

GAMBLING MUST GO, SAYS DICKINSON

PRISON GROUP ASKS TO QUIT CIVIL SERVICE

OVER 300 INCLUDED IN REQUESTS TO DECLASSIFY

Lansing, Aug. 17 (AP)—By a vote of two to one, the state corrections commission asked the civil service commission today to declassify approximately 310 employees over whom it exercises control.

Those requested to be placed in the unclassified service are employees in the state prison of southern Michigan, Ionia reformatory and Marquette branch prison, the bureau of pardons and paroles, the bureau of probation, the executive office of the commission, and the department of prison industries.

"Back Into Politics" Voting for the resolution were Paul W. Chase, Hillsdale, and Leslie P. Kefauver, Battle Creek. Fred R. Johnson, Detroit, opposed it, and George J. Burke, Ann Arbor, did not vote.

Johnson, asserting he was a firm believer in civil service, said declassification would "put the department back into politics."

"It means that, wherever declassification is achieved, pressure will be brought to bear upon party leaders to put friends in unclassified positions," Johnson said.

Burke said he declined to vote because, as a former civil service commission chairman, "it would make my position inconsistent."

He explained by saying he favored the original civil service law and therefore could not approve of the new act which was broad in intent.

Most of the personnel asked to be declassified held supervisory positions. Thus far, the civil service commission has declassified 23 department employees, including the wardens at Jackson, Ionia, and Marquette, and nine district parole and probation supervisors.

Under the present plan, approximately 110 employees at the state prison of southern Michigan, 29 at Marquette branch prison would be declassified. Forty-five would be declassified in the bureau of pardons and paroles, 18 in the bureau of probation, 63 in the department of prison industries, and five in the office of the corrections director.

"We want to clear the atmosphere with regard to the new law," said Chairman John W. Miner, of Jackson. "We feel that this is needed."

Guard Tests Outlined The commission approved a request that the old Jackson prison be converted into an armory for use of the 119th Field Artillery, Michigan National Guard, and said its approval was contingent upon the city of Jackson obtaining a $210,000 federal grant to remodel the building.

It authorized the military board to use and maintain the property to which the state will retain title. The commission also approved

Ten Escape Death On Blazing Launch In Minnesota Lake

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 17 (AP)—Ten Oklahomans, five of them children, escaped death on a blazing launch today when the parents loaded children onto a life raft and then jumped into Lake Bemidji after an explosion.

All suffered first and second degree burns and were brought to Lutheran hospital after first aid on the beach by vacationers who went to them in motorboats.

Tams Bixby, Jr., owner of the Oklahoma Printing Co., Muskogee, Okla., was operating his launch 200 yards from shore near Birchmont beach when the motor caught fire. Flames spread throughout the 32-foot craft when gasoline exploded.

Bixby tried frantically to launch a life raft and was badly burned. He and his wife, Mrs. Esther Bixby, were aided by Mr. and Mrs. Dudley D. Morgan, Tulsa, in putting the children aboard the raft, which they shoved from the flaming launch.

Virginia Bixby, 12, and three Morgan children, Rosalind, 13; Mary Edith, 9, and Dudley Diggs, 7, reached safety on the raft which other boaters towed to shore. Jeanne Bixby, 19, daughter of the publisher, stayed aboard and then leaped into the lake with the parents and Mrs. W. E. Rowsey, Muskogee, another guest.

The boat burned to the water line and sank.

Hospital attendants would not allow visitors tonight, but said all the victims would recover.

The Bixbys have been spending the summer in this northern Minnesota vacation spot where Mr. Tams Bixby's brothers, Joel H. who is associated with him at Muskogee, and Edson, editor of the Springfield, Mo., News, also have summer homes.

PEACE CRUSADE IS K. OF C. PLAN

Time Magazine Rapped for 'Vilification' of Church Leaders

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17 (AP)—Knights of Columbus called for a Christian crusade for peace today in a resolution designed to counteract the methods of "Godless leaders who have led nations to the brink of another war."

The appeal asked for a settlement of the bickering of a "troubled world through spiritual guidance."

The resolution, drawn up by John B. Babcock, Michigan state council deputy, was adopted at the concluding session of the 57th international conference of the Catholic fraternal organization.

It said in part: "Be It Resolved, That all nations, all peoples, and all leaders are hereby devoutly implored to turn their souls, their hearts and their minds to the cross of Jesus Christ and therefrom to draw such true appreciation of the brotherhood of all men under the fatherhood of God, as will dissolve the petty differences among nations, between men and social groups of men, and implant in their hearts a determination that peace shall envelop the world."

In another resolution, Time magazine was criticized for what the Knights termed "its persistent vilification and misrepresentation of the Catholic church and its leaders."

DETROIT POLICE GRAFT ALLEGED

Councilman to Call for Investigation to Run Down Rumors

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP)—Philip H. Bretmeyer, member of the Detroit city council, said tonight he would present a resolution to the council tomorrow proposing a grand jury investigation of charges that graft prevailed in the police department.

Bretmeyer said he would propose that the investigation be presided over by a judge selected by the entire membership of the recorder's court bench. Provision would be made also for naming a special prosecutor and for financing the probe.

"The public would be pleased to have a grand jury investigation into this whole situation," Bretmeyer said. "I think they're entitled to it."

"There has been a lot said and a lot of rumors. The public is entitled to get something definite on this."

"I don't like the difference between Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea and Mayor Richard W. Reading on this situation. I think it's the mayor's job. I don't think he ought to linger around, ignoring it."

Earlier Mayor Reading after conferring with high officials of the police department demanded the prosecutor open an investigation. The prosecutor quickly declared that he had no adequate staff of investigators and did not intend to be a party to what he called a police department "white wash."

OIL PRODUCERS CLAIM VICTORY

Stoppage of Supply In 6 States Expected to Bring Results

Oklahoma City, Aug. 17 (AP)—Mid-continent oil producers claimed an initial victory in their six-state shut-down war against collapsing crude prices today as two independent companies rescinded 20-cent per barrel reductions.

They were the Bell Oil and Gas Co. and the Danziger Refineries, Inc., both of Tulsa.

Heads of the major purchasing companies whose price cuts put into effect last week were responsible for the current crisis gave no indication whether they would follow the two companies' lead.

A third independent—the Cadco Crude Oil Purchasing Co. of Shreveport, La.—announced a 10-cent reduction in the top price of crude in the Shreveport "backyard" field.

Nevertheless, observers expected the stoppage of 68 percent of the nation's crude production to bring results shortly.

Meanwhile, Arkansas authorities called upon their state police to enforce a state oil and gas commission order shutting down all wells in that state's controlled fields.

Tong Rivalry Seen In Detroit Killing

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP)—The killing of Sam Lee, 30, in his small laundry here led to expression of belief by police today that a Chinese Tong rivalry may be responsible.

Police Superintendent Fred W. Frahm said that Harry Moy, a leader of the On Leong Tong, had been threatened recently, and has disappeared.

Lee, apparently slain by a blow on the head, was found lying face downward on the floor of his laundry.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—Paul W. Shafer, Republican congressman from the Third Michigan district, returned home from Washington today and told reporters: "If President Roosevelt would announce at once a decision not to be a candidate for a third term, the United States would immediately enter upon the best business boom since the first depression."

GERMANY AND HUNGARY JOIN IN WAR PACT

POLAND TO STAGE DRIVE AGAINST NAZI SPYING

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Signs of increasing cooperation between Hungary and Germany in the uncertain European scene appeared Thursday night after an extensive meeting between Fuehrer Hitler and the Hungarian foreign minister.

Semi-official sources in Berlin hinted that an agreement was being reached for Hungary's help in case of war.

Tension between Germany and Poland was unrelieved, and while the Nazi controlled press played up reports of alleged terrorism against Germans in Poland—along the pattern of similar press campaigns before the Austrian Anschluss and the breaking up of Czecho-Slovakia—Polish officials indicated they would continue an intensive drive against subversive activity they attributed to the German minority. A great many Germans were arrested and German organizations closed up, but many of those arrested soon were freed.

Trouble On Frontier Another frontier incident flared along the Rumanian-Hungarian boundary. Bucharest officials said Hungarian troops killed two Rumanian guards and wounded one; a Budapest communique said the Hungarian guards were forced to shoot "in self-defense" when "five Rumanians came into Hungarian territory."

Informed political circles in Berlin felt sure one main point discussed by Hitler and Count Starbuck, Hungary's foreign minister, was Hungary's readiness, if conflict should come, to permit the German army to occupy the Carpatho-Ukraine—far eastern part of what was Czecho-Slovakia—and thus hold a strategic position in the direction of either Poland or Rumania.

Another point was said to concern prospects of remodeling Hungary along Fascist-Nazi lines.

A propaganda mouthpiece of the German government said "agreement between Germany and Hungary has been rendered secure in every direction."

Danzig Optimistic The Danzig issue still loomed large, but in the free city some feeling of optimism rose on an indication that negotiations would continue between the Polish commissioner general, Marian Chodzicki, and the Danzig senate president, Arthur Greiser. Chodzicki returned to Danzig from Warsaw, presumably with new instructions.

In Poland's campaign against espionage and other activity by Germans in the country, Rudolf Wiesner, leader of the minority, was questioned for several hours and released with the understanding he would be "at the disposal"

CHIEF OF BUND RAVES AT DIES

Texas Solon Says He's Not Worried Over His Political Future

Washington, Aug. 17 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn, stolid Fuehrer of the German-American Bund, gave the Dies committee a session of almost constant conflict today and finally left its witness chair spouting defiance and predicting the committee's investigation would "cost Mr. Dies his political future."

After two days of Kuhn's testimony, Representative Dies declared the committee had made it clear that the Bund was working with agencies of the German government and probably was getting advice from them. And, the lanky Texan added: "I'm not interested in my political future."

Kuhn, whose tides of anger were still running high after the hearing had adjourned, hotly told reporters that the committee "did not show any proof that we are un-American or have any connection with Germany."

"It was all a loss of time," he sputtered. "I mean a waste of time."

And, he said there was one thing that had "hurt" him very much.

"I had to breathe the same air that Metcalfe breathes."

He referred to John C. Metcalfe, a former committee investigator, who once joined the Bund and wore its uniform for a year to obtain material for a series of newspaper articles.

BANK HELD UP; $33,100 TAKEN

Armed Men Slip Away In Mid-Day Traffic At Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Aug. 17 (AP)—In ten minutes, five armed men robbed a bank here today and slipped away in heavy traffic with $33,100 in a nickel shopping bag.

First that passers-by and a street corner policeman knew of the "clockwork" holdup at the Wyoming Bank and Trust Company in a north Philadelphia business section was a bank officer's shout:

"Get a cop! We've been robbed!"

Directors of the bank announced the amount taken hours after the five escaped. Their first estimate had been $15,000 to $20,000. All paper money in sight was scooped up. The men took no silver.

The bank is only a few blocks from the scene of the $80,000 bank messenger robbery of 1927—the city's most notorious hold-up. A policeman was shot to death. Four men were executed for parts in the crime.

Despite the precision of the mid-way holdup, police expressed the opinion the bank robbers were "amateurs who got a lucky break."

Government Asked To Buy Michigan Apples, Tomatoes

Lansing, Aug. 17 (AP)—Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer appealed today to the federal surplus commodities corporation to buy early apples and tomatoes in Michigan.

The commissioner said the two commodities are now bringing sub-normal prices.

Some purchases of tomatoes on farm markets in Detroit, Grand Rapids and Saginaw were made last year by the FSCC. Two years ago the FSCC bought 1,200 carloads of apples.

Streamliner Wreck Inquiry Saturday

Reno, Nev., Aug. 17 (AP)—A formal inquiry by the Southern Pacific company into the train wreck which killed 24 persons in central Nevada was set today for 10 a. m. Saturday at Carlin, near the scene of the tragedy.

A. D. McDonald, Southern Pacific president, said the inquiry board would include executives of the Southern Pacific, two Elko, Nev., businessmen, and representatives of the interstate commerce and Nevada public service commissions.

McDonald, at the wreck site, declared "one glance at the rails, or even at some of the pictures in newspapers, would convince anyone that 'the train was deliberately wrecked.'"

Four of the 108 injured remained in an Elko hospital today. All were reported recovering.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN TRUNK

Young Mulatto Killed; Fingerprints Sent to Washington

Atlanta, Aug. 17 (AP)—A young mulatto woman's bruised body was found in a trunk at a railroad station today and police turned to fingerprints and a thumbprint-sized photograph to learn her identity and find her slayer.

The photograph—of a well-dressed young mulatto—was found inside the trunk when police opened it at the request of employees of the terminal railway station.

The trunk, of light weight and tan color and tied with a strand of rope, arrived yesterday via the Seaboard railway from Washington.

Apparently dead for several days, the woman was clad only in a slip, brassiere and bloomers. Blood stains were on the sides of the trunk, and Police Sergeant Joe Perry said the back of the woman's head was smashed. Perry said he was "positive" she was killed. He added she might have been a steamstruck since her left index finger showed many needle marks.

Her fingerprints were sent to Washington where police already were checking on two missing women, whose names they did not reveal. Capital authorities also learned the trunk was shipped Tuesday night by two men who took it to Union station in a truck.

Squalus Nears End Of Strange Voyage

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 17 (AP)—The U. S. S. Squalus neared the end tonight of probably the strangest voyage in submarine history after being twice lifted and towed from the 240-foot depth to which she sank on May 23.

Navy salvagers gently grounded the vessel in about 90 feet of water on a "soft bottom" near the sheltering Isles of Shoals at 8:20 p. m. (E. S. T.). They had hauled it approximately five miles at a slow two-knot speed.

