THE HUMAN BRAIN.

It Neither Originates a Word Nor Forms a Notion.

Those physiological and surgical facts which show that brain matter has itself no capacity for thought are of such recent discovery that only a relatively small number of personsthat the brain neither originates a word nor forms a notion. Anatomy and physiology alike indicate that the brain is never other than the instrument of what-in the present state of science-must be called the "personality." The personality is as different from, as separate from, the brain as the violinist is separate from his violin. It is not brain which makes man. Man makes one of his brain hemispheres human by his own labor. If a human personality entered a young chimpanzee's brain-where, by the way, it would find all the required cerebral convolutions-that ape could then grow into a true inventor or philosopher, for it is the great man who makes the great brain and not the great brain which makes the great man. This is another way of saying that we can make our own brains-so C far as special functions or aptitudes are concerned. Human brain matter does not become human in its powers, C indeed, until the personality within takes it in hand to fashion it.

What is the "he himself" which thus takes the mechanism known as the brain and uses it for thought purpose as a telegrapher would use a ticker and a series of wires for the transmission of messages? In the present state of anatomy and of pathology, replies Dr. Thomson, in effect, we have here the greatest mystery connected with the conscious personality. We know that the conscious personality-or whatever one pleases to call it-has a material organ to think with. The conscious personality does the thinking. The material organ is the instrument of thought, and that material organ exists in two symmetrical halves. It is only one-half of this organ, however, which can be used for speech or for recognizing or knowing anything which is either seen or heard or touched-in the sense of the touch which is educated. All acquired human endowments therefore are acquired by modification of the material comprising the speaking half of the brain. This speaking half of the brain did not originally have a single one of these great functions, not a single place in it for them, any more than its fellow hemisphere has to the end of its life. They are all stamped, as it were, each in its respective place in the speaking hemisphere, by a single creative agency. All words and all knowledge are put in the brain and arranged there for use, like so many books on their brain shelves by the brain's librarian. Where he goes when he locks this library up and leaves for the night-in sleepwe do not know. But one thing is certain-not one of the books made itself or put itself where it properly is .--

Through Torture.

KINDNESS IS NOT A FACTOR.

The Result of the Methods Employed, Says an English Writer, Is the Triumph of a Brute Over a Brute by Patient and Persistent Cruelty.

"I have an old fashioned belief that one should never make a damning statement unless he is prepared to prove it up to the hilt. And so I am confronted at the outset with an almost insurmountable difficulty-to the layman who would accurately inform himself of the methods of animal training there is opposed a bulwark of conwall of China," writes W. Rainton Clarke in the Manchester Chronicle.

"The glib assurance that 'it is all done by kindness' has become a byword. No true lover of an animal believes it, nor could any reasoning creature, lacking that particular affection, if he will carefully examine such facts as are obvious.

"Granted there are animals of extreme intelligence and ductability. Granted there are men and women of achieve in combination does not pro- Saleeby admits, would be great. Howduce an effective stage show, nor can ever, he continues, "If one started to one-hundredth part of the 'entertain- make a list of the bodily characters of pupil. It is more probably the tri- originally one would require a volumph of a brute over a brute by patient and persistent cruelty.

"The public judges by what it sees on the stage and remarks in admiration and approval that there was 'no sign of a whip.' An animal exhibitor who was avowedly cruel would be pretty low down in the ranks of showmen. I own a particularly ferocious looking bulldog who goes crazy with delight at the sight of a whip. It has been his pet toy for years and means the beginning of a romp. On the other hand, a movement of the trainer's finger almost imperceptible to the audidence may suggest to the powerful imagination of the animal flendish torture. It may recall the hot irons, the agonizing titillation of a nerve. 'Such appeals to the memory are, in truth, the stock in trade of the animal trainer. What the wretched creature has gone through during months of mostly specialists-have the least idea daily preparation can never be known, for the work is carried out in secrecy and seclusion. There is rarely a second person present, and the brute cannot speak. That is the most hideous factor of the case.

"There is no concealment of the fact that the training is apt to be hard and painful, and a blow is not uncommon from the most humane and patient trainer, angered, it may be, by stupidity and insubordination. If it is so with the boy, what must it be with the brute?

"There is no possession so hideous as that of the triumph, even momentarily, of cruelty. Touch a child, a horse or a dog with a whip and there is a hideous sense of satisfaction, even when the cause is righteous. The joy of inflicting pain is possible to the best of us and grows by what it feeds on.

"Imagine the situation between a coarse vulgarian and a helpless brute and you get the process of animal

"I have never known a disinterested member of the circus community pretend that the education of any animal was pleasant to the animal, and I have known them to speak with horror of the methods of some trainers.

"It is not very long since an athlete snatched the whip from a well known dog trainer on the stage of a London variety theater and soundly thrashed him amid the plaudits of the company. "Another distinguished professor is blacklisted by one of the largest syndicates for undisguised cruelty (off the stage) to his large and various family. Two of our best known managers absolutely refuse to deal with animal 'turns' and make no concealment of their reasons. And the editor, now deceased, of an important professional paper, for years refused to attend any place of entertainment where dogs or birds, or indeed any dumb creature save conventional circus horses, ap-

"All these men knew what they were about. Most of the other performers in a music hall fight keep shy of the animal trainers. The stage hands speak with horror of what they see. "The mortality among performing animals is perfectly awful. Ever so many are hopelessly injured in the process of education, and ever so many succumb to the dreadful life of nightly performances.

"Whenever a case of cruelty by a performer comes before the courts one is amazed by the ineptitude and futility of the evidence.

"The public is of course the main culprit. It wants the shows, and managers provide them, though they must be conscious of the truth of all I have written. They even assist in the unkindness, for the stabling and menagerie accommodations of some of our largest establishments are insanitary and inadequate in the extreme.

