Another Newspaper Fake.
 The recently published article in the Detroit Evening News sent from Houghton and afterwards largely copied by other state papers regarding the murder about twenty-six years ago of Henry Hebert by Louis La Pontes, a half-breed Indian, and the discovery of a silver mine, bare no resemblance of truth. La Pontes never claimed to have discovered a silver mine but represented to Hebert that he had knowledge of a rich copper find. His only motive for getting Hebert to accompany him is said to have been to kill him. Regarding the silver mountain mentioned in the article, it is located fifteen miles southwest of Baraga and a half mile west of Sturgeon river. It was explored early in the '40s. There was never any silver found in paying quantities. The property is homesteaded and no credit is given the statement sent out that an eastern company is to commence work there.—Journal.

Tuttle and Stevens Shot.

The following we clip from the Seney and Grand Marais department of the Newberry News:

Geo. Tuttle and Norman Stevens were accidentally shot while out hunting last Sunday in the woods near Seney. There were four of them in the party. After wandering around for some time they got tired and coming upon a log convenient for the purpose they sat down to rest leaning their guns on the log beside them. Finally one of the party suggested that they go to the wagon which was standing near by and eat their dinner, and no sooner were the words spoken than they started. John Gusena picked his gun up taking hold of the barrel near the muzzle. It was an old style muzzle loader, loaded with heavy buckshot. As he raised the gun the hammer caught in a twig discharging the gun. The shot struck Tuttle in both arms below the elbow, tearing the left in a frightful manner and filling the right full of shot. Stevens was struck with shot in the left leg above the knee. Dr. Bohn was summoned to the assistance of the unfortunate men. Four inches of bone was taken out of Tuttle's left arm. He was brought to Seney Monday and quartered at the Globe Hotel, where under the special care of Dr. F. P. Bohn he is gaining slowly. Whether both arms can be saved or not is doubtful, but the doctor thinks he can and when Dr. Bohn makes up his mind to do a thing he generally succeeds. Tuttle is a poor man working a farm near Germask.

Rev. Joseph M. Rogers.
 A most excellent likeness of Rev. Mr. Rogers, the energetic and successful pastor of the Church of the Redeemer (Presbyterian) of this city appears in the Michigan Presbyterian, Detroit, of July 23d. The following relative to the reverend gentleman appeared in the issue:

We present to our readers the picture of one of our successful pastors in the upper peninsula. Rev. Joseph M. Rogers was born in Brunswick Me., educated at the preparatory high school and at Bowdoin college, in his native town. Some years ago he came to Michigan as a teacher; but having started in a westward direction, went on as far as Iowa, and became superintendent of the public schools at Essex. Here he was married to Miss Martha Kane. In the summer of 1888 he was elected professor of mathematics in Gale college, Wis. Within three months he was made vice-president, served as acting president most of the first year, and was then elected president. Here our first knowledge of Brother Rogers commenced. The editor was then conducting the Westminster Chautauque department of the North and West, and was attracted by Mr. Rogers' contributions in the line of Presbyterian history, and urged that they be made a feature in that course. But circumstances prevented the carrying out the plan fully. In July, 1892, Rev. J. M. Rogers was called to the pastorate of the Church of the Redeemer, at Manistique, in which position he is still working successfully. He was ordained by the Presbytery of La Crosse while president of Gale college. Looking over the minutes of the General Assembly we notice the marked growth in membership and benevolence of the church under Mr. Rogers' pastorate. It is one of the best organized churches of the Synod. An exceptionally able Session and Board of Trustees, composed of some of the best business men of Manistique, enables the church to stand as an exponent of sound financial measures as well as an example in the Christian life. The church is by no means wealthy, but a comparison of its benevolences with those of other churches in the Presbytery or Synod will show its high standing. Rev. J. M. Rogers is stated clerk of the Presbytery of Lake Superior.

There will be a partial eclipse of the moon on the night of August 23d, commencing about eleven thirty o'clock and ending about two thirty of August 23d.

Tuttle and Stevens Shot.

The following we clip from the Seney and Grand Marais department of the Newberry News:

Geo. Tuttle and Norman Stevens were accidentally shot while out hunting last Sunday in the woods near Seney. There were four of them in the party. After wandering around for some time they got tired and coming upon a log convenient for the purpose they sat down to rest leaning their guns on the log beside them. Finally one of the party suggested that they go to the wagon which was standing near by and eat their dinner, and no sooner were the words spoken than they started. John Gushena picked his gun up taking hold of the barrel near the muzzle. It was an old style muzzle loader, loaded with heavy buckshot. As he raised the gun the hammer caught in a twig discharging the gun. The shot struck Tuttle in both arms below the elbow, tearing the left in a frightful manner and filling the right full of shot. Stevens was struck with shot in the left leg above the knee. Dr. Bohn was summoned to the assistance of the unfortunate men. Four inches of bone was taken out of Tuttle's left arm. He was brought to Seney Monday and quartered at the Globe hotel, where under the special care of Dr. F. P. Bohn he is gaining slowly. Whether both arms can be saved or not is doubtful, but the doctor thinks he can and when Dr. Bohn makes up his mind to do a thing he generally succeeds. Tuttle is a poor man working a farm near Germfask.