The second successful "blowing and towing" operation which started at 9:30 a. m. (E. S. T.) left the vessel about four miles off the mainland's Rye Beach opposite White Island light, and gave promise that the bodies of 26 men who died aboard her 87 days ago might be released from the sea within another two weeks.

College Expanded At Grand Rapids, Is Now University

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—The Grand Rapids college of Applied Sciences announced today that henceforth it would be known as the University of Grand Rapids, and at the same time disclosed expansion plans.

The institution, founded in 1936, has purchased the 69-acre estate of the late Edward Lowe and will take over the estate as its new campus. The new campus has six small buildings surrounding the mansion, which will accommodate college classes and the library.

The school will make its debut in intercollegiate football this fall with an eight-game schedule.

Dr. Paul F. Voelker, former state superintendent of public instruction and president of Olivet and Battle Creek colleges, is president of the institution, which has a student body of 300 and a faculty of 20. It is rated as a Class A college.

SLOT MACHINE BANS ORDERED BY GOVERNOR

STATE POLICE GET JOB OF CLEANING UP ON DIVES

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—Governor Luren D. Dickinson, 80-year-old crusader against vice and "high-life" drinking, aimed a blow at organized gambling in Michigan today.

He ordered virtually the entire state police force of several hundred officers to seek evidence of gambling violations, arrest operators of illegal gambling devices and confiscate the equipment.

Dickinson's action followed a threat by the Michigan liquor control commission to revive its "flying squadrons" if necessary to prevent gambling or operation of slot machines on premises of licensed liquor sellers.

Started in January, Mari H. Defoe, liquor commission member, charged recently

NONE IN PENINSULA

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—Captain O. E. Demaray, in charge of Michigan state police in the upper peninsula, said tonight he had received no orders from Lansing about a new drive against slot machines in the state, but added that no complaints of their operation had been received from upper peninsula cities in three months. The last seizure of a machine was two months ago, he said.

"All state police in the upper peninsula are under strict orders to confiscate any gambling device they find while making inspections," Captain Demaray said. "They have not found a machine in two months."

That slot machine operators had become active in an attempt to "besmirch" Governor Dickinson's state administration.

"He has preached against gambling and slot machines for years," Defoe said today. "Activity by the slot machine men and resort proprietors certainly is an embarrassment to the administration and they know it as well as any one else."

Gambling has been a recurring problem in Michigan since last January when charges were made that "wide open" gambling was resumed shortly after Democratic Frank Murphy, now attorney general of the United States, left office as governor.

Will Revoke Licenses The late Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican who succeeded Murphy as governor, answered the charges by ordering the state police into action, much in the same manner as Dickinson also a Republican, acted today. In addition Thomas Read, state attorney general, served notice he would prefer charges against any local enforcement official who failed to enforce the laws against gambling. Several large establishments, notably those in the Detroit metropolitan area, closed their doors.

Fitzgerald died in March and Dickinson, then lieutenant governor, succeeded him.

Defoe, who expressed belief worry over the gambling situation hastened the death of Fitzgerald, announced this week he would vote to revoke immediately the license of any beer or liquor dealer in whose place of business a slot machine was found.

Copper Country Is Tops, Says Visitor

"If you haven't seen the Copper Country, you haven't seen Michigan, for nowhere else in the State can one behold such a region," says Publisher R. E. Prescott of the Alcona County Herald, Lincoln, Mich., who has been making a leisurely tour of the Upper Peninsula.

"There is interesting scenery wherever you go in upper Michigan, but the Brockway Mountain Drive—newly blacktopped—which traverses the backbone of the Keweenaw Peninsula is both literally and figuratively the tops," continues Mr. Prescott.

"Up over wave after wave of mountain, each higher than the last, one arrives on a little plateau 1,337 feet above sea level, surrounded by stone walls, with a sheer drop of some 500 feet on one side. From here on a clear day miles of Lake Superior are visible—in fact it is said that late Royale, 50 miles away, is sometimes seen—but from which on this trip we looked down on the top of the fog banks blanketing the forests and lake below.

"This is but one of many Upper Peninsula attractions. Before returning home, the visitor may well stop at Blaney Park to view the Paul Bunyan exhibit. It's a display that recalls fond memories of the good old days to old-timers.

Webberville Speed Trap Toned Down

Lansing, Aug. 17 (AP)—Attorney General Thomas Read said today that Frank Walters, Webberville justice of the peace, had agreed to "run his court as a court."

Read's statement followed an investigation by his office of complaints that Walters and other village officials operated a "speed trap" on US-16, principal highway linking Lansing and Detroit.

Walters, Read said, had agreed: To instruct arresting officers not to take deposits of any kind from motorists.

To assess motorists only costs to which he is entitled by statute. To adjust traffic violations accordingly and not apply a schedule of fines outlined by the village council.

"We are constrained to believe that the errors complained of were largely a matter of misunderstanding on the part of the justice," Read added.

Picking Detroit No Mistake, Says Promoter Jacobs

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP)—Joe Jacobs, fight promoter, admitted today he had made a mistake in waiting until 1939 to stage a championship bout in Detroit.

Joe Louis and Bob Pastor will fight for the title on Sept. 20 at Briggs Stadium. The advance ticket applications caused Jacobs to predict a gate of $500,000.

"Four years ago," said Jacobs, "they were after me to stage a big bout in Detroit. They told me I couldn't miss. But I was skeptical. Then three years ago when we were setting the stage for the Louis battle with Jim Braddock I was urged to come to Detroit again. And I didn't. Last year I was told I had made a mistake when I didn't decide to stage the second Louis-Max Schmeling fight here."

"I know now that I possibly would have been better off had I staged some of the bigger bouts here in the last four years."

Pastor plans to start training at his camp at Brighton Monday. Louis aims to get under way Saturday at Northville.

The president planned to fish until dark and most of tomorrow, weather permitting.

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP)—Alvin Everett, 30-year-old lean, drawing "Saturday and Sunday" golfer from Rome, Ga., today won the National left handers championship by scoring a 4 and 3 victory over William Smith, Plattville, Wis., in the 36-hole final at Birmingham Country club.

Everett, who was runner-up for the title in 1937 and 1938, was one down at the end of the morning eighteen but came back in the afternoon with a three under par 33 on the outgoing nine to go five up and clinch the championship. He birdied three of the first six holes on this nine. Everett was two under par for the eighteen when the match ended. In the morning he had a three-over par 75 to Smith's 74.

A stockroom clerk for an electric company, Everett spent the first week of his vacation competing in the United States open and the second week in the left-handers meet. He left for home by bus tonight.

Everett is a product of the cadie ranks and belts a terrific tee shot. He was medalist in the Georgia state amateur this year.

Everett indicated that now that he had won the title, he would give up tournament golf.

"You can't raise a family and go around the country playing in tournaments," said Everett who is the father of an 11 day old daughter.

SOUND TRUCK MEN WARNED

Civil Service Examination for Firemen Is To Be Repeated

Among other actions taken at the city council meeting last night, it was decided that no ordinance would be drawn up in the matter of prohibiting the operation of sound trucks to such an extent that they become public nuisances, but that a two-week period during which operators will be warned to limit volume and confine their activities to the business sections, will be allowed before further action is taken at the next council meeting.

It was decided in regard to civil service examinations in the fire department for the filling of a current vacancy, that a new examination will be given to all applicants who filed applications at the last vacancy, and that the new results will be used as basis of choice, together with other factors.

The decision was in order with the previous agreement to limit the use of the tests as basis of decision to a period of two years, more than which has elapsed since the last time.

City Manager George Bean was instructed to send letters to members tentatively selected for a tax valuation board in the city, to consist of two bankers, two real estate men, two contractors, members of the board of review and members of the city council. The committee will have set before it a map bearing tentative valuations and will weigh the figures on all counts, bringing the experience of their various fields to bear on the problem, and final valuations will be arrived at. A separate valuation will be set for buildings on the properties, using considerations of depreciation and other factors.

Bids On Chief's Car

Manager Bean was further instructed that bids should be accepted for consideration for the purchase of a new car for the local fire chief. A resolution was carried to authorize the expenditure to cover the purchase of two pieces of oxygen apparatus for the use of local firemen. It was revealed that in view of letters received recently, it is expected that representatives of the Bureau of Mines will instruct the local firemen in the use of the equipment at some later date.

Permission was granted for the hanging of banners on Ludington street advertising the convention of Upper Peninsula Township clubs which is to be held at the U. P. State Fairgrounds on August 27. Motion was carried only on decision of council that the meeting could be classified as a convention.

S. M. Johnson was given permission to move a gasoline pump previously built at the corner of his property further from the corner, which would clear the corner and make the location of the pump more convenient to the operators as well.

A motion to close the city treasurer's office on Saturday afternoon was held over until the next meeting, a check to be made in the meantime to determine the number of people paying bills at that time.

Time Extension Held

The question of extension of time on tax payments was also held over after discussion till the next meeting of the council.

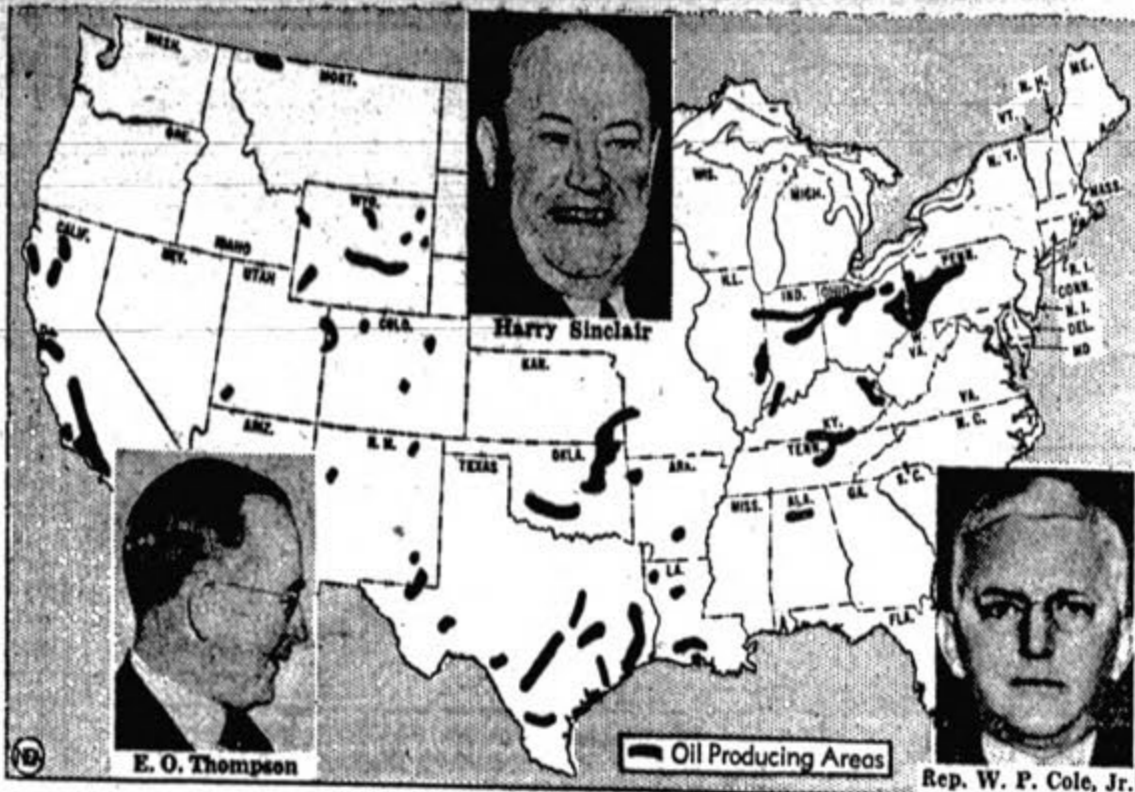

In view of the fact that the Eagles had been given permission by the liquor control commission to sell beer, the motion was not raised at the meeting. The organization already holds a federal license.

A motion to build a sidewalk under contract labor, the cost to be added to the tax roll, was passed. The project is to be carried on in such a manner only if the local WPA paving project does not get under way soon enough for the building to be carried on under the plan.

Escanaba's newest ordinance on municipal utility rates was formally accepted at its second reading, with unanimous assent.

A resolution was passed against the raising of prices on general

SCOUT LEADER PRAISES CAMP

Deputy Regional Chief Is Impressed With Local Set-Up

G. E. Chronics, deputy regional executive of the Boy Scouts of America, who recently made an inspection trip in this region, was greatly impressed with work being done by the newly organized Red Buck Council, according to word received by W. W. Phillips, local scout executive.

"The visit to your camp," Chronics said, "was most enjoyable and we were tremendously thrilled at the improvements and high morale of the camp. The committee and yourself are certainly to be congratulated on the progress made with this camp site and in the council's camping program."

"The camp site is very beautiful and I believe that the plans you have will make it one of the finest in the Upper Peninsula. The contemplated improvement in the swimming area, especially the beach and dock, will be a real benefit. Also, the new road into the camp site should make it easier to reach."

"Ingenuity has certainly been shown in the creation of your hot water system and construction of your hot showers."

"The organization seems to be good and the operation of the camp smooth. There is evidence of a well organized program and sufficient leaders in the camp to handle it. Your evening program was especially interesting and amusing. I was impressed with the high type of leadership that you have been able to secure for your camp. The fact that most of these men are attending on a volunteer basis is evidence of their interest."

Chronics included several suggestions for possible improvement of the camp site.

commodities during the coming convention, in view of the fact that Escanaba is trying to promote the city's popularity as a convention center.

In the matter of the coming program of paving and sidewalk construction, it was agreed that the city engineer be instructed to go ahead with the program at once.