"I finish as I begin. The cruelty of animal training is almost impossible of proof. Much of it should be obvious, Animals, as a Rule, Taught Tricks and so much of my indictment as is not to be proved by the obvious is not, I solemnly affirm, based on a desire to be sensational or on idle gossip, but on the dependable assurances of men and women who dare not submit to public citation."

That is the Reason He is Compelle to Wear Glasses.

Many of the commonest physical defects of civilized man are due to an imperfect adaptation of his body to new conditions of life. Nearsightedness is an example.

GAY FUNERAL RITES.

Curious Ceremonies That Accompany Cremation In Siam.

The funerals of young unmarried ladies in Brazil are grewsomely gay, so to speak. The color of the coffin is bright scarlet, and bright scarlet, too. are the hearse, the livery of the driver. the harness and the plumes that nod on the heads of the horses.

But for a gay funeral we must go to the cremation of the dead in Siam. When the body is that of a prince the proceedings are most elaborate. Gold carriages galore abound, and the pyre is ultimately lighted by the king himself with candles which have been ignited at the sacred lamps in the temples of his palace, which burn night and day. The lighting of the funeral pyre is followed up with sports and the lotus dance. The king promotes the mirth by tossing limes to the people, by whom they are eagerly fought for, as inserted in each are current coins of the realm. Darkness having at length fallen over the land, fireworks and gay illuminations conclude these curious funeral rites.

The Word Etiquette. The very high sounding word etiquette had a very humble origin, for etiquette meant simply a label. It received its present signification from the fact that a Scotch gardener who laid out the grounds at Versailles for Louis XIV. was much annoyed at the courtiers walking over his newly made paths and at length had labels placed to indicate where they might pass. At first these labels were not attended to, but a hint from high quarters that in future the walks of the courtiers must be within the "etiquettes" or labels was promptly attended to. To keep within the etiquettes became the correct thing. The meaning of the phrase was afterward widened.

The Pygmy Cattle of Samoa. The Samoan islands are the natural habitat of the most diminutive species of variety of the genus bos now known to the naturalist. The average weight of the males of these lilliputian cattle seldom exceeds 200 pounds, the average being not greater than 150 pounds. The females usually average about a hundred pounds larger and are very "stocky" built, seldom being taller than a Merino sheep. These dwarf cattle are nearly all of the same colorreddish mouse color, marked with white. They have very large heads as compared with their bodies, and their horns are of exceptional length.

The Sky and the Weather.

Whether clear or cloudy, a rosy sunset presages fine weather; a sickly looking, greenish hue, wind and rain; a dark, or Indian, red, rain; a red sky in the morning, bad weather or much wind, perhaps rain; a gray sky in the morning, fine weather; a high dawn, wind; a low dawn, fair weather. Remarkable clearness of atmosphere near the horizon, distant objects, such as hills, unusually visible or raised by refraction and what is called a good "hearing day," may be mentioned among signs of wet, if not wind.

LIVING BY MUSIC.

Advantage of Being Able to Play at Least Two Instruments. A member of a rausical organization who takes special pride in his skill as a tuba player is also an accomplished violinist.

"Every practical musician," he says, 'who expects to make his living at the business ought to play at least two instruments-one brass and the other string. It often happens that a man playing two instruments can secure in engagement where he who plays but one would be left unemployed during part of the time. Traveling companies who take their musicians along often insist on their doubling up-that is, playing brass in a street parade or in front of the theater and a string instrument in the orchestra. In the good old summer time the demand is for brass. In the winter strings are in request, so at the change of season many cornet and horn players put away their brass instruments, take up their fiddles and their bows and play at balls and dances all the winter long.

"Besides this, there is another thing to be considered. Every cornet and horn player must look forward to the time when his lip gives out. After years of horn playing the overtaxed muscles of the lips become relaxed. They are strained from the constant demands made upon them by holding them in a certain position. Sometimes a player retains his embouchure for life, sometimes it gives out suddenly, sometimes there is a gradual deterioration in strength of muscle and he finds himself playing worse than he did before and is compelled to realize the fact that his lip is giving way. The infirmity is a kind of paralysis of the lip, somewhat resembling the scrivener's cramp, which attacks the fingers of the bookkeeper. The lips remain otherwise in good order."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Alarm Clock For a Cent. "T've got the best alarm clock in the business, and Uncle Sam provides it for me," said a West Philadelphia business man of irregular hours yesterday. "Two or three days of each week I have to rise early. Our postman always rings our doorbell good and hard when he leaves any mail. He comes along regularly as clockwork at 8 a. m., but does not always leave mail for me. and consequently the doorbell does not always ring. When I want to get up I just buy a post card in the afternoon and mail it to myself. It has never failed to arrive in the early mail, accompanied, of course, by the ringing of the bell by the postman. Talk about a cheap system. I can make the most important kind of an appointment for the morning and fill it by the extra expenditure of a single penny."-Philadelphia Record.

Charles Kingsley.

It has been said that Kingsley's fame as a poet is not so wide as it deserves to be. Whatever truth there may be in this assertion there can be no doubt regarding his right to a place in the front rank of nineteenth century novellsts. Kingsley's "Alton Locke," the Chartist novel, in which he eclipsed even Dickens in his vivid picture of the life of the poorer classes, somewhat outshone his later works, but even these betray indications on every page of having emanated from a master mind. As a preacher Kingsley was and two and one-half drams of salicylsimple and earnest, and no less so when he preached at Westminster than when he addressed his village congregation at Eversley. - London Standard.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To Wash White Silk Lace.

Wash very carefully. If very soiled soak it for several hours in a lather of warm water and soap, and allow one teaspoonful of powdered borax to one quart of water. Then squeeze it out of the soaking water and wash it in two or three warm lathers of soap and water.

Do not rub it, but squeeze between the hands and press it well. Any rubbing or twisting would break the threads of the lace, especially if it were of a fine make.

