off, making way for the second. Mrs. O'Hara, still imperiously attractive in her immaculate white suit, stepped over and started up. Her husband was nearing the top.

But the effort proved too much. The energy required to climb had borrowed too much power from his legs and his foot slipped. True, a seaman was in front to catch a hold, but Mr. O'Hara was a heavy man. Back he went, down the stairway, and the dead weight of his body struck his wife with sudden force.

On deck passengers gasped as they heard a splash. They held their breath in a long moment of suspense. Then, from the center of the widening circle of small ripples, they saw Mrs. O'Hara's head appear, her hair clinging to her face in long, straggly strands, her spotted white hair still on her head but not so spotted, and pushed down in front so that only her mouth showed. And this mouth worked convulsively, as if she would shout forth her vengeance, but the oily water surrounding the ship had filled it too full for words.

On the stairway, where he now stood upright and secure, Mr. O'Hara gazed down upon his wife's unfortunate plight. There was distress, dull but sincere, written in his expression. And he put himself out to assume an attitude of gallantry; he bowed from the waist, unsteadily but graciously, as if to say: "Madam, I'm sorry I stepped on your foot."

Like a plump white rubber duck slowly deflating, the woman floundered about in the water. Strong arms reached out for her, but she was beyond their reach. There was only one thing left to do. One of the crew tossed out a life preserver and Mrs. O'Hara was dragged to the platform, dripping and grimy. She stood up, still imperious. Then, with a last flourish of dignity, she proceeded up the steps, from whence her husband had disappeared in a miraculously short moment. She walked past the gaping passengers, her head high, her eyes burning in wild arrogance. And as she walked, water oozed out of her shoes and dripped from her clothing, leaving a trail for memory.

Dick shook his head, chuckling. "Let me give you one bit of advice," he offered. "Don't play bridge with her tonight!" Standing at the rail they watched the quick and efficient weighing of the ship's huge anchor, the closing of the gangway. In a remarkably short time the Empress was under way again, moving slowly away from the island where so much had happened in the last few hours.

Dick spun his cigaret far out into the water, and they returned to their chairs. For a while they sat there quietly, watching the Bermuda shore fade more and more into the distance. Joyce wondered when she would ever see it again; she thought too of the grief they had left behind them, the loss of Obadiah Jones' boat. Evidently Dick's thoughts were on the same subject for presently he said, simply: "I saw Obadiah this morning. Joyce brightened. 'I'm so glad you did, Dick!' she said heartily. 'I was just thinking of him. It took him seven years to buy the boat.'"

He nodded, thoughtfully. "And seven seconds to rip the bottom out of it, because I was in a hurry to get to a dance." "How did you find him?" "I asked for him on the wharf. One of his friends told me where he lived. Boy, I felt like a heel when I went in the door! You'd think the boat was part of the family; even the tiniest pickaninny was crying about it."

FIRE FIGHTING WORK BEGINS

Equipment Is Distributed to Strategic Spots in Woods Areas

Lansing—Distribution has been started of some of the equipment which will be used to fight what-ever forest fires occur in Michigan this year.

This procedure is part of the annual spring job of getting ready for the fire season which is regarded as usually beginning about this time in the lower peninsula and from a week to two weeks later in the upper peninsula, variances in time being due to weather conditions.

The equipment now being taken out of winter storage consists of shovels, axes, back pumps, pails and other kinds of small tools used in fire fighting. The equipment is being distributed to that part of the fire organization known as "key men," selected individuals who are not full-time employees of the department of conservation but who are summoned to duty when needed to fight a fire. They comprise an auxiliary but trained force scattered through the fire region which can be mobilized quickly in times of emergency, fully equipped to go into quick action.

Other preparations for the fire season which are now underway consist of such chores as re-installing maps and alledades in the fire towers, replacing treads on the ladders by which the towers are scaled and hooking up communication lines.

The call to towermen in the spring is issued as soon as weather conditions suggest danger of fire. Usually the first towermen to take up their vigil are those whose towers are located in the grassy areas which are likely to dry out first. In the past among the first towermen to go on duty are those in the Allegan, Gladwin, Norway and Escanaba regions.

