CHARLES GREEN DAPPED IN Real Estate And With Groceries Before Entering Hardware Business

Charles Green, in the hardware business for six years, always intended that he was going to become a hardware man, but he dabbled in the grocery business, and Florida real estate, before he finally reached his goal.

His first grocery store was at Kipling, purchased from Michael Gleason on February, 1906. Matt Huggs was a partner in the business. His first day proved rather discouraging. He went out to the store to take inventory of the hardware stock, and did so while the rain poured through the leak holes on him as well as the hay.

Cadillac, a city of 13,000 people located in the northern part of the lower peninsula, this week celebrated the opening of a new $350,000 hotel. What it means to Cadillac as a community asset, and the worth of the public-spirited citizens who made it possible, is recounted in the following editorial by T. O. Huckle, publisher of the Cadillac Evening News.

THE NORTHWOOD AS A COMMUNITY ASSET

CITIZEN, one who takes more than a passing interest in things political, expresses a surprise at this writer should suggest the desirability of a second political party to challenge the Republicans who now have perhaps a 90 per cent claim on the allegiance of the voters who go to the polls.

As affairs are in Delta county at the present time there is little reason for complaint although we have stated and remain firm in the belief that a co-ordinating of the efforts of the various departments under a county manager having the entire responsibility would result in a saving to the taxpayers of many thousands of dollars each year.

Consider the present county system. The board of supervisors is made up of one representative from each of the townships, four from Gladstone and eight from Escanaba.

Consider the present county system. The board of supervisors is made up of one representative from each of the townships, four from Gladstone and eight from Escanaba. It is not surprising that the county government is a most difficult one, made so by the responsibility of enforcing the prohibition law, or at least trying to.

SHERIFF Elmer Swanson and his department have, we believe, rendered an honest and faithful service to the people of the county. Oh, yes, there are many malcontents, for this branch of the county government is a most difficult one, made so by the responsibility of enforcing the prohibition law, or at least trying to.

WITH a single party in the field, a general apathy permeates the voting public, and many times it results in most undesirable results. Let your memory run back to about 10 years ago. Close to 1,000 voters went out and elected for a sheriff a man who was a professional gambler, illiterate, grafter and everything that a public official should not be.

GLADSTONE should have more signs telling the tourist about its city as he motors in. Just now the City Club, through its advertising committee, is arranging for attractive signs giving the name of the city and its greetings to the visitor as he enters the city limits, but in addition there is some need for signs advertising the conveniences which the visitor needs and seeks.

There is cause for satisfaction in noting the attendance at the Farm Market on the part of both buyers and sellers, and produce to believe that this will grow as additional farm produce comes into season.

MUNISING and Crystal Falls are fighting it out for top honors in the U. P. Baseball league, as was predicted before the season ever started. Marquette, Ishpeming, Negaunee, Iron Mountain and the others are so far behind that interest in the league lags and attendance suffers.

Competition for the upper peninsula baseball championship has practically narrowed down to a struggle between Munising and Crystal Falls. Regardless of the outcome of games played by other members of the upper peninsula association, the real interest centers on the games played by these two league-leading teams, as it is almost certain that they will occupy the top of the heap when the season closes this fall.

It is unfortunate that this is so. Competition is the life of any sport and with the field narrowed down to two teams, it is certain that baseball in the upper peninsula is going to suffer as a consequence. The only games which will attract paying crowds will be the ones between the two league-leaders.

MUNISING is expressing now the conclusion that was reached by Gladstone fans three years ago. Salaried baseball teams in the smaller cities are doomed to extinction. The public craves little for the professional game and whatever chances there are in the survival of baseball lies in the amateur game.

THERE are exceptions to every rule and perhaps we should say that there is one sport where the public prefers attendance rather than attendance in sports. And you can't have salaried teams without good attendance, although you can develop young baseball players for the fun they get out of playing the game.

WE note some exchanges deploring his decision to retire so early in his career, declaring that through his association with the game, he has contributed in a large measure to relieve it from the taint of rowdiness. And we think he did, but in doing so he also did much to discourage attendance because it may be remembered that the fight game appeals mostly to the primitive instinct. Every human pictures himself or herself, in their minds eyes, trimming the daylight out of some enemy, either real or imaginary.

THERE was widespread satisfaction expressed with the announcement last week that the Big Spring area surrounding it near Manistique had been decided to the state of Michigan and that the Conservation Commission would make plans for its development for recreational purposes.