A petition for a street light at the corner of North 21st street and 1st avenue north was tabled, while the local Trades and Labor Council was voted $75 and the municipal band for the parade on the morning of labor day.

53,000 Swedish Heroes In 1919; All Johnsons

From the Escanaba Morning Press of twenty years ago, less than a year after the signing of the Armistice, come many stories that will bring back memories during the present American Legion convention.

For instance, there may be among the Legionnaires who will take Escanaba over for the week-end, men who bear some of the following names, listed in a study of War Department records after the war.

"Paris Green helped win the war. So did a Little Kittle Karr and a Dinner Bell Page was rung into the service from Urick, Mo. Some others who appear in the bureau's files are:

Oh, Mith Gosh!

"Asand Experience Wilson, of Van Hook, N. D.; Mith Gosh, of Chicago; Green Horn, of Statesboro, Ga.; Velvet Couch, of Brinkley, Ark.; Will Swindle, of Centerville, Texas; Slaughter Bug, of Oscar Tarbin, La.; and E. Piuribus Brown, of Perry, Ga.

"Chocolate Candy Clark, Owen Money, Willie Darling, Great Britain Turner, Wiley Fox Hunter, Green Berry Anderson, Youstus Horrible Riner, George Sleeps From House, Handsome Pleasant Ayres, Green Hue Jackson, Lloyd Green Parlements, Grief Grimes, Precious Eugene Grant, Free Off Isaac Graves, Huckelberry Shell, Isaac Diddot Bucher and Fino German are also listed.

53,000 Johnsons

"The broad jump record goes to a resident of Salmon, Idaho, who hurdles five before he reaches the tape. He is Harry Adolph Thomas Richard Eugene Bullock and the clerks in the bureau are tempted to disturb Mr. Bullock's continuity by punctuating him.

"The clerks have found 49 ways of spelling Aloysius and 18 ways of spelling Ignatz. There were 53,000 Johnsons; 51,000 Smiths, and 18,500 Walkers in the service. Forty-seven thousand Williamases were with the colors.

"There were 51 Jose Rodriguez in the 374th Infantry.

"Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, Robert E. Lee and William Jennings were in the service by the hundreds. Napoleon Bonaparte, or rather a dozen of him, fought for the United States. General Grant, General Wellington, and General Jackson also helped beat the Germans. Quite a few Virgin Marys were in the army too. These latter were large men of Latin descent. Orange Cobb of Nollna, N. C., and his son Lemon Cobb were in the service."

Threw Away Horn; Joined Fighting

Lester Brotherton, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Brotherton, who went into the army as a musician but who threw away his horn at Chateau Thierry and joined the fighting men of the Second Division, arrived at his home here on Friday (August 15, 1919). Brotherton was a member of the regimental band but after the Second Division went into action at Chateau Thierry he found that there wasn't a great deal of action for members of the band so he served as a fighting man, road builder and member of a burial detail until the armistice was signed. He accompanied the Second Division to Germany and arrived in New York on August 5. The Second Division paraded in New York and Brotherton describes that experience as more nerve-racking than any campaign of the war. He said:

"We marched 106 blocks, the hottest day of the year in New York, with full equipment, including helmet, pack, gas mask, canteen filled with water and then were supposed to blow a horn."

Lemmer, Ironwood, Offered Post As Efficiency Expert

Lansing (AP)—The State Social Welfare Commission invited Victor Lemmer, of Ironwood, today to become its efficiency expert and "trouble shooter" as it refused demands of the counties that it exceed its budget to give them more generous allocations.

The commission, in inviting Lemmer to become its co-ordinator, said the former Gogebic county official would be appointed on a part-time basis for not more than three or four months.

Gries said he felt a need for an expert in whom local officials had confidence to assist in establishing an economical, efficient administration.

Garry Smith Dies Thursday Morning

Garry Sidney Smith, year and a half old child of Mrs. Catherine Smith of Garden, passed away at 6 o'clock yesterday morning after a lingering illness.

He is survived by his mother, Nee Catherine McNally, and one sister, Gayle Ann.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home in this city to be prepared for burial and will lie in state there until the hour of the funeral, 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Lester Bourgeois will officiate.

WELL KNOWN HERE

Victor Lemmer is well known in Escanaba, being the son of Mrs. Margaret Lemmer, 309 South Seventh street, and brother of Supt. of Schools John A. Lemmer.

He is a graduate of St. Joseph high school of this city and of Notre Dame university, at South Bend, Ind. He served for several years as county auditor of Gogebic county, as manager of the Gogebic county fair and is at present secretary of the Gogebic Industrial Bureau. As manager of the county fair, he gained wide recognition for running it at a profit each year.

At Notre Dame, he was president and business manager of the glee club and was a variety debater.

BEAVERS SING; RESCUE LOGGER

Lumberjack Gets Animals Tippy; They Danced—He Declares

Iron River, Aug. 17 — A remarkable tale spun by an Atkinson lumberjack named Jim to explain why he had remained away from his camp all night was retold today by A. W. Quirt, of Marinette, years after the pine logging days when Quirt had a camp at Winslow lake, and Jim was one of his men.

"The camp was located on the west bank of Winslow creek at the old dam, Quirt relates.

"We had been in camp about two months. One of my men named Jim (I can't recall his other name) got badly 'stake-bound' and had to go to Iron River to blow it in."

"He blew into camp one morning about two weeks later carrying three green beaver hides. The crew was just about ready to turn out and we were all anxious to know where Jim got the hides. So he told us this strange story:

"In those days there was a train run daily from Iron River to Atkinson (now Gibbs City). It was supposed to arrive at Atkinson at 2 p. m. The day Jim came up the train was very late and he didn't make camp before night-fall.

"About two miles from our camp he was attacked by a pack of wolves and the only safe place was in a tree so Jim quickly climbed one. The night wasn't very cold and Jim had on a good warm mack'naw. He knew the wolves would vanish with daylight so he felt quite safe.

"The wolves howled around the tree for a while and quitted down. Two old timber wolves struck out through the timber in the direction of Winslow Creek. They soon returned with three beavers and the beavers started in to gnaw the tree down.

"Jim made up his mind the jig was up and he was destined to furnish a fat breakfast for the hungry wolves. But a bright idea struck him. When he left Iron River he had armed himself with a big quart bottle of whiskey, (a thing all good 'jacks did in those days) so he thought if he'd pour some down along the bark of the tree it would run into the cut and the beaver might not like the taste and quit gnawing.

Drops From Above

"So he poured some down but instead of slowing them up, the whiskey made the beavers work all the faster. Jim gave up all hope. He began to think of all the bad things he had done and was about to offer up a prayer for all the sins, he'd committed such as big drunks, bar room fights, etc.

"The beavers suddenly quit work and began to dance and sing 'Sweet Adeline' to the utter disgust of the wolves. (Someone later declared a beaver couldn't sing. Jim asked him if he ever had seen one try. The fellow said no, he hadn't. Jim wanted to know why he thought a beaver couldn't sing. So we let it go at that.)

"The beavers danced and sang for a while but soon fell over and broke and the wolves vanished into the forest. So Jim came down from the tree, knocked the three beavers in the head, stripped off three pelts and brought them into camp. He got $10 apiece for the hides."

"We went out to see where Jim was treed and found a birch tree partly gnawed through. We could smell the whiskey on the bark. So we concluded Jim's story was all O. K."

Swiss See National Exhibition By Boat

By James G. Ward, Jr. Zurich, Switzerland, August 5—Our stop here to see the Swiss National Exhibition and rest up a bit before tackling Germany has been the first break in a summer's journey that has taken us through the British Isles, central and southern France and most of Switzerland.

As seems to be true with every traveler, we have been completely captivated by Switzerland, a country whose area is only one-twelfth of the entire globe, but whose 4,200,000 inhabitants seem sincerely bent on making the visitor feel at home instantly so that he may enjoy his stay to the utmost.

Visits at Geneva, Montreux, Interlaken and Lucerne have served as an ideal prelude to a tour of the Swiss exhibition grounds here. Had we come direct to Zurich from the French border, we would not have been impressed with the exposition an iota as much as we are now, filled with memories of the beauty of the Swiss countryside, the grandeur of her Alps and the restfulness and peace of her many lakes.

Swim and Ski

Switzerland has so much to offer the tourist. Variety in ancient and modern buildings, a swim at Montreux in Lake Geneva or at Interlaken in Lake Thun and the next day a dog sled ride or skiing at Jungfrau at 11,340 feet elevation, where winter sports may be pursued the year round.

And for variety in architecture, one day we toured the League of Nations buildings at Geneva and the next day visited the lovely Chateau of Chillon at Montreux, immortalized by Lord Byron in his poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon."

This particular season, tourists are fortunate in being able to visit the Prado Museum in Geneva, where are housed 200 masterpieces of Spanish artists, paintings and tapestries, which were transported there from Madrid for safe keeping during the Spanish civil war.

That treat serves only to enhance the beauty and appeal of Geneva, one of Switzerland's most picturesque cities, nestled in the southwest corner on the shores of Lake Geneva, where the River Rhone carries off its clear, sparkling waters and bisects the city on its way.

"Paris Unique"

Paris is unique and in a class by itself, a city of contrasts, the old and the new, but a tour through central and southern France, which included stop-overs at Grenoble and Nice, revealed nothing to compare with the breathtaking beauty of Switzerland.

One senses something "different in the air" in Switzerland, the omnipresent thought that this little nation is a haven of peace in a strife-torn world. Or perhaps it is the friendliness of the Swiss people, who welcome the visitor heartily, not with the attitude of wanting to show off their wares but as if they would like to say in your own language: "Come and enjoy our country with us."

Thus it was we were glad we had become acquainted with Switzerland before visiting the national exhibition at Zurich, a model of cleanliness and neatness that is typical of the Swiss people and an exhibition that covers every phase of Swiss culture. National in scope, the exhibition, of course, does not approach the magnitude of the New York World's Fair, but it adequately accomplishes its aim of picturing the hard-working and happy Swiss nation at work and play.

The grounds flank both sides of Lake Zurich from the city of Zurich with Bellevueplatz as the starting point to the Engle entrance on one side and the Riesbach entrance on the other. At a central spot on each side of the lake, an airway cable car spans the lake and connects the exhibition, Transportation, from one side to the other, also is furnished by motorboat.

See Exhibition in Boat

A feature of the exhibition and

Swiss See National Exhibition By Boat

An ideal way to start the tour is the boat trip through the grounds on the west side. A narrow channel of water has been cut through the most interesting parts, sitting comfortably in a small boat about 15 feet long, one moves with the flow of water in and out of exhibition buildings and returns to the starting point near the Engle entrance with a general idea of what lies within, ready to start the walking tour to the most appealing exhibits and displays. If time is no factor, however, not a single exhibit should be missed.

From the Riesbach entrance, one sees the agricultural displays, handicraft and trades exhibits and the Swiss village, complete with all type homes, the village hall, community buildings and farm yards. One can watch cheese, butter, wine and cider in the making and samples may be had. But the model Swiss homes in the village are the prize winner, all neat as a pin and exemplifying the typical homey atmosphere of the Swiss people.

On the opposite side are the industrial, arts, science and recreational exhibits, an eye-opener to the stranger unfamiliar with the scope of this little nation's culture. Tribute is paid, in one hall, to the heroes of Switzerland, her philosophers, artists, scientists, writers and others who have played a major part in her history, Jean Jacques Rousseau, G. H. Dufour and scores of others.

Watch Industry Featured

One major exhibit, of course, is of the watch industry, for which Switzerland is world-famous, supplying as it does 70 per cent of the watches in the entire world. The smallest watch ever built is on display, the dimensions of its movement being 4.85 by 14 millimeters. Fifty different makes are exhibited, and if you want a watch that will tell the day and month as well as the time or one that will time a journey from start to finish as well as the hours of the day, you can get it in Switzerland.

Another outstanding exhibit was of the Swiss aluminum industry, one of the country's most important, in which the visitor was shown how Switzerland's plentiful water power has aided in the development of the aluminum in general construction, in aircraft construction, in vehicles and boats and for making scores of other small objects.

There were exhibits of transportation, post and telegraph administration, textiles, food and cooking, electricity, chemistry, timber, rubber, press and photography; the paper industry, art, books and music, all combined in one exposition to give the visitor not a cross section but a composition its picture of Switzerland at work and play.

A tour of the grounds brought back to mind vividly our recent trip through the heart of Switzerland, from Geneva to Zurich. Everywhere were beautiful pictures of the Swiss countryside, the magnificent Alps and the scores of picturesque lakes, many of which we had seen first hand only a day or two before.

We went away with the thought that Switzerland is unique. It is a nation at peace with the world, contented to work and play in its own back yard.

My judgment is that in each case some outstanding characteristic of the man impressed itself early upon the public mind, to such an extent that the characteristic has assumed somewhat the function of a potent and influential symbol.

Losing Patience

WITH a patience almost without parallel in modern times, the United States government has waited nearly 18 months for settlement of the controversy between the American oil companies and the Mexican government over expropriation of the former's properties in Mexico.

It is now beginning to apply pressure to both parties, and no wonder. This open wound on the body of orderly international relations should be healed as soon as possible, lest it infect the remainder.

The U. S. government as such has intervened as little as possible in the controversy, hoping against hope that the two parties to it would be able to settle themselves. Longstanding efforts to do this have finally fallen flat, with both sides refusing to consider further a compromise plan now revealed as suggested by the State Department itself.

Whatever the feelings of the oil companies or of the Mexican administration, the position of the United States government is crystal clear and so thoroughly grounded in international law and all precedents of decent and orderly relations that it cannot be questioned.

Mexico's position has been that she is engaged in a sweeping social reform program for the benefit of her people, and that the taking over of the oil wells was vital to that program and had to be done whether payment could be made or not.

