PEOPLE WILL TALK.

You may go through the world, but 'twill be very slow

If you listen to all that is said as you go.

You'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew.

For middle-aged tongues must have something to do.

For people will talk.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed

That your humble position is only assumed.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart.

Or a slight inclination to take your own part.

They will call you an upstart, conceited and vain.

But keep straight ahead—don't stop to explain—

For people will talk.

If three-fourths your dress and old-fashioned your hat.

Someone will surely take notice of that.

And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way.

But don't get excited, whatever they say—

For people will talk.

If your dress is fashionable, don't think to expose.

For they criticize them in a different shape:

Your ahead of your means, or your tail to impass.

But mind your own business—there's naught to be made—

For people will talk.

Now the best way to do it is to do as you please:

For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease.

Of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse.

But don't think to stop them—it ain't any use.

For people will talk.

LA SERENISSIMA.

A TALE OF VENICE.

While other capitals have gradually increased, and are increasing every day in every direction, Venice, surrounded by its inland sea, attained several centuries ago its present size and shape.

The Piazza San Marco has been since then its Forum; successive generations have daily repaired to it in quest of news, of sunshine or of friends; and will continue to walk under its arcades, to cross it and recross it in every direction, as long as the Doge and the Procurator shall it around, as long as the golden angel on St. Mark's Tower shines far above the silent city. Its glory and its power have disappeared; the Queen of the seas is now only a small provincial town. But, however fallen from a diplomatic or commercial point of view, Venice has still, and will always have, a peculiar thrilling interest. Every stone has its own legacy of romance; every dark gate is handled by its familiar ghosts; every recess, every canopy, whispers its own weird story.

The official annals of the Most Se-renate Venetian Republic contain, innumerable instances of secret arrests, secret trials, followed almost always by still more secret executions; but besides these, many a terrible drama has taken place within the stone walls of the State prisons. Conveniently situated under the Ducal Palace, and with their floors slightly under high water mark, these "wells"—as they were called on account of their dampness—very seldom gave up a victim except as a corpse. Silent and dark as the grave, they were fit instruments for a stern and mysterious tribunal.

The severity of the Council of Ten, was manned, his luggage loaded in it, and at last began to glide toward the city. He reached Venice just before dawn; and after a hasty toilet and a still more hurried breakfast, Sir

John delivered his package and began exploring the lanes and alleys of that incomprehensible town. Being tolerably proficient in the language, he soon found his way to the Piazza San Marco, and was duly astonished by its peculiar aspect. Then, as now, the Piazza was in the heart of the city; laws and edicts were pronounced from the balcony of the Ducal Palace; while beggars, singers and others of a similar caste gave it a strange animation.

Thoroughly enjoying the freedom of walking after his long journey by sea and gondola, Sir John indulged his rambling propensities to the fullest extent. While he was thus enjoying a crowd collected in front of the Ducal Palace.

Naturally curious, and having nothing else to do, he hastened to the spot and elbowed his way to the center. By the red pillar of the balcony an usher was reading out the sentence of some unknown felon, with all the pompous circumlocutions so much in favor in those days. The wretched prisoner, just brought out of some dark cell, seemed scarcely to realize the scene, and his eyes, unused now to the light of the sun, gazed vacantly on the excited mob that surrounded the low scaffold on which he was standing. The sentences having been read, the prisoner was taken away to the jail where he was to undergo the term of his imprisonment, which he had just been condemned; and the crowd, the sight being over, gradually dispersed.

This incident was in itself very trifling, and Sir John would probably have forgotten it within a week had it not been for its strange consequences.

While pushing and elbowing his way through the crowd, it seems that some pickpocket had robbed him of his left handkerchief. It is certainly very unpleasant to be robbed even of a valueless article; but in this case the thief had obtained a valuable prize; and besides there was for Sir John Hawser the additional sting of having been robbed by an Italian. He would have been less angry if it had happened in London; the pickpockets there were so clever that there was no shame in being their victims; but to have been plundered by a clumsy Venetian was

During the past couple weeks most of the principal mine owners in this section have made concessions to the eastern furnaces...

Donald Cameron, our prominent lumberman, was convicted of having taken pine timber off government lands, and was fined $120 and given two months in the city jail...

The Remenyi concert troupe is billed for Wednesday next, May 28th, at Mother's hall. It seems that in this one instance the people of Marquette need no exhortation to patronize a first-class entertainment...

On Monday morning last the preparations were being made by the Cleveland Iron Mining company, during the past month, for lighting their mine in this city with the electric light...

stoppage of any of the others, and an additional circuit, or "half circuit," has also been erected to be used in case of need. Steam for the engine is at present furnished by the old boilers in No. 1, but the company is now putting in a new boiler in the same building...

MARQUETTE.