When clean rinse well in tepid water, and then to restore its color steep it for half an hour in a half pint of warm milk to which one tablespoonful of melted gum has been added.

No starch must be used, and the lace must be kept very carefully covered while ironing.

Gasoline Soft Soap.

To make a good washing compound shave a bar of "ripe" soap into shreds. Put it into a two gallon pot. Add two quarts of hot water and boil until the soap is reduced to a jelly. Take the pot out of doors or into a fireless room and while the jelly is still hot pour in a half pint of gasoline. Let it stand until the furious foaming is over and the mixture is rather more than luke-

To use the mixture add a quart of it to the tubs in which the soaked clothes have been put and covered with hot water. Lift and stir the clothes to make a suds of the water that will reach every article. They will need little rubbing. You may add a cupful of the compound to the water in the boiler without danger of an explosion.

A short distance in front of the board is a spring arm, one end of which connects with a small roller. This spring arm regulates the thickness of the slice of bread to be cut. As the knife descends through the bread the roller forces the spring arm down, the slice thus falling on the table. When the knife is withdrawn the spring arm ascends and is ready to measure off the next slice.

For Itching Feet.

If the feet itch, a symptom likely to mean the appearance of chilblains, it would be well to rub the feet night and morning with equal parts of camphor and rosemary, and through the day dust over a powder made of three and one-eighth ounces of talcum powder ate of bismuth. This, however, will be useless in case of fully developed chilblains.

Cleaning Matting.

Indian meal is very good for cleaning matting. Sprinkle the meal over the floor and then have it thoroughly swept out. Benzine and French chalk will remove grease from matting. Cover the spot thickly with chalk and moisten by sprinkling the benzine on it. When the benzing has evaporated brush off the chalk and the spot will have disappeared.

The Useful Broom Cover. Not until she has used it does a housekeeper realize what a time, back and strength saver is the broom cover. It should be made out of the cotton flannel or flannelette to fit the broom and short pieces of tape sewed on to tie it when it is put on ready for use. It can be used on the walls, picture moldings and baseboards.

SAVE THE COAST PORTS.

LANDING PARTIES IN HONDURAS WILL NOT ALLOW BOMBARD-ING OF CITIES.

PROTECT FOREIGN PROPERTY.

United States Marines Are on Duty with Hotchkiss Guns at Ceiba and Trujillo.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3 .-President Bonilla of Honduras is still surrounded at Amapala, but the bombardment of the town by Nicarguan gunboats has ceased. The United States cruiser Chicago and the gunboat Princeton are lying near the island, and the presence of these two American warships is supposed to be largely responsible for the halt in the bombardment.

Americans Save Coast Ports. PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, April 3.—The intentions of the United States in landing marines on the Honduras coast and the evident latitude granted them in protecting foreign life and prop-erty is exciting much comment here. It erty is exciting much comment here. It has been remarked as especially significant that the American landing parties, not only here, but at Ceiba and Trujillo, have in each instance placed a Hotchkiss gun, which they took ashore with them, so as to sweep the seaward approach.

The foreigners believe that this means the United States will not permit the ports to be bombarded. Inasmuch as per cent. of the houses here and at Ceiba belong to foreigners, cannon shot fired into either place would do damage to foreign owned property. It is believed that in the case of these two Nicaraguan gunboats will be kept off by the Hotchkiss guns, while at Trujillo, despite the fact that it is a Honduran port, the Honduran gunboat will allowed to bombard in any attempt to recapture the port from the Nicaraguans. Both countries are treated impartially in this respect.

Looting No Longer Feared.

Although the powers granted Commander Fullam of the American gunboat Marietta, which landed these parties, are believed to be sufficiently broad to prevent naval attacks, yet the foreigners fear that the Americans would not interfere to stop landing parties from charging the local garrisons and capturing the

The fear, however, that such captures would involve the horrors of a loot, has been dispelled, at least for the coast wns where Americans are stationed, the experience of Trujillo. At Puerto Cortez the dozen marines comprising the landing party are quartered in what is the most widely known of Honduran buildings, the mansion, for-merly occupied by the Honduras National Lottery company. The marines occupy a large room where the lottery drawings were held, and the Hotchkiss gun stands on the veranda. This handful of ma-rines is in the midst of about 1500 Honduran soldiers who are continually busy drilling and throwing up fortifications.

Don't Know Status of War. NEW ORLEANS, La., April 3.—The unusual circumstance of half the people of a country not much over 200 miles broad, remaining in ignorance for at least a week of the fall of the capital and flight of the nation's president, is shown to exist by dispatches from Puerto Cortez. As late as last Wednesday fully 1000 men engaged in a sanguinary half day's battle at Camaygua, in the northwestern half of Honduras. This battle was between 400 revolutionists and troops of Gen. Guerrero, a Graciano Indian leader, who was executing an order issued by President Bonilla before he had fled more than a week previously.

Guerrero wired the news of his victory to that part of Honduras which was still more or less loyal to Bonilla, and ignorant of the disastrous outcome of the war. He did not give the number of

F. of L. and the international organization of brewery workers began in earnest. Whether it will immediately involve the other Columbus breweries will depend upon the developments today.

The brewery workers have thrown the gauntlet down to the A. F. of L. and, if the latter carries out its intention, it will immediately start a dual organiza-tion and fill the places of the men who refused to continue at work. The fight is based entirely on the question of jurisdiction over firemen and engineers, and had an issue in nearly every settlement with the brewers for Transfers Her Entire Estate to Three Trustees and Thereby Avoids Personal Court Appearance.

CONCORD, N. H., April 3 .- A motion for leave to intervene, involving the subplaintiffs in place of the "next friends," was the answer of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science religion, in the suit brought to compel an accounting of her property. The motion came as a distinct surprise.

By a deed of trust Mrs. Eddy has transferred her entire estate, with a few minor reservations, to three trustees, Henry M. Baker of Bow, Archibald Mc-Lellan of Boston, and Josiah E. Fernald of Concord. These trustees are bonded to the extent of $500,000.

