

REV. DAPPER WILL RETIRE

Friend to Give Concert At Spalding Church June 27-28

Spalding, Mich.—Rev. Fr. Peter J. Dapper, pastor of St. Francis Xavier church of Spalding during the past year, will be retiring from active clerical duties next week because of illness. An organ recital, which will be in the nature of a farewell affair in honor of the highly esteemed pastor, will be given by his long-time personal friend, Prof. Bernard S. Inkmann of Barton, Wis., at the Spalding church Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 27 and 28.

Rev. Fr. Dapper was born in Milwaukee, March 31, 1894. He was graduated from St. Francis Seminary near Milwaukee and celebrated his first mass at St. John's cathedral in Milwaukee, June 27, 1920. His first assignment was as assistant pastor at Sault Ste. Marie, where he remained for four years until his transfer to the pastorate of Sacred Heart church at Champlain and St. Agnes church at Michigamme, where he served 14 years. He came to Spalding, May 24, 1938, to succeed Rev. Fr. Joseph F. Schaul.

Father Dapper had been planning to stage the organ recital program a few months ago, but ill health interfered with his plans. He went to the Mayo clinic recently, and was advised there to discontinue his clerical duties. He has decided to enter St. Francis hospital after a successor is named at Spalding.

Father Dapper will sing a high mass of Thanksgiving on the nineteenth anniversary of his priesthood at St. Francis Xavier church next Tuesday morning.

Talented Musicians

Professor Inkmann, who will play the organ recitals Tuesday and Wednesday night, will be assisted by two talented Barton, Wis., vocalists, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kircher, the St. Francis Xavier choir and quartet. Professor Inkmann studied music at Pion Nok college and has served as organist at churches in Milwaukee and other cities.

All seats for Tuesday evening's concert will be reserved, and tickets may be obtained from the following places: William Rosenberg, Wilson; F. X. Labre, Spalding; and R. A. LaLonde, Powers. Seats will not be reserved for the Wednesday evening event.

Yachtsmen Urged To Attend Event At Marinette, Wis.

Escanaba yachtsmen, who are not able to compete in the consistency race for power boats today, are urged by Fred DuBrucq of the M. & M. Yacht club to travel by car to Marinette to take part in the festivities this evening. A banquet will be held at Marinette this evening. Yachtsmen of Green Bay, Escanaba, Gladstone, Marinette and Menominee have been invited to attend. Lency Clairmont is the only power yacht owner who has decided definitely to enter the race. Those wishing to arrange for transportation to Marinette this afternoon are asked to communicate with Atty. John Erickson. The dinner will be held at six o'clock.

Whitney Finds Plenty Of Hunting In Alaska

Word has been received that Jack Whitney, owner of the Escanaba Mink Ranch at Ford River, is enjoying a fine hunting trip in the wilds of Alaska, and that he does not expect to return home until about a month from now.

Whitney made a trip into the Alaskan country in a plane piloted by Joe Crosson, noted aviator. He has shot a number of bears, eagles and other game, he reported in his last letter.

A Hunter's Paradise

Few places in the world afford such a hunter's paradise as Alaska. Its forests, mountains, and river valleys provide an excellent habitat for a large variety of animals, ranging in size from the lordly moose and brown bear to the Sitka deer and the snowy ermine. Its streams and lakes abound in fish; in its bays and the ocean are found countless numbers of whales, walrus, seals, otters, and other sea animals. The feathery tribe, too, is well represented by several species, and nearly all in large numbers.

The early Russians were prompted to explore and colonize the Pacific Coast region of Alaska largely because of the wildlife. Alaska still suffers from the wholesale slaughter which marked the century of Russian control. Literally millions of sea otters were killed for profit as a means of enriching the coffers of the czar. As a result, this extremely valuable animal has been all but exterminated. Land otters and beavers were likewise the victims of indiscriminate destruction, but were not so completely eliminated. The early period of American ownership and control resulted in little, if any, improvement in the conditions surrounding Alaska's fur-bearing wildlife. It is only within recent years that adequate measures have been taken looking toward the preservation and propagation of fur-bearing animals as well as of big-game animals.

Bears in Alaska are numerous and are of four varieties—the brown, the polar, the grizzly, and the black bear. Black bears are the most widely distributed. They are found along the entire Pacific Coast region, as far west as the upper part of the Alaska Peninsula, both on the islands and the mainland. They are not of excessive size, the largest un-stretched skins taken seldom measuring eight feet in length. A color variation of the black bear is the so-called blue or glacier bear, found chiefly in the Sitka range of mountains. The cinnamon is another variety of the black bear found chiefly in interior Alaska.