We present to our readers the picture of one of our successful pastors in the upper peninsula. Rev. Joseph M. Rogers was born in Brunswick Me.; educated at the preparatory high school and at Bowdoin college, in his native town. Some years ago he came to Michigan as a teacher; but having started in a westward direction, went on as far as Iowa, and became superintendent of the public schools at Essex. Here he was married to Miss Martha Kane. In the summer of 1888 he was elected professor of mathematics in Gale college, Wis. Within three months he was made vice-president, served as acting president most of the first year, and was then elected president. Here our first knowledge of Brother Rogers commenced. The editor was then conducting the Westminster Chautauqua department of the North and West, and was attracted by Mr. Rogers' contributions in the line of Presbyterian history, and urged that they be made a feature in that course. But circumstances prevented the carrying out the plan fully. In July, 1892, Rev. J. M. Rogers was called to the pastorate of the Church of the Redeemer, at Manistique, in which position he is still working successfully. He was ordained by the Presbytery of La Crosse while president of Gale college. Looking over the minutes of the General Assembly we notice the marked growth in membership and benevolence of the church under Mr. Rogers' pastorate. It is one of the best organized churches of the Synod. An exceptionally able Session and Board of Trustees, composed of some of the best business men of Manistique, enables the church to stand as an exponent of sound financial measures as well as an example in the Christian life. The church is by no means wealthy, but a comparison of its benevolences with those of other churches in the Presbytery or Synod will show its high standing. Rev. J. M. Rogers is stated clerk of the Presbytery of Lake Superior.

The Silver Men and McKinley.
The address of Senator Teller and his associates who left the Republican national convention on the silver issue is not only an able document, but an interesting one. It may be regarded as the very best presentation of the arguments of the extreme free-silver men that can be made. It bears evidence of sincerity, and there is in it probably no conscious misrepresentation of Senator Teller's opposition in the Republican party. It is interesting mainly because of the concessions made, which necessarily modify the contention of those who signed the address.
It is admitted in the address that Major McKinley is not a single-standard gold man and that his course in the past has been that of consistent friendliness toward silver. The objection to him is not based on his record, but on the fact that he accepted the financial plank of the St. Louis platform. His honesty, his devotion to Republican principles, even his friendliness to silver, are not questioned; but the position of the seceders is based on the fact that he accepts the declaration in favor of maintaining the existing gold standard until a double standard can be secured by international agreement. The address admits that is even to this objectionable plank a veneration of bimetalism; but as it declares in favor of the existing standard, and as Major McKinley accepts the platform of his party, the signers of the address will support Mr. Bryan, and not Major McKinley.

A careful reading of the address will show that there is not so much difference between the silver men who are supporting McKinley and those silver men who say they are going to support Bryan. Under the leadership of men like Senator Teller the coinage laws of the United States have been very much modified in the interest of silver. There is engraft on them not a thin veneering of bimetalism, but a positive, well-defined bimetallic policy. The law of 1853 made silver a legal tender to the amount of $5; the law of 1873 repeated this limitation, and made the gold dollar the unit of value; the law of 1878 made the silver dollar the equal of the gold dollar and legal tender; the laws of 1890 and 1893 pledged the government to the maintenance of the parity between the gold and the silver coins and to the bimetallic policy. The St. Louis platform was not all that the bimetalists wanted, but it did not violate the policy enunciated in the laws of 1890 and 1893. Therefore, it was accepted.

The main point of difference between the silver men who say they will support Bryan is as to the necessity for international agreement as a preliminary to free coinage. The silver men who support McKinley admit that the independent action of the United States in adopting free coinage would not secure the results they hoped for. Therefore, they favor an earnest effort to secure action in favor of bimetalism, or the double standard, by international agreement. Senator Teller and his friends admit that this would be better than independent action, and that international agreement should be secured. They argue that the consent of England to such an agreement cannot be obtained; therefore the United States ought to take the risk of independent action, in the hope that all the other nations, except England, would come to her assistance. In other words, they base their hope, their ultimate hope, of success on international agreement independent of England. They admit that, to make free coinage the success that they desire, there must be in a measure, at least—international action. They have not made so great a departure from their friends in the Republican party as would seem at first glance.
The address insists that the period of depression in prices is coincident with the decrease in the price of silver. Their friends in the Republican party admit that there is some force in this, but it is only half truth, and the other part of the truth should, at least, be fairly considered. In 1853, when silver was made legal tender to the amount of $5, the price per ounce was $1.348. It remained at about the same price until 1859, when it went to $1.360. The price was $1.352 in 1860, $1.345 in 1863, $1.325 in 1869, $1.322 in 1872, $1.298 in 1873, $1.278 in 1874, $1.246 in 1875, $1.156 in 1876, $1.201 in 1877, $1.152 in 1878, $1.156 in 1879, $1.064 in 1885, .9946 in 1889, $1.064 in 1885, .9946 in 1889, .9818 in 1891, .87 in 1891.87 in 1892, .78 in 1893, and .63 in 1894. Those who favor a protective tariff claim that, with the adoption of the McKinley act, in 1890, the prices for the silver product, as well as for other products, were good, and with the triumph of the Democratic party, in 1892, and with the certainty that the Congress selected would repeal the McKinley tariff act, prices began to decline, and a period of great depression followed. Undoubtedly the demonetization of silver had a demoralizing effect on prices, but it is just as true that free trade and the Wilson tariff bill had much influence in demoralizing trade as in depressing prices. The Republican party is pledged to a protective tariff, pledged to the policy of the coinage laws of 1890 and 1893, and to the effort to secure bimetalism by international agreement. Because it is so pledged, and because its record is consistent, the majority of silver Republicans will vote for Major McKinley rather than for Mr. Bryan, who was nominated on a platform pledged to free trade and other objectionable Democratic doctrines and theories socialistic and anarchistic.—Inter Ocean.