A RESORT hotel on Little Bay de Noc. Why not? There isn't a more beautiful spot in all the world, nor one that offers more of the attractions sought by Hiawatha-Lands' summer visitors. Add to this the convenience and desirability of having a modern hotel edifice close enough to the city's center of population to serve as an accommodation to the tourist and traveler, and you have a community asset whose worth is almost beyond estimate.

HOOPER is said to have written his own speech of acceptance which he will make this Saturday. That was expected and it is also expected that Hooper will be the boss, the REAL one, should he be elected. That would be an improvement over some of our administrations.

3-RING CIRCUS TO PLAY WEDNESDAY

SEILS-STERLING HAS TRAINED ANIMALS UNDER MANY FINE ATTRACTIONS

The Seils-Sterling Three Ring Wild Animal Circus, now on their 20th annual tour will exhibit here on the baseball grounds Wednesday August 15 afternoon and night.

Headed with delight by the juvenile populace and the "Older Boys and Girls," the coming of this well known and honorably conducted circus is always looked upon as an annual festive holiday.

Among the many features are Prof. Stank school of acrobats and ponies. These performing acts are beyond a doubt the very best in their class and do not array of astonishing stunts and acts.

The world famous elephant "Billy Sunday" will show his audience that there is a mind even in dumb brutes he accomplishes tricks seemingly impossible for so large a brute creature.

Besides the many performing horses, there are clowns to amuse, acrobats that amaze by their agility, jugglers, and gymnasts to round out a circus performance the like never excelled in splendor anywhere or by any other like attraction.

The Seils-Sterling Circus, like many others have abolished the usual street parade, but instead will give a grand free exhibition of three exceptionally clever acts at the show grounds preceding the opening of the doors to the public.

The Seils-Sterling Circus is not a stranger in the circles held in the local people having appeared here on two other occasions. Its performances here in the past were excellent and the opportunity to the people of the vicinity to see a circus of this size is a treat worth while.

It is a clean, wholesome show fact proven by a letter from the city manager of Ontonagon, where the circus recently appeared, speaking highly of the exhibition and appearance and excellent conduct of the grounds after moving even to the smallest scrap of paper being picked up.

ROCK CRUSHED BY LOCALS 17 TO 5.

Rock found the defense of the local baseball team too hard to penetrate last Sunday when he was slaughtered by the score of 17 to 5. "Dutch" Christoff was touched for 15 hits but only in the 1st and 2nd innings were the hits made to count in the scoring. Pilon was hit hard, every player getting one or more hits with "Pat" McPherson leading with two doubles and two singles in five times at bat. "Tup" Minor came out of retirement to cover the first sack and slam out the old pill for two singles and a double, the singles coming in the 1st and 2nd and the double coming over it but managed to circle the bases for three of the runs.

Old familiar faces in the local lineup have installed the old spirit in the players and fans alike and keen interest is being shown in each game played. Only one game has been lost by the local team since July 1, winning four. Manager Buchman believed his team to be the equal of the best of the amateur teams of the county and is willing to prove it. A number of dates are main open and an attempt will be made to get one or more games with some of the so-called "first amateur" teams.

The score: 123 456 789—R H E Rock 300 000 200—5 15 5 R. River 503 110 075—17 21 4 Batteries: Rock; Pilon and L. Larson. Rapid River; Christoff and Kniskern.

Polly, the Tennessee Cousin

By CLARISSA MACKIE

PAUL LANDERS' fine car came to a stop in front of the Banister's pretty home. As he opened the door to step out, he was aware of half a dozen eyes peering curiously nearby, and the buzz and laughter of many women's voices came from the wide veranda.

"Ah, Mr. Landers!" Isabel nonchalantly greeted him, smiling demurely for she knew that he had seen her some day, and gave him a cup of tea.

"Shorecliffs?" murmured Isabel with a shocked glance around at the chattering women and the few men. "I couldn't possibly—not this afternoon, you see?"

"Of course not! It was an idle suggestion on my part, and I must take my leave," he was saying formally, when she suddenly thrust an empty plate into his hand.

"Please give this to that stupid Hilma and tell her to bring some waters—she is somewhere around—and turned back to the man who was commanding her attention.

"Why, Mr. Landers," she said to her self, "I am disappointed to see that empty plate—these are the very last ones—the batter's all gone and the eggs are gone, too! I can't make any more waffles, but Isabel will be so disappointed."