Very well. The United States is also engaged in such a social program, and in pursuing it, it should tramp on southern toes, no just protest could be forthcoming from a neighbor who has been extremely nonchalant about where it stepped in following its own chosen path.

The benefits of restoring these normal relationships are so great to both parties that neither can afford to remain stiff-necked about a matter which should have been cleared up long ago. Quite possible in this oil situation is a practical, workable compromise that will preserve the essential interests of both the American oil companies and the Mexican people.

The American people, and we suspect, a growing part of the Mexican people, are beginning to grow impatient that this be done. They want to resume normal, cordial and neighborly relations.

Doctors' Strike

WAY "down under" in New Zealand they are having trouble.

The socialist government of that country is trying to put in effect a plan for free medical care for all which is at present stymied because the doctors refuse to cooperate.

The doctors deny that they are "on strike," insisting that they are giving medical aid as always. But the government is furious, and threatens to import doctors wholesale to take the place in the socialized scheme which the native doctors refused to assume.

Thus another laboratory works out a social experiment which this and other countries can study for our own benefit if we will.

HATCH BILLS FOR THE STATES

President Roosevelt, signing the Hatch bill to limit activity of federal jobholders in elections, said its objectives were right. Of course he did not like the bill, which was provoked chiefly by the activities of his own WPA in the election of 1938.

The principle, however, is right. And the states ought to be looking to it. Government employs multiply in all units of government. The tendency is far older than the New Deal. Men who have been elected to office help to find places for their supporters.

The states have begun to put on limits, but very few have laws comparable with the new Hatch law in strictness. Wisconsin, for example, has an interesting provision that civil service employes may engage in political activities after office hours, provided it does not impair their efficiency.

It had to come. The Civil Aeronautics Authority has called on the Department of Justice to prosecute eight pilots accused of violating flying regulations. Even if one were cyn-

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent Harrogate, Eng.—The bus driver, the hotel porter, the manager, the poor men gulping beer in the pubs, the rich men sipping the medicinal waters of this provincial resort—they're all mightily worried today about America's "attitude."

They are all thinking along the same lines—that the dictators would be deterred from making war if only they knew the vast American market of arms munitions, planes, raw materials and food would be opened to England and France.

"Thirty-four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" is the name I heard an irate retired British general apply to the 34 anti-Roosevelt Senators who strangled the President's move to renew the various neutrality acts.

The general meant, of course, that if Hitler provoked a war in Europe this year, it would be because he no longer feared France and England would be strengthened by receiving supplies purchased in America. The 34 Senators would, therefore, be the Horsemen who encouraged Hitler and Mussolini to another Armageddon.

PRESENT TWO ARGUMENTS

In some ways Harrogate is a better place to size up British opinion than London. After all, London is no more the real Britain than New York is the real America or Paris the real France.

Harrogate, in the north of England, is a focal point. Hither come folk in limousines, in trains, in buses, either for a holiday in a pleasant town or to take the cure at one of its 88 springs.

After the last World War got under way, the reproach was often leveled at the British that, if they had let Kaiser Wilhelm know they would fight him if he made war, there would have been no war. Today, faced with the dreadful possibility of another world conflict, the British, taking a lesson from their own experience, are saying that America could stop the war.

(1) By making it known to Hitler and Mussolini that in event of strife in Europe, America will stand beside France and England. (The better-informed realize that neither the President nor the Senate could legally make such a threat)

(2) By reamping the neutrality laws so that he who has the cash and the ships can make unlimited purchases in the American market. The English argue that if belligerents were allowed to buy goods in America, provided they paid for them outright and carried the stuff away in their own ships at their own risk, America could not become involved.

Thus Englishmen find themselves at cross purposes in dealing with Americans. On the one hand, they would like to win America to their side as an active ally in case of war. But in any event, they want our economic support—and to gain that, strangely enough, they must convince Americans that such support would not lead us into war.

They ignore the fact that it was the sinking of a British ship, the Lusitania, carrying war supplies from America, which did more than anything else to arouse the American in-the-street's wrath against Germany before the United States' entry into the World War.

cal and blood-thirsty enough to hold that the sooner a pilot who is a born fool breaks his neck the better for the rest of the world, there is still ground for approval of this move. In the nature of things it is impossible for an aviator to risk his own neck and no other. Even if he is flying alone there is the whole world below him, and if he contrives to break up his ship it must hit the ground somewhere, possibly to the damage or destruction of inoffensive folk unaware of his existence.

Because flying of necessity involves a certain amount of danger to others than the flyer, it cannot be given the status of an absolute right. It is a privilege, subject to restrictions which society has imposed for its own protection, and a man who consistently and persistently violates those restrictions should be dealt with in a fashion sharp and emphatic enough to deter him and others. The eight pilots in question are accused, not merely of violating regulations but of persisting in the violation after repeated warnings; therefore, while extensions of the police power are already to be viewed with distrust, and the idea of causing the traffic cop to mount into the heavens is little short of distressing, the development seems to be inevitable. Even in the unbounded spaces of the firmament there is no room for a reckless and contumacious driver.

Q. What makes the stars twinkle? E. K. A. The twinkling of stars is a rapid shaking or vibration of their light caused mainly by the turmoil of the atmosphere—currents and strata of different temperatures intermingling and flowing past one another. New York—With the World's Fair for competition, many Manhattan night clubs have been rather hard hit this summer. Yet those which continue to draw a steady volume of profitable trade are the spots labeled "smart," where one can see "everybody"—except the six million or so New Yorkers who do not go to night clubs.

The term "everybody" refers to the social, sporting and theatrical crowd who have enough money to treat themselves constantly to such items as Napoleon Brandy and Bergdorf Goodman dresses.

"SMART" PLACES DO THE BUSINESS

Places of this type which currently seem to have the accolade of smartness are the Savoy-Plaza, a creamy hotel which features in its Safe-Lounge the very sensational, blonde chanteuse, Hildergarde; the Persian Room of the Plaza Hotel, the St. Regis, and possibly Number One Fifth Avenue, where Nora Sheridan warbles her amusing lyrics.

But the zenith of spending is reached in two spots which were running before repeal and which still continue to attract the lush trade.

These are the blue, crystal and mirrored Stork Club and El Morocco, both of which are used not only by the Hemingways and the Tunneys, but by some of New York's richest and most incessant champagne drinkers in the same way the neighborhood boys use the corner pub.

TALENTED GROUP OF YOUNGSTERS

Scattered around town are occasional little spots which are doing very well and which, for atmosphere at least, are comparable to the hill of the Montmartre during the lush days when the college boys infested Joe Zelli's.

One such place is the village Vanguard. A little walkdown joint on the fringe of Greenwich Village, it has the appearance of a walled-up subway station. Yet it offers the most original floor show in New York just at the moment. The entertainment is provided by The Revuers, five young kids of the struggling artist type who run through a forty minute routine of clever satirical sketches. They've been doing this type of entertainment since last Spring and now I understand they are moving up. Soon they will jump from their one-night-down Village nightery to the gilded Rainbow Room, atop Rockefeller Center, sixty-five stories above the street level.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—Best barometer of war is Holland. Faced with the prospect of invasion from Germany in Europe and attack from Japan in the Dutch East Indies, the Netherlands Government studies the war clouds with super-caution. The country's entire existence depends upon war or peace.

It is significant, therefore, that while in early summer the Dutch felt the European situation to be extremely grave, but that war could be averted, today they have revised their estimates. War, they feel, may not be averted.

Inside the State Department, betting is about even on Europe scraping through the next three months. If Europe can get by those months, however, war becomes less and less likely. Reason is that after three months, France and Britain will have increased their strength to a point where war for Hitler will be suicide.

Reports from U. S. Ambassadors are uniformly pessimistic. Commenting upon their reports recently, Roosevelt paid an unusual compliment to a newspaperman. Expressing his own fear that war was imminent, the President said: "Never before have all my ambassadors agreed that was so certain, and Constantine Brown agrees with them."

Note—The column of Constantine Brown, writer on foreign affairs, is clipped regularly and placed on the President's desk.

ANTI-THIRD TERM

Mrs. Roosevelt has said nothing publicly so far on the third term, nor is she likely to until the President has spoken. But privately she is against his running again. Also, she believes he has no desire to do so.

Voicing these views to intimate friends, Mrs. Roosevelt admitted that she has never discussed the question with her husband, but she is convinced that he does not want to run.

"There are others who can and should carry the crushing load," she declared. "The President has done his share."

As to her choice of a successor, Mrs. Roosevelt was mum. If she has a candidate, she has given no one any inkling of his identity.

GLASS HOUSES

Minor sensation in the Capital last spring was a Senate investigation of the Civil Service Commission disclosing favoritism in certain government offices. Witnesses related brow-lifting stories of beauteous clerks being promoted solely because of sex appeal.

Loudest outcry against these practices came from dynamic, curly-haired Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana. Repeatedly he waxed wrathful and righteous at dotting chiefs promoting pretty misses to choice jobs over worthy, but alas, less comely candidates. What stirred Ellender to hottest censure was reports of nepotism. Government officials quailed before him as he stormed against the nepotists.

But now The Washington Merry-Go-Round has uncovered the interesting fact that Senator Ellender himself has been dipping into the nepotism gravy bowl. His nephew, Billy Sullivan, is on the Senate payroll at $2,400-a-year as a clerk in his office.

Also Senator M. M. Logan of Kentucky, another member of the Senate committee which probed favoritism, has a nephew in his office at $2,800 a year.

PACIFIC ISLANDS

How important the islands of the Pacific have become for aviation purposes is indicated by a secret State Department investigation of the logs of old whaling captains, to ascertain what islands they discovered.

Working with WPA, the State Department has sent men to Nantucket and other New England seaport cities to ferret out the diaries of the early clipper and whaling captains.

There was a time when the State Department ignored claims to various small islands dotting the Pacific, but with the growth of aviation it has entered into a race with Great Britain and Japan to establish definite sovereignty over them.

FEDERAL RAID NETS 6 STILLS

Confiscate 75 Gallons of Moonshine Whisky at Hermansville

Raiding four houses on "Italian Hill" at Hermansville yesterday afternoon in a drive that was reminiscent of prohibition days, federal officers directed the confiscation of six stills, 800 gallons of mash and about 75 gallons of moonshine whisky.

Named by officers as occupying the houses in which the stills, liquor and mash were seized: Mr. and Mrs. Dominico Pegoraro, Mrs. Clarinda Maulo, Leno Sartore and Frank Danl.

No Warrants Issued
Raymond Deo, Escanaba, U. S. commissioner for the internal revenue department, said today that he issued search warrants for the four houses, but that he has not issued warrants for the arrest of any persons.

"I expect the marshal here this afternoon with information in the cases. He will make complaints at that time and warrants will be issued," Commissioner Deo said.

Raid on the four houses were held simultaneously at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The raids were directed by two federal officers and were made with assistance of four state policemen and three officers of Sheriff Edward Reindl's department.

Stills in Basements
The stills, mash and liquor were found in the basements of the four houses, officers reported. No resistance was made by occupants of the houses and the mash was dumped and the six stills destroyed.

Two 20-gallon stills were in the basement of the Pegoraro house, two in the Danl basement, and one each in the Maulo and Sartore basements, officers reported. Stills in the Pegoraro house were the largest of the six, and one was in operation at the time of the raid.

U. S. Court Oct. 3
Sheriff Edward Reindl said that no one was taken in custody by federal officers after the raids yesterday.

Procedure in such cases is to have the federal marshal who makes the arrest place his information before the federal grand jury, which will meet on October 3 at Marquette. The jury brings out an indictment if the information is sufficient and the respondents plead on the indictment.

The illicit liquor manufacturing equipment confiscated by officers of the internal revenue department at Hermansville was the largest collection seized in this county since the moonshine raids of prohibition days which ended in 1933.

Rains Only Respite Say Forestry Men

Conservation department officials familiar with the quick-drying characteristics of forest growth expressed the opinion that recent downpours in all parts of the state provided only a brief respite from fire hazard.

The same vacationers and property owners whose cooperation was credited with keeping down fire losses during the protracted heat spell should not expect the soaking effects of several inches of rainfall to last more than a few days, it was stated.

High winds of the past week which reached tornado proportions apparently had little effect on fire losses, officials said. No reports of damage to forest fire fighting stations and equipment had been received. The severest storms were felt in the southern counties, mostly below the high fire peril area.

WINS LAWSUIT

Marquette—A jury in municipal court yesterday awarded Mrs. H. B. Markham a judgment of $110 in a civil action brought against Albert J. Nault, 534 West Ridge street, for settlement of a bill for medical services owed her late husband, Marquette physician, Judge John Siegel presided.

The jurors were Dan Vaughan, Sr., Fred Foresman, Ed Quinn, Frank Stickney, Ambrose Tolman and Leo Helmich. They deliberated for 45 minutes.

Mrs. Markham, represented by George C. Quinell, asked $355, amount of a bill shown on her late husband's books which Nault incurred prior to the death of his wife in 1934.

Nault, whose attorney was Carroll C. Rushton, claimed faulty judgment and incompetence on the part of the late Dr. Markham, which he claimed resulted in delay in the diagnosis of his wife's tuberculosis. He further charged that Dr. Markham did not seek to remove his daughter from this danger of infection, and as a result of it, she, too, contracted the disease.

NO NEW TAXES ARE NECESSARY

Michigan Senator Says Present Sources Are Adequate

Marquette—The state of Michigan can have more than enough money to meet its budget needs if it tightens up on the collection of taxes already imposed, in the opinion of Senator George P. McCallum, of Ann Arbor, one of the leading members of the upper house of the legislature.

No new taxes are required if this procedure is followed, McCallum, who was a visitor here yesterday, asserted.