It is now claimed that Mrs. Eddy cannot be compelled to appear in court in onnection with the pending litigation. The trustees are empowered to prosecute and defend, for the benefit of the estate of Mrs. Eddy, any suits at law or in equity, whether now pending or that afterwards may be brought with reference to any matter in which she may personally be interested. # CAUGHT IN RAID.

District Attorney Jerome Seizes Lists of Patrons of New York Pool Rooms.

NEW YORK, April 2 .- The pool room situation in New York is again attracting attention, following two important raids made by the district attorney's office. One of the places raided was in lower Broadway and the other at 112 Fulton street. Both aparently were distributing points of information for a chain of poolrooms, and important books and papers regarding the illegal business, together with a list of names of patrons, some prominent in business and official life, were seized.

Bettor Has Small Chance. District Attorney Jerome has had his assistants examine the seized documents, and today he makes public some of the surprising things they found. The books show that five men in the Fulton street poolroom syndicate made a profit of over $20,000 monthly for many months. The profits for a year are placed at $250,000 indicating what little chance a majority of bettors have. These immense profits, it is stated, e made with a capital of $10,000.

Prominent Men Implicated.

The patrons of the poolrooms included men prominent in business, social, and official circles, according to records, letters and checks found. The names of many of these men will be made public through grand jury proceedings which the district attorney is about to institute. The men will be called to testify, and under the Dowling law, an act adopted by the Legislature at the request of Mr. Jerome, they will have to tell what they know of the business, who ran it and who protected it, or go to jail. Sensational exposures are expected shortly and the statement is made that Mr. Jerome hopes to uncover the elu sive "man higher up."

The boys gave the names of Lester Hall, Walter Leonard and James White. According to the story of one of the boys they wanted to see some fun. They first attended to like the seed tempted to light Lacoco's clothing with a match but were unsuccessful. They then went to a drug store and secured a bottle of alcohol, the contents of which they poured over the sleeper's clothing. As the flames enveloped his body Lococo was awakened and after a futile attempt to extinguish the flames rushed into the street where he fell un-conscious. He was taken to a hospital where his condition was said to be

ELECTRIFICATION OF STEAM RAILWAYS.

By Bion F. Arnold. Previous to 1904 the officials of the steam allways of the country had paid but little attention to the subject of electricity, but were beginning to realize the inroads that were being made upon their local traffic by the interurban roads. This caused the more progressive ones among them to begin carefully to investigate the claims of the advantages of electric traction, with the result that at that time there either were contemplated, or well under way, a number of important electric installations, which could be credited to the favorable decisions of steam railway

The Pennsylvania railroad system, in addition to the electrification of its great terminal system in the vicinity of New York, gradually is electrifying the Long Island Railroad system, which so effectually gridirons the island lying east of Manhattan Island, and known as Long Island.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company also is going to great expense in the electrification of its line from New York City to Stamford, Conn., a distance of thirty-one miles, with probability of gradual extension of electric traction over its system.

These few examples, together with the electrical operation of the great Simplon tunnel, by means of which the traveler will be carried from Switzerland into Italy without the annoyance due to the obnoxious gases emitted from the steam locomotive, I believe are sufficiently impressive to emphasize the correctness of the lines of development outlined by me in 1904, involving, as they do, an expenditure of approximately $100,000,000 for electrical equipment, and a collateral investment of some $300,-

MEDICINE HAS MADE GREAT STRIDES.

By Dr. W. H. Welch.

I wish to emphasize the mutual helpfulness of the various medical sciences in the development of medical knowledge and practice. Consider, for example, the indispensable share of embryology, of anatomy, gross and microscopic, of physiology, of pathological anatomy, of clinical study, in the evolution of our knowledge of the latest contribution to diseases of the circulatory system—that disturbance of the cardiac rhythm called 'heart block." Similar illustrations of the unity of the medical sciences and of the co-operation of the laboratory and the clinic might be multiplied indefinitely from all classes of disease.

Great as has been the advance of medicine in the last half century, it is small, indeed, in comparison with what remains to be accomplished. On every hand there are still unsolved problems of disease of overshadowing importance. The ultimate problems relate to the nature and fundamental properties of living matter, and the power to modify these properties in desired directions. Knowledge breeds new knowledge, and we cannot doubt that research will be even more productivt in the future than it has been in the past. It would be hazardous in practical. The struggle for life is strenuous, and many are forced to "cut their hard paths straightly by Poor Richard's eloquence." On the other hand, we are continually told that modern society has no earnestness, no depth, little or no sincerity, and, worst of all, no high moral standard. Fashion and pleasure and a sham love are the amusements of the hour. To outshine each other in dress, in engagements, in admirers is apparently the whole duty of young women in the "classes." There can be no love without romance. Take that away and poetry vanishes; even as war without romance is merely licensed slaughter, so love, bereft of its sentiment, is but an affair of sale and barter. It is love, romantic love, which makes of marriage the most sacred and beautiful of ties; that sweet passion which South has called "the great instrument of nature, the bond and cement of society, the spirit and spring of the universe,' which, wisely controlled and rightly bestowed, warms, elevates and brightens life. But it should not be lightly given nor heedlessly accepted. The heart should carefully discriminate between true love and its many spurious imitations; with its sacred aureole of glory no unworthy object should be crowned, neither should it be allowed to dominate reason and judgment. Romantic love is by no means one and the same with blind, unreasoning passion.

TRIAL MARRIAGES WOULD BE MONSTROUS.