"I understood that this tea was in your honor," Paul said solemnly. Polly stared vaguely. "Why, of course it is, but Isabel is so proud of my cooking and every body loves cream waffles, you know."

"I know," he said dryly, and he read the truth underlying the girl's casual explanation. Mrs. Banister, plump, warm and worried, came hastily into the room. "Polly, dear, are the waffles really gone? Oh, I should have ordered more eggs—Mr. Landers has just had a cup of tea? Are you going now? Shorecliffs? What a wonderful day for a long drive! To take Polly with you—she has staved in this kitchen all day—Hilma is just a plain cook, you know," and Polly offered to help out—run away, dear—Isabel will have another tea for you—that is right, Mr. Landers, look out for her—she's a dear child."

After the business at Shorecliffs had been concluded, there was a never-to-be-forgotten dinner at a quaint inn overlooking the water, where Landers learned all about Polly's happy girlhood in a southern city, and told in his turn of his motherless home.

"Sometimes I dream of a home of my own," he told Polly, neither one of them remembering about Isabel.

"Of course you do," nodded Polly understandingly. "I do hope that you will have a dear home—and that you will be happy—to make up for those lonely years—the little boy that you were, makes me cry, somehow." She blinked back the bright tears.

He was infinitely touched. He forgot his admiration for Isabel. He really loved this tender-hearted girl—later, when she went back to Tennessee, he would go down there. "You must come down to see us when you're South," drizzled Polly. Their eyes met, and the girl blushed beautifully. "I am not always in the kitchen," she laughed merrily.

"What do I care?" he retorted. "You know I don't object to being 'kitchen company.'" (Continued)

The board also decided to take over a county road the Baraga township road running from the head of the bay to the Covington township line on the plains.

Yacht Burns SAULT STE. MARIE—Three men and two women, the crew and passengers of the auxiliary yacht Onondy, of Chicago, were rescued three miles out from Eland river after the ship had burned to the water's edge. The rescued are: William S. Faurst, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Faurst, Jr., Miss R. Richardson and Fred Spencer, all of Chicago. The yacht, a 50-foot craft built at Mackinac Island, steamed at Milford Haven, St. Joe Island, and turned toward Blind river. Three miles out from shore in a heavy sea, fire started from a gasoline stove in the galley. A fire extinguisher failed to check the blaze and the yacht's dinghy was launched. The dinghy held four of five and themselves to the boat. In the launching of the small boat an oar was lost and a distress signal was hoisted on the one remaining oar.

A NOTABLE DISCOVERY (Newberry News) In the ballroom of the community building a young man stood before the members of the Upper Peninsula Medical association met here in their thirty-first convention and told them of a simple operation whereby the human body may suffer can be cured. Dr. Clifton F. McClintic of 1502 Stroh Building, Detroit, was the man, and he is the only man on this side of the world at least who is doing this operation. The disease known as angina pectoris, or as sometimes called "heart pain" causes unbearable pain to its victims and in many cases drugs have no effect upon it. Dr. McClintic does a short operation under local anesthetic which brings complete relief. The operation consists of making a few incisions in the sympathetic nervous system and interrupting the "pain path." More elaborate operations have been made a few years ago by some of them, extremely delicate and requiring several hours to do. This same operation does away with the proper fibers, sometimes merely stripping instead of cutting, will also cure other disorders, certain face pains or head pains, sinusitis, enlargement of the stomach, various ulcers and X-ray burns and several other diseases. The physician who has performed the operation is treated for various ulcers in a Detroit hospital. Sores on his shin have been cured, a man of 74 years but were closed and the leg displayed signs of returning health in a week after the operation. McClintic is 40 years old and unmarried. He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and has been an instructor in various colleges and universities in the country until eight years ago when he became connected with the Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery where he holds the chair of professor of neuro-surgery. He spent last summer visiting the clinics of Europe, making further research into his specialty. The result of his work in the Detroit hospital has not as yet been made public but will be reported in September at the meeting of the State Medical association.

Too Much Liquor ESCANABA—Matt Johnson, 40, a woodsman, who says he is from Goodman, Wis., drank some of the canaba liquor, and seeing visions of a bad future, decided to end it all by seeking out a watery grave for himself. His attempted suicide was interrupted by the police, however, and now he is facing a charge of "drunk and disorderly."