They Menace Our Country.
A prominent New York democrat of national reputation, who is sick unto death at the catastrophe which has overtaken his party in its capture by the anarchists, has the following to say, and truer words were never spoken:
"We have got to fight these people, and when a fight is bound to come the man that gets in the first blow has the advantage. I believe that we should strike the first blow here by walking out of the convention. It is not so much what these people here are doing as the manner in which they are doing it.
"One can easily see what these men will do if they once get in power. They will carry on the Government just as they carry on this convention. It is not so much the financial disaster that would follow their success at the polls that I fear, as it is the revolutionary things they will do in addition. They will get possession of the courts of justice, of the Supreme Court of the United States, and then they will assault the Constitution of the United States itself. The movement they are heading is fraught with danger to the very republic. It is a duty, it seems to me, to take the angels and the devils by the throat. You cannot fight anarchy by sitting calmly and declaring your democracy. It must be crushed out, and it seems to me the duty of every patriotic American citizen to begin the fight now. To the motto of the honored leader of the state of New York, 'I am a democrat,' let me add the still more potent words, 'I am an American,' and let us show our Americanism by seizing this un-American movement by the throat and choking its life out before it advances a step further. In that way we will show our democracy, for democracy is American. I know the bolter is not considered a good party man, but a bolt from this convention is not a bolt from the democratic party. It is a bolt from a combination of anarchy and socialism, a queer combination that, isn't it? This combination has temporary possession of the democratic party, to the shame of democracy be it said."
Dolliver used it first.
The most popular catch phrase of the political contest so far is "The Advance Agent of Prosperity." It appeared on the pretentious and showy bit of printing at the St. Louis convention—a two-sheet poster representing Gov. McKinley ushering in a period of activity on the farm, in the mines and factories, and on the streets of Commercial cities. It was quickly caught up by the McKinley men, and is now a household word from one end of the country to the other. The first public use of the phrase was in the Chicago Times-Herald of March 2, when in an interview with a western congressman, whose name was not given, these words appeared: "Out in my part of the country, the people regard McKinley as the agent of prosperity. Wherever the people see the McKinley posters on the dead walls, they think the prosperity circus is coming." The author of the words would not allow his name to be used then, because he was a supporter of Senator Allison for the presidential nomination. But after the St. Louis convention the Times-Herald named him as Representative J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa.

Light Under Water.
A professional man in New London, Conn., has invented an apparatus to convey light under water—a submarine illuminator. Electric rays with this idea can be made to light up the submarine recesses to any depth necessary for practical purposes. The idea has been tested on a small scale and worked well before some electricians in town.
Insignificant as was the part played by Mr. Bryan in the two Congresses in which he served, he will find that it was sufficient to stamp him as being unfitted for the Presidency of the United States. Progressive Americans have to a man been in favor of the building and maintenance of a Navy sufficiently strong to command the respect of foreign nations, and the events of the last few years have fully justified the correctness and patriotism of that position. There have been several times when the strength of our Navy has been a factor—the principal factor many believe—in preventing war. Mr. Bryan proved his unprogressiveness when he was in the House, and when our Navy was more than twenty five vessels weaker than it is today, by opposing the strengthening of our Navy, on the ground that it was then strong enough. It is such things as these, and not platitudinous speeches delivered in sonorous tones and with dramatic gestures, which demonstrate the calibre of a man. Mr. Bryan could not be elected President on his record no matter what sort of a platform he stood upon. He simply isn't up to the Presidential standard.—Ex.

"The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of the country is threatened. The money of the United States, and every kind of silver or gold, must be as good as the best in the world. It must not only be current at its full face value at home, but it must be counted at par in any and every commercial center of the globe. The platform adopted by the Republican national convention has received my careful consideration, and has my unqualified approval. It is a matter of gratification to me, as I am sure it must be to you and Republicans everywhere, and to our people, that the expressions of its declaration of principals are so direct, clear and emphatic. They are too plain and positive to leave any chance for doubt or question as to their purport and meaning."—William McKinley to the Notification Committee.