By Rev. Dr. Frank Crane. The modern novel attack upon the family is nothing but another form of the world old complaint against human destiny. Mrs. Parsons suggests trial marriages. The scheme of trial marriages is, of course, simply monstrous. To cure a slight evil it would open the door to a most certain and positive crime. It would put a premium upon the wicked propensities of men. When a man and woman marry it is right that it should be under the promise of "for better or for worse, in sickness and in health, for richer, for poorer, till death do us part." It is this feeling of finality in the act of marriage that brings out the good in both parties. For few marriages fail which would not have succeeded had there been unswerving loyalty to the spirit of the marriage vows. Men and women are so constituted that, other things being reasonably equal, and there being no intolerable and manifest incongruity, their living together in loyalty induces love

RECLAIM LAND WORN OUT.

Portuguese Hope to Restore to Cultivation 10,000,000 Acres.

Portugal, according to Vice and Deputy Consul R. H. Kinchant of Lisbon, has started in on a system of land reclamation which, if as successful as it promises to be, must result in similar movements in various parts of Europe. He writes:

"In the south of Portugal a serious attempt is being made, with some chance of success, to bring back into cultivation a large tract of land. This country being essentially agricultural, any steps to reclaim land that has gone out of cultivation, estimated at 4,314,-000 hectars (about 10,000,000 acres), or 44 per cent of the total area of Portugal, are a move in the right direction.

"Some energetic members of society in the district of Serpa, in combination with the municipal authorities, have set to work upon 100,000 acres, dividing it up into allotments of fifteen acres each and letting it at a nominal rent, calculated according to the estimated value of the land, which has, as it were, four classifications, the highest quit rent being placed at $3.20 and the lowest at 40 cents an allotment, free of total rates and taxes for ten years. "Quite a heterogeneous mixture of settlers has already taken possession of their tenements. Carpenters, masons, doctors, chemists, barbers, seamstresses, tailors, and even beggars, figure in the list.

"One of the chief difficulties to be overcome before making the allotments was to deal with the proprietary right of beekeepers, who centuries ago had certain privileges conferred upon them whereby they did a thriving trade in honey and wax. This trade has in later times diminished, owing to the destruction of the floral produce of the land, chiefly by firing when portions thereof were cleared for wheat and other cereals. Matters have been amicably settled for the beekeepers and the embryo agriculturists. The success of the scheme as far as it has gone has stirred the ambition of the residents in a large part of the north of Portugal, where a project on simlar lines is being set on foot to bring back into cultivation something like half a million acres."

When people use the word "heredy" they are very likely to mean some dreadful bugaboo of a supposed natural law, which they have invited for themselves, through which the poor human race comes in for all the ailments and weaknesses of its forbears, with none of the compensations. One hears constantly such phrases as "her mother had consumption," or "his uncle drank himself to death," but there is much less frankness in returning thanks for the physical benefits that also come down so abundantly from the past. It must not be forgotten that diseases are not directly inherited, but only the tendency to them. This is a very comfortable fact, for it constantly offers a reward for well-directed effort. If one knows from the start which are the avenues open to danger one is forewarned and forearmed. Those who have that knowledge will not take the children in whose families there have been many instances of tuberculosis and shut them up in stuffy places or give them a diet containing too little fat. They would be too wise to let the excitable child of nervous parentage lead a life of overstimulation or be pushed in its studies, or to offer sips of wine at the table to the small boy whose father is a heavy drinker.

Just as a predisposition to a disease may be inherited, so also may an absolute inability to have it. One sees this proved by persons who pass unscathed through epidemic after epidemic. This shows that their inherited tendenc ytoward the disease, if they have any, is so much weaker than their inherited resistance to it that they are virtually unable to catch it.

Nature herself shows constant preference for the normal, and is always working to that end; therefore a tendency to disease is the punishment for disobeying her. Neither is she implacable, so that if one will only work long enough and hard enough to correct one's mistakes there comes a time when nature gives a clean bill of health. It would be a tragic world indeed if only the sins of the parents were visited upon the children .- Youth's Compan-

to Enhance Nature's Charms.

Of Woman's Right

We have never been able to understand why anyone should wish to be younger or older than he or she really is. Vanity, of course, must be reckoned with as a potent force among human frailties. and is responsible, doubtless, for much of woman's resentment at the ravages of that sinks into her heart with every glance at a mirror and makes her sad; angry, too, with God, for not imposing the same penalties upon aging men. would not express the feeling in those if so bluntly put, she might af frightedly deny its existence; but pressed for an answer, if truthful, as most wom en are in such matters, while dodging the fixing of responsibility for this seeming discrimination against her sex, she will insist invariably upon the unfairness of the arrangement whereby a process that adds to man's physical distinction detracts from woman's charm.

For ourselves, we make it a point sel dom to criticise publicly the methods of the creator in shaping the destinies of the human race; but in this instance we frankly concede the apparent justice of woman's instinctive attitude. Hap pily, however, we seem to perceive in wearing away of men's prejudices signs of mitigation of the inequity Time was, not so long ago, when, holding the fixed opinions of youth, we sternly reprehended such innocent practices changing the color of one's hair, or brightening the complexion on occasion. or even dieting seriously for the figure's sake. Not so, now! The most casual consideration growing out of philosophical observation has not merely modified our views, but has virtually changed them altogether. It may still be, as once we confidently asserted and now often hear from others like foolish, that there is nothing so beautiful as a young face in a frame of silvery gray; but when the possessor of those incongruous features appens to be the wife of a man most often taken to be her son, we declare her resort to henna to be not only a right, but a duty to both. The custom of lacing we judge to be far less prevalent than was a dozen years ago; the wiser method of dieting seems to have superseded it; but, even so, no fair-minded person can behold a woman without realizing that God meant her to be attractive; and He knows it, as well as we, that there is nothing more hideous than a plashy feminine appearance. In passing judgment upon this point, therefore, as well as in women's rights, just as we hang tenaciously to the doctrine of individual liberty for man. As a people, we will not go far astray if we sustain the time-honored principle.

That is the distinctively American idea and the basis of all true freedom; wherefore, we set our face fixedly against every opposing tendency, political or otherwise, and maintain that woman's hancement, by harmless artifices, of Nature's endowment of charm is as clearly her inalienable prerogative as immunity from interference with thought and speech is that of man.—George Harvey in Harper's Bazar.