The brown bear of Alaska is the largest of all carnivorous animals. These bears are widely known because of their size, strength, and ferocity. They have been known to attack and kill persons even when not provoked. Grizzly bears resemble those found in the United States proper. They inhabit the Kenai Peninsula, the Alaska Range, and the Nutzotin Mountains in South Central and Eastern Alaska and the Yukon River, and on the mainland in Southeastern Alaska. Although smaller than the brown bear, they are extremely ferocious and seldom stopped by a single shot.

Moose Provides Meat Supply

The Alaska moose is not only the largest game animal on the North American continent, but also the largest member of the deer family in the world. The average weight of a full-grown moose is 800 pounds, although some specimens attain a weight of 1600 pounds. The range of moose is very wide, including all the Arctic slope, Seward Peninsula, the delta regions of the Yukon and Kuskokwim, the Alaska Peninsula, the Mt. St. Elias region, and the coastal islands. Moose meat is a valuable food, resembling beef in texture. This animal provides a large part of the meat supply during the fall and winter months in many parts of the territory.

Caribou Most Numerous

The caribou is the most numerous of Alaska big-game animals, for hunting this beast is not classed as a sport, and as a result the caribou has been permitted to remain in large numbers. There are two general species—the woodland caribou of Kenai Peninsula and the adjacent coastal region, and the barren ground caribou. The former is not gregarious by nature and has a small range. The latter is gregarious and migratory and ranges over a great central belt stretching from beyond the Yukon Territory boundary as far north as the Arctic slope westward to within 100 miles of the mouth of the Kuskokwim and Yukon Rivers and Kotzebue Sound. Their habitat is largely the barren mountain ridges. They collect in large herds, especially in the early fall months when their migration begins. A barren ground caribou averages some 250 pounds in weight while the woodland variety is much larger.

The principal land fur-bearing animals are mink, beaver, fox, ermine, squirrel, marten, wolverine, and marmot. Of these the marten registers the smallest number—in fact so small as to warrant constant protection.

Among game birds are geese, ducks, grouse, brant and shore birds, such as the crane, curlew, snipe, plover, and sandpiper. All are protected by various restrictions to prevent their extinction.

Wildlife of Alaska is under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Biological Survey, the rules and regulations being administered by the Alaska Game Commission. The aim of these joint agencies is to preserve the wildlife of Alaska territory—in reality Uncle Sam's great zoo.

CORCORAN NEW DENTAL HEAD

U. P. Dentists Elect Local Man at 25th Annual Meeting

Dr. C. J. Corcoran of Escanaba was elected president for the coming year of the Upper Peninsula Dental Society, which yesterday held its twenty-fifth annual meeting at the Escanaba Elk's Club. Other officers elected at the business meeting yesterday afternoon were Dr. C. W. Pratt, Calumet, vice president, and Dr. F. C. Runge, Houghton, secretary-treasurer. It was also decided at that time that the 1940 meeting of the society will be held at Houghton.

This morning's program will include the fourth denture clinic sessions, presided over by Dr. R. O. Schlosser, of Northwestern university, at 8:30 and an address, "The Reaction of Tooth Tissue to Operative Dentistry," by Dr. Louis C. Schultz of the University of Michigan, at 10:30 o'clock.

Stag Lunch Today

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the Escanaba Country club will be the scene of a stag lunch and at 2 o'clock a golf tournament, with prizes offered through the courtesy of various dental supply firms will be played.

Yesterday's meetings included sessions of the denture clinic, headed by Dr. Schlosser, and a talk by Dr. Ralph H. Boos of Minneapolis on "The Fundamentals of Theory and Technique in Determining Centric Relation," in the morning, and a clinic and business meeting in the afternoon. A banquet at the Country Club in the evening was featured by remarks from Dr. Paul H. Jeserich, incoming president of the Michigan State Dental Society and the presence of Executive Secretary Terber of the society.

CITY APPROVES FLOAT PROJECT

Local Council Agrees to Pay $150 to Back Seaplane Dock

Authorizing the city to spend a maximum of $150 for materials on the project, the city council has agreed to sponsor the plan of N. J. Whelan, Lansing, coordinating supervisor of the NYA in Michigan to build a seaplane landing dock in Escanaba.

The projected float is described as supported by empty gasoline or oil drums to provide a place where persons can enter or disembark from seaplanes.

Mr. Whelan, stating that he represented Oren W. Kaye, Lansing state director of the NYA, and Col. Floyd E. Evans, director of the Michigan board of aeronautics, has also conferred with city officials in Menominee and has gained their support in a similar project there.

George Bean, city manager, says that all engineering of the project will be in the hands of the state board of aeronautics. City Engineer Aronson will, however, have direct supervision of the local phases of the job.

The location, Mr. Bean reveals, will be chosen after a representative of the state board visits Escanaba and surveys the possibilities. Several suitable sites will be announced and local citizens will have the choice of the ultimate location.