Dan H. Ball left for Houghton on Thursday, to attend the court at that place.

John Thoney has opened a billiard hall up stairs in his building, on Front street, in connection with the saloon.

The U. S. district court adjourned Wednesday morning sine die, a great deal of legal business having been transacted.

Green & Sunderland have opened a restaurant at Jim Green's old stand. If you want a good square meal call on Tom and you'll get it.

W. P. Healy, who, on the 11th inst., bid farewell to the state of single bliss and took unto himself a better half, is now towing his consort along the Atlantic.

The cry of the chimney-sweep is again heard on the house-tops. He stands on your roof, hallooos hee-ho-ho two or three times, sings a song, comes down, and charges you half a dollar.

A. F. Maynard, lately admitted to the bar at the Marquette county circuit court, was admitted to practice in the U. S. court, by Judge Brown, on Wednesday, M. H. Crocker, of Ishpeeming, was also admitted.

The residences of Messrs. McCauley and Cameron were struck by lightning during the heavy storm that passed over this place on Tuesday morning last. No serious damage was sustained.

The city roughs are again coming to the front, and seem to be anxious to maintain their general unenvied reputation, by imbibing too freely of the nervous stimulant, and kicking in saloon doors after being refused admission.

Donald Cameron, our prominent lumberman, was convicted of having taken pine timber off government lands, and was fined $120 and given two months in the city jail, by Judge Brown, of the district court. He is at present in jail serving out his term.

Gillmore, the old-timer, having been laid up all winter with injured legs, is coming around again, and has gone back to his old line of business. He will open a restaurant in J. Frei's building on Washington street. Give him a call; he's a good one.

The item which appeared in this column some time ago, announcing the ordination of Thomas Athfield to the priesthood, was erroneous—he having said at that time merely raised to the office of deacon. He was ordained, however, on Thursday last, by the Rt. Rev. J. B. Verlin, at the church of St. Jean de Baptiste, and the rite was witnessed by a large number of the young man's friends and members of the congregation. We wish him nothing but happiness and success in his clerical career.

front of that place of business. The boy was pretty badly hurt, though not dangerously, while the driver escaped with a few bruises and cuts about the face, which were patched up immediately after they had been inflicted.

In connection with the returns of blast furnaces, which we have published quarterly for some years past, we have several times remarked the greater readiness of the coke furnaces of the country to accommodate themselves to changes in the market. After the panic of 1873 these furnaces went out of blast more readily than the anthracite furnaces; the production of coke iron was reduced more rapidly than that of anthracite, and it took several years for the proportion of anthracite furnaces in blast to those out of blast to reach the figures shown in the statistics of the bituminous furnaces. The present reaction in iron shows this still more clearly. The coke furnaces are accommodating themselves to the light demand and are blowing out. We have reports of sixteen blast furnaces out of blast in the immediate vicinity of Pittsburgh, and our list is undoubtedly imperfect. The capacity of these furnaces and their actual make, under ordinary conditions, is about 6000 tons. If the present condition of the iron market continues, others will blow out.—Iron Age.

The American Manufacturer says of the proposed reduction of duty on pig iron: "The magnitude of the industry affected by congressman Tucker and his coadjutors, if they should succeed in having the duty on hoop-iron reduced to 35 per cent. ad valorem, may be understood by statements of representatives of the manufacturers. They represent that in the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Ohio alone, $3,000,000 are invested and 5000 men employed in the manufacture of cut hoop-iron; that 13 mills devoted exclusively to the manufacture of hoops, band and scroll iron, employ 1000 men and a capital of $10,000,000; ten mills, in making hoops, bands and scrolls, in connection with the merchant iron business, which have a capital of $2,500,000, and employ 3000 men. The product of these mills is 150,000 tons per annum, the aggregate value of goods, $3,000,000; and the cost of raw material, $5,000,000."

Green & Sunderland have opened a restaurant at Jim Green's old stand. If you want a good square meal call on Tom and you'll get it.

The Remenyi concert troupe is billed for Wednesday next, May 28th, at Mother's hall. It seems that in this one instance the people of Marquette need no exhortation to patronize a first-class entertainment instead of a minstrel show. All the reserved seats have been sold, with the exception of the first three rows, which have been reserved by the managers here for Ishpeeming patronage.

On Monday morning, about 10 o'clock, the delivery horse belonging to John F. Mack, while going down Front street attached to the delivery wagon, became frightened by a passing locomotive just as he was crossing the bridge which spans the railroad cut—the locomotive passing through the cut under the bridge just at that time—and started down the street, taking a zig-zag course, at a very lively pace. He hadn't got any farther than Thoney's saloon when a boy named John Mehan, who was sitting in the wagon with the driver, was thrown out, and when the animal got as far as Redinger's market market, the driver was thrown out, he striking his face against the telegraph pole which stands in