The Extermination of Household Pests.

The experts in the department of agriculture are eternally at work testing, experimenting, and developing in various directions, and the results of their intelli-gent and well-directed efforts have proved of practical value in almost every industry from farming down, that is pursued by skilled and other workmen throughout the United States and its territories. One of their latest undertakings has been successfully directed to the extermination of household pests. After experimenting largely with all kinds of gases and fluids for the extinction of these pests, which are an intolerable and continual annoyance to every housewife in the country, the department has decided that the most effective substance for a thorough housecleaning of this sort is hydrocyanic acid gas. This is not a particularly cheap disinfectant, as the evanide costs about 40 cents a pound and the sulphuric acid used with it about 4 cents. But, though it is a deadly poison, the department has found it to be very effective, and there have been no reports of fatalities attending its use. The gas has been used against roaches, bedbugs, rats and mice, and house flies, being equally efficacious in all cases. In the case of rats and mice, especially, it causes them to come out from the walls to die, so that there is no trouble with Recipes for Housewives. dead animals in the walls after the fumi-

The department has issued a bulletin on the subject of these domestic fumigations, and the plan, according to the bulletin, is to use the combination of acid and cyanide in slop jars or other deep earthen vessels, seeing that they are sound and free from cracks, as the acid will burn like fire anything it touches. The cubic contents of the house to be fumigated should be taken and allowance made of a fluid ounce of sulphuric acid, a dry ounce of cyanide and two Bake about forty minutes if in loaf, ounces of water to each 100 cubic feet twenty minutes in layers. of air space. Thus, in one recent case handled by the department, about 22 pounds of cyanide were used in a 14-room house. The cyanide is set off in a separate receptacle in each room, and if with which has been sifted again two the room is large, requiring two pounds or more of cyanide, it is best to halve the charge and put it in two separate three minutes, then stir in stiffly-white iars. ### Charm of Gesture in Conversation.

It is frequently observed by foreigners that, while the conversation of American women is full of vivacity, they make hardly any use of their hands when talking. Rather along with their animation they retain a strict English repose of manner. In doing so, it is thought by many, they completely lose the charm of gesture making. Indeed, in America there are no national gestures except the hard and mechanical ones of nodding and shaking the head and the use of the fingers for beckening. he right hand is regarded as extremely pitality its true meaning and value. bad form. It is in Cicily, perhaps, that gestures have attained their height in acknowledged meaning. Certain ones there have become national, while being so fanciful the outward turning of the palm and a wave of the fingers means "Come, I wish you." Strangers in Sicily complain bit-terly that they cannot get rid of the beg-

TWENTY-SIX MEET DEATH.

SUNSET EXPRESS OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC WRECKED-VICTIMS ARE ITALIANS.

RAN INTO OPEN SWITCH

rullman Passengers and Florence Roberts Theatrical Company Escape and Do Heroic Work in the Rescue.

COLTON, Cal., March 29 .- Twentysix persons were killed and fifty injured late Thursday when the Southern Pacific railroad's Sunset express, running from New Orleans to San Francisco, ran into an open switch here and was wrecked.

The train was due in Los Angeles at 7:30 a. m. Thursday and was more than twelve hours late. It was running fast when it struck the switch. Ten of the fourteen coaches in the train were derailed, and four of the leading cars were smashed to splinters.

A majority of the passengers killed were Italian immigrants. Two Americans were killed-George L. Sharpe of Muncie, Ind., who was on his way to join his wife in Los Angeles, and the baggage man of the train, whose body has not vet been recovered.

With the exception of one Italian woman all the dead were men. All the first class passengers in the rear coaches escaped death, although several were seriously injured.

Wreck Caused by Negligence.

The negligence of an employe caused the wreck. A few minutes before the Sunset express reached the switch a switch engine passed through. After the the engineer asked his fireman if he had thrown the switch. The fireman recalled that he had neglected to do so, and the engineer whistled frantically for Morrison to close it. The signal was not given in time, as Morrison did not reach the switch before the Overland plunged through.

The engineer of the Overland saw the signal of the open switch when but a few rods distant from it and had no time to sound even a whistle or warning, much less to reverse the throttle or set the brakes. He called to his fireman to jump, and they both leaped wildly from opposite sides of the engine. The engine left the track, turned over on its side, and plowed a great distance along the right of way.

Tourist Coaches Splintered. The four cars immediately behind the locomotive, three tourist coaches and the baggage car, telescoped each other and were reduced to an indescribable mass of wreckage. The broken wreckage of the day coaches and smoker, filled with the bodies of the dead and injured, were hurled all over it.

hurled all over it.

Those in the day coach and smoker met a horrible fate. Wholly without warning the impact came. The helpless passengers were terribly torn and cut to pieces. Death came to a score of them instantly. Many were dismembered and impaled upon pieces of the weeked care.

Pullman Passengers Escape.

Out of about eighty Pullman passen-gers there were but two who sustained serious injury. The three Pullman coaches and the diner, which were on the rear of the train, did not leave the track. The occupants of these cars were practically unharmed.

A traveling theatrical company headed coach, which was hurled from the track and both ends of it crushed in by impact against the others. But two members of the company out of a total of twenty-two people were injured. Roberts herself escaped entirely unhurt. The escape from death of the occupants of the car was remarkable, considering the manner in which the coach was spintered and torn to pieces.

Passengers First to Rescue. By a miracle the train was not set on fire. Those of the passengers who escaped set at once about the work of rescue. Dozens were pulled and lifted from the wreckage and laid beside the track until vehicles arrived to convey them to the hospitals. Members of the theatrical company aided nobly in the work of rescue. ### TRY CURED MEAT ON SALTPETER SQUAD.

National Food Commission to See if Preservant Injures Health of Consumer.