We have taken Utah, with all its Mormons into the Union; and we have been assured that the practice of polygamy has ceased. But Mormon elders still preach it elsewhere, if they don't openly practice it in Utah. A special to the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune gives an account of two "elders" who were preaching the doctrine of multiple marriages in Floyd county, Ky. It was found they were genuine converts, and they were ordered to depart; failing to do which at once the old-fashioned remedy of riding on a rail was resorted to. The fact that such emissaries are still kept at work throws a shade of doubt upon the genuineness of the reformation at the Mormon center in Utah.
Up to date President Cleveland, Senators Hill, Murphy, Gray, Palmer, and Vilas, ex-Governor Flower, Cabinet Secretaries Carlisle, Lamont, Olney, Smith, Harmon, Wilson, Morton, and Herbert, and William C. Whitney, Henry Watterson, Richard C. Croker, ex-Mayor Grant, and Chairman Hinkley are among the many prominent Democrats who have not ratified the Chicago nomination. Such dilatoriness on the part of so many distinguished party leaders was never before exhibited in the annals of Democracy.—Troy Times.

Hunting The White Goat or the Wild Rocky Mountain Goat.
Goat, called, is indiscriminately called, is a species of big game rarely hunted by sportsmen. This is not so much because of the difficulty of killing the animal, nor because of its actual rarity. It is a stupid animal, easily shot when once found. It is not, however, found in the usual hunting grounds, as are bear, deer, elk, etc. It is remote from the common localities, but where found is in goodly numbers. It ranges very high up in the mountains, above timber line usually, among rocks and cliffs. This requires great labor to get to it, but once there the hunter will get his game nine times out of ten.
If you care to read of a goat hunt made in the Bitter Root Range in Montana, in the fall of 1895, why send 6 cents to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn., for Wonderland '06, which recounts such a hunting exposition.

Their friends in the Republican party admit that there is some force in this, but it is only half truth, and the other part of the truth should, at least, be fairly considered. In 1853, when silver was made legal tender to the amount of $5, the price per ounce was $1.348. It remained at about the same price until 1859, when it went to $1.360. The price was $1.352 in 1860, $1.345 in 1863, $1.325 in 1869, $1.322 in 1872, $1.298 in 1873, $1.278 in 1874, $1.246 in 1875, $1.156 in 1876, $1.201 in 1877, $1.152 in 1875, $1.156 in 1876, $1.201 in 1877, $1.152 in 1878, $1.123 in 1879, $1.064 in 1885, .9946, .9379 in 1888, $1.463 in 1890, .98 in 18

"We have got to fight these people, and when a fight is bound to come the man that gets in the first blow has the advantage. I believe that we should strike the first blow here by walking out of the convention. It is not so much what these people here are doing as the manner in which they are doing it.

"One can easily see what these men will do if they once get in power. They will carry on the Government just as they carry on this convention. It is not so much the financial disaster that would follow their success at the polls that I fear, as it is the revolutionary things they will do in addition. They will get possession of the courts of justice, of the Supreme Court of the United States, and then they will assault the Constitution of the United States itself. The movement they are heading is fraught with danger to the very republic. It is a duty, it seems to me, to take the Argents and the Tillmans by the throat. You cannot fight anarchy by sitting calmly and declaring your democracy. It must be crushed out, and it seems to me the duty of every patriotic citizen to adopt not come here to see a man, but a convention is a democratic gathering from a combination of and socialism, a queer combination that, isn't it? This combination has temporary possession of the democratic party, to the shame of democracy be it said."

Dolliver Used it First.

The most popular catch phrase of the political contest so far is "the Advance Agent of Prosperity." It appeared on the prettiest and showiest bit of printing at the St. Louis convention—a two-sheet poster representing Gov. McKinley ushering in a period of activity on the farm, in the mines and factories, and on the streets of Commercial cities. It was quickly caught up by the McKinley men, and is now a household word from one end of the country to the other. The first public use of the phrase was in the Chicago Times-Herald of March 2, when in an interview with a western congressman, whose name was not given, these words appeared: "Out in my part of the country, the people regard McKinley as the agent of prosperity. They see the McKinley men, and when a fight is bound to come the man that gets in the first blow has the advantage. I believe that we should strike the first blow here by walking out of the convention. It is not so much what these people here are doing as the manner in which they are doing it.

was more that twenty five vessels weaker than it is today, by opposing the strengthening of our Navy, on the ground that it was then strong enough. It is such things as these, and not platitudinous speeches delivered in sonorous tones and with dramatic gestures, which demonstrate the calibre of a man. Mr. Bryan could not be elected President on his record no matter what sort of a platform he stood upon. He simply isn't up to the Presidential standard.—Ex.

"The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of the country is threatened. The money of the United States, and every kind of silver or gold, must be as good as the best in the world. It must not only be current at its full face value at home, but it must be counted at par in any commercial center of the world.