McCallum represents the Detroit & Northern Michigan Land company and called at the county treasurer's office to check over the lands which the company owns in the county. He is on an upper peninsula tour for the same purpose.

Costs Millions Yearly

Loose collection of taxes already authorized under the law is costing the state millions yearly, the senator stated.

"They talk about balancing the budget. Yes, we balanced the budget," he said, "but we did it at the expense of welfare, the crippled children and like purposes. We know that the $9,000,000 appropriation for relief will not be sufficient and that means there will probably be a special session in a few months to provide more money."

McCallum believes the legislature should establish a special commission to direct the collection of all state tax levies. This commission would have a paid director and a competent staff whose duty it would be to see that all tax moneys due were collected. As one example of what can be done, McCallum pointed to the sales tax on automobiles, this revenue having been increased through stopping leaks in used car transactions.

"We don't need any new taxes," McCallum said. "If we plug up the holes through which tax money is now escaping we will have plenty of income to take care of the budget and help pay up the huge deficit which we inherited from the Murphy administration."

McCallum is a member of the senate committee on taxation and embodied his ideas in a measure which failed of enactment. In his opinion, the centralized collection of taxes would be a sound investment. The senator had no criticism to make of departments now charged with making collections, but said greater efficiency and returns could be obtained by his plan.

With respect to the state political situation, the senator said he expected there would be "plenty of candidates" for governor. McCallum represents the counties of Oakland and Washtenaw. He was a member of the house in 1899 and 1901 and was elected to the senate in 1937, polling more votes than any other candidate on the

DRIED FOR PACKING

When packing clothes see that they are perfectly dry. Otherwise they will wrinkle badly.

CORN AT ITS BEST

The sooner sweet corn is cooked after it is gathered from the garden, the better its flavor. But overcooking can ruin the best of corn. Five to seven minutes in boiling, unsalted water, in a covered pan, is enough for young, tender corn. For matured ears, ten minutes should be sufficient and, since matured corn is not apt to be so sweet, add a little sugar to the boiling water.

"HUSKIER SOAP CHIPS GET DIRT OUT QUICKER!" PIFFLE! I'VE NEVER FOUND A BIT OF DIFFERENCE IN ANY CHIPS OR POWDERS. THAT'S WHAT I SAID - TILL I TRIED FELS-NAPHTHA SOAP CHIPS. THEY'RE HUSKIER - NOT PUFFED UP WITH AIR. THEY WASH BETTER AND I'LL SHOW YOU WHY... "FEEL THE DIFFERENCE!" "SMELL THE DIFFERENCE!" "SEE WHAT A DIFFERENCE IN MY CLOTHES!" "Open a box - rub some Fels-Naphtha Soap Chips in your fingers - and compare! Instead of being puffed up with air, these golden curls are more substantial - they're built specially to do more and better work. Then take a sniff..." "No sneezy, irritating dust in these new wonder-chips! Just a clean, fresh smell that tells you there's naphtha blended in the richer golden soap. Two cleaners that are bound to get out the stubbornest, deep-down dirt. And..." "Clothes are so clean, they fairly sparkle. Being huskier, these new-type chips may take a second longer to dissolve - but they give you easier, whiter washes. So ask your grocer for Fels-Naphtha Soap Chips - the huskier chips that banish tattle-tale gray."

Pau-Puk-Keewis of "Hiawatha" Fame Danced on Dunes of Nagow Wudjoo

(By Arthur W. Stace)
Four score years ago Henry Wadsworth Longfellow gave to the reading world his rhythmic "Hiawatha," epic of the north-land Indians. Ever since that time children and grownups of the English speaking world have read in succeeding generations of the "Dunes of Nagow Wudjoo," where Pau-Puk-Keewis, the mischief maker "whom the people called the Storm Fool" danced at Hiawatha's wedding to Minnehaha, Laughing Water.

"On the shore of Kitchie Gumee, On the dunes of Nagow Wudjoo By the shining Big-Sea-Water, Stood the lodge of Pau-Puk-Keewis. It was he who in his frenzy Whirled those drifting sands together, On the dunes of Nagow Wudjoo, When among the guests assembled He so merrily and madly Danced at Hiawatha's wedding, Danced the Beggars' Dance to please them."

How many Michigan children, and how many Michigan grown-ups, reading the "Song of Hiawatha," have known that the "Dunes of Nagow Wudjoo" by the Shining Big-Sea-Water are the dunes on the Grand Marais shore of Lake Superior in their own home state?

How many tourists speeding along M-28 and US-2, main east and west arteries of travel in the upper peninsula—and mistakenly thinking that in so doing they are really seeing the upper peninsula—know that 25 miles north of M-28 and 42 miles north of US-2 are massed some of the most astonishing, most breath-taking dunes on the North American continent? Lonely, Remote Shore The reason that the "dunes of Nagow Wudjoo" are little known in spite of the immortal and international publicity given them by Longfellow is that they are a remote, deserted coast of Lake Superior, unfrequented by present-day travelers.

They were, perhaps, better known to the travelers of Indian days, of missionary days, of trader days, of pioneer days than to the far more numerous tourists of today because in those far-off times the principal means of transportation was by water. The canoes of the Indians, the barges of the traders, the sailing craft and steamboats of explorers and pioneers passed along the shore. To these tourists of primeval Michigan the towering dunes atop the bluff extending from Grand Marais harbor to Au Sable point were outstanding landmarks. They were in sharp contrast to the steep, jagged cliffs of the Pictured Rocks, their immediate scenic neighbors on the shore to the west.

The dunes impressed themselves on the minds of the Indians. They impressed themselves on Henry Schoolcraft, explorer, student and collector of Indian lore. It was from Schoolcraft's writings that Longfellow is said to have derived the descriptions and the legends he embodied in word music in "Hiawatha."

The "dunes of Nagow Wudjoo" were on a lonely shore in Hiawatha's time. In Schoolcraft's time they are on a lonely shore today. The exploring tourist may reach them by way of highway M-77 to Grand Marais, thence by a local road to Grand Sable lake, two miles to the west.

First Trade Paper Still Going In U. S.

Nahma, Mich.—"People living in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan will be interested to know that the first trade paper ever published in the United States is still going strong and that each issue is filled with news of their district," said Miss Jean Mowat, Chicago writer for business and trade papers, at the Nahma Vacation School August 15.

"The first trade publication in the world was the work of Adam Smith, English economist," "The Nature And Causes of Wealth," published in London in 1776," continued Miss Mowat, who is conducting a course in trade journal writing at the Nahma summer school. "In 1855 John Williams began the publication of his famous journal, 'The Iron Age,' the coming of which was no doubt stimulated by the early developments in the iron industry, following the discovery of commercial ores at Negaunee in 1844.

This trade journal has continued its uninterrupted issue down to the present time, and it is an undoubted authority in the iron and steel industry throughout the world. Much of its news matter is concerned of course with iron mining activities on the great Lake Superior ranges."

Fruit Wheel for a Party

Prunes and almonds, cream and sugar go into this Fruit Wheel coffee cake to make it rich-tasting and sumptuous-looking.

A delicious coffee cake can turn aside the blues, and good friends will make life seem brighter.

Fruit Wheel
(About 12 1-inch slices)
Two cups flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons shortening, 2-3 to 3-4 cup milk.

Filling: 1 cup cooked, seeded prunes, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Topping: 1-4 cup blanched sliced almonds, 1-2 cup confectioner's sugar, 1 tablespoon cream or milk.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead lightly for a half minute. Roll out to rectangular sheet, brush with melted butter and spread with prunes. Sprinkle sugar and cinnamon over prunes. Roll up jelly-roll fashion. Seal edges. Place in half circle on greased cookie sheet. With scissors or sharp knife, cut almost through roll from outer edge at about 1-inch intervals. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. When done brush with topping made of confectioner's sugar and milk.

Sprinkle sliced almonds over the icing. Serve hot or cold.

Sour Cream Coffee Cake
One cup sour cream, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs, 1 1-2 cups sifted flour, 1 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-8 teaspoon salt, powdered sugar and chopped nut meats, or butter, cinnamon and sugar.

Combine and beat sour cream, soda and eggs. Sift the sifted flour again with sugar, baking powder and salt. Add sifted ingredients to cream mixture. Beat batter until smooth. Spread the dough in shallow, lightly greased 8x10-inch pan. Bake in moderate (350 degrees F.) oven until done. While still hot, sprinkle with sugar and nuts, or butter, cinnamon and sugar.

Cabbage-Fruit-Mallow Salad
2 cups chopped cabbage
1 cup diced apricots
1-4 cup diced celery
2-3 cup cubed marshmallows
1-2 cup salad dressing
1-8 teaspoon salt
Chill the ingredients. Combine and pass in a bowl.

LEDGERS TELL ROAD HISTORY

Files of C. & N. W. Railway Contain Strange Items

Faded and rapidly disintegrating into dust to join that of the men who kept them, are two ledgers found molding today in the almost forgotten files of the Chicago & North Western Railway of its early days. One of the ledgers covers the period of the Civil War, the other, the years following it into 1870.

Between the browned and ragged covers in the longhand script of the day are records of bills against customers of the road between the years of 1861 and 1870. The wide range of materials dealt in by the road and the services furnished hint many a good story were the details known.

For instance, in April of 1860 there is an item of $11.18 against one B. McLaughlin of Escanaba, Mich., for making a coffin; in September of the same year there is a similar item against the same man, this time for only $1.62.

Double Tragedy Hinted

Imagination here conveys a possible double tragedy in the family of McLaughlin in the space of a few months. Who was McLaughlin? A poor man unable to afford the cost of an undertaker and an elaborate coffin? Was he forced to bury his loved one in a plain pine box made in a railroad carpenter shop? Was the first coffin at a cost of $11.18 for a wife, a father, or mother? Was the second, at a cost of only $1.62, for an infant?

Another suggestion submitted is that McLaughlin was an undertaker and employed the railroad to make his rough coffins. Even so, strange business for a railroad to be making coffins. The North Western hauls many coffins daily today, but does not build them.

A check-up revealed yesterday that the B. McLaughlin who is referred to in the files is no relative of the B. McLaughlin living here at the present time, as he did not arrive here until 1888.

According to the local resident, however, there was an old woodsman by that name who lived here when Mr. McLaughlin arrived in Escanaba and he feels reasonably sure that this man is the one who was the maker of the coffins.

War Bill Included

Let us now leap back to an item in January, 1864. Here we have the echo of war; a bill of $7,500 stands against the War Department, a bill following through, we find "for 10 box freight cars at $750 each." History shows how at that moment the North was pouring men and supplies into the South for the final denouement of the great strife.

We now leap again to 1868 and find two items indicating the varied stores carried by a railroad in the early days. In January of that year page 60 of the ledger shows item No. 7076 to be a bill of $20.84 against one Jacob Kuhn of Chicago for feather dusters. A few lines down is item 7083 against E. A. Wadleigh, Clinton, Iowa, for $5 for an jobber.

We turn the pages and come to September, 1868. There, item 7253 reveals that R. N. Isham was the surgeon of the North Western and bought a cord of wood for $8. As winter came on the pages grow heavy with items on the sale of wood and coal to employes and others. One item reveals a sale of 16,000 pounds of hard coal to the Chicago Historical Society. Another shows one of 10,000 pounds to Perry H. Smith, vice-president of the road. Immediately following comes J. B. Turner, a director of the road, with a purchase of 4,000 pounds of hard coal.

Then comes one Charles Wade, cashier of the line, with a purchase of four gallons of kerosene. A month later Wade purchased another ten gallons. It is noticeable that Wade's purchase comes at the end of a month or at the beginning of one. Remember, there were no electric lights, no comptometers, no typewriters, everything entailed hours of laborious hand and work.

Name of Ogden Appears

A name appearing quite frequently throughout the ledgers is that of William B. Ogden, the first mayor of Chicago, who reigned in 1837 to 1838. Ogden was also the first president of the first rail line west of Chicago, the old Galena & Chicago Union Railway, the parent of the present North Western system. Ogden's name appears in connection with bills of construction and repairs of rolling stock. For instance, there is a bill of $8,678 against Ogden for the construction of 25 coal cars.

Another name bobbing up frequently is that of George M. Pullman, identified as "Superintendent of Sleeping Cars." Apparently, too, the North Western of that early day was in the horse shoeing business, for there are numerous bills against various persons for the supplying of shoes and shoeing of horses. Presumably, these items referred to the application of steel footwear to the steeds that drew the stage-coaches from the terminus of the North Western lines.

Kuhn Bobs Up Again

Jacob Kuhn, the fellow who was in the market for feather dusters, appears later to be identified with the old Wells Street Depot and in the market for washers and mops. For want of historical data on Mr. Kuhn, it has been assumed he was the custodian of the depot and bought his supplies from the North West-

Today Croll Hunter, St. Paul, president of Northwest Air Lines, informed Westervelt by telephone that the Authority has not yet come to a decision on the airline's application. Croll indicated to Westervelt that favorable action might be anticipated because of the study being given the application by the C.A.A.

What Big Eyes! ESCANABA MAN HELD IN CRASH

C. R. Lange Is Sued for Damages by Victim

Iron Mountain—Officer Shafer, of Niagara, was in Marinette yesterday as a witness in a $10,000 damage suit brought by Andrew Cregar, town of Wausaukee farmer, against C. R. Lange, Escanaba salesman, and the Patek Brothers, of Milwaukee, by whom Lange was employed at the time. Cregar was injured in an accident the night of June 17, 1938, on highway US-8, near Pembine.

Shafer described the scene of the crash and the condition in which he found Cregar and Lange. He related that a Niagara physician was called to attend the injured man and that an ambulance was required to take Cregar to the M. and M. hospital, Marinette, where he was a patient 16 weeks.