Find Man's Body HOUGHTON—The body of Joseph Jozas aged 70, a resident of Houghton, who had been found missing several days was found floating in Portage Lake, near the Houghton county road commission docks. The discovery was made by employees of the commission. Sheriff John T. Rowe was notified and he recovered the body. It was returned to the Krellwitz funeral parlors and interment made in Forest Hill cemetery. Jozas, who was a resident of the copper country for 20 years, had no relatives.

To Improve Lightings LAKE LINDESEY—The Lake Lindesey village council probably will give serious consideration to plans for improvement of the decorative lighting on Hicla street as a result of a meeting to be held shortly. The proposal first came to its attention several months ago. In that meeting the subject is brought before the council, it is likely its amendments will ask immediate and definite action.

Waterway Traffic HOUGHTON—One hundred thirty-three vessels, with 218,977 net tonnage, passed through the Keweenaw waterway during the month of July, according to the monthly statement of George H. Banks U. S. engineer in charge. Sixty-five of the vessels passed up-bound and 58 down-bound. Freight carried through the waterway in July amounted to 1,890,007 tons, of which 105,024 tons were carried up and 24,985 tons were carried down. More than two-thirds of the cargoes ashore was coal until eight years ago when he became connected with the Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery where he holds the chair of professor of neuro-surgery. He spent last summer visiting the clinics of Europe, making further research into his specialty. The result of his work in the Detroit hospital has not as yet been made public but will be reported in September at the meeting of the State Medical association.

Sue for $3,100 Fees IRON MOUNTAINS—Suit for $3,100 is to be instituted against the township of Brittain by J. Stow Elliott, township treasurer, to collect fees he claims owing to him for his services as treasurer during the tax year of 1927. Elliott's demand for this sum, based on an alleged contract in writing, has official salary, was turned down at a meeting of the township board, although it is understood that Supervisor Verne Carter, a member of the board, favored payment. The provision of the law under which Elliott seeks to obtain a handsome return for his work as treasurer is that relating to the collection fees. Treasurer may charge anything that his salary has not been fixed by a referendum vote of the people.

"En Passant"

Observations and Comment by Alice Fox

Sword in hand, the young gentleman stalked away, mumble to himself, 'I shall guard my land and my property as I will...'

"Poor Granddaddy," Dolores tried to choke down a sob, "we must not disturb him, but I will stay and watch until your return from town."

"All right, sweetheart," nodded Terry in assent, "I will try and return before dark with an injunction, even though it be a temporary one."

CHAPTER XII Dolores is Left Alone
The hour of California's magnificent sunset had come and still Vasquez and Dolores stood in the street.

With might approaching, bringing the advent of another day that must mean, for Dolores, a new day of concern with what was in store for them. No place to go, no friends to consult, no money to draw from.

Dolores sat on the mossy ground beneath a great tree with knees cradled in her arms, looking out at the hacienda. The brilliant reflection from the setting sun turned all its windows to gold, and the soft breeze that was fast dying down stirred the ivy covered walls and made the place seem alive. Her eyes could find no fault with the picturesque old structure.

The lone servant ambled about the deserted dining room, shook his head as he cleared the table, and the untouched repast. The sound of someone walking through the patio drew him quickly to the open doorway.

"May I be of service, senor?" he asked with deference, upon seeing a man crossing to the open doorway. The man was Buckwell, startled by a voice from the dark interior, he whirled about, and it took him several seconds to discern the dim shape in the doorway.

"Where's your master?" he asked upon making sure it was the lone servant of the place. "Outside, senor," came hastily from the cringing one. "Where—outside? Now, don't lie to me or I'll break your neck!"

"You—you have dared return," trembled Vasquez savagely. "You who have betrayed my hospitality and sought to defile my home! Be gone—before it is too late!" He stood with outstretched arms and eyes blazing with fury.

C. W. LIGHTFOOT HAS an original method of dealing with the crows and other birds that insist on pecking at his cherries in his front yard. He doesn't believe in scare crows, so he has a cow bell fastened up amid his trees. It is attached to a cord, six feet long, and whenever Mr. Lightfoot's inward intuition tells him that the crows are near, he steps out on the porch and rings the bell.