Not a New Thing

Considerable declamation is indulged in now-a-days about the possibility of this great nation having a monetary system of its own, without relation to what Europe or any of the rest of the world want. Considering the fact that during the prosperous years of the latest Republican administration our foreign trade, export and import, amounted to about one thousand million dollars in a single year, the importance of having some standard of money values which we hold in common with other countries becomes apparent. We must make our settlements with foreign countries in money which they recognize. It is for this reason that the co-operation of the commercial nations of the globe in settling the silver question becomes all important. Nor is this by any means a new idea. Both in 1878 and 1893 congress passed laws, with the general assent of all parties, providing for the appointment of commissioners from this country to international bi-metallic conferences. The last conference held gave promise, at one time, of reaching some definite conclusion, but the attitude of England prevented that desirable result. Since then there has been a great change in public sentiment and in official circles in England, and there is every reason to believe that if this country makes no free silver experiment on its own account, the silver question may within two or three years be settled by international agreement, and without the wrenching of financial conditions that would follow the attempt on our part to ignore the rest of the world. To this effort the Republican party is pledged, and in this course it is but following the precedents of 1878 and 1893.

Democratic Haters

In spite of a great show of enthusiasm in the Chicago convention there was plenty of sulking there, and the result is meeting with prompt repudiation outside. The Detroit Free Press, which has for 50 years been the leading Democratic paper in the state, only waited until the morning after the convention adjourned to bolt both platform and candidates. Speaking of the decision upon the money question it says that, aside from questions of mere party policy, "it is felt that not only national honor and reputation are at stake, but the foundations of industrial prosperity. It is incumbent, therefore, upon Democrats to choose between adherence to the party and standing by their convictions. The Free Press will stand by its convictions, and not endorse the Chicago platform nor candidates. Waiving any discussion as to the methods used in securing the adoption of that platform, we denounce the monetary utterance as un-American, and fraught with serious menace to the country and its prosperity. Believing this, there is no alternative course possible for the Free Press but that sacrifice of honest conviction; and that sacrifice we can not make."

The Chicago Chronicle, which was the only Democratic paper in that city, said: "The declaration in favor of repudiation and financial chaos is just what everybody expected from the Chicago mob of incongruous elements of destruction, fraternizing in incendiarism and the hopes of a general conflagration." The Chronicle follows this up with this prophecy: "There is no possibility of a free silver victory in Chicago, in Cook county nor in Illinois. The nominee of the Chicago convention is a man who has no money, no turns were already in. He will lose the state by 100,000 votes. Let the fanatics who believe otherwise mark the prediction. The men who cheered Hill in the galleries will be at the polls in November."

The Chattanooga, Tenn., Daily Times says: "We will not stultify our record by advocating the election of the nominee. We are Democratic; this platform and ticket are anarchistic, socialistic. We cannot join a movement in which Altgeld and Tillman and their sort are set up as apostles."

In all parts of this state there are mutterings of discontent amounting almost to open revolt, and in some cases in Detroit and Grand Rapids, these have found explicit expression. In the former city Rufus W. Gillett, a life-long Democrat, says that the enactment into law of the Democratic platform would result in disaster to the entire country and he cannot support the ticket or platform.

John D. Conely, of Detroit, says the platform is impossible for him and neither he nor his brother, Edwin E., can support it.

James Phelan, another prominent Detroit Democrat, says the silver men have wrecked the party and defeat is certain.

University Regent Levi L. Harbort says he wouldn't vote the Chicago platform even if the Apostle Paul had been at the head.

Cornelius Sheely declares that if he votes at all it will be with the Republicans. Wm. V. Moore, a delegate from the First district to the Chicago convention says that in no case will he vote the ticket, and Samuel T. Dotglas has announced that he will resign from the state central committee.

In Grand Rapids Dr. G. K. Johnson, a life-long Democrat, is the most outspoken, with the expression, "I regard the platform as un-American, un-American and dangerous, and I scorn it." Thomas Heffron, another Grand Rapids Democrat, who attended the convention, said he was thoroughly dissatisfied with the convention, did not regard the action as Democratic and did not care to stay through.

And the dissatisfaction does not diminish as people have time to think it over.

"What we need in the United States," said Gov. McKinley the other day, "is to get back to that policy which will give us work and wages."

The State Convention

Michigan will be one of the first of the reliable Republican states to hold its convention and open the fall campaign. Since the last gathering of its Republicans, at about the same time as those of many other states, the national conventions of the two great parties have been held and the lines have been clearly drawn. The St. Louis convention has spoken authoritatively for the Republican party in the whole country. It declares for the traditional policy of protection and reciprocity, and in favor of honest money. It is the privilege of the staunch Republicans of Michigan to be among the first to take up their party standard, and rally under it for their fall campaign. A platform in full accord with that of the national convention will furnish the best fighting ground that the party can occupy, in fact the only safe ground, and if the best men of the party turn out at the caucuses and county conventions, the campaign will be successfully inaugurated upon that basis.

The honest money campaign of 1878 furnished a useful lesson. The spring election of that year was a Greenback landslide, and many timid Republicans were in favor of making some concessions to Greenback sentiment in the platform for the fall campaign, in the hope of winning back some of the most ardent honest money men and Republicans of Greenback tendencies. But the more courageous counsels of Governor Crosswell, Senator Chandler and men of that stamp prevailed, and the platform was as pronounced as the most ardent honest money man could wish. The campaign was conducted on the same line, the party closed up its ranks, and won by a plurality of 47,000.