Joined in the issue is C. M. M. Fultz, town of Wausaukee, owner of the car driven by Cregar. He seeks $500 for property damages.

Lange Fell Asleep

Testimony yesterday indicated that Lange, a paint salesman for the Patek brothers, fell asleep at the wheel of his car, which crashed into the Fultz machine, parked on the roadside. Fultz, the first witness, told the court he had parked the car on the shoulder of the road and had gone to a farm house to inquire the way to Lake Lundren.

Cregar, who remained in the car to await the return of his employer, suffered two fractures of the left leg and back injuries.

Counsel for Lange told the jury that it was admitted that Lange was negligent in the operation of his car, but he contended that the damages asked, both for personal injury and to the car, were excessive.

State Political Gossip

Politicians To Be Attraction At County Fairs of Michigan

BY GUY H. JENKINS
(Grand Rapids Press Writer)

Mackinac Island—County fairs within the next few weeks will become Michigan's political stages.

Over in Shiawassee county the boys who sponsor that agricultural exposition had planned a homecoming for their famous citizen, Thomas E. Dewey, racket-busting New York district attorney, Dewey's visit, however, has been postponed.

In a nearby county the fair management is having a governor's day, to which all the great and near-great politicians are invited. The hosts are officers of the Ionia Free fair.

The delay in the Dewey visit may result in his homecoming celebration being separate from the Shiawassee fair, but at any rate his former neighbors plan a civic celebration in his honor which may well provide Dewey the proper springboard for his presidential campaign.

For months his name has been at the top of the list of Republican possibilities. If the straw votes mean anything he is the GOP's best candidate against President Roosevelt, or any other New Dealer or Democratic starter.

GREEN PROVIDED FREE PUBLICITY FOR FAIR
Governor's day at Ionia is scheduled for Wednesday. Gov. Dickinson is to talk five minutes. In addition to the governor, Howard C. Lawrence, president of the fair, has invited Michigan's two senators, Arthur H. Vandenberg and Prentiss M. Brown; the congressional delegation and the state officers.

Special tribute is to be paid the founders of the fair, former Gov. Fred W. Green and his business associate, Fred A. Chapman, both now dead.

The fair is celebrating its silver anniversary. Green was president of the fair from its founding until he died. Chapman served as secretary until he died.

When Green was governor the Ionia fair had more free publicity than any like entertainment in the history of the state. It was at the fairgrounds that Green announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor in 1926. After his election he gave his annual accounting of his stewardship in fair week.

It brought thousands to Ionia who never before had heard of the free fair.

Senator Vandenberg will say nothing about his presidential possibilities. If he talks politics he probably will confine himself to the recent congressional session and the fact that he is a candidate for renomination for United States senator.

MIYAN ARE EAGER TO BECOME LEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Taking no chances on letting someone else get the jump on him, Arthur E. Wood of Detroit, former state senator, has launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Along the countryside Wood has his signs: "In 1940 promote Senator Arthur E. Wood to lieutenant governor."

Of course Arthur is not a senator and has not been for several years. At one time he represented the Fourth Detroit district. That was back in the days when nearly everyone in Michigan voted the Republican ticket.

Others are getting ready for the 1940 campaign. From Saginaw it is learned Frank J. Berk, former member of the house of representatives, is holding his hat by the brim ready to toss it into the Democratic primary for nomination as lieutenant governor.

Berk served three terms in the house. He was defeated last election by a small majority. Berka several years ago was the spark plug of a legislative inquiry as a result of the small loan legislation that became a red-hot issue in the session. Someone was around the capitol with a satchel of money seeking special favors and Berka decided to touch off the fireworks. He did.

There will be plenty of candidates for both nominations. It is very possible George A. Schroeder, Detroit Democrat who served two terms as speaker of the house, may decide to try his luck again. In the last Democratic primary it required the combined influence of Gov. Frank Murphy and the highway department political machine to win that nomination for Leo J. Nowicki, who wanted a second term. Schroeder gave the boys, including Nowicki, quite a scare.

CONLON AND FLYNN ALSO MAY GET INTO RACE

Then there is Ernest T. Conlon of Grand Rapids, who would like to preside over the senate as a Republican. He represented his district in the upper chamber and since then has nursed the idea the people never will be satisfied until he shows them how it is done.

Senator Felix H. H. Flynn, Cadillac Republican, also may be a candidate, Flynn's friends, and he has many of them, have been shouting his virtues, believing that he can convince him he should get into the race. Flynn likes to represent his district in the senate and, because he is the last one who would be so presumptuous as to become a candidate, it may take a lot of persuasion to get him into the race. Last session he served as president pro tem, succeeding Gov. Dickinson as the presiding officer.

Incidentally, the position of lieutenant governor is going to be much more attractive financially to the next incumbent than ever before. Under the constitution the lieutenant governor is paid $3 a day for the two-year term, the same as members of the legislature. But, in addition the man elected in 1940 also will serve as a member of the administrative board, for which he will be paid $2,500 a year.

For several sessions the senate has tried to place the lieutenant governor on the administrative board. The idea, while having favorable action by the senate, ran into difficulties in the house, a majority of members taking the position their presiding officer was as important as the lieutenant governor. Some in fact considered him more important because it was by their votes he was elected from among their membership.

The people elected the lieutenant governor, who has no vote.

SOMEONE SPOKE AND BILL WENT THROUGH HOUSE

Therefore they would improve the bill by including the speaker of the house. The senate refused to accept the amendment. In 1935 both houses agreed to approve the senate bill but it was vetoed by the late Gov. Fitzgerald.

In the last session a similar bill enacted by the senate was to have its official burial in the state affairs committee over which Representative Maurice E. Post of Rockford presided. Post let it be known there would be no vote on that measure.

But in the closing hours of the session someone (it probably was Boss Frank D. McKay of Grand Rapids) suggested to Post that he really would be serving his party and his constituents well if he released the bill.

Post was convinced. Out came the bill and it went scotching through the house. When it reached Gov. Dickinson, he decided for the good of the state the lieutenant governor should have a membership on the administrative board and he signed the bill, and up went the lieutenant governor's salary $2,500 a year.

MCDONALD EXPLAINS WHY PAY ROLLS HAVE JUMPED

What would Judge Frank D. Picard say to Harry A. McDonald, chairman of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission, if he were not on the federal bench?

McDonald replied to Vernon J. Brown, auditor general, who complained that state pay rolls are up because McDonald's commission is spending all the loose change in Michigan.

Brown, named by Gov. Dickinson as one of the three state officers to help the budget director frame an economy program, blamed McDonald's crowd for the increase.

The unemployment commission pay rolls are up from $329,293 to $701,515, and the employment service is up from $238,767 to $643,310.

In justifying such increases, McDonald said:

"Actual operation of the commission did not begin until July 1, 1938. The skeleton organization necessary in the preliminary stages was entirely different than the expert and trained force necessary to administer $60,000,000 in benefits for 400,000 workers when payments started."

Picard, who organized the commission and trained the staff, who paid the first benefit checks right on the dot, might have a lot to say about McDonald's statement if he were just a private citizen.

He might ask McDonald where he got the "expert and trained force" as he has been on the commission only a few months.

He also might ask what workmen were not paid their unemployment insurance when it was due while he was the chairman. Picard, who knows the commission work pretty thoroughly, could prepare a swell answer to the Detroit dairyman who loves to sing "The Road to Mandalay" at GOP pep meetings.

And this department would like to ask just how McDonald credits the federal government with meeting the commission pay rolls. Most everyone knows that the federal government takes 10 per cent of the pay roll taxes collected in Michigan for administration purposes.

The federal government then allocates some of that 10 per cent to Michigan for commission pay rolls. The state makes a direct appropriation for the employment service pay rolls which is matched out of the same 10 per cent taken by the social security board.

The Summer and the President

American Foreign Policy

The American foreign policy, reiterated often in words, adds up verbally to about the following: Non-interference in the political affairs of Europe; the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine; the Open Door in the Far East; the maintenance of the sanctity of treaties, and a readiness at all times peacefully to arbitrate differences and to collaborate in the reduction of armaments.

As a matter of fact, we can hardly be said to have a foreign policy at all, and the Congressional action in rejecting the Administration's recommendations regarding neutrality makes it difficult for us to have one. Without implementation, policy is merely platitude. The Kellogg-Briand pact denounced aggressors, and the President has suggested guaranteeing aggressors, or attempting to halt them by every method "short of war." But we have no definition of what constitutes aggression, and it is hardly possible for any one nation unilaterally to find one.

Indeed, the strategy of the foreign policy of "dynamic" powers is to create a situation in which they can claim to be the victims of aggression. Danzig is an illustration. The National Socialist plan is to engineer a coup in Danzig, by peaceful means—peaceful means nowadays meaning propaganda, house-by-house organization, and steady terror—in other words, revolutionary means. Danzig will then declare its intention to join the Reich, and the declaration will immediately be accepted and Danzig declared part of German soil. Resistance to this unilateral decision on the part of the Poles will mean aggression against Germany and the question of who was aggressor will be settled by history, according to who writes the history.

We still assert the Open Door in the Far East, but meanwhile the door is being steadily closed by Japan, until now with the assistance of our scrap iron and our oil. The theory that we alone can stop this process by means short of war is highly questionable. An embargo of the United States alone against Japan would certainly cripple and inconvenience her, but it would also furnish her with the best possible argument for her own very clear foreign policy, which is to create self-sufficiency for her self in the Far East by establishing a monopolistic area in China for her sole exploitation.

Sanctions undertaken by one nation alone—partial sanctions—demonstrably will not work. We saw the example in Ethiopia. American oil is in the hands of American companies and it is scattered throughout the world. Trade is for profit, and highly ingenious. It does not need to clear for its eventual goal, and unless the whole world agrees on a policy of economic strangulation, the loopholes will be so numerous that the trade will slip through.

Economic sanctions against Japan imposed by the United States alone will not stop Japan in China. They may serve to rivet Japan inexorably to the Axis powers, to destroy our own trade with Japan, and eventually we will still be faced both by the loss of our markets in China and by the permanent loss of our market in Japan. For Japan's object in taking China is to make herself economically independent of us and of every one else.

Then, there is the Monroe Doctrine. The essence of the Monroe Doctrine is that the United States will not tolerate that any South American state should become the vassal of a non-American power. This is a condition devoutly to be wished, but just how are we going to prevent it?

We still seem to think that this possible vassalage can only arise if some non-American power lands troops in South America and proceeds to take over state after state by force. This is old-fashioned stuff. Conquest in the present day is undertaken by totalitarian political and economic penetration. The foreign power arrives not in cruisers but on regular ships, and its envoys are not soldiers but commercial and political agents who get possession of strategic economic points and engineer revolutions, setting up puppet states which then enter a political and economic bloc, and from then on take orders.

If we seriously wanted to prevent the possibility of South America, a continent with the most intimate cultural ties to Spain, from becoming eventually an outpost of the Axis powers then the opportunity lay in the last three years in Spain, where an active and positive policy pursued with others could have determined the outcome of the Spanish civil war—to the obliteration in Spain of both Fascism and Communism.

But, instead, we chose to regard the Spanish civil war as a purely European affair and to keep clear of interference.

Which leads us to the fundamental fallacy of the Congressional thinking about Europe as represented in their ideas about neutrality.

What is coming to a head in Europe is not a decision about Europe. It is a decision about this planet. It has nothing to do with the rectification of the Treaty of Versailles. The issue involves the total redistribution of world power and the complete reorganization of the whole world, along revolutionary lines that, if successful, will end the very concep-

SERIAL STORY

Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CHRISTINE THORENSEN—came to visit her cousin, found a mystery.
BILL YARDLEY—had a reason for watching Christine.
GEORGE WILMET—employed Christine as a Boardwalk artist.
CHANDRA—looked into the future—and into the past.

Yesterday, Christine does a portrait of Chandra, an Oriental swami, finds her new job pays generously. She finds a message pinned to her easel: "If you are worried, consult Chandra." She goes to the Oriental's "Temple of Truth."

CHAPTER IV

From within the "Temple of Truth" came the tinkle of bells and the wailing of pipes. "Well, at least this is free," Christine said aloud, "and after all, he gave me my start on the Boardwalk."

She slipped inside.

On a stage designed to suggest all the mystery of the Orient, two slim girls, dressed as temple dancers, were gyrating and prostrating themselves as if before an unseen presence.

A deep gong sounded, and they scurried from sight. From behind a screen of grillwork that simulated delicately carved white marble, a shining figure in silver robes appeared as if by magic. He moved majestically forward and stood for a moment, his arms crossed on his chest, his dark face lifted as if waiting—listening. Then he intoned in a deep, vibrant voice, "Thy servant is ready, O Krishna! Speak through these unworthy lips."

For a while Chandra's performance was much like others Christine had attended. He described small objects, gave the numbers of license cards, the insignia of lodge emblems, and the dates on letters which an assistant in a white turban took from people sitting here and there and held, apparently without glancing at them, pressed against his own forehead.

He read and answered questions without having seen or touched the cards on which they were written: "A lady wishes to know about a ring. . . . Yes, I see it clearly—an emerald set in diamonds. She thinks a maid stole it."

Suddenly the strange tawny eyes in the dark face fixed themselves upon a stout woman near Christine.

"No, Madame, she did not take it. You should have looked more carefully." Chandra went on stately, "before you accused a helpless servant of such a crime. Why, Madame, did it not occur to you that the ring might have slipped through that rip in the lining of your purse?"