URBANA, Ill., April 1 .- "It is the plan of the commission to make the most elaborate tests ever made in the country to determine the effect of the saltpeter content of cured meat upon the health," said President James of the University of Illinois, in discussing the work of the National Food commission.

"The work," he said, "is undertaken at the solicitation of the packers themselves, who have long wanted to know whether or not saltpeter when consumed in small quantities is injurious.

Saltpeter Squad of Twenty.

"The investigation will be carried on at the university of Illinois under the direct supervision of Prof. Grindley. A squad of twenty men will be housed at a clubroom under the most favorable containing the state of the men will be ditions possible. Half of the men will be fed meats cured in the ordinary way, and the others on exactly the same diet except that the meats will not contain any saltpeter. A doctor will examine the men daily, and their weight and physical condition will be carefully noted. The investigations will extend over six months and the results will be accurate in every particular.

Test Will Be Authoritative.

"The men composing the commission are the most noted in the country. They will direct the work and their presence on the commission insures that the results achieved will be final. The work is of great importance. Owing to the mmense amount of cured meats consumed in the country, it is imperative that the people know of the injurious or non-injurious use of saltpeter."

As soon as the saltpeter investigation is finished other important work in con nection with nutritive problems will be undertaken.

WRECK TRIAL NO. 3 FAILS. Pittsburg Flyer Escapes Plot When Telegraph Pole Barrier Is Taken

from Tracks. YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 1 .- Ten minutes before the Pittsburg flyer, one of the fastest trains on the Pennsylvania railroad, flashed past, a carefully laid plan to wreck the train was discovered at Lowellville. A telephone pole was securely pinned across the eastbound track, so that it could not have failed to wreck the train. The pole was found by the crew of a switch engine and pulled off the tracks just as the passenger train rushed by at sixty miles an hour.

Series of Conferences in Chicago May End Railroad Employe Trouble.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 1 .- The controversy between the western railways and the trainmen and conductors is not hopeless. Another series of conferences was begun in which Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce commission and Secretary Neill of the United States labor commission were active participants. The report circulated Sunday that a large number of the members of the two organizations are not in favor of a strike, although denied by the leaders of the trainmen and conductors, led both Chairman Knapp and Mr. Neill to believe that terms satisfactory to both sides may ultimately be reached.

An automobile was stopping in front of the inn as a second arrived which had evidently met with some accident. Peoole came rushing out to help repair it. A lady, hidden to her ears in a heavy fur coat, was leaning out of the car window instructing her chauffeur.

A gentleman in the first auto was asking the way to Chateau Cour-sur-Seules, the country seat of Countess Valois.

"Straight ahead, sir," replied the landord; "just follow the telegraph poles and ou cannot miss it."

"Thank you." He was just about to order the chaufeur to go on when the lady stopped him. "Excuse me, sir, I hear you are going to court. Would you please do me a

"Oh, no, people of her class I cannot count among my acquaintances; you must not forget—"

The baroness was very much impressed, and remained silent until the auto stopped in the courtyard of the castle. "I must thank you very much for your kindness, M. Hertzmondt," murmured the baroness. "As there is a great dinner here tonight and I am very tired, I will go direct to my room and will not disturb the countess; but surely we will meet tomorrow.'

"Your grace will see me at your feet tomorrow.'

When the Baroness Foucroix woke up the next morning she thought of her adventure of the night before. "I am sure that Germaine thought of me when she invited this gentleman. And why not? One must marry again; it would be foolish to remain a widow at my age. He is handsome, intelligent, has excellent connections and knows the whole world. Of course, his name is only plain Hertzmondt, but it would be very easy for him to get a title. I must thank Germaine for giving me the opportunity of meeting

Suddenly she cried out and arose from her chair. Fernand Hertzmondt had entered the room and greeted her with his most pleasing smile and knelt down in front of her. "Sir," cried the baroness, I am shocked at your behavior. I have surely given you no right to treat me in this manner. Please leave this room imnediately or I shall ring."

"But, baroness," replied Fernand, takng from his pocket an elegant case. have not the slightest intention of offending you. The countess assured me that you needed my service. That you had told her so yourself. It will only last a minute, and you will be rid of that painful corn. You must let me have our foot without fear. I have never yet ailed to please a patient."

M. Buchman looks forward to Rapid River as a large and prosperous farming town in a few years. The three mills at the head of the bay will run at least ten, and probably fifteen years. At the end of this time, the whole country will be cut into farms. The territory north of Rapid River up to Trenary is naturally tributary to it as the nearest town, and there is a district of over five hundred square miles. Populated as the average New England township, this would support 28,000 inhabitants. Even a third of this would suffice to maintain a prosperous and hustling town. It is now the intention of Rapid River mer. chants to see that all this volume of trade will concentrate at the head of Bay de Noc, and not be diverted to Chicago or any intermediate point.

Masonville township showed almost its full strength election day. The greatest number of votes ever seen here. 355, was polled. The reason for this was the contest for the supervisorship. The friends of Fred Darling conducted a vigorous and successful campaign. The returns indicate that although Young had votes enough to carry any election seen here for eleven years, Darling had thirty-two majority over that. Nine ballots were rejected as spoiled, 189 counted for Darling, and 157 for Young. Several ran on slips for pathmaster, but the odds and the lack of interest in the minor office caused several good men to fail. So great was the vote that there were not enough county and state ballots to go around.

Supervisor Darling states that he despaired of re-election when he received his handful of ballots, and realized the difficulties experienced by the average to remember is that pique is a fabric voter in selecting his ticket out of the six sheets of paper in the cramped and For instance, a pique tailored and dark booth. ### A Dilemma.

It is not always easy to sympathize with fidgety, highly sensitive persons, to the conductor as he punched her ticket, "Conductor, is it a fact that the locomotive is at the rear of the train?" "Yes, madam," the conductor answered. "We have a locomotive at each end. It takes one to push and one to an addition of Rock Creek park for pull to get us up this grade." "Oh, dear, what shall I do?" moaned the old lady. "I'm always train sick if I ride with my back to the locomotive."