There was that year, no national convention, and Michigan had to form its own line of battle. This year the national convention has prepared the plan of campaign, and Michigan in falling in line, will find plenty of support. The caucuses of the next two weeks and the convention of August 5, ought to show that Michigan Republicans are loyal to the national organization, and ready again to enter the fight with a spirit that is born of confidence of complete success.

The Two Candidates

Considered independently of their platforms and their parties there is no comparison as regards qualifications for the presidency between Gov. McKinley and his opponent. Mr. McKinley is mature in years and judgment, and has had an experience wide and varied. His service in the army furnished proof of patriotism and capacity. In congress he reached the front rank and his name is identified with one of the most important pieces of legislation of the period. As governor of the third largest state in the Union he has shown executive ability of a high order and his speeches in numerous campaigns indicate broad views and an intelligent comprehension of all subjects relating to government.

His opponent has to show for his public career two terms in congress and the rupture of his own party in his own state. In congress he was a ready debater on just two subjects and had little to say on anything else. He was a rank free trader and a free silverite, but if he ever had views on questions of foreign policy or on any questions of home government save the two mentioned he failed to make them known. In home politics he has been a disorganizer and has shown a decided sympathy with the set of notions that make up what the Populists call their beliefs. He has never had opportunity to show whether he has any executive ability or not, but some of his utterances indicate that he has in him the making of an Altgeld, a Lewellyn, or a Walte.

Not one-tenth of the delegates to the convention would in their calmer moments have picked out this youngster as a suitable candidate for the presidency of a great nation with vast and varied home interests, and with many foreign complications. But he made a rattling speech at a critical time in the convention. The speech Ages not in-press the reader as one of great power, certainly does not reach anywhere near to the level of statesmanship. But it tickled the prejudices of the silver men and was of that declamatory character that sets a convention wild. It was while under the influence of the intoxication of this speech that the convention gave Mr. Bryan the nomination. Now that they have had time to go home and take a sober second thought, many of them are wondering why in the mischief they nominated that Populist boy for the chief magistracy.

McKinley on the Value of Labor

No worthy American wants to reduce the price of labor in the United States. It ought not to be reduced; for the sake of the laborer and his family and the good of society it ought to be maintained. To increase it would be in better harmony with the public sense. Our labor must not be degraded to the level of slaves, nor any paper or servile system in any form, nor under any guise whatsoever, at home or abroad. Our civilization will not permit it. Our humanity forbids it. Our traditions are opposed to it. The stability of our institutions rests upon the contentment and intelligence of all of our people and these can only be possessed by maintaining the dignity of labor and securing to it its just rewards. That protection opens avenues for employment, broadens and diversifies the field of labor, and presents variety of vocation is manifest from our own experience.—Wm. McKinley.

Most of the planks of the Chicago platform are full of knot-holes and so badly warped that lots of Democrats would rather stand somewhere else.—Detroit Journal.

A voice at one end and a barrel at the other—that's about the size of the convention product at Chicago. Truly, a great cry, and next to nothing to show for it.—New York Tribune.

The government has commenced work on the new building for the United States fish hatchery at Northville. They will build the superintendent's house first and then the main buildings, and afterward improve the grounds. It will not take them long to use up the $13,000 appropriation.

Sewall is said to be the owner and part owner of forty-three ships. Most of them are "ships that pass in the night." As soon as the ceremonies are over in New York Mr. and Mrs. Bryan will visit Mr. Sewall and try some of his fast sailors. After all it is mighty handy to have such a man as Sewall on deck.

Sound-money Democrats and magwags who fled to the woods will tire of smudges and mosquitoes and sand flies before November. Doubtless many will vote the Republican ticket, but the campaign should not be changed, or a single measure of the platform slighted. More Republicans will be lost than Democrats gained by any abandonment of sound protection.

Indiana is the latest state to enter the arena against track gambling. The supreme court of that state has just routed a race track combination which had succeeded in braving the lower court, and the people are prepared to demand a new law on the subject if it is necessary. The growing unpopularity marked and sufficiently general to be regarded as a sign of the times.

Randolph Barton, one of the electors-at-large on the Democratic ticket in Maryland, has announced his withdrawal. Mr. Barton is a prominent lawyer of Baltimore and has always been regarded as being one of the staunchest Democrats in Maryland. He intends to vote for McKinley for the reason that he cannot accept the currency plank in the Democratic platform.

The prominence that Senator Quay, as a member of the Executive Committee, is to take in the management of McKinley and Hobart's campaign is very gratifying to the admirers of the brainy Senator from the Keystone state; besides, it shows what excellent judgment Chairman Hanna has used in selecting the men who are to help him fight anarchy, disorder, and repudiation and to elect a 100-cent dollar president.