The woman gasped. "Why not look now?" Chandra suggested. Then, as the woman hesitated, he almost thundered,

"The plan of the 'dynamic' powers is to divide the earth into monopolistic areas, or 'spheres of influence', to be administered by a new form of imperialism consisting of state socialism under absolute government, each area ruled by a master race over subject 'alien' of second-class citizenship. These will work in return for economic and political security in a permanent condition of benevolent slavery."

We are asked not to become entangled in this. The answer is that we are already entangled. If it succeeds, with or without war, either by "appeasement" in cahoots with Britain and France—which is still not outside the limits of possibility—or by a showdown in war, it will involve every point of our policy. There will be no open Door in the Far East, no Monroe Doctrine, and no Europe. All the small states will disappear or be federated into "followers" of Germany, Italy or Great Britain—if the British Empire survives—and Japan.

We shall then have isolation confined to North America. And this isolation will involve a social revolution. For the system, however modified, under which we live will be unable to exist in a world of monopolized and controlled trade administered by autocratically controlled systems of state socialism. We shall have to come into the new world-wide New Deal on the terms dictated to us or fight alone or perish.

It is toward this issue that Congress asks us to maintain a neutrality that is the equivalent of complete disinterestedness. The failure of Congress to act on the neutrality bill has brought the issue much nearer to fateful decision, for it has strengthened the courage of the Axis powers and discouraged those elements in Germany who have been exercising a somewhat restraining hand.

And the danger that our foreign policy will become an issue in the forthcoming Presidential election is the greatest possible danger to our domestic peace. Both political parties are under a fearful responsibility. For unless they agree, and agree to put our foreign policy on a national basis above partisan politics we shall have world issues fought out on our soil in a manner that will divide both parties and divide the country end to end. Given the possibility of a postponement of a world crisis until 1940, such a nation-wide controversy in America will, with almost mathematical certainty, set the moment for Armageddon.

"Look now, Madame, and be thankful that it is not too late to repair the mischief you have done!"

The woman fumbled in her purse, cried out—a bit too sharply, Christine thought—and held aloft something that glittered with green fire.

"Oh, I am so sorry about that girl," she stammered. "I don't know how to thank you, Swami!"

"Do not thank me, Madame," Chandra told her. "It is the great god Krishna you must thank."

"The great god—my foot!" Christine thought derisively. "And that stooge's acting was terrible."

All around she heard murmurs: "Isn't the swami marvelous?" "He told my sister who—" "—and it happened the very day he said it would!"

Then abruptly, in the midst of a sentence, Chandra broke off, pressed his fingers to his eyes, and said—a startled note in his deep, somnolent voice, "But this must wait. . . . There comes to me—something urgent!"

One could almost feel the silence in the room.

"There is here at this moment," Chandra was going on, "a young woman who badly needs advice. . . . I will not name her, I will not even describe her or tell where she is sitting. I am particularly anxious neither to embarrass nor annoy her—because the word has come to me that I must help her if I can."

Behind Christine a voice said, "I never saw him do anything like this before. It gives me the creeps."

It gave Christine the creeps. Whether it was deliberate trickery with the illumination or not, all the light in the room seemed to gather itself about the glittering figure on the platform.

"Within the last 24 hours," Chandra went on, "this young lady has encountered a series of surprising experiences. She has met with a grave disappointment; she has, by a strange coincidence, unexpectedly found work when she most needed it."

No one in the room seemed to breathe—least of all Christine.

"During the last 24 hours," the "swami" was going on, "this young lady has also received a mysterious telephone communication concerning something very near to her own safety, which I fear she has already decided to disregard."

"But," Christine thought with a sickening clutch of premonition, "why—she can't mean me!"

She did not know whether she moved, or even spoke the words aloud. In any event, there was a sudden craning of necks.

"I must ask for quiet!" Chandra's voice crackled. "You will, if you please, keep your eyes on me."

His own strange, tawny eyes were not on Christine; but widened on space, as if following some remote vision; yet she felt that they did not miss a flicker of her eyelids; and that deep, hypnotic voice was compelling her to listen.

"I would beg of that young lady," he was going on, his tone suddenly gentle and pleading, "that she think over the events of the past 24 hours. . . . I would beg, for instance, that she try to remember whether, when she returned to her room this afternoon, there was anything about its appearance that excited her suspicion. . . . And now, if she will come to me privately, I shall be glad to advise her, at no cost to herself—because the word comes to me that this is a thing I must do."

His eyes swept the spellbound audience commandingly. "That is all, my friends," he said. "Go in peace!"

He raised his arms in what was almost a gesture of blessing; and the audience filed obediently out. As they went, Christine saw faces turned toward her—some touched with superstitious awe, some curious—some amused.

Christine, restored to sanity by those glances, blazed with anger. She had once read a book called "An Expose of the Medium Racket." It was all entirely clear to her now. Of course that girl at the Beachmont telephone exchange was a paid spy.

When Christine had recalled last night's conversation in the clear light of morning, it had entirely lost the frightening strangeness her own confusion and fatigue had lent it the night before. Of course everyone in Beachmont knew who Mrs. Emma Talbert was. Probably Cousin Emma had telephoned instructions to someone to see that her guest went to the Crestview, and the operator had overheard; and in her hurried attempt to pass on the information, had not had time to choose her words.

But now it was not possible to put so innocent a construction upon the girl's strange behavior. Of course she was this man's spy.

How easy to listen in, and find out that one of the wealthiest women on the beach was expecting a cousin to visit her, and the name of that cousin. . . . How easy, when the cousin called the house and found her hostess absent, to suggest a hotel. . . . And how easy afterwards for this charlatan to have had her every movement watched!

"Well, anyhow," Christine thought, "he's not going to make a Roman holiday of me and get away with it."

When the rest of the audience filed out, she remained stonily in her seat. The clairvoyant came to her at once.

4 BOYS TO BE TAKEN TO SOO

Young Criminals to Get Sentences From Circuit Judge

Four persons, all young men charged with felonies, will be taken to Sault Ste. Marie today for arraignment before Judge Herbert Runnels at a special session of circuit court. The youths have all expressed an intention of pleading guilty to the charges against them and will be sentenced by Judge Runnels now rather than to await the regular circuit court session here which opens Sept. 25.

The young men are Edward Ahrens, charged with robbery armed; Basis J. Chapman, charged with unlawfully driving away an automobile; Thomas Hill, Jr., and William H. Braley, charged with assisting in unlawfully driving away an automobile.

The defendants will be taken to Soo today by local officials and will be arraigned before Judge Runnels at 11 o'clock this morning. All of the boys have been detained in the county jail here because of inability to post bonds for their release while awaiting the opening of circuit court.

Ahrens' offense is the most serious of the group. He was arrested a week ago today after using an automatic pistol to hold up Irving Armstrong, at Thompson, in an robbery which netted only fifty cents.

The other boys are former CCC lads, who stole an automobile operated by a camp officer near Munising. Chapman is accused of driving away the car illegally, and Hill and Braley, who accompanied Chapman, are accused of assisting in the crime.

Today's Lakes Once Lake Michigan Bays

BY ARTHUR W. STACE

Thousands of years ago, the geologists, the upper peninsula coast of what is now Lake Michigan in the area embracing present Seul Choix point, Manistique and Thompson was broken by several embayments. The embayment near Seul Choix point was broad and shallow. It was shut off from the Lake Michigan basin by sand bars, forming McDonald lake, 220 acres; Gulliver lake, 380 acres, and Clear lake, 60 acres.

The embayment near Thompson extended far inland. When bars formed across its mouth they shut off Indian lake, 8,000 acres, fourth largest lake in the upper peninsula.

A sand spit in the Manistique river embayment forced Manistique river to detour around it.

Dunes on Old Bars

These various bars were elevated when the northland tilted upward following the melting of the glaciers which had pressed down the earth under their heavy load of ice. Sands blowing from the bars and from the beaches built up ridges and hills. There are dunes east of Manistique and a considerable group of them between Gulliver lake and Lake Michigan. The latter dunes are in rows and ridges, the highest, near Gulliver lake, running up to around 100 feet above Lake Michigan. The dune area extends to Seul Choix point.

Dunes are found 30 to 40 miles inland from the Gulliver lake section. Lake Superior is here 50 miles from Lake Michigan, but the latter's watershed runs to within eight miles of the bluffs that rim Superior. The dunes are thus on the Lake Michigan side of the divide. Many of them may be seen from M77, which runs from Blaney park to Grand Marais. Most of them are covered with cutover region vegetation but here and there are bare spots where the dune sands gleam.

Dunes have also been reported near McMillan, east of Seney. These Lake Michigan north shore dunes are intensely interesting to geologists, professional and amateur, who find in them revealing records of conditions in Michigan in the dim days beyond history and later on. But to the tourist and sightseer they serve only as a prelude to the upper peninsula's big dunes show—a show so astounding, so thrilling that it is worth the extra miles it takes to reach it from the established touring ways, worth the physical effort necessary to gain its viewing points. This big dunes show is the huge mass of dunes perched on the Lake Superior shore between Grand Marais and Au Sable point. Here are "the dunes of Nagow Wudjoo" of Longfellow's "Hiawatha."

PAVING JOB TO BE LET AUG. 30

Project Is Expected To Be Completed This Season

The contract for the paving of U.S. 2 within the city limits of Manistique will be let August 30 at a special letting. City Manager P. H. Beauvais was advised yesterday noon in a telegram from Harry Coons, deputy state highway commissioner. The advertisement for bids on the project has already been placed. It was reported.

With the awarding of the contract on August 30, it is probable that the work will be started early in September and likely that the entire slab will be laid before cold weather intervenes.

In a recent interview with local officials, Coons declared that the Manistique project definitely would be let this fall but could not give assurance that the entire project could be completed. He reported that at that time, however, that the contract would make it mandatory for the contractor to complete the paving of the strip from Chippewa avenue to the Manistique river bridge this fall. This would connect with the new pavement laid by the city last year.

However, with the early letting of the paving contract, it is believed probable that the entire distance, which extends from Chippewa avenue to Maple avenue, will be laid this fall.

In addition to the 42-foot pavement, the state highway department also will provide for the laying of curb and gutter along the highway.

Mary Rubick And Leon Heinz Wed Here On Thursday

Mary Rubick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rubick, became the bride of Leon Heinz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bauer, at a 7:30 nuptial high mass at St. Francis de Sales church Thursday morning. Rev. Fr. Wagner officiated.

The bridesmaid was Anne Rubick, sister of the bride, and the bridegroom's attendant was Adam Heinz, brother of the groom.

The bride was attractively attired in a dress of white lace over white satin, the sleeves of which came to a point over the hand. The dress was trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a shoulder length white veil and carried a shower bouquet of tallis-man roses, sweet peas and snap dragons.

The bridesmaid wore a blue sheer dress and a blue finger tip veil.

Following the wedding ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, 335 North Cedar street, for 20 guests.

Immediately following the wedding breakfast, the couple left for a two weeks' honeymoon trip to West Virginia. For going away, the bride wore a black pin stripe suit with matching accessories.

Mr. Heinz is employed by his brother, Frank Heinz, as mechanic.

White Sox Nose Detroit; Cubs Lose In Tenth, 7-6

CLOSE 2-1 TILT LOST BY TIGERS

Detroit Hurlers Yield Only 4 Hits; Chicago Blows Bunched

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox nosed out the Detroit Tigers 2 to 1 today, Jack Knott and Thornton Lee prevailing over Freddie Hutchinson and Paul Trout.

The Detroit hurlers gave up only four hits. The Tigers collected six hits but did not concentrate their attack as well as the Sox.

The game was settled in the fourth when Mike Kreevich walked, stole second and scored on a triple by Luke Appling. Rip Radcliff then bunched out to Frank Croucher. Appling scoring Knott shut out Detroit for seven innings but weakened in the eighth and was relieved by Lee with one out and the bases loaded. Lee pitched out of this hole with out giving up more than one run.

Roy Cullenbine batted for Croucher to open the eighth and singled. Charley Gehringer batted for Hutchinson and also singled. Cullenbine holding second. Bill Rogell ran for Gehringer. On the next play Radcliff dropped Barney McCoy's fly but recovered in time to nip Rogell going into second. Benny McCoy walked and the bases were jammed.

Battling For Third Lee then took over and Hank Greenberg batted for Earl Averill. He hit a long fly which scored Cullenbine. Rudy York then forced McCoy and the rally was ended.

It was a two-game sweep for the Sox. The team is battling to hold third place against the Cleveland Indians. Cleveland will lead Chicago here tomorrow night.

The Tigers will be idle Friday but will open a three-day stand against the Browns in St. Louis starting Saturday.

Cardinals Continue Winning Streak To Wallop Pirates, 4-2

Pittsburgh, Aug. 17 (AP)—The red-hot Red Birds of St. Louis handed Pittsburgh its ninth consecutive defeat today 4 to 2 as they fought their way to their fourth straight victory and the 16th in the last 18 starts.

Curt Davis was given sensational support by centerfielder Terry Moore and second baseman Jimmy Brown in winning his 17th game of the year. In the last eight innings only 27 Buccos faced him, Elbie Fletcher, the 26th, looping a homer into the right field stands in the ninth, too late to do any harm.

PACKERS OPEN WITH PIRATES

Doubleheader Planned for Friday Night, August 25

Green Bay, Aug. 17—The doubleheader football attraction between the Green Bay Packers and Pittsburgh Pirates which will be staged here Friday night, Aug. 25, under the lights at the City stadium is attracting no end of interest and all indications point to a large crowd for the pre-season game.

Johnny Blood and his Pirates are practicing at Two Rivers and reports from the Cool sector indicate the Pittsburghers have a great gridiron machine in the making. Blood is putting extra stress on the twin bill with Green Bay as he figures this is his chance to get even with Lambeau and company.