Since Escanaba officials were ready with their agreement to the project, Escanaba will probably be one of the first upper peninsula cities to be supplied with a seaplane dock. The surveying engineer should be in Escanaba soon, according to Mr. Bean, but the date of his actual arrival is not yet definite.

LOCAL HEADS ATTEND MEET

City Officers Go to Municipal League Convention

George E. Bean, city manager, A. V. Aronson, A. J. Manley, and E. E. Peterson, city engineer, treasurer, and comptroller respectively, attended the meeting of the Upper Peninsula division of the Michigan Municipal League held in Crystal Falls Thursday and Friday.

The main subject for discussion, according to Mr. Bean, was 1939 legislation as affecting the municipalities. One of the chief points brought forward for discussion was the effect of the 3 per cent sales tax on municipal products, which was contested by municipal leaders on the grounds of unconstitutionality. They point as their example, to the Michigan state constitution, which defines such products as being tax-free since they come under the division of functions of government.

Loss to the cities on old tax rolls as compared to the amount of revenue to be derived through the new "Intangibles Tax" was also discussed. Taxation was also the issue in the discussion of the new distribution of taxes between city and county governments. No action was taken on this particular question during the present session, however.

Sectional meetings, of interest to city officials in various departments were of special interest to engineers, treasurers, and those officials in charge of welfare and relief work in their cities.

The state director of the WPA spoke of the future of the WPA in view of present and prospective legislation. Future policy in the matter of selling lands within the municipalities was also taken up.

Of particular interest in view of the recent Upper Peninsula Development Bureau meeting held in Escanaba was the discussion, in which directors from several U. P. cities participated, of winter sports programs and their value to the cities which sponsored them.

The unofficial American distance record for sailplanes was set last year during the Elmira Soaring Contest by Lieut. Robert Stanley. His distance was 216 air line miles.

U. of M. Conference Will Be Held There In August

The annual conference of the University of Michigan Alumni clubs of the Upper Peninsula will be held at Nahma August 20 when the Nahma Vacation School will be in session.

Charles E. Good, vice president of the Bay de Noquet company, who is sponsoring the Nahma Vacation School, extended an invitation to the alumni clubs to hold their conference in Nahma. Word has been received from T. Hawley Tapping, Ann Arbor, executive secretary of the University of Michigan Alumni association, that the bid has been accepted. An effort will be made to have Alexander Ruthven, president of the university, address the conference.

Mr. Good is an alumnus of the University of Michigan, class of 1910. He was a member of the Escanaba high school's state championship football team in 1904. At the university, he was captain of the freshman and senior class football squads, interscholastic manager and president of the University of Michigan Athletic association, senior class president, and a member of the following honorary societies: Sphinx, Druids, Pipe and Bowl, Michiganians and Friars. He was on the editorial staff of the Michigan Daily, and also a member of the Michigan Student Council and the Sigma Phi fraternity.

Mr. Good was manager of the Oconto company, Oconto, Wis., 1915-17; with the U. S. Army, 20th Engineers and Second Engineers, Second Division, in France during the World war; and is now vice president of the Bay de Noquet company, Nahma, Oconto company at Oconto, and

HARVARD CREW DEFEATS YALE

Annual Regatta Won By Crimson for Fourth Straight Year

New London, Conn., June 23 (AP)—The Harvard varsity crew, stroked with power and precision by Bill Rowe of Cincinnati, beat out a smashing climax to an otherwise ordinary season this evening by rowing a front race all the way to whip Yale by a length and a quarter.

Rated little more than an even-money shot, the big Crimson boat shot to the front at the start, easily held off two Yale challenges, and came down the final half-mile through a million-dollar lane of spectator yachts to chalk up Harvard's fourth straight varsity triumph over the sons of Eli.

Radio Around The Clock

Read Claims Gambling Thrived Under Murphy

Detroit, June 23 (AP)—United States Attorney General Frank Murphy's attack on Michigan's Republican administration drew a counter blast tonight from Michigan's Attorney General Thomas Read, who charged in a prepared address that gambling 'flourished' in Detroit while Murphy was governor of this state.

Read's address, prepared for delivery over radio station WJR, charged that "throughout the Murphy administration there existed in the city of Detroit the biggest gambling ring this state has ever known."

"It consisted of something like 250 handbooks," Read said, adding that "by this I mean places where bets are taken on race horses."

One Man Detained

Police ordered detention for questioning of a man they said might have some information concerning the slaying, but would not disclose his name.

Hall was vice-president and secretary of the Hal-Be-Oyle & Gas Corp., a holding company for ten Michigan oil concerns. Its offices in Detroit have been closed since last Feb. 7 when warrants were issued charging Hall and two associates, Sidney E. Beach, treasurer, and Langley E. Doyle, president, with violating the Michigan "blue sky" law. That charge is still pending.