The birds apparently don't know whether to take the chimera they hear for the morning angelus or just plain cow bells, but by the way they scatter, it sounds like a death knell to them. For a long time folks residing in the neighborhood wondered about the cow bell that they were apt to hear at almost any hour. They came to know that it was Mr. Lightfoot's original scare crow.

CHIEF LINDAHL stood on Central Avenue and Wisconsin streets for fifteen minutes the other day to check up on the drivers who stopped for the new arterial for cars going south on Central.

OTTO HUBERMAN'S list of accomplishments such as hauling trout as fast as the car hit the bumps on the Escanaba road, shooting at ducks, deer, and the other wild things that live in the woods, is completely overshadowed by his baseball prowess.

A BUTCHER, unusual in his tactics for bargaining, he served a customer, the fact that beef was so high. "It's tough to have to pay thirty cents a pound for more beef," he said, and she replied, "Well it was just as tough when we paid fifteen."

SHORT HAired WOMEN make the longest waits in the Barber chairs, "one of our local barbers has observed. The less hair they have, the longer it takes to cut it. Well, maybe so, but he forgot to mention that his observation is applicable to the men. With still less hair, getting a haircut takes them about twice as long. With scissors in hand, the barber cuts two hairs and then stands back several feet to view the effect before he trims off exactly three more hairs. He combs and cuts, and combs some more, and when he gets through, there's very little hair around to testify to the fact that he's had a hair cut. But every hair has been trimmed just so, and is in its right position when he leaves the chair.

It's taken a mighty long time, and sometimes the barber and the head that's been cut are the only ones who can see the difference.

"SERVICE FOR LADIES" HAS NEW BLOOD, NEW EVERYTHING. New blood, new ideas, fresh viewpoints. These are the things that Addish Merion believes are vital to the future development of motion pictures.

The famous Paramount star, whose latest comedy "Service for Ladies" comes to the Rialto Friday August 10 is never so happy as when he is surrounded by new blood, people with fresh ideas. Kathryn Carver, playing the leading woman in this picture, shows in the cast, Lawrence Grant and Charles Lane. Ken Maynard in "The Wagon Show," will also be shown Friday night.

"THE ROAD TO RUIN"

The reckless abandon with which the jazz-crazed youth of today fling themselves into the mad chase after the illusive "good time" is vividly depicted in "The Road to Ruin" which will be at the Rialto theatre Sunday and Monday. Jazz and gin, sex and sensuality, cars parked on shady lanes, sporty roadhouses, wild strip poker parties are among the highlights of this most unusual picture, which graphically illustrates the terrible results of parental neglect and ignorance in the handling of modern youth.

mean lothes "back on time" BABY BEEF PROFITS TO OWNERS The production of yearling beef has proved a profitable practice on Michigan farms, according to a statement by the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College. A load of yearling beef, sold recently on the Detroit market, brought $16.75 a cwt. and the highest price paid since the war. These calves were born in April and ran with their mothers during the summer. Neither the calves nor the cows received any feed except good pasture. At the close of the pasture season, the calves were weaned and started on a light feed of grain. The calves were then carried along under good care until the last three months of the feeding period when the grain ration was increased to give the animals all they would consume. This brought the calves on the summer market, which is usually good for this class of cattle, the labor cost and the over-wintering expense is small. The wish of stray as whirlwind logs churn the water to foam and the crack of steel on wood as called of shore and snub the trick timbers will echo between the banks of Bodin's Brownstone Bowl...

The 17th, 18th and 19th of August, when the 17th World Championship Log Rolling Tournament is held, the coming "toes" will be the fourth annual meet to be staged at the Bowl and will undoubtedly be the greatest exhibition of the Northwest's most typical native sport that has ever been held.

Many notables, including President Coolidge, Jack Demsey, Governor Zimmerman, Governor Christiansen, Senators Blaine and La Follette, and others, have been invited to attend the meet. Although President Coolidge has declined, as yet, it is believed he will attend and a number of the others will also probably be present.

The most able briers in the world including 17 year old Wilfred Marx, present champion; Billy Girard, who claims the title; Madwaysh, former champion; Gilbert Thompson, Northwest champion; Billy Peterson, Indian champion; and other noted log rollers will contend for honors in a series of elimination matches which will culminate in the selection of a new world's champion.

The matches will be refereed and judged by a group of billing experts headed by Charles Perry, noted author of log rolling stories and originator of the world "rolo", which is now used to designate "briar-turners". Driving and cutting acts will be presented between the matches to balance the program.