Stewart H. Holbrook Writes Lusty Saga Of Old Lumberjack

The lusty paths of the American lumberjack have all but faded out in the new growth of farms and towns and cities that followed their wake from Maine to Oregon. And it is high time that the saga of the tall timbers be adequately recorded.

Stewart H. Holbrook, himself a logger, has done this in his rousing book, "Holy Old Mackinaw" and one will go a long way to match his epic tale.

Epic because the American lumberjack is certainly one of the most colorful characters the nation ever produced. In his heyday he cut a mighty swath across the continent, opening up whole states, pushing back whole frontiers, and for that matter he still swings through the dark forests of the Pacific northwest. But the lumberjack, 1938 brand, is a far cry from the tobacco-chewing, two-listed, hard-drinking hellions who laid low the Maine woods in the early 1800s, moved on with majestic sweep to Michigan and Minnesota still later, and finally hit trail's end in the far west only a few years ago. They boasted of "logger's small-pox," pits on their bodies left by steel-chalked boots of their opponents, worked 14-hour days and they felled so much timber that at one time in Bangor the channel to the sea clogged with pine slabs and the army dredges had to clear it out.

But the ax went on swinging and the timber barons moved scarcely a jump ahead buying up whole townships at 12 1/2 cents to $1.25 an acre. Roaring camps and gaudy ladies followed close behind. Then suddenly the whole business stopped as quickly almost as it had started. The big job was done.

So Mr. Holbrook writes of a vanishing race of strong men and his book is likely to be the best definitive history of this rambling logger that we are likely to see for some time.

Gives KruGon All Credit for Present Glorious Health

Pains In Back Had Made Her Lame for Years, Could Not Enjoy Her Meals for Awful Suffering; Entire System Toned

"I recommend KruGon as a medicine of true ability," said Mrs. Beader Jones, 1817 Liberty Ave., Beloit, Wisconsin. "For many years I had suffered so with kidney and bowel troubles until my entire system had become clogged with poisons disordering my stomach. I could not eat a single meal without great distress afterwards of gas and bloating. The kidney troubles had caused such dreadful back pains I was actually lame at times. I was forced to get up at all hours of the night because of too frequent action and it was impossible to get the rest I needed. My bowels were irregular too but there was nothing to help me... until I finally learned of KruGon.

"KruGon is entirely different from any medicine I have ever taken before," continued Mrs. Beader Jones. "Today I am feeling like a different person. I eat and enjoy my meals and am never troubled with that gas or bloating. Even those back pains have gone, bowels regulated, feel fine and am free of that tired, sluggish feeling which had bothered me constantly for so many years. No wonder sufferers laud KruGon, it accomplishes the seemingly impossible." KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ludington St., this city.

Wolcott Desires Railways To Keep U. S. Mail Business

BY PAUL MAY
Washington, D. C.—Representative Joseph P. Wolcott, of Michigan, blasted today a widespread rumor in the "thumb" region of Michigan that postal franchises were to be taken away from the railroads in that area, a move which has been feared would sound the death note to all railroad traffic in the area.

Mr. Wolcott reassured the fisheries and other industries of the "thumb" area, who have been worried about the probable disastrous effect of discontinuation of rail service, that withdrawal of postal franchises from the roads is not being considered.

Rumor that the postoffice department contemplated such action started in the district after a recent survey of conditions along the railroad which runs from Saginaw through the "thumb" and down to Port Huron. Wolcott said that his investigation revealed that the survey was just "routine". Were such action contemplated, he said, he would fight it.

HANCOCK FIRE RECALLED

Hancock—The city of Hancock observed today the 69th anniversary of the greatest fire in its history—but most people were unaware of the occasion.

Only old-time pioneer residents recall the great conflagration, but yellowed news accounts, dug from moldy records, renew with interest the events on the memorable day. On that day—a Sunday—the thriving village suffered losses totalling $284,000, while insurance covered $128,550.