English Barmaids. At the time of the Crimean war, when there was a dearth of young men for civilian employment, an enterprising London publican engaged an exceedingly handsome girl to serve in his bar. The innovation caused considerable sensation and much adverse comment, but his business went up with a bound, and naturally his example was widely followed. Barmaids, having met a temporary want, were afterward regarded as a necessity, and their employment became general.

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.] The library of congress, which has truly become the national library of the United States, is both through purchase and gift rapidly increasing its collections and widening the scope of its influence and utility. Since the last report of the librarian was issued at the opening of the present session of congress two bequests mentioned therein have become effective, and some valuable gifts have been received.

Bequests to Library of Congress. Of the bequests, one is that carried under the will of the late William Lukens Shoemaker, which has resulted in seen in all varieties for linens, rich the addition to the library of over 2,000 plaid ginghams and dark dimities-in books, pamphlets, periodicals, atlases fact, the majority of simple wash and maps, including nearly thirty voidresses will be open at the neck at umes of first editions of the greater American poets-Longfellow, Lowell, Whittier and Whitman-and several volumes of recent English poetry not copyrighted and usefully filling gaps in the library collection. The other was the bequest of the late S. H. Kauffman and gave to the library a carefully selected collection of books relating to the art of printing as well as a considerable number of volumes appertaining to other fields A Valuable Gift. From Mrs. Ridgely Hunt of Morristown, N. J., has come as an unsolicited gift in the form of a memorial to the giver's father, William Cruger Pell, a collection of valuable books and prints. The books number forty-three volumes and include specimens of early and famous printers, such as Anton Sorg of Augsberg, Anton Koberger in Nuremberg, Aldus Pius Manutius and Aldus Manutius the younger, printers in Venice, Franciscus Renner in Venice, Johann Pruss of Strassburg and of the Elzevirs in Leyden and Amsterdam. It is in such works as these that the library collection is deficient, having realized the necessity of acquiring from its appropriations research material rather than rare specimens, so the gift was doubly welcome and was found in only one instance to duplicate a volume already in the library.

Rare Old Prints. The prints included in this same gift represented the well known engravers of the Dutch, English, Flemish, French, German and Italian schools and included several original etchings by Adrien Jansz van Ostade, who lived between the years 1610 and 1685. Of these last, two, "The Smoker and the Drinker" and the "Wandering Musicians," are both found in the first state and are exceedingly rare and important. In addition to these there are five interesting original engravings by anonymous engravers and a number of admirable copies which will serve in the study of the works of such masters as Lucas Cranach 1st, Albrecht Durer, Lucas van Leyden and Martin Schongauer. The collection, comprising 112 prints, will form a valuable addition to the library. A Curious Military Incident. The additions to the division of manuscripts by gift will more than keep pace with those by purchase. This is who is inclined to "throw a bluff," as but natural when one considers the dehave them made available for consultathat from H. P. Scratchley of New Jersey, who sent a package of papers relating to a curious military incident which brought Andrew Jackson into relation with the federal government. An order had been issued that officers in the army should cut their hair in a certain fashion. A Tennessee officer refused to comply, was tried and punished, and Jackson sought to have the teller with a look of pain and chagrin punishment remitted. The papers, some thirty in number, are curious and

More Washington Parks.

Washington, already a city celebrated for its parks, probably had four more provided for it at the recent session of congress. It is proposed to purchase for $150,000 a tract lying immediately north of U street and east of Lovers' lane, for $60,000 a tract near the intersection of Branch avenue with Pennsylvania avenue, the purchase of $375,000 and the purchase of a division of Meridian hill for $485,000.

Private Pension Bills. A senator who has kept track of private pension bills said recently that, according to his calculation, over 20,000 private pension bills had been introduced in both houses since the Fifty-ninth congress began. There have been 4,280 bills of this character offered in the senate, 159 of them relating to Mexican, Spanish-American and Indian wars, the balance to survivors of the civil war.

In the house 13,440 civil war pension bills have been submitted, 2,180 relating to Mexican and Spanish-American wars and members of the regular army. The total is nearly 21,000.

Of this number about 6,800 bills have been passed, involving an additional expenditure of about $1,000,000 annually. However, officials of the pension office have estimated that about 25 per cent of this class of pensioners die every year, and at that rate the increase will soon be wiped out.

A New Belmont Mansion.

Perry Belmont, former member of congress, has let a contract for a $500,-000 marble palace which he intends to erect in Washington in the triangle formed by Eighteenth and R streets and New Hampshire avenue and which is the most fashionable section of the national capital.

Mr. Belmont's mansion is to be one of the residential show places of Washington, its architecture being in harmony with the governmental buildings. It is understood that his permanent residence in Washington forecasts his intention to enter national politics. CARL SCHOFIELD.

Ignorant Grumbiers.

The American citizen who begins to grumble talks of tariff revision and of extravagance in Washington is simply ignorant and willfully ignorant of existing conditions. The country was never more prosperous than now, never were wages so high, never the demand for all kinds of labor so great. The stand pat policy seems to be the best that can be undertaken at present. Nothing but agitation for a return to the conditions of 1898-97 can change the onward progress of the country.-Philadelphia Inquirer.

He Knew Better.

"Dis paper," said Weary Willie, "sez der yer kin tell be de bark at de foot of a tree how old it is."

"Huh!" snorted Ragston Tatters. "I guess de man w'at wrote dat wuz never up a tree under dem circumstances. Dat ain't no way to tell a dog's age."-Houston Post.

Wise Fritz. Father-So, Fritz, I've concluded to retire from active life and turn the business over to you. Fritz-Say, dad, can't you work a few years longer, and then we can retire together?-Berlin