The Green Bay squad, over 40 strong, has been working out daily since Aug. 5 under the watchful eyes of Coach E. L. Lambeau and his assistant Richard (Red) Smith. The Packers have a great contingent of 'freshmen' cridders this year and all these new players will be on display against the Pirates.

Bargain day prices will prevail for the doubleheader with only the box seat sections on both sides of the field reserved. The kickoff for the first game is scheduled at 7:30 p. m.

State PGA Title Taken By Watrous

Midland, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—The Michigan Professional Golfers' association championship was claimed by the veteran Al Watrous of Detroit for the third time in four years when he repulsed the challenge of another Detroit, Joe Belfore, of Country Club, in the 36-hole finals at the Midland Country club today, two up.

It marked the second straight year that Watrous has annexed the state P.G.A. laurels on the local course. He also won at Detroit Plum Hollow in 1938 and in all has captured the state pro title six times in his long golf career. Belfore, himself a former champion in the P.G.A. classic in 1937 at Plum Hollow, the only time the crown has eluded Watrous in the past four years, made a battle of it in today's finals to the bitter finish. The match was decided on the 35th hole when Watrous, who carried a five under par 67 on the afternoon round of 18 holes, came through with a birdie. Al also won the 35th hole to settle the issue without any further doubt.

REDS WIPE OUT FOUR-RUN LEAD

Pinch Single By Rookie Dick West Shoves In Winning Tally

Cincinnati, Aug. 17 (AP)—For the second time this week, the Cincinnati Reds smashed from behind to win a ball game in the old Merriwell manner, downing the Chicago Cubs 7 to 6 in the tenth inning after spotting a four-run lead at the start. Rookie Dick West pinch singled Eddie Joost in with the winning run.

Thair raising victory protected the Reds' six-game lead over the Cards, who downed Pittsburgh today, and set off another mad dance of 26,669 fans after the last night game of the year here.

As in their uphill struggle Monday night against the Pirates, the Reds used pitchers and pinch-hitters freely and young West, the last of the lot, came through with the bases loaded and none out in the tenth.

Lots Of Hits Wasted Eddie Joost, the sub for injured Lonnie Frey, hit like a house afire all night and climaxed it by opening the tenth with a triple.

Jack Russell and the Cub's high command elected to pass Ival Goodman and Frank McCormick to fill the bases and West came up for Whitey Moore, the winning pitcher who turned up that night in the lineup as a result of the free fill-ins.

Ernie Lombardi started old Charlie Root to the showers in the ninth. Charlie had been pitching crafty ball since relieving Vance Page in the fifth and the Reds wasted a lot of hits. But with the Cubs leading, 6 to 5, Ernie lined a double to center. Lew Riggs ran for him and came in with the tying run on Wally Berger's single. The Reds then loaded the bases but a force play ended the inning.

Hank Leiber's 12th homer of the year was the climax of the Cubs' early explosion and Grissom didn't last much longer. The attendance brought the total for the seven night games to 184,884, an average of 26,422 a game.

Rainstorm Cancels Springfield Races

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 17 (AP)—A heavy rain storm cancelled today's grand circuit harness races at the Illinois state fair grounds. Feature event of the meet's fourth day was to have been the Governor Henry Horner $1,500 pacing stake.

Circuit officials said it had not been decided whether today's events would be placed on tomorrow's card.

Gehringer Near End; McCoy Coming Star

BY EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP)—A stocky, bow-legged blond youngster named Benjamin McCoy is just about ready to stake a full time claim on that Detroit box score line fans have been reading for more than a decade—"Gehringer, 2b."

Charles Leonard Gehringer, generally ranked as one of the finest second basemen in baseball's history, is nearing the end of a brilliant career with the Detroit Tigers. At 36 years of age and in his 15th season with the Bengals, he's taking things easier now—watching and helping a 23-year-old youth who apparently has everything it takes to give Detroit another long stretch of fine second basing. Like Gehringer, McCoy also is a Michigan product. Gehringer came from Fowlerville's fair grounds to stardom which saw him elected to every American league all-star team and compile a lifetime batting average of .327 through 14 seasons. McCoy, a genial friendly youth with a faculty for making friends easily, lives near Grand Rapids and has the whole southern section of the state pulling for him to make good.

It looks as though he will. In 27 games he hit .336, with many of his safeties extra base blows. He has ambition and the willingness to learn. Gehringer likes him and throughout this season has been giving the lad pointers on batting and fielding. He has the tenacity necessary for success. They tried once to make an outfielder out of him, pointing out that taking the second base job away from a Gehringer would be a hard job, but McCoy said simply: "That's where I'm going to play—second base."

Gehringer, according to reliable information, will not play many more games this season. He's still a great performer—as witness his pinch homer against the White Sox Wednesday—but he realizes he's near the end of the road. Always noted for having a great pair of legs, he's had two bad Charley horses this season. He's just a bit tired of the daily grind and is content to step down in the near future, satisfied with the job he's done in baseball and what it's done for him.

Retirement from active play will not mean retirement from the game for "Silent Charley." An idol for years in Detroit and known among players as "the ball players' player." For Walter O. Briggs, Detroit owner, said not long ago: "Don't worry about Charley; He'll be with us long after he's through as a player."

LOCALS PLAYING CRYSTAL FALLS

League Leaders to Play Here Sunday In NMW Encounter

The league leading Crystal Falls team will provide the opposition for the Escanaba city team here Sunday afternoon in a Northern Michigan - Wisconsin league game.

Although their chances of remaining a power in the league race were blasted last Sunday when they dropped a doubleheader to South Range, the locals are pepped up and have every intention in the world of having something to say about this title business even if it is only to hand the Crystal Falls boys a defeat. They feel that they are thoroughly familiar with the underhand slants of Hugh Orphan, Falls pitcher who hailed from Newberry, and are confident that they can defeat him.

The Ford Twins, heartened by a 4-3 victory over Niagara last Sunday, to snap a long losing streak, will have both Rudy Novack and Tony Gohber ready for mound duty at South Range. Gohber, because of his effective performance in his last start against the Copper Country club, is favored to get the assignment. Novack authored last Sunday's win. Crystal Falls, driving toward the second half NMW loop championship with six victories and no defeats, is certain to depend on Orphan's slants to pace a triumph at Escanaba. Because of the shift in the Iron River date, Jack Nordling may start against the Redlegs, who are expected to use Matty Wytonick. Wytonick held the Falls to three hits when Iron River upset Carlson's crew in an exhibition at the Iron county seat recently.

Escanaba's mound nomination against Crystal Falls may be Chester Siko, as a result of Siko's fine showing against South Range last Sunday in a relief roll. Phil Brazeau pitched and lost the first game of a double bill with South Range, 6-3, and started the second game. After four runs had been manufactured off Brazeau's delivery in the first three innings, Siko relieved him and hurled three-hit ball for the last six frames. Escanaba lost 4-2.

Left with an open date when Negaunee folded up, Crystal Falls played and beat Channing, 7-3, Sunday.

NO REPLACEMENT

The Northern Wisconsin-Michigan baseball league will finish the season with five teams, it was decided last night at a meeting of the league's board of directors held in the editorial rooms of the Iron Mountain News.

Rather than add a team to fill the berth vacated by Negaunee, the board favored completing the next three weeks' schedule with five entries. The decision forfeits Negaunee's four games left on the slate and also the game scheduled with Crystal Falls last Sunday.

Teams left idle by the vacancy will have the choice of remaining idle or scheduling their own exhibition games. Negaunee dropped from the league roster last Friday because of inability to meet expenses and lack of players.

Four Sought Berth Besides last Sunday's game with Crystal Falls, Negaunee was scheduled to meet Niagara on the coming Sunday, South Range on August 27, Ford Twins on September 3 and Escanaba on September 4.

Four teams had applied for the opportunity to finish out the schedule in place of Negaunee. The quartet included the Iron Mountain Rangers, Iron River and Channing, of the interstate league and L'Anse, of the Copper Country.

Present at the meeting were Managers "Spkex" Carlson, of Crystal Falls; "Blng" Miller, of Niagara, and George Mason, of the Ford Twins. Secretary-Treasurer "Buck" Erickson presided in the absence of President S. A. Donovan.

Current league standings, including the forfeits, are:

OLD RIVALRIES TO OPEN AGAIN

Interesting Games Are Carded Sunday In D-M League

In at least two instances, age old rivalries will feature Sunday's card in the Delta-Menominee league as the teams start swinging into the final phase of the league schedule.

At Perkins, a wild battle is likely to be in store with Treary's hard hitting boys furnishing the opposition. When these two teams tangle, there is always plenty of fireworks and Sunday's game should be no exception. Both teams are well fortified with pitchers and hitters and have shown a tendency to toss in a few errors each game to make things interesting.

Bark River and Ford River, two old rivals of years gone by, will meet on the former's diamond in another feature game. Ford River, since the death of Grant Demars, ace pitcher, hasn't been doing too well and Bark River has been experiencing a bit of difficulty as well so that anything may happen.

The league leading Perronville team will entertain Garden in an effort to add to its lead. Last week, the Perronville boys played a doubleheader at Rock and divided the two games, winning the first and losing the second. Garden lost a twin bill to Perkins.

In the fourth game of the day, Rock will travel to Wells to meet a team which is at the bottom of the league standings. Wells was trounced 33-6 last week by Cooks while the Spartans split with Perronville.

Rain Puts Crimp In Tennis Matches

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—Gardner Larned, 16-year-old Chicago junior Davis cupper, downed Matt Bennett, of Marquette, former U. P. and city champion, 7-5, 6-2, in a sizzling match that highlighted today's play in the Upper Peninsula open tennis tournament, as old man rain threw a kink into the schedule.

Favorites continued to advance into the fourth round of singles and the second and third round of the doubles. Rain caused postponement of three doubles matches, which are scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Because of the rain, it will be necessary to play all matches on the concrete courts of the Northern State Teachers college.

Finalists Named In Iron River's Horseshoe Event

Iron River, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP)—Bobby Hitt, Plymouth, defending champion in the state horseshoe tourney, and six other finalists were chosen today for participation in tomorrow's round robin which will determine the championship.

One other finalist still was to be selected. Besides Hitt the following went into the championship round: Jack Hoeksema, Grand Rapids; Joe Lasko, Flint; Carl Lundgren, Lee Rose and Jim Burt of Detroit, and Jim Skinner of Battle Creek.

EAGLES MEET EARLY

Members of the Eagles baseball team are asked to report at the field at 5 p. m. Saturday, ready for their feature game under Legion auspices.

Deserted Beaver Island Village Is Rich In Romantic Lore

(By Ben East)
St. James, Beaver Island — Deserted villages have a strange fascination for visitors.

But of the great host of tourists and summer vacationists pouring north along the highways of Michigan this month fewer than a handful will get to see what is probably the most interesting deserted village in the state.

That is the "village" on High Island, lonely outpost of land in Lake Michigan 10 miles west of Beaver Island, nearly 40 miles from Charlevoix, the nearest mainland port.

It is a village without a name, but rich in romantic history. Less than a decade ago it was a thriving community of between 300 and 400 persons. Today one Indian family makes its temporary abode there, tending pound nets set for whitefish around the island shoals.

Was Branch Colony
The High Island community was founded as a branch colony of the House of David, religious sect with headquarters at Benton Harbor. Report has it that in the heyday of King Benjamin Purcell, head of the Benton Harbor colony, he banished to lake-girt High Island all who incurred his displeasure.

The several hundred colonists who dwell in the lonely High Island village, whether they went there of their own will or at the command of their "king," lived an unusual lommunal existence.

They operated a community laundry, a sawmill, a bakery for the entire colony and community farms cleared from the timbered island some distance west of the village, sheltered from the Lake Michigan winds by the high sand dunes that fringe the western shore of the island.

With the downfall of King Ben, followed a year or two later by his death, the High Island colony began to dwindle. For a few years the colonists continued to come here to St. James in their open boats, in diminishing numbers, trading berries, garden vegetables and other farm produce for groceries and supplies.

Toys Beside Door
But their numbers grew fewer and fewer as the colonists drifted away from their isolated, storm-bound homes. Two years ago a caretaker who stayed on in the village departed, and the colony became what it is today, a deserted cluster of unpainted buildings huddled in a sunny opening on the eastern beach of High Island.

The village goes unvisited now for weeks and months at a time but it still presents interesting relics of the colonists who made their homes there.

Grass grows high around the buildings. Wild roses have invaded the untended gardens. Windows are missing and doors have fallen ajar. Beside a crumbling barn stands an ancient wagon with crude wheels formed of sections cut from the end of a big log. Close by is a dismantled model T truck, long past the stage of active operation.

Children's toys lie beside the door of a log house, overgrown now with grass and weeds. The owners must have departed in too great a hurry to take with them more than necessities.

The inside of many of the buildings is papered with copies of the religious paper published by the mother colony at Benton Harbor, some dating back to before the World war.

Little remains of the bakery, laundry and sawmill save the machinery, rusting under the Lake Michigan rains.

Standing by itself in the woods a short distance from the village is a building that had no connection with the House of David colony but that is, nevertheless, a fitting part of the deserted community.

It is a small Catholic Indian mission where for many years Fr. Aubert, a Franciscan missionary widely known in northwestern Michigan, conducted services for the High Island Indians at regular intervals.

Two years ago Fr. Aubert was transferred to other work in Illinois. Since that time no service has been held in the lonely little mission. Recently coast guardsmen in charge of Capt. Deto of the local station visited High Island and brought back to St. James all the property of the mission, turning it over to Holy Cross church here.

The bell in the mission tower still sends its clear summons ringing across the wooded island and along the sandy beach, on those infrequent occasions when visitors find their way to the little church and tug at the bell rope. But from the deserted village no worshippers gather. Only the seagulls cry their solemn complaints overhead.