The cause of McKinley and Hobart is booming from day to day. The Prohibition organ heretofore published at Buchanan this State hauls down the Prohibition flag which floated at its editorial masthead and has substituted therefor the banner of McKinley and Hobart in its stead. Straws show how the winds blow. The glorious flag of Republicanism floats in the breeze and betokens a glorious national Republican victory in November.

The Gold Standard.

This is the way the world stands on the money question: Countries on the gold basis are the United States, England, France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Hungary, Turkey, Greece, Roumania, Bulgaria, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Brazil, the Argentine Republic and Chili. Russia is preparing to resume specie payment on the gold basis. India has stopped coining silver and is aiming at a gold standard. Venezuela and Ecuador are about to change from silver to gold. Silver standard countries are Mexico, Central America, Peru, Bolivia, Japan, China and the Straits Settlements.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Sewall is Beaten.

St. Louis, Mo., July 24.—Up to midnight the Populist convention had not reached a ballot. Tom Watson of Georgia, Congressman Harry Skinner of North Carolina, Arthur Sewall of Maine and several others had been placed in nomination for vice-president. Bitter opposition was shown to Sewall as a banker and millionaire.

During the late evening it became rumored that "Tom" Patterson of Colorado would spring a sensation at the proper time. It was said that he would take the stand and read the telegrams that had passed between Senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic National committee, and Mr. Bryan, which will make Bryan's nomination impossible, if Sewall is rejected. Chairman Allen, Tom Patterson, Lafe Pence and Gen. Weaver held a conference at Patterson's seat. It had reference to the position of Bryan in case Sewall is not nominated, and was for the purpose of dissuading Patterson from reading the telegrams, the other three saying that Bryan would reconsider his determination not to accept a nomination unless Sewall was also nominated. Patterson finally yielded to the others and promised not to read the telegrams.

The Menominee county fair association will not hold a fair this fall for the reason that much of the crops of the county have been destroyed by the army worm.

The Hart Steamboat line will run an excursion from Marquette to Mackinac, tonight. The boy's choir of Grace church will go on the excursion and will give a Sailor concert this evening.

The Popocrats are already calling a good number of the Republican States "doubtful." However, they should not be discouraged. A cultivation of that idea in the Republican party will only increase its majorities.

Don't neglect your business or your family, or lose sleep over politics. The sober second thought of the American people can be trusted, and especially so when the object lesson of the last four years is written above the doors of labor in a million homes.

A 5-year old son of Section-foreman Myatt, of the D. S. S. & A. Ry., residing at St. Ignace, was lost in the woods early in the week. The child wandered away from his mother who was picking berries. The little fellow was found Thursday morning.

The body of Hans Anderson was found in the bay near the Iron Cliffs Furnace, Gladstone, last Saturday. We stated in our issue of the 18th that he was missing. It is generally believed that Anderson suicided, although no reason is known for the deed.

The Marquette Daily Star indicates the free silver sentiment in its city by the following remarks: Judge Holgate has lost his only attentive listener. Al Diamond's cigar sign finally wearied of the judge's 16 to 1 arguments and wandered away into the swamp.

Mr. Sewall, of Maine, who has been nominated for vice-president on the Democratic ticket on account of having a "bar" of money, has not lived in vain. He has raised a son who is an active Republican, and who will vote for McKinley. In explaining his conduct he says that he does not object to "the old man" on any other grounds than his politics, which are the boy's special aversion. The young fellow seems to be an improvement on the old stock.

During a winter visit to Florida, Andrew Carnegie attended a service in a little negro church. When the contribution plate came around, Mr. Carnegie dropped a $5 bill upon it. After the contents of the plate had been counted, the clergyman arose and announced: "Brethren and sisters, the collection this evening seems to figure up $6.44; and if the $5 bill contributed by the gentleman from the north is genuine the repairs on the sanctuary will begin immediately."

Such rambow chasing as we see by the silverites nowadays! With the leading Democratic journals everywhere repudiating their ticket, with but a single newspaper voicing their views in the great State of Massachusetts, and with seemingly no organs at all in several other states, they yet talk of securing enough votes in the electoral college. They won't hold what they claim as "their own" in the West, let alone the East. The presidency won't be found where their rainbow touches the earth.

In speaking of the army worm, which is doing much damage in this locality, Dr. Lockwood, of Monmouth, N. J., says: "There is no turn back to this singular worm, for when they find a stream in their way they crowd forward until a compact mass is urged into the water, making a living pontoon, over which the army passes and takes possession of new foraging ground." He also tells, that "When any of the worms come to a tree they pass over to the crotch, then descend at the other side." They have been noticed passing over buildings in this vicinity.

In the college career of the late ex-Governor Russell of Massachusetts he had an escape from drowning from which he saved himself only after more than an hour of swimming. He and five friends had their sloop capsized in a sharp breeze off Nantucket, and as the sloop sank the only support left for the party was a single oar. This was given to two members of the party, but one of them relinquished his hold and was drowned, while Russell held the others in the long swim for shore. He was the last man picked up by the fishermen who rescued the five in a dory.

J. H. A. writes: "Inasmuch as the silver mines of Colorado, Idaho and Montana are largely owned by foreigners, how far is 'British gold' being employed to further Bryan's election, and how much has he received of the same in pushing the silver interest to the present situation?" We don't know how much British gold has been paid to Mr. Bryan for his services to the silver interest, but it is a well known fact that he has been for years in the employ of that interest as their hired advocate. If foreigners own the mines they doubtless paid or helped to pay him the compensation he received for his work as their agent.—Pioneer Press.

The careful reader of the newspapers has not noticed within a few days an open letter from Gov. Cleveland of Washington city, D. C., formerly of Buffalo, N. Y., directed to one William J. Bryan of Nebraska, in which the former expresses his unalloyed pleasure at the latter's nomination for president of the United States of America by the Democratic party, and congratulating the said Bryan upon the bright prospect of having the felicity of riding with him up Pennsylvania avenue in the same carriage on the forenoon of the 4th of March next, to see him take the oath of office, amid the roar of cannon, the waving of flags, and the deafening applause of his delighted countrymen!

A foolish newspaper writer pretends to think that the legacy of $40,000 which has just been left Gov. Altgeld, by a deceased relative, will induce that uncompromising philanthropist and faithful lover of his neighbors, hereafter to strike out that clause in his leases when renting buildings which provides that his tenants shall pay him in gold. Such a thought could only originate in the idle brain of a person who does not know the manner of man he is talking about. The very name of the governor of Illinois in the original suggests that he will do no such thing, but that, Shylock like, he will continue to collect his rents in gold, while advocating the free and unlimited coinage of silver. He will take the kind of money "nominated in the bond," and he will be sure that each dollar will be worth 100 cents.

R. F. Barnett, of Louisville, was going into Louisville from Memphis, on the train was a white-haired old lady, with whom chance drew him into conversation. She told him that she was going to visit her son, whom she had not seen for two or three years. He had written a few weeks before, asking her to visit him at Louisville, naming a certain hotel. At the depot she was greatly disappointed not to meet her son and Mr. Barnett accompanied her to the hotel. He took her to the parlor, and volunteered to find her son. The clerk had not seen him, but had a letter for the lady. As soon as she read the first line she fainted, and Mr. Barnett hurriedly sent for a physician, picking up the letter. The first paragraph was: "My Dear Mother: I am now in the penitentiary." Mr. Barnett was shocked, but read further. The next paragraph said: "I have a good position with the contractors, and it is impossible to get away. Come on to Frankfort. I have already rented a house for us to live in." It took Mr. Barnett and the physician three hours to bring the mother to consciousness.

ROSE BROTHERS,

Robert (Ridley) Stephenson, who is well known on the Menominee river as superintendent for the Diamond Match company at Ontonagon, has learned to master the bicycle, and this is how it came about, says the Menominee Herald. He stood on the steps of the old Bigelow the other day looking longingly at a bicycle which someone had left standing on the sidewalk in front of that landmark. After awhile he walked over and straddled it, wiggled and wobbled a few times, and then fell off. Picking up the wheel he led it to a cracker box in front of a hitching post, and mounted the thing again. After several repetitions of the first attempt, he finally managed to ride to the mill office and across the bridge to the west side, and back to where he had started. A gentleman who is traveling in the interest of a large lumber concern, happened to be in Ontonagon at the time, and related Bob's experience to Congressman Stephenson, of Menominee, with the result that the latter bought a fine wheel and sent it to his relative by express as a token of regard for "Ridley's" indomitable pluck.

The Alpena's Queer Cargo.

A year ago an Alpena tannery company imported a lot of Indians from New York state to strip bark, they being experts in that line. Their contract was completed a week ago, and to each was handed the amount due him, $400. Then the fun began. Every saloon in Alpena was thrown wide open to them, and in a couple of days time they were all in a state of helpless intoxication. As fast as they began to sober up they poured in the fire water, and when the City of Alpena, which was to bring them down to Port Huron, arrived they all lay in the warehouse as drunk as lords.

Capt. Lightbody did not at first know what to do with them, but finally as he had but a short time at the dock, he ordered them laid one by one aboard merchandise trucks, and wheeled aboard the steamer the same as any other freight. They were handled with due care, and laid about the steamer's forward main deck much like dead soldiers are laid side by side on the battle field after having been gathered up. In that condition they were brought to Port Huron, made to walk ashore and there they took the Grand Trunk train that was to help convey them to their homes. It is the opinion of some who saw them that they had been drugged, their wild eyes and twitching muscles and long, lethargic sleep indicating this. It is also evident that some of them had been robbed, as they had not money enough to pay their transportation, and had to borrow from the others.—Detroit Free Press.

Just What's Needed. Exclaims thousands of people who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season of the year, and who have noted the success of the medicine in giving them relief from that tired feeling, waning appetite and state of extreme exhaustion after the close confinement of a long winter season, the busy time attendant upon a large and pressing business during the spring months and with vacation time yet some weeks distant. It is then that the building-up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are fully appreciated. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of seasons, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system, it purifies and vitalizes the blood.
